PREFACE

This is the sixth edition of the Code of Laws of the District of Columbia prepared and published pursuant to Title 1 U.S. Code, section 202. This edition contains all the general and permanent laws relating to or in force in the District of Columbia, on January 2, 1973, except such laws as are of application in the District of Columbia by reason of being laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature. The Code was originally adopted as prima facie evidence of existing law. However, Part II, Judiciary and Judicial Procedure, comprising Titles 11-17, Part III, Decedents' Estates and Fiduciary Relations, comprising Titles 18-21, Title 23, Criminal Procedure and Title 28, Commercial Instruments and Transactions (containing the Uniform Commercial Code), have since been enacted as law.

Many new features and improvements were incorporated in the 1940 edition, reflecting, as far as practicable, the preferences of the users of the Code who responded to a questionnaire sent out by the Committee on Revision of the Laws to several thousand attorneys and Government officers and employees within the District of Columbia. An entirely new arrangement of subject matter was adopted. Shortly before the 1973 edition was prepared a comparable survey was made by The Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and many of the suggestions resulting from the survey have been included in this edition.

The 1940 edition was the first official Code containing the annotations of the court decisions interpreting the respective sections of the Code. These annotations have been brought up to the indicated pages in the following reports:

Numerous cross references and historical notes have been added to increase the usefulness of the Code. An important and extremely useful improvement in this edition is a cross-reference note following each section that is referred to in another section, indicating the section that refers to it. These cross references and historical notes are brought up to the end of 1972 in this edition and will be kept current in the future annual supplements. There is included in this edition, for the first time, an Index of Acts cited by Popular Names. It is hoped that it will prove to be an added useful tool for the users of the Code.

The work of preparing this edition was done by the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives with the assistance of the Equity Publishing Corporation under the supervision of Joseph Fischer, Esq., law revision counsel for the Committee. Acknowledgement is also made to the numerous officials of the District and Federal governments and the members of the bench and bar of the District whose suggestions have been most helpful.

The Committee invites suggestions and criticisms looking to the improvement of the Code.

§ 18-102. Capacity to make a will

A will, testament, or codicil is not valid for any purpose unless the person making it is:

- (1) if a male, at least 21 years of age; or
- (2) if a female, at least 18 years of age—

and, at the time of executing or acknowledging it as provided by this chapter, of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

CROSS REFERENCE

Stealing, destroying, or withholding will, penalty, see § 18-111, 18-112.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Capacity to make a will

Provision in section 21-1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservatorship, does not render that person, per se, incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333, cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Congress in adopting provisions in section 18-102 that will was not valid unless person making it was of required age and at time of executing or acknowledging it was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing valid deed or contract did not intend to deprive mentally competent person of testamentary capacity merely because he was subject to conservatorship. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Evidence

Any degree of importunity or undue influence which deprives the testator of his free agency, and which is such as he is too weak to resist, and in effect renders the instrument not his free and unconstrained act, is sufficient to and will invalidate the will or testament of the party. Barbour v. Moore (1894, 4 App. D.C. 535).

Declarations of testator and his relations with the parties are competent circumstances tending to throw light upon his state of mind and disposition. The only limitation is that it shall not be received as proof of the independent fact or the truth of the things declared, but as supplementary only to direct proof of the alleged fraud and undue influence. Manogue v. Herrell (1898, 13 App. D.C. 455).

Testimony plainly of a hearsay character, including the certificates of the physicians for the commitment of testator to insane asylum is inadmissible, especially when testimony of physicians themselves was not taken. Keely v. Moore (1903, 22 App. D.C. 9, affirmed 25 S. Ct. 169, 196 U.S. 38, 49 L. Ed. 376.)

In Federal courts a will is not set aside on evidence showing only suspicion or possibility of undue influence. Robinson v. Duvall (1906, 27 App. D.C. 535, affirmed 28 S. Ct. 260, 207 U.S. 583, 52 L. Ed. 351).

It was proper to submit question to jury to determine testamentary capacity of testatrix, a woman of about eighty-two years, when she executed will during a decline of her physical and mental condition. Morgan v. Adams (1907, 29 App. D.C. 198, error dismissed 213 S. Ct. 213, 211 U.S. 627, 53 L. Ed. 362).

Trial court did not err when it excluded evidence which tended to show a delusion affecting person more than thirty years before the making of the will and codicils. Turner v. American Security & Trust Co. (1907, 29 App. D.C. 460, affirmed 29 S. Ct. 420, 213 U.S. 257, 53 L. Ed. 788).

Testimony of testatrix's brother, who had made his home with her for 36 years, that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her was admissible on issues of undue influence and testamentary capacity in opposition to probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary. Duckett v. Duckett (1943, 134 F. 2d 527, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

Fraud and undue influence

If sole beneficiary of will, after taking sole charge of testatrix, first made false statements to other relatives with purpose of inducing them not to visit testatrix and then allowed her to suppose, contrary to fact, that the other relatives were making no effort to see testatrix, doing nothing for her and showing no interest in her welfare, such conduct would constitute both "fraud" and "undue influence" which would vitiate the will. Duckett v. Duckett (1943, 134 F. 2d 527, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

Incorporation of document

Testator may so construct disposition of his property as to have recourse to some paper or document in order to explain his intention and to apply provisions of his will to the subject matter thereof. This doctrine of incorporation by reference must clearly identify the instrument to which will refers and must be in existence at the date of the will. Vestry of St. John's Parish v. Bostwick (1896, 8 App. D.C. 452).

Law governing

The law of wills and of probate as existing in Maryland on February 27, 1801, was and is the law of the District of Columbia, except as since altered by Congress. Pascucci v. Alsop (1945, 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987). See, also, In re Allen's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

Nature of proceedings

Proceedings for the probate of wills are statutory and are substantially in rem. The proceeding in upon the will itself and to determine its status. The judgment runs against no person, but is, simply, that the instrument before the court is, or is not, the will of the testator. Cruit v. Owen (1903, 21 App. D.C. 378).

Sound and disposing mind

Where trial judge thought testatrix was not in a condition to execute a serious document, such as a will or deed or contract, with judgment and understanding at time she signed will which had been written for her, direction of verdict upholding the will was error, and judgment would be reversed and cause remanded for new trial. Collins v. Dobbins (1952, 198 F. 2d 763, 70 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

Fact to be found by the jury is not that the testator was demented at the particular time or that he was victim of insane delusions, but whether from any one of these conditions that he was not of sound and disposing mind and of capacity to make a valid deed or contract. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (1902, 19 App. D.C. 506).

If person of sound mind executes a will, and the same is his voluntary act, the law presumes knowledge on his part of its contents and such presumption also applies to illiterates. Lipphard v. Humphrey (1906, 28 App. D.C. 355, affirmed 28 S. Ct. 561, 209 U.S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 14 Ann. Cas. 872).

An insane delusion exists when a person conceives the existence of something fanciful and extravagant, something having no foundation in reason or fact, and is dominated and controlled by such imagination, and therefore acts as he would not otherwise have acted. Riddle v. Gibson (1907, 29 App. D.C. 237).

If one acts under a delusion superinduced by false testimony, of the falsity of which he has no knowledge, it cannot be said that he is the victim of an insane delusion. Morgan v. Morgan (1908, 30 App. D.C. 436, 13 Ann. Cas. 1037).

The test is whether the testator, at the time of executing the paper purporting to be his will, was capable of making a valid deed or contract. Lewis v. American Security & Trust Co. (1923, 289 F. 916, 53 App. D.C. 258). See, also, Thompson v. Smith (1939, 103 F. 2d 936, 70 App. D.C. 65, 123 A.L.R. 76).

Status as married woman

Will made by married woman while separated from husband, from whom she is later divorced, was not revoked although she subsequently remarried. Chapman v. Dismer (1899, 14 App. D.C. 446).

§ 18-103. Execution of written will; attestation

A will or testament, other than a will executed in the manner provided by section 18-107, is void unless it is:

- (1) in writing and signed by the testator, or by another person in his presence and by his express direction; and
- (2) attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator, by at least two credible witnesses. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is taken from that part of section 19-103 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which preceded the first semi-colon therein. Remainder of section 19-103 is carried into section 18-109.

In the opening clause the phrase “, other than a will executed in the manner provided by section 18-107(b),” is inserted, because the section so cited permits the making and proof of nuncupative wills in certain cases.

The word “utterly”, which preceded “void”, and the words “and of no effect”, which followed “void”, are omitted as surplusage.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

This section is referred to in sections 18-105, 18-109.

Ancient documents

Doctrine that an ancient document may be accepted as being genuinely executed for purposes of being submitted to jury is applicable to wills. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Circumstantial evidence

Where writing has been found in an unsealed envelope, with portion missing, it would be inappropriate to use limited rule of circumstantial evidence to presume regularity in execution so as to permit admission of the document to probate for full testamentary purposes. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Documents entitled to probate

Document consisting of one page of what evidence showed to be a three-page will and containing unfinished sentence at bottom of back page was incomplete and testatrix' signature on first page could not be viewed as carrying with it any testamentary intent entitling the document to be admitted to probate. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Document, which evidence showed was one page of a three-page will and which disposed of 70% of testatrix' estate but contained incomplete sentence at bottom of final page was not part of longer, complete document that was duly executed by decedent and properly attested by witnesses so as to permit admission to probate of single page. Id.

Holographic will

Holographic wills must be attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator by two witnesses, although they need not sign in each other's presence or physically observe other's signature. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Interested witnesses

Testator's heirs at law or next of kin who are necessary witnesses to will can take legacies under will up to amount but not in excess of their intestate share if decedent had died intestate. In re Estate of Pye (1971, 325 F. Supp. 321).

Where codicil was subscribed and attested to by three witnesses and contained bequests to two of such witnesses, codicil is invalid with respect to such bequests. Id.

Parol evidence

A litigant may not furnish by parol those features of testament for which the wills statute demands peculiarly formalized writing. In re Estate of Kerr (1970, 433 F. 2d 479, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Proof

Burden of proving formal execution of will rests on the party wishing to have document admitted to probate. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Signature

Purpose of signature to will is both to identify the testator and to authenticate document, and in order to be testamentary in character signature must indicate something more than the mere act of identifying maker of document in question. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

There is no requirement that signature be at any particular place on will to be effective, but there must be proof that the testator intended signature to bind his intention. Id.

Witnessing

Where evidence showed that the testatrix finished entire document in one sitting, signed it, had one witness sign it, and then went to bed, evidence that, at some unknown time, other witness signed first page which was presented for probate failed to establish that the will was validly attested by the second witness. In re Estate of F. Hall (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1305; aff'd 466 F. 2d 340, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Alteration

Where a testator properly executed a will on two sheets of paper, and subsequently attempted to alter the will by substituting another sheet for the first, which was discarded, without notifying witnesses, or signing in the presence of witnesses, it is not entitled to probate. Henry v. Fraser (1929, 29 F. 2d 633, 58 App. D.C. 260, 62 A.L.R. 1364).

Birth of child

Where testator was unmarried and without children by a former marriage at time he executed will which contained no provision for any child of subsequent marriage, his subsequent marriage and the birth of a child amounted to an implied revocation of the previously executed will, notwithstanding this section specifying with particularity the manner in which will may be revoked. Pascucci v. Alsop (1945, 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

A will in favor of wife executed by married man without children was not revoked by subsequent birth of a child. Allen v. Heron (1946, 157 F. 2d 707, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Where will was executed after testator's marriage, subsequent birth of a child to the marriage did not operate as a revocation of will. In re Allen's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

Formalities

The re-execution of a will requires the same formalities as required for its original execution. Notes v. Doyle (1909, 32 App. D.C. 413).

Unless the formalities prescribed are complied with the instrument is void. Association Survivors of Seventh Georgia Regiment v. Lerner (1925, 3 F. 2d 201, 55 App. D.C. 156).

Execution of will—qualification of witnesses—interest, see Peters v. Peters (1935, 78 F. 2d 215, 64 App. D.C. 331).

Law governing

All wills, in their very nature, are ambulatory and revocable during the life of the testator; and, in respect to personal estate, they speak only from and have effect upon the death of the testator; and to say that a will shall have effect and be declared valid in respect to a prior law, which has been repealed and given place to a different rule as a substitute, is to declare valid a testamentary paper without existing law to support it. Colonna v. Alton (1904, 23 App. D.C. 296).

Order of signatures

Will was valid even though attesting witnesses signed it before testatrix where all signed at substantially same time and in each other's presence. Billings v. Woody (1948, 167 F. 2d 756, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 219, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 46, 335 U.S. 822, 93 L. Ed. 377).

Promissory note

Condition in note that if payee predeceased maker, outstanding balance of note would be deemed to have been paid did not render note invalid on ground that condition was attempt to make testamentary disposition contrary to statute of wills. M. Nunnally v. J. F. Wilder (1964, 330 F. 2d 843, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

Signature on envelope

Writing which purported to be the will of decedent, which was executed by decedent, folded and sealed in an envelope, the face of which envelope was inscribed "my last will and testament" followed by witnesses' signatures under such inscription, was not entitled to probate because paper upon which witnesses affixed their signatures was not physically attached to paper purporting to be the will and witnesses had not affixed their signatures to will itself. In re Lee's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 293).

Subscription

The evidence would allow an inference that the testator had signed in an adjoining room before he brought the will to the room in which the witnesses were present, and in the absence of clear and convincing testimony to the contrary, the presumption of regularity is not defeated. Betts v. Lonas (1949, 172 F. 2d 759, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Transfer effective at death

Generally, where design of owner of bank deposit is to retain sole control during his life and intended transfer or gift is not to take effect until death, arrangement is testamentary in character and void under statute of wills. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

Witnessing

Attesting witnesses need not know the contents of the document; "they may attest it without the presence of each other; they, or any of them, need not see the testator sign the will, provided he acknowledges the signature to each of the witnesses; and they need not even know that the document they have witnessed is a will." Notes v. Doyle (1909, 32 App. D.C. 413).

It is not necessary that testator should sign his will in the presence of witnesses, but that he shall, before witnesses sign, indicate that the document is his will and that he has signed it. Bullock v. Morehouse (1927, 19 F. 2d 705, 57 App. D.C. 231).

§ 18-104. Devises, legacies, etc., to attesting witnesses

(a) A beneficial devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or power of appointment of or affecting real or personal estate, given or made to an attesting witness to a will or codicil is void as to him and persons claiming under him, except as provided by subsections (b) and (c) of this section.

(b) Where an interested witness to a will or codicil, referred to in subsection (a) of this section, would be entitled to a share of the estate of the testator in case the will or codicil were not established, he or persons claiming under him shall take such portion of the devise or bequest made to him in the will or codicil as does not exceed the share of the estate which would be distributed to him or persons claiming under him in case of intestacy.

(c) The voidance provided for by subsection (a) of this section does not apply to charges on real estate for the payment of debts.

(d) Notwithstanding subsection (a) of this section, an interested witness referred to therein, whether an heir at law or not, is not disqualified as a competent witness to the execution of the will or codicil by reason of his interest. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-104 (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 1, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 781; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 557, § 5).

Under a literal application of section 19-104 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., a devise or legacy, etc., to an attesting witness to a will was "utterly null and void", even if the interested witness was an heir at law. The object of the British statute, from which that section was derived, was to prevent witness-devises or witness-legatees from benefiting by fraudulent attestation, but at the same time to uphold wills and permit probate where possible. Frequently, however, this worked injustice and hardship, where probably none was intended by the framers of the statute or certainly was not intended by the testator, and many American jurisdictions now permit a witness-devisee or witness-legatee who is an heir at law and would share in the estate were it to pass by intestacy to take the devise or bequest, etc., in an amount not to exceed his intestate share, provided, among other things in some cases, that there are other competent and disinterested witnesses constituting the required number. See, for example, West's Annotated California Prob. Code § 51; Canal Zone Code, Title 7, § 42; Florida Statutes Annotated § 731.07(5); Ill. Rev. Stat. 1955, ch. 3, § 195. In Vermont and New Hampshire, such a witness may take the devise or bequest without qualification, if there is the requisite number of other attesting witnesses (Vermont Statutes Annotated, Title 14, § 10; New Hampshire Rev. Stat. Annotated § 551:3). In New York and the Virgin Islands, the other conditions being met, the wording of what such a witness may take is reversed, that is, he may take so much of the share, as would have descended or been distributed to him in case of intestacy, as does not exceed the value of the devise or bequest (McKinney's N.Y. Decedent Estate Law § 27; Virgin Islands Code (1957), Title 15, § 19).

In fact, in the District of Columbia, section 19-104 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., notwithstanding its language, was construed in 1956 by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit to permit a witness-legatee, who was also an heir at law, to take her bequest under the will, but in an amount no greater than her intestate share. See Manoukian v. Tomasian, 237 F. 2d 211, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 57, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 588, 352 U.S. 1026, 1 L. Ed. 2d 596.

In view of the foregoing, and to follow the principle laid down in the above-mentioned case, the provisions are rewritten in this section to provide in subsec. (b) that, if the interested witness is also an heir at law, he or persons claiming under him shall take such proportion of the devise or bequest as does not exceed the share of the estate which would be distributed to him or persons claiming under him if the will or codicil were not established. The purpose of the older statute to prevent fraud is preserved by this change, particularly in view of the District of Columbia case mentioned above.

Whether the statute should be further revised to permit, as in a number of other jurisdictions, an attesting witness, who is not an heir at law, to take a devise or bequest made to him, if there is a sufficient number of other attesting witnesses who are competent, is a matter beyond the scope of this revision. It should be pointed out, however, that, in revising the section to conform the provisions with the case of Manoukian v. Tomasian, discussed above, it is not the intention to impede judicial construction or determination with respect to a devise, bequest, etc., in a will, or any judicial construction which might have been reached under the law as it now exists (that is, prior to this revision). In other words, there is no intention, in making the change, to limit or restrict the exceptions (to the general rule) to the exception spelled out in subsec. (b), or to prevent the judicial development of additional exceptions by the application of precedent or sound judicial construction.

In subsec. (c), the more modern term of "real estate" is substituted for "lands, tenements or hereditaments".

Subsec. (d) continues, with changes in phraseology, the provision of section 19-104 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which made an interested witness a competent witness to the execution of the will or codicil.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Beneficial interest

Where attorney who drew will which nominated him as executor and authorized ten percent fee for his services was attesting witness to will, court was required to determine whether or not ten percent commission was beneficial interest at time will was witnessed. In re Estate of M. B. Small (1972, 346 F. Supp. 600).

Where attorney who drew will which nominated attorney as executor and authorized payment of ten percent for his services was attesting witness to will, attorney had "financial interest" which constituted a "beneficial interest" and fixed commission was void but court would allow fee for work performed. Id.

Intestate share

Testator's heirs at law or next of kin who are necessary witnesses to will can take legacies under will up to amount but not in excess of their intestate share if decedent had died intestate. In re Estate of Pye (1971, 325 F. Supp. 321).

Where codicil was subscribed and attested to by three witnesses and contained bequests to two of such witnesses, codicil is invalid with respect to such bequests. Id.

Purpose

Purpose of statute rendering void any devise to attesting witness of will containing devise was to give maximum effect to wills and to eliminate any financial incentive which might taint necessary objectivity of attesting witnesses. In re Estate of M. B. Small (1972, 346 F. Supp. 600).

Supernumerary witness

Where a codicil was subscribed and attested to by three witnesses, two of whom were legally disinterested, bequest made in codicil to other witness is valid. In re Estate of Pye (1971, 325 F. Supp. 321).

Intestate share

Although by statutes legacies to persons who are witnesses to will and testify to establish same, are void, a witness-legatee who was also an heir at law could testify as to the execution of the will and take his bequest thereunder, but in an amount no greater than his intestate share. Manoukian v. Tomasian (1956, 237 F. 2d 211, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 57, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 588, 352 U.S. 1026, 1 L. Ed. 2d 596).

§ 18-105. Retention or demand of void devise or legacy by attesting witness prohibited

A person to whom a beneficial devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or power of appointment is given or made in a will or codicil, which is void under section 18-103, may not, in any manner or under any color or pretense whatsoever:

(1) demand or take possession of or receive any profits or benefit of or from the devise, legacy estate, interest, gift, or power of appointment so given or made; or

(2) demand, receive, or accept from another person the beneficial devise, legacy estate, interest, gift, or power of appointment or any satisfaction or compensation therefor.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-105 (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 7, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 783; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 558, § 7).

In the opening paragraph, and par. (1), references to "devise" and "legacy" are inserted; and "power of appointment" is substituted for "appointment", for the purpose of clarification; and the provisions carried into par. (2) are changed to conform therewith. The provisions in section 19-105 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., corresponding with par. (2) of this section, referred only to "legacy or bequest".

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction

Statutes providing that legacies to persons who are witnesses to a will and testify to establish same are void, are not, unlike most portions of District of Columbia Code, acts of Congress passed for the government of the District, but are part of the law of the District because they are British statutes which were recognized as being in force in Maryland prior to cession of the District in 1801 and maintained in effect by act of Congress retaining all common law in force in Maryland. Manoukian v. Tomasian (1956, 237 F. 2d 211, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 57, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 588, 352 U.S. 1026, 1 L. Ed. 2d 596).

§ 18-106. Creditors as competent witnesses

A mere charge in a will or codicil on the estate of a testator for the payment of debts does not disqualify a creditor from being a competent witness to the will or codicil. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-106 (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 2, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 782; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 558, § 6).

The language of the provisions is rewritten and simplified, but without change of substance or meaning. See West's Ann. Cal. Prob. Code § 52.

§ 18-107. Nuncupative wills

A nuncupative will made after January 1, 1902, is not valid in the District of Columbia except that a person in actual military or naval service or a mariner at sea may dispose of his personal property by word of mouth, if:

(1) his oral disposition of the property is proved by at least two witnesses who were present at the making thereof and were requested by the testator to bear witness that the disposition was his last will; and

(2) The will is made during the time of the last illness of the deceased; and

(3) the substance of the will is reduced to writing within 10 days after it was made.

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 18-103, 18-109.

§ 18-108. Execution of power by will

An appointment made by will in the exercise of a power is not valid unless it is so executed that it would be valid for the disposition of the property to which the power applies if it belonged to the testator. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 18-109. Revocation of wills; revival

(a) A will or codicil, or a part thereof, may not be revoked, except by implication of law, otherwise than by

(1) a later will, codicil, or other writing declaring the revocation, executed as provided by section 18-103 or 18-107; or

(2) burning, tearing, cancelling, or obliterating the will or codicil, or the part thereof, with the intention of revoking it, by the testator himself, or by a person in his presence and by his express direction and consent.

(b) A will or codicil, or a part thereof, after it is revoked, may not be revived otherwise than by its re-execution, or by a codicil executed as provided in the case of wills, and then only to the extent to which an intention to revive is shown. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section consolidates that part of section 19-103 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that was not carried into section 18-103 herein, with section 19-108 of the Code.

The provisions set out as subsec. (a), which are from section 19-103 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are rewritten to simplify the language and omit surplusage. To this end, the words "A will or codicil, or a part thereof" are substituted for "devise or bequest"; and the words "but all devises and bequests shall remain and continue in force until the same be burned, canceled, torn, or obliterated by the testator or by his direction in the manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered or revoked by some other will, testament, or codicil in writing, or other writing of the testator signed in the presence of at least two witnesses attesting the same, any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding" are omitted, although the requirement for at least two witnesses is preserved by the insertion in the revised provisions of the words "executed as provided by section 18-103 or 18-107(b)".

Regarding the omission of the above-quoted words "any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding", attention is invited to the opinion in the case of Pascucci v. Alsop (1945), 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987, in which it was held, as in English and Maryland cases, that these words, which, like the remainder of section 19-103 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. (actually, section 1626 of the 1901 Act cited above), were derived from a corresponding Maryland statute, which, in turn, was derived from the sixth section of the British Statute of Frauds enacted in 1676, affected only the "law or usage" prior to 1676, and did not affect the revocation of a will by operation of law. Those same words have since been omitted from the Maryland statute, presumably in recognition that they were without significance or effect.

To quote from the opinion in Pascucci v. Alsop, supra: "An examination of these [English cases collected and discussed by Chancellor Kent in the case of Brush v. Wilkins, N.Y. 1820, 4 Johns. Ch. 506] demonstrates quite clearly that the doctrine was definitely established in England before our Revolution that implied revocations of wills were not within the Statute of Frauds and that marriage and the subsequent birth of a child, following the execution of a will, operated as an implied revocation. In the United States, in the absence of a statute abolishing the common law rule and establishing a new rule in its place, the universal rule has been that the marriage of a man, and the birth of a child capable of inheriting, revoked a prior will, if both occurred after the execution thereof, and this rule is said to apply with even greater force where the child is born after the death of its father." The court held that this rule also applies in the District of Columbia, notwithstanding the District statute specifying with particularity how a will may be revoked (see, also, In re Allen's Estate (1946), 64 F. Supp. 107; Allen v. Heron (1946), 157 F. 2d 707, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 298). Therefore, in addition to the omission of the above-quoted words ("any former law or usage", etc.), the exception clause "except by implication of law" is inserted near the beginning of subsec. (a). The language of subsec. (a) is suggested by Vermont Statutes Annotated, Title 14, § 11. "There are now statutes in all the States and Territories which, in one form or another, provide for revocation by operation of law where the testator's domestic situation undergoes a change" (Pascucci v. Alsop, supra, p. 881, footnote 4, citing 5 Wis. L. Rev. 387).

Subsec. (b) is from section 19-108 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and in these provisions minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Copies of former wills

The court held that it is the clear import of existing statutes, that copies of former wills, whether executed or unexecuted, must be made available to the court under threat of criminal penalty. C. H. Doherty, Sr., et al. v. V. Fairall et al. (1969, 413 F. 2d 381, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 107).

Application of statute

Section has no bearing when the doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" is invoked. In re Nutting's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1949, 82 Supp. 689, affirmed 187 F. 2d 357, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 351, 28 A.L.R. 2d 521).

Cancellation

Pencil cross-marks across entire first page of will and large parts of second and third page, and across individual words and attestation clause, constituted "cancellation" of will. In re Smith's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

Construction

In ascertaining meaning of this section governing revocation of will, court was to be guided by the construction of like provision of statute of frauds by courts of England and like provisions by courts of Maryland, from which jurisdiction, this section had been adopted. Pascucci v. Alsop (1945, 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

Where this section, specifying with particularity the manner in which a will may be revoked and concluding with words "any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding," had been adopted from Maryland which had adopted the English statute of frauds which had been enacted in 1676, it was the "law or usage" prior to 1676 that was affected by those words. Id.

Where English statute has been adopted, the known and settled construction of the statute by courts of law is considered as silently incorporated into the statute, or is received with all the weight of authority. Id.

In absence of District of Columbia decisions construing this section regarding cancellation of wills, cases from other jurisdictions having similar statutory provisions are persuasive. In re Smith's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

Dependent relative revocation

Attempted revision of bequest of six thousand eight hundred dollars after execution and attestation of will by writing other numbers and numerals over the word "six" and corresponding but entirely obliterated numeral was ineffective to revoke or revise bequest and hence under doctrine of "dependent relative revocation," original bequest must prevail. In re Chaconas' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

Where second will, revoking first will, was cancelled by pencil marks across portions of will and attestation clause, without substituted will being prepared and without clear and convincing showing that testator had determined what disposition to make of property upon revocation, the doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" was inapplicable and second will must be deemed to have been revoked, without reinstating first will. In re Smith's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

Evidence

In probate proceeding, testimony that, some months after tearing of will, testator had told witness that he had left his wife all his property and wanted his brothers to have nothing was relevant to issue whether tearing of will by testator and his widow was animus revocandi and its exclusion was prejudicial error. Savoy v. Savoy et ano. (1955, 220 F. 2d 364, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

In the absence of other evidence of intent of testatrix in making various cancellations in her own handwriting on the face of original will, unwitnessed holographic writing found after death in writing desk drawer with original will constituted persuasive "evidence" that cancellations on original will were conditional and were dependent upon the consummation of an effective revised testamentary disposition along the lines of uncompleted suggestions in holographic writing. Wolfe v. Snyder (D.C.D.C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Evidence established that cancellations in testatrix's handwriting on the face of original will were "conditional revocations" dependent upon consummation of an effective revised testamentary disposition in accordance with suggestions in unwitnessed holographic writing found in writing desk drawer with original will, and no such revised disposition having been consummated, the cancellations were ineffective, leaving original will in force. Id.

Marriage

In the United States, in absence of a statute abolishing the common-law rule and establishing a new rule in its place, the marriage of a man and the birth of a child, capable of inheriting, revoke a prior will, if both occur after the execution thereof, especially where the child is born after the death of its father. Pascucci v. Alsop (1945, 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

Partial cancellation

Partial cancellation of will should be regarded as a final act of "revocation" by the testator in the absence of evidence that the act of cancellation was merely a deliberative act performed with the intention of later executing a codicil or a new will. Wolfe v. Snyder (D.C.D.C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Presumptions

Marks amounting to cancellation on face of will are presumed to have been placed on document with intent to revoke. In re Smith's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

Republication

Republication merely ratifies will as modified by codicils, and instruments are read together as expressing single act. M. H. Remon and R. R. Wenzel v. American Security & Trust Co., Executor et ano. (1961, 288 F. 2d 849, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 37).

Revocation

Notwithstanding statutory provisions for express revocation of will, will may be revoked by implication of law, and not merely under circumstances recognized at early common law but upon grounds bringing situation within rationale of common-law doctrine as result of historical changes. Luff v. Luff (1966, 359 F. 2d 235, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

A divorce with property settlement revoked husband's will by implication of law. Id.

Imputed intention to revoke as result of change in circumstances is conclusive and may not be overcome by evidence adduced subsequent to testator's death and then relied upon as indicating intention that will should be effective. Id.

One codicil revokes another if such intent is unmistakably clear. M. H. Remon and R. R. Wenzel v. American Security & Trust Co., Executor, et ano. (1961, 288 F. 2d 849, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 37).

Instrument designated as "a" codicil, adding bequest and reaffirming will, which named bank as executor and trustee, did not revoke prior codicil naming testator's wife and daughter as coexecutrices. Id.

In probate proceeding in which widow offered torn will for probate where she testified that she and testator had torn will during argument, if jury found the tearing so occurred, they had to determine whether or not the tearing was animus revocandi, and if tearing of a will is accidental or unaccompanied by necessary intent, it does not constitute revocation. Savoy v. Savoy et ano. (1955, 220 F. 2d 364, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

A conveyance of the title subsequently declared void does not operate as a revocation of a previous will. McGowan v. Elroy (1906, 28 App. D.C. 188).

Subsequent marriage of testatrix and birth of issue does not revoke will. Morris v. Foster (1922, 278 F. 321, 51 App. D.C. 238, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 586, 259 U.S. 582, 66 L. Ed. 1074).

Where cancellation or destruction of will is connected with the making of another will so as fairly to raise the inference that testator meant revocation of old will to depend upon the efficacy of the new disposition, if the will intended to be substituted is inoperative from defect of attestation or any other cause, the revocation fails and the original will remains in force. Wolfe v. Snyder (D.C.D.C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

§18-110. Opening will before delivery to Probate Court

A person having possession or custody of a testamentary instrument may, after the death of the testator, open and read it in the presence of near relatives of the deceased, who may conveniently have notice thereof, and of other persons, and immediately thereafter may deliver the will or codicil to the Probate Court or the Register of Wills, until proceedings may be held for the purpose of proving it or other action is taken thereon. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-111 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1635a, as added June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 545; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

"Probate Court" is substituted for "United States District Court for the District of Columbia, holding a special term as a probate court". The District of Columbia is now a judicial district, and, although the District Court therein is known as the Probate Court when exercising its probate jurisdiction, it no longer has "special terms" such as "circuit court", "equity court", "probate court", etc., for the purpose of hearing causes. Most of the provisions of Title 28, United States Code, relating to district courts, enacted into law in 1948, embrace the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 88, 132, 451. Sections 137-141 thereof, as amended by Act Oct. 16, 1963, Pub. L. 88-139, § 1, govern the division of business and "sessions" of district courts. Section 138 provides that district courts may not hold formal terms. Section 139 relates to times for holding regular sessions. Section 140 relates to adjournment, and section 141 provides in part that special sessions may be held upon such notice as the court orders, and that any business may be transacted at a special session which might be transacted at a regular session.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Time for probate

While the statutes regulating the probate of wills provides no time within which probate shall be applied for, yet they contemplate that this shall be speedily done. McGowan v. Elroy (1906, 28 App. D.C. 188).

§ 18-111. Withholding will

Whoever, having possession of a testamentary instrument, willfully neglects, for the period of 90 days after the death of the testator becomes known to him, to deliver it to the Probate Court, or to the Register of Wills, or to an executor named in the instrument, shall be fined not more than $500. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is derived from the second paragraph of section 22-1403 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 22-1403 is carried into section 18-112 herein.

The reference to "other testamentary instrument" is inserted for the purpose of completeness and to conform the provisions with section 18-112 herein, which is based on other provisions of the same section of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. (22-1403), from which this section is derived.

"Probate Court" is substituted for "United States District Court for the District of Columbia, holding a special term as a probate court." See definition of "Probate Court" in section 18-101 herein, and see revision note under section 18-110 herein.

There references to "testatrix" are omitted as unnecessary, in view of the provision of section 18-101 that words in this title importing the masculine gender ("testator", for example, as used in this section) include all genders.

Further, "90 days" is substituted for "three calendar months" for the purpose of fixing this time-period more definitely.

Changes are made in phraseology.

The provisions carried into this section "relate to, and yet * * * [differ from,] the matter of filing, or offering, or propounding a will for probate. That, too, must be speedily done, but for different reasons. The purpose then is to establish title." (Mersch, "Probate Court Practice in the District of Columbia", 2d Ed. (1952), § 781, p. 336, footnote 4, and cases therein cited. See, also, § 782 thereof and footnote 5, p. 337.)

Equitable estate

Devise of equitable estate remaining in grantor, after he has created a naked power in one to convey an estate to another upon the performance of a condition. Mayer v. American Security & Trust Co. (1909, 33 App. D.C. 391, affirmed 32 S. Ct. 95, 222 U.S. 295, 56 L. Ed. 206).

Presumption

In determining whether the property of a testator passes by his will, there is a presumption that he did not intend to die intestate, which presumption is greatly strengthened by words of general description in the residuary clause. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

Title, passage of

Where property or interest is devisable at the time of testator's death, and testator has sufficiently indicated his testamentary intention to dispose of it, the will is effective to pass the title to the devisee. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

§ 18-302. Devises or bequests for religious purposes

A devise or bequest of real or personal property to a minister, priest, rabbi, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or to a religious sect, order, or denomination, or to or for the support, use, or benefit thereof, or in trust therefor, is not valid unless it is made at least 30 days before the death of the testator. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

The references to priest and rabbi are inserted for the purpose of clarification and completeness.

Further, with respect to the time period prior to which a devise or bequest for religious purposes must be made in order to be valid, "30 days" is substituted for "one calendar month", for the purpose of fixing the period more definitely, without, however, affecting the probable legislative intent when the provisions were first enacted. Calendar months vary in length from 28 to 31 days. The period of 30 days is suggested by West's Ann. California Probate Code, § 41, relating to charitable and benevolent devise or bequests.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Generally

Under District of Columbia statute invalidating bequests to religious sects, orders, or denominations which are not made at least calendar month before death of testator, testatrix' bequest to religious order, in will executed four days before her death, was void. McInerney v. District of Columbia (1965, 355 F. 2d 838, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 413).

Finding that society which was a beneficiary of testatrix' will, and which it represented itself for tax purposes to be a semipublic religious institution and had been granted exemption from District of Columbia sales taxes and real property taxes in recognition of claim that property was used and occupied for religious study and training was a religious sect, order, or denomination within statute invalidating bequests to such organizations unless made more than one calendar month prior to death was not clearly erroneous. Id.

Construction

Statute is to be strictly construed, since its purpose is to prevent improvident testamentary gifts to the exclusion of lawful heirs. Such a construction should be adopted which will prevent intestacy and not one which will render the will invalid. The doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" is to be applied to facts presented. In re Nutting's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1949, 82 F. Supp. 689, affirmed 187 F. 2d 357, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 351, 28 A.L.R. 2d 521).

Dependent relative revocation

Where two prior wills contained residuary devises identical with that in latest will, which will was drawn for purpose of correcting formal defects within 30 days of testatrix' death, and provisions in latest will for benefit of two religious institutions were invalid under statute rendering invalid testamentary gifts for benefit of any religious sect made within one month of death, religious institutions would be held entitled to receive devises for them under earlier wills under doctrine of "dependent relative revocation," and notwithstanding revocatory clause in latest will, on ground that testatrix did not intend that revocatory clause should be effective until new devise became effective. Linkins et al. v. Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia et al. (1951, 187 F. 2d 357, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 351, 28 A.L.R. 2d 521).

Sectarian institutions

Georgetown College was not a sectarian institution, so that bequest made to it less than one calendar month before testator's death was not void. Speer v. Colbert (1906, 26 S. Ct. 201, 200 U.S. 130, 50 L. Ed. 403).

§ 18-303. General devise and bequest of all property

A devise and bequest purporting to be of all real or personal property, or both, belonging to the testator, includes also all property of either or both kinds, respectively, over which he has a general power of appointment, unless a contrary intention appears in the testamentary instrument containing the devise or bequest. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 18-304. Devise of land to include leaseholds

A devise of the land of a testator, or of his land in any place, or in the occupation of a person named or otherwise described in a general manner, includes his leasehold estates or those to which the descriptions extend, as well as freehold estates, unless a contrary intention appears in the testamentary instrument containing the devise. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 18-305. After-acquired real property

(a) A will executed after January 17, 1887, and before January 1, 1902, devising real property, from which it appears that it was the intention of the testator to devise property acquired after the execution of the will, operates as a valid devise of all after-acquired real property.

(b) A will executed after January 1, 1902, which by words of general import devises all the estate or all the property of the testator, operates as a valid devise of real property acquired by the testator after the execution of the will, unless it appears therefrom that it was not the intention of the testator to devise the after-acquired real property. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Intention

Although a testator may dispose by will of after-purchased lands, it is nevertheless necessary that his intention to make such disposition should clearly appear upon the face of the will. Bradford v. Matthews (1896, 9 App. D.C. 438).

Under act of June 30, 1902, a will is made to operate and take effect upon all real estate of the testator owned by him at the time of his death, unless it shall appear from the will that it was not the intention of the testator to devise such after-acquired property. Crenshaw v. McCormick (1902, 19 App. D.C. 494).

Passage by residuary clause

Any will containing a general residuary clause, or general devise of all of the testator's real property, sufficient under the old law to pass all real estate possessed at the time of its execution, would pass all after-acquired real estate as well. Taylor v. Leesnitzer (1911, 37 App. D.C. 356).

Property in entirety

A will by either spouse disposing of property held in entirety will be given effect when the other spouse dies first and the will remains unchanged and unpublished until the death of the survivor. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

Purpose

The purpose of this section making wills executed after January 1, 1902, effective as to after-acquired real estate in absence of intention to contrary, was to make general words of devise effective without reference to the time of acquisition of property and not to change the nature of estates from inalienable or nondevisable to devisable ones. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

Residuary clause

Where will executed in 1928 stated that testatrix's husband had been excluded from benefits thereunder because all the real estate in which testatrix was interested was held in joint tenancy with husband and all of testatrix's earnings for 25 years had gone into such real estate, and the residuary clause devised all the residue, real, personal, and mixed, to testatrix's brother, and testatrix's husband thereafter died before testatrix whose will was not thereafter republished, the residuary clause was valid as respects real estate theretofore owned by testatrix in joint tenancy with her husband who had predeceased testatrix. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

Will, effective date

Before the Wills Act of 1837 and the after-acquired property statutes, the testator could not devise realty which he did not own at the time he made his will because of the theory that a devise of realty took effect on the date of the execution of the will but so far as it formerly applied to exclude after-acquired property from the effects of the will, this section has overruled such theory and the will is effective as of the date of death. Fairclaw v. Forrest (1942, 130 F. 2d 829, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 197, 143 A.L.R. 1154, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U.S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

§ 18-306. "Pour over" trusts

(a) Bequests or Devises to Trustee Under, or in Accordance With Terms of, Existing Trusts.—A devise or bequest may be made in a will or codicil, otherwise valid, in form or substance to the trustees under, or in accordance with the terms of, a written inter vivos trust, including an unfunded life insurance trust, although the settlor has reserved rights of ownership in the insurance contracts, which has been executed and is in existence prior to or contemporaneously with the execution of the will or codicil and is identified in the will or codicil, without regard to the size or character of the corpus of the trust, or whether the settlor is the testator or a third person.

The devise or bequest is not invalid because the trust is subject to amendment or modification or may be terminated or revoked after the will or codicil is executed, whether by the settlor or any other person or persons, nor because the trust instrument or an amendment thereto was not executed in the manner required by law for wills or codicils.

Unless the will or codicil otherwise provides:

(1) the devise or bequest is not invalid because the trust was amended or modified after the will or codicil was executed, and the devise or bequest shall be given effect in accordance with the terms of the trust as they appear in writing on the date of death of the testator, including any amendment or modification;

(2) property passing under the devise or bequest passes directly to the trustees of the inter vivos trust and becomes a part of the assets of the trust, and is not deemed to be held under a separate testamentary trust;

(3) an entire revocation of the trust prior to the death of the testator invalidates the devise or bequest even though the revocation was not effected in the manner provided by law for the revocation of wills and codicils;

(4) a termination of the trust, except by way of revocation, in accordance with the terms of the trust or by its exhaustion or by operation of law or otherwise does not invalidate the devise or bequest.

(b) Bequests or Devises to Trustee Under, or in Accordance With Terms of, Testamentary Trusts.—A devise or bequest may be made in a will or codicil, otherwise valid, in form or substance to the trustees under, or in accordance with the terms of, a testamentary trust established under another valid will or codicil. The devise or bequest is not invalid because the testamentary trust or the will or codicil establishing the testamentary trust was not in existence when the will or codicil containing the devise or bequest was executed, if the testator of the will or codicil establishing the testamentary trust predeceases the testator of the will or codicil containing the devise or bequest, and the will or codicil establishing the testamentary trust is admitted to probate.

Unless the will otherwise provides:

(1) property passing under the devise or bequest is deemed to pass directly to the trustees of the testamentary trust and becomes a part of the assets of the trust, and is not deemed to be held under a separate testamentary trust;

(2) a termination of the trust in accordance with the terms of the trust or by its exhaustion or by operation of law or otherwise does not invalidate the devise or bequest.

(c) This section applies to a devise or bequest made by a testator living on December 5, 1963, or born subsequent thereto, without regard to the date of execution of the will or codicil containing the devise or bequest or of the trust instrument, or an amendment thereto.

(d) This section does not affect the validity, as existing before December 5, 1963, of:

(1) a devise or bequest made by a testator who died prior to December 5, 1963; or

(2) a devise or bequest which does not come within this section.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 18-307. Advancement as satisfaction of devise or bequest

An advancement or a provision for an advancement to a person is a satisfaction, in whole or in part, of a devise or bequest to that person contained in a previous will if it would be so deemed in case the devisee or legatee were the child of the testator; and, whether he is a child or not, it shall be so deemed where it appears from parol or other evidence to be so intended. ##### Evidence

Evidence established that payments made by testator during lifetime to brother were made in payment of trust obligation arising before execution of will and were not intended to be in partial satisfaction of bequest to brother. In re Chaconas' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

Parent as debtor

Where parent, who is a debtor to his child, makes an advancement to such child, it is presumed to be a satisfaction pro tanto of the debt. Glover v. Patten (1897, 17 S. Ct. 411, 165 U.S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760).

Presumptions

A legacy is never presumed to be in satisfaction of a trust obligation. In re Chaconas' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

§ 18-308. Death of devisee or legatee; lapsed or void devises or bequests

Unless a different disposition is made or required by the will, if a devisee or legatee dies before the testator, leaving issue who survive the testator, the issue shall take the estate devised or bequeathed as the devisee or legatee would have done if he had survived the testator. Unless a contrary intention appears by the will, the property comprised in a devise or bequest in a will that fails or is void or is otherwise incapable of taking effect, shall be deemed included in the residuary devise or bequest, if any, contained in the will. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Construction

This section is to be interpreted liberally with view to attainment of its beneficent objectives and, to render section inoperative, a purpose inconsistent with that objective must fairly appear and from terms of will itself but, where will reflects a countervailing intention with reasonable clarity, this section does not save gift from lapse. In re Estate of Kerr (1970, 433 F. 2d 479, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Countervailing intention that testamentary gift should lapse is manifested when the will articulates gift in words effectively conditioning its efficacy on beneficiary's survival of testator, and antilapse statute has no application to gifts limited to vest on beneficiary's survival of testator and not otherwise, whether gift is to single or to multiple beneficiaries and whether there is or is not a limitation over to another on death of primary beneficiary during lifetime of testator. Id.

Words referable to survivorship do not necessarily condition a testamentary gift and the construction properly to be placed on survivorship language is a product of testatorial intention. Id.

This section applies to gifts of residuum as well as to other devises and bequests contained in will. Id.

Intent

Testatorial intention is important under this section which may operate to avoid a lapse unless different disposition is made or required by the will. In re Estate of Kerr (1970, 433 F. 2d 479, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Provision of will specifying that residuum was to be divided equally between two named beneficiaries if they were both living at time of testatrix' demise and alternatively, if one predeceased testatrix, then all of estate was to go to one remaining expressed intent contrary to antilapse statute and the death of both beneficiaries during testatrix' lifetime caused the residuary clause to lapse. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Charitable bequests

Charitable bequest was not void for uncertainty. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Hammond (1922, 278 F. 569, 51 App. D.C. 260).

Common law

The common law still prevails in this District as to devises and bequests contained in the residuum. George Washington University v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D.C. (1937, 88 F. 2d 771, 66 App. D.C. 389).

At common law, a bequest of personalty which failed of distribution would go to the residuum or next of kin, but not so as to devises of realty. Id.

Construction

Where a bequest was made to a legatee and the legatee predeceased grantor and where the residuary clause distributed the residue including lapsed legacies to four institutions, the special bequest passes into the residuary estate and goes to the institution named. Bunker v. Jones (1950, 181 F. 2d 619, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 231).

Cy pres doctrine

The doctrine of "judicial cy pres" applies in the District of Columbia. Noel v. Olds (1944, 138 F. 2d 581, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 155, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 611, 321 U.S. 773, 88 L. Ed. 1067).

The doctrine of judicial cy pres is recognized in the District of Columbia but the facts of the case do not warrant the invocation of such doctrine. Roberds v. Markham (D.C.D.C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 38).

Death of legatee

Under will devising half of residuary estate to testatrix' sister who predeceased testatrix, that portion of residue went to sister's children rather than to heirs of the testatrix. Mitchell v. Merriam et al. (1951, 188 F. 2d 42, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 213, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 855, 341 U.S. 935, 95 L. Ed. 1363).

A sum bequeathed by will to testator's deceased brother's widow, who predeceased testator, goes to her issue on his death. Second National Bank of Washington v. Spinks (D.C.D.C. 1954, 122 F. Supp. 153, affirmed 214 F. 2d 853, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 424).

Death of a specific legatee prior to death of the testator will "lapse" the legacy in the absence of a statute otherwise providing. Wolfe v. Snyder (D.C.D.C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Intent

Words of a will cannot be ignored in searching its meaning as the court must look within the four corners of the will for the intention of the testatrix and the language must be given effect. If and when read with other parts of the will such intent can be ascertained, the statute does not apply in this case. Pace v. Bradley (1949, 171 F. 2d 350, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 212).

Trust funds

Testamentary provision for issue of beneficiary for life of testamentary trust to take the balance of trust fund was a "different disposition made or required by will" within meaning of this section, and hence where beneficiary for life predeceased testatrix his issue took the trust fund outright. Wolfe v. Snyder (D.C.D.C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Vested remainder

Where will bequeathed to niece all household furniture, jewelry and other personal property, except cash, and bequeathed to brother all the rest, residue and remainder of estate except that if brother should predecease testatrix or for any other reason could not personally take residue, then it was to go to niece, testatrix's vested remainder in estate subject to life estate, passed to brother who survived testatrix but who along with niece, predeceased life tenant. Bank of Galesburg, etc. v. Lawrenson, Jr., etc., and Waters, etc. (1956, 240 F. 2d 31, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 345).

§ 18-501. Notice of petition for probate

(a) Upon the filing of a petition for probate of a will, the notice provided by this section and sections 18-502 and 18-503, shall be issued to each person who would be entitled to or interested in the estate of the testator if the will had not been executed, to appear in the Probate Court on a date named in the notice, if he has cause to show why the prayer of the petition should not be granted.

(b) The notice may be by a citation in which the return date named is not earlier than 10 days after the filing of the petition. The United States marshal or deputy marshal shall serve the citation in the District of Columbia not less than 5 days before the return day named in the citation. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-301 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 130, 31 Stat. 1211; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 526; June 24, 1949, ch. 241, § 1, 63 Stat. 267).

Section is derived from the first paragraph and par. (a) of section 19-301 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 19-301 is carried into sections 18-502 and 18-503 herein.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Jurisdiction of probate court

Probate court has been clothed with full and complete jurisdiction to take proof of wills of either personal or real estate, and to admit the same to probate and record, and Congress, having established this special court for this special purpose, intended its jurisdiction to be exclusive. Grace v. American Security & Trust Co. (1922, 277 F. 543, 51 App. D.C. 141).

Law governing

The law of wills and of probate as existing in Maryland on February 27, 1801, was and is the law of the District of Columbia, except as since altered by Congress. Pasucci v. Alsop (1945, 147 F. 2d 880, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 325 U.S. 868, 89 L. Ed. 1987). See, also, In re Allen's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

Voluntary appearance

Where a petition alleged widower as only next of kin, upon whom service was had, and he appeared, filed a caveat, and the will was sustained, and thereafter publication was had for unknown heirs, and the widower moved to vacate the verdict on the ground that court was without jurisdiction because of failure to publish before framing the issues, jurisdiction attached to any person who voluntarily appeared. Lewis v. Luckett (1908, 32 App. D.C. 188, affirmed 31 S. Ct. 682, 221 U.S. 554, 55 L. Ed. 851).

Waiver of citation

Citation may be waived (see § 19-304) and such waiver of citation does not estop the filing of a caveat. Bowen v. Howenstein (1913, 39 App. D.C. 585, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1179).

§ 18-502. Notice to nonresidents and unfound residents

(a) Where a person entitled to notice under section 18-501(a) is a nonresident of the District of Columbia or is a resident of the District who has been returned "Not to be found" under subsection (b) of that section, the notice may be by a citation in which the return date named is not less than 20 days after the filing of the petition. The citation shall be served not less than 10 days before the return date named therein and only by a person not less than 18 years of age, who is not a party to or otherwise interested in the estate of the decedent. The return, showing the time and place of service, shall be made under oath in the District of Columbia, unless the person making the service is a sheriff or deputy sheriff, or a marshal or deputy marshal, authorized to serve process where service is made.

(b) When there is proof by the petition for probate or by other affidavit that any or all of the persons, interested as described by section 18-501(a), are nonresidents of the District of Columbia, or when any of them has been returned "Not to be found" under subsection (b) of that section, the notice may be by a publication in which the return date named is not less than 30 days after the date of the first appearance of the publication. The notice shall be published once in each of three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia. A copy of the published notice shall be mailed to the last-known address of each person referred to in this subsection who is not shown to have been returned served personally under section 18-501(b) or subsection (a) of this section. The court may by general rule prescribe the form of the notice by publication, and may order such other publication as the case requires. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 18-503. Notice to unknown kin or heirs at law

(a) When it appears to the satisfaction of the court that all or any of the next of kin or heirs at law of the deceased are unknown, they may be proceeded against and described in the publication of notice provided for by section 18-502(b) as "the unknown next of kin," or "the unknown heirs at law," as the case may be, of the deceased, and the publication of the notice under that designation is as effectual against them as if known and their names were specifically set forth in the order of publication.

(b) If a will was admitted to probate prior to June 30, 1902, upon publication against unknown next of kin or heirs, a person interested may file a petition for further probate of the will, alleging that the next of kin or heirs at law of the deceased, or some of them, as the case may be, are unknown, and upon satisfactory showing being made to the court publication of notice may be made against the unknown next of kin or heirs at law of the deceased. Upon the publication being made, as required by the court, a decree may be made confirming the previous probate. The decree is as effectual as if the unknown next of kin or heirs at law were named in the order of publication. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 18-504. Probate; waiver of notice; proof of execution

When the notice prescribed by sections 18-501 to 18-503 has been completed or if all parties interested adversely to the will have waived the notice and consent that the will be admitted to probate and record, the court shall proceed, if a caveat is not filed, to take the proofs, or to consider the proofs theretofore taken, of the execution of the will. All the witnesses to the will who are within the District of Columbia and competent to testify shall be produced and examined or the absence of any of them satisfactorily accounted for. ##### Illiterate testators

The same rule applies in cases of illiterate testators. Lippard v. Humphrey (1906, 28 App. D.C. 355, affirmed 28 S. Ct. 561, 209 U.S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 14 Ann. Cas. 872).

Jurisdiction of probate court

Probate court has exclusive jurisdiction to take proof of wills and to admit the same to probate and record. Gracie v. American Security & Trust Co. (1922, 277 F. 543, 51 App. D.C. 141).

Production of witnesses

"In all cases the subscribing witnesses, if living and within the jurisdiction, must be called to prove the fact of execution; and if it appears from their evidence that the will was formally executed and the testator competent, it must be admitted to probate." Lippard v. Humphrey (1906, 28 App. D.C. 355, affirmed 28 S. Ct. 561, 209 U.S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 14 Ann. Cas. 872).

Proof

Admission by caveator of formal execution of will does not dispense with necessity for proof thereof. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (1902, 19 App. D.C. 506).

Proof of signature

"When any of the witnesses to a will has died, proof of his signature is sufficient prima facie proof of attestation of the will by him." Kelly v. Moore (1903, 22 App. D.C. 9, affirmed 25 S. Ct. 169, 196 U.S. 38, 49 L. Ed. 376).

Waiver of citation

Waiver of citation does not preclude subsequent filing of caveat. Bowen v. Howenstein (1913, 39 App. D.C. 585, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1179).

Waiver of citation does bring party within jurisdiction of court. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (1915, 44 App. D.C. 69).

§ 18-505. Proof of wills; testimony; witnesses outside District

(a) When a will contains a devise of real estate, and an attesting witness thereto residing in the District of Columbia is unable to attend the court, the Register of Wills may, with the will, attend upon the witness and take his testimony. When the testimony of resident attesting witnesses to the will has been taken, and other attesting witnesses reside out of the District or are temporarily absent from the District, but are within the United States, it is sufficient, for the purpose of proving the will, to prove the signatures of the nonresident and temporarily absent witnesses.

(b) When the attesting witnesses to a will mentioned in subsection (a) of this section are out of the District as specified in that subsection, or if one or more are within the United States and one or more are in a foreign country, it is sufficient, for the purpose of proving the will, to take the testimony of any one or all of them within the United States, as the Probate Court determines, and to prove the signatures of those whose testimony is not required to be taken.

(c) If all the attesting witnesses to a will mentioned in subsection (a) of this section are out of the United States, it is sufficient, for the purpose of proving the will, to take the testimony of such of them as the court requires, and to prove the signatures of the others.

(d) The rules of the court with respect to the taking and use of testimony of out-of-District witnesses apply to testimony taken pursuant to this section. The original will or codicil shall be sent with the notice or order of appointment or commission or letters rogatory, and exhibited to the witnesses.

(e) A notice of the time and place of taking testimony need not be given unless probate is opposed. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 147(2), 84 Stat. 566.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 147(2) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended subsection (d) generally. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

The provisions of the fourth paragraph of section 19-306 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., relating to the taking and use of testimony of out-of-District witnesses, are, in subsec. (d) of this section, revised to bring them into harmony with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. As revised, the provisions conform with section 16-3111 of the Code.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Depositions

Deposition can be substituted for oral testimony only by statutory authority. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1914, 41 App. D.C. 367).

Evidence

Declarations of testatrix made after execution of her will showing that she made a different disposition of her property are inadmissible, especially when there is no tendency to show want of mental capacity. Lipphard v. Humphrey (1906, 28 App. D.C. 355, affirmed 28 S. Ct. 561, 209 U.S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 14 Ann. Cas. 872).

Nonresident witness

"Section 132 of the Code (this section) specifically provides that, if the testimony of the resident witness is taken and any other witness resides out of the District, it shall be sufficient to prove the signature of such nonresident witness, and that the will shall thereupon be admitted to probate." Scott v. Herrell (1908, 31 App. D.C. 45).

Testimony of witness in foreign country

D.C. Code 1901, § 1058 (§ 14-201) expressly provides that to take the testimony of a witness in a foreign country, letters rogatory shall issue, addressed to some court of record therein, accompanied by the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories propounded to the witness. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1914, 41 App. D.C. 367).

§ 18-506. Appearance of persons not cited

A person, although not cited, who is interested in sustaining or defeating a will, may appear and support or oppose the application to admit it to probate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Sufficiency of interest

"Any interest, however slight, is sufficient to entitle a party to oppose a testamentary paper, and for like reason, such interest entitles a party to insist upon probate." Vestry of St. John's Parish v. Bostwick (1896, 8 App. D.C. 452).

§ 18-507. Admission to probate

When, upon hearing the proofs, the court is of the opinion that the will was duly executed and the testator was competent to execute it, and a caveat is not filed against the admission of the will to probate, the court shall decree that the will be admitted to probate and record. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-308 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 134, 31 Stat. 1212).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Sufficiency of interest

Where caveat of alleged widower of deceased testatrix was not filed in District of Columbia within three months allowed by statute as to personality, and alleged widower had filed a renunciation of provision of will and election to take his legal share as of intestacy under statute, and there were no children born of alleged marriage, so that alleged widower had no interest by curtesy, motion to dismiss caveat would be granted because not timely filed and because alleged widower had no interest sufficient to entitle him to maintain caveat. In re Phillips' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1953, 111 F. Supp. 453).

Time for filing

Where caveat of alleged widower of deceased testatrix was not filed in District of Columbia within three months allowed by statute as to personality, and alleged widower had filed a renunciation of provisions of will and election to take his legal share as of intestacy under statute, and there were no children born of alleged marriage, so that alleged widower had no interest by curtesy, motion to dismiss caveat would be granted because not timely filed and because alleged widower had no interest sufficient to entitle him to maintain caveat. In re Phillips' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1953, 111 F. Supp. 453).

§ 18-508. Caveat; will not to be probated while issues pending

If, prior to or upon the hearing of an application to admit a will to probate, a party in interest files a verified caveat in opposition, setting forth facts inconsistent with the validity of the will, the will may not be admitted to probate until the issues raised by the caveat are determined, as directed by this chapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-307 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 136, 31 Stat. 1212).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Caveat by executor

Executor appointed by will who had power of appointment regarding certain property had the requisite interest to caveat codicil reducing shares of residuary legatees. E. McLain v. American Security and Trust Co. (1968, 392 F. 2d 818, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

Party in interest

The right conferred upon nephew by will and withdrawn from him by codicil to serve as executor and receive commissions therefor did not make him a "party in interest" within District of Columbia Code provision that if a party in interest files verified caveat setting forth facts inconsistent with validity of will, the will may not be admitted to probate until the issues are determined. P. McLain and E. McLain v. American Security and Trust Co. (1967, 265 F. Supp. 467; rev'd 392 F. 2d 818).

Testatrix' sister whose claim upon estate would be no different if codicil were set aside or sustained was not entitled to caveat the codicil under District of Columbia Code provision that if party in interest files verified caveat setting forth facts inconsistent with validity of will the will may not be admitted until the issues are determined. Id.

An estate of a decedent should not be subjected to the trouble and expense of an attack on a testamentary writing except by one who, if the attack prove successful, would have some claim upon the estate different from what he would have if the attack prove unsuccessful. Id.

Burden of proof

Under a caveat to a will challenging the mental capacity of the testator, whether before or after the will has been admitted to probate, the burden of proof on the issue whether the testator was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract, is upon the caveator. Brosnan v. Brosnan (1923, 44 S. Ct. 117, 263 U.S. 345, 68 L. Ed. 332).

Equitable remedies

"Equity furnishes the only complete remedy in the exceptional class of cases * * * where the complex relief sought consists in setting aside a deed and will embracing the same property and the same parties, enjoining the beneficiaries * * * and declaring them trustees * * * with a general order for an accounting. This is true, even though there be * * * an adequate statutory remedy (this section and § 19-309)." Karrick v. Landon (1914, 41 App. D.C. 416).

Party in interest

Even if decedent had been equitably adopted by petitioner's Maryland grandparents, before enactment of Maryland adoption laws, this did not give him status of one legally adopted, and did not confer on petitioner right to share in his estate or right, under District of Columbia law, to file caveat to will. In re Estate of T. R. Jarboe, deceased (D.C.D.C. 1964, 235 F. Supp. 505).

A widow was a "party in interest" within meaning of this section so as to be permitted to file caveat against will, under circumstances, where will listed debts which were assertedly due testator's children, which might be barred by limitation but which, if allowed as first charge as directed, might depreciate value of widow's share, where there was a substantial issue as to testamentary capacity and named executor whom widow asserted had joined in procuring execution of will so as to list such claims, would, in first instance, pass on debts. Helen Rothenberg, Caveator, etc. v. A. Rothenberg (1959, 273 F. 2d 825, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 11).

Interest which caveator must possess to enable him to assail validity of will in District of Columbia is such that, had testator died intestate, caveator would have been entitled to distributive share in estate, and such share would be different from that which caveator would be entitled to if will were held valid. Kimberland v. Kimberland (1953, 204 F. 2d 38, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Right to administer

Where testatrix by purported will left her entire estate to her son, and estate included no realty in District of Columbia, and son offered will for probate in District of Columbia, husband of testatrix lacked necessary interest in estate to file a caveat, even though husband might be appointed administrator if will should be set aside, since husband would take same share of estate whether will was or was not sustained. Kimberland v. Kimberland (1953, 204 F. 2d 38, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

§ 18-509. Caveat; time for filing

After a will has been admitted to probate, a person in interest may, within six months from the date of the order of probate, file a verified caveat to the will, praying that the probate thereof be revoked. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-309 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 137, 31 Stat. 1212; June 24, 1949, ch. 243, 63 Stat. 268; July 14, 1960, Pub. L. 86-674, § 1, 74 Stat. 553).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Appeal

Appellate court will not reach the question of fraud upon the merits because a caveator cannot raise on appeal an issue which he failed to pose as an issue to be tried in a caveat proceeding. Probate procedure in this jurisdiction gives any person in interest ample opportunity to raise by caveat, prior to the decree of probate, any issue he may wish to raise in respect of the validity of a will. Langston v. Schwartz (1949, 174 F. 2d 31, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 329).

Appearance

Signing of waiver constitutes appearance, but, by leave of court, same may be withdrawn. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (1915, 44 App. D.C. 69).

Signing of waiver brings one within one-year limitation, notwithstanding fact that there was a subsequent order of publication. Id.

Defense to compulsory accounting

After probate of a will and until revocation, executor is required to act in accordance with terms of will, and, in absence of wrongdoing on his part, is fully protected in so doing. Cashell v. Estlin (D.C.D.C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

Estoppel to file

Whether receipt of legacy under will works an estoppel to file a caveat and effect of offer to return the same, see Craighead v. Alexander (1912, 38 App. D.C. 229).

Right to file

"The object of the section is to extend to the persons coming within its description a certain period within which to contest a will that has been regularly admitted to probate. As to them the probate is not a finality until the expiration of the prescribed periods. Until then the right to the caveat is absolute." Craighead v. Alexander (1912, 38 App. D.C. 229).

Waiver and consent does not deprive any person of right to file a caveat. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (1915, 44 App. D.C. 69).

Sufficiency of interest

The interest which a person must possess to enable him to assail the validity of a will is such that, had the testator died intestate, he would have been entitled to a distributive share in the estate. Angell v. Groff (1914, 42 App. D.C. 198).

Petition for caveat of will must show petitioner to be "next of kin," but also "person in interest." Naylor v. Mealy (1934, 67 F. 2d 693, 62 App. D.C. 321).

To be a person interested, a beneficiary under a prior will must show that, except for the effect of the later will, if valid, to revoke the earlier one, the latter remained the last will and testament of the testator until his death. Werner v. Frederick (1938, 94 F. 2d 627, 68 App. D.C. 158).

An heir, claiming by intestacy, may caveat a probated will regardless of possible effect of an earlier purported will which has not been proved or put in issue by any one claiming under it. Lonas v. Betts (1947, 160 F. 2d 281, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 55).

Time for filing

Where caveat to will probated in 1953 alleged that son of testatrix was incompetent when will was probated and proposed amendment alleged that incompetence was known or should have been known to the proponent and was not brought to the attention of the probate court, proposed amendment was properly rejected in view of the one-year statute of limitations on filing caveats, which contains no exceptions giving an incompetent or his committee a longer time than one year in which to file a caveat. Merchant v. Davies (1957, 244 F. 2d 347, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

When the caveat was not filed until more than three months after the order of probate, the allegations of fraud, practiced in procuring the waiver of citation and service, were evidently made to excuse their failure to proceed within statutory period, and when further delayed for year and day, it was of no effect. Craighead v. Alexander (1912, 38 App. D.C. 229).

When person was legally alive for more than two years after the probate of his father's will, he was barred from caveating the will, and his heirs, having no rights which they could assert during his lifetime, are likewise barred. Angell v. Groff (1914, 42 App. D.C. 198).

The dismissal of a caveat to a will, which involved real and personal property, in so far as caveat was a caveat to a will of personal property, was proper where will was admitted to probate on July 5, 1938, and caveat was not filed until June 30, 1939. Hengesbach v. Hengesbach (1940, 114 F. 2d 845, 73 App. D.C. 1).

Waiver

Beneficiary of will of testator, by affixing her signature to document entitled "consent to probate and letters testamentary" did not unequivocally waive her statutory right to file a caveat on the ground that the waiver was founded upon consideration because of benefit conferred upon the beneficiary and by detriment incurred by the executors. McNamara v. Miller, Sr. et al. (1959, 269 F. 2d 511, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Beneficiary of will by affixing her signature to document entitled "consent to probate and letters testamentary" did not unequivocally waive her statutory right to file a caveat based on estoppel where the executors failed to demonstrate that damage would have resulted to them had the caveat been entertained. Id.

Beneficiary, by affixing her signature to document entitled "consent to probate and letters testamentary" did not unequivocally waive her statutory right to file a caveat on the ground that such waiver constituted a judicial admission, where the waiver was a statement of assertion or concession made for an independent purpose, thus not coming within the requirements of a judicial admission insofar as any issue pending before the court was concerned, and where there was no issue as to which the judicial admission could apply. Id.

§ 18-510. Prior will not to be probated pending issues

While issues raised by a caveat are pending, either for trial or on appeal, a prior will may not be admitted to probate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-310 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 137a, as added Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 557).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 18-511. Guardian ad litem

When a party interested as specified by this chapter is an infant or of unsound mind, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem to represent him at the hearing of the application to admit the will to probate, with authority to file a caveat, as he may be advised, in behalf of the interested party. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, § 10, 85 Stat. 314.)

AMENDMENT

1971—Section 10 of Act Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, amended section by striking out "shall" and inserting "may" in lieu thereof.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-303 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 138, 31 Stat. 1212).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Appearance of incompetency

This section providing that whenever, in a proceeding to probate a will, it shall "appear" that a party interested in non compos mentis, the court may appoint a guardian with authority to file a caveat, did not authorize the filing of an amendment to a caveat to a will probated in 1953 alleging the incompetency of the son of testatrix in 1955, since the incompetency did not "appear" when the will was probated. Merchant v. Davies (1957, 244 F. 2d 347, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Grandchildren

Guardian ad litem was not required to be appointed at time of probate of testator's will to represent testator's grandchildren, since grandchildren were not within class of testator's heirs at law and would not be entitled to or interested in testator's estate in case will had not been executed. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (D.C.D.C. 1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

Person in interest

Where there had been no promise or contract to adopt caveator which would support her equitable adoption theory and admittedly there was no statutory adoption, caveator, being a stepdaughter only, was not a "person in interest" within statute authorizing a person in interest to file a caveat to probate of will. E. Ekstein v. S. D. Meshner, Executrix etc. (1964, 333 F. 2d 152, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 142).

§ 18-512. Plenary proceedings

In all cases of controversy the court may direct a plenary proceeding to be had, by bill or petition, to which there shall be answer under oath, which may be compelled by the usual process, and all the depositions shall be taken down in writing and filed; or, if either party requires it, the court shall direct an issue to be framed for trial by a jury. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 18-513. Rules of procedure

The court shall prescribe rules of procedure governing the trial of issues when a caveat is filed, including provisions for notice, appointment of guardians ad litem, trial by jury, and effect of judgments. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358 § 147(3) (A), title I, 84 Stat. 566.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 147(3) (A) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section generally. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-312 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 140, 31 Stat. 1213; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 526; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 557; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921).

In those provisions of section 19-312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., carried into subsec. (c) of this section relating to the prescription of rules and regulations for service personally upon the party outside the District, "court" is substituted for "United States District Court for the District of Columbia". The Probate Court is the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in the exercise of its probate jurisdiction. See revision note under section 18-110 herein.

Section 19-312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that the proceeding for impaneling a jury for the trial of issues as to a will should be the same as if they were being tried in the court of appeals. In the original, that is, in section 140 of the 1901 Act, the reference was to the "circuit court", a former special term of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia (now, the District Court), at which "common-law" civil cases were heard. It is assumed, therefore, that the reference in section 19-312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to the "court of appeals" was merely a typographical error. The District Court no longer has "special terms" known as the "circuit court", equity court", etc., for the hearing of causes. Accordingly, to bring the above-mentioned provision up to date, the first sentence of subsec. (d) of this section provides that the proceeding for the trial of issues as to a will is the same as in "civil actions". This preserves the apparent intent of the original provision.

In the second sentence of subsec. (d) of this section, "Subject to the right of appeal" is substituted for "subject to proceedings in error", to conform with current practice and terminology. Also in this sentence, the phrase "or the judgment of the court without a jury, as the case may be" is inserted to conform with another apparent legislative intent, inasmuch as section 19-312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided, and subsec. (a) of this section continues to provide, that, if all persons interested are sui juris and before the court, and give written consent to trial without a jury, the issues may be tried and determined by the court. It is not deemed to have been the legislative intent to provide that the judgment is res judicata only when rendered upon the verdict of a jury.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Burden of proof

"In the District of Columbia, under a caveat to a will challenging the mental capacity of the testator, whether before or after the will has been admitted to probate, the burden of proof on the issue whether the testator * * * was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract, is upon the caveator." Brosnan v. Brosnan (1923, 44 S. Ct. 117, 263 U.S. 345, 68 L. Ed. 332).

Construction

Under § 6 of the act of Congress of June 8, 1898, the word "week" was not intended to mean the conventional week beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday, but a period of seven consecutive days. Leach v. Burr (1900, 17 App. D.C. 128, affirmed 23 S. Ct. 393, 188 U.S. 510, 47 L. Ed. 567).

This section is still in force, notwithstanding Rule 38, 28 U.S.C. App., relating to jury trials, demand therefor, and waiver thereof, in view of rule 81 following said section providing that rules do not apply to probate proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia except to appeals therein, and hence the failure to demand jury trial in a will contest was not a "waiver" of the right thereto. In re Cottrill's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1941, 39 F. Supp. 689).

Rule 1, § 2, of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia providing that in determining contested issues of law or fact or of law and fact in probate proceedings, District Court rules and federal procedural rules shall also govern procedure on motions, depositions, discovery and testimony and at hearing or trial of issues, does not purport to modify this section. Id.

Under 28 U.S.C. § 723b [now covered by 28 U.S.C. § 2072] providing that all laws in conflict with procedural rules shall be of no further force or effect, Rule 38, 28 U.S.C. App. relating to jury trials, demand therefor, and waiver thereof is not applicable as such to will contests in the District of Columbia, and does not in effect repeal this section in view of Rule 82 providing that rules do not apply to probate proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia except to appeals therein. Id.

Directed verdict

In proceeding to probate will, where there was no evidence of fraud sufficient to justify submission of such issue to jury the trial judge properly directed a verdict against caveators on such issue. Pollard v. Hawfield (1948, 170 F. 2d 170, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 374, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U.S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1089).

Discretion of court

In proceeding to probate will where it did not appear that physician had had any experience or training in mental illnesses or that he had never treated or observed any paralytic case which had resulted in impairment of the mind and there was but little if any evidence in the record to indicate that either partial paralysis of the testatrix with its resultant confinement or advanced age of testatrix caused any impairment of mind, limiting testimony of physician as to paralysis and refusing to permit him to testify to effect of paralysis on mental faculties was not an abuse of discretion. Pollard v. Hawfield (1948, 170 F. 2d 170, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 374, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U.S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1089).

Evidence

Where probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary was opposed on ground of undue influence and want of testamentary capacity, § 14-302 providing that if one of original parties to transaction or contract has died, the other party thereto shall not be allowed to testify to any declaration of the deceased in suit against personal representative of deceased did not require exclusion of testimony of testatrix's brother that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her. Duckett v. Duckett (1943, 134 F. 2d 527, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

The persons named as executors and legatees in an alleged will cannot, in order to probate the will, be permitted to utilize § 14-302 providing that if one of original parties to transaction or contract has died the other party thereto shall not be allowed to testify to any declaration of deceased in suit against personal representative of deceased. Id.

Testimony of testatrix's brother, who had made his home with her for 36 years, that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her was admissible on issues of undue influence and testamentary capacity in opposition to probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary. Id.

Where probate of will is opposed on ground of fraud and undue influence, it is not necessary that there be direct proof of undue influence. Id.

A finding that testator's subscription to purported will was procured by fraud, coercion, misrepresentation, undue influence, and pretension, executed by the sole beneficiary named in will, or some other person, was supported by sufficient evidence. Duckett v. Duckett (1945, 150 F. 2d 985, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 195).

Evidence supported finding that will had been procured by undue influence, duress or coercion by beneficiary, so that it should be denied probate. Martin v. Staples (1947, 164 F. 2d 106, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

Harmless or prejudicial error

In will contest, refusal to permit attorney for testatrix to testify concerning instruction given him by testatrix on ground that communication was privileged was error. Sorrels v. Alexander (1944, 142 F. 2d 769, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

Where witness was permitted to use notes to refresh her memory, refusal to strike out testimony of witness when it developed on cross-examination that some of notes were not made until two years after event about which witness testified was not reversible error where counsel failed to object to use of notes when witness asked if she might use them, and later when it developed that they had not been made contemporaneously, counsel not only failed to move that her testimony be stricken from record, but used her notes in argument to jury. Id.

In will contest, erroneous refusal to permit attorney for testatrix to testify concerning instructions given him by testatrix did not authorize reversal, where record did not show what was intended to be elicited from witness or time when the instructions were received. Id.

In will contest, where it was developed when counsel for testatrix was on witness stand that he had held in his possession, and not offered for probate for a period of two weeks wills of testatrix's brother-in-law and sister, remark of court that when will is left with an attorney to be filed "it ought to be filed immediately" was not prejudicial where judge in subsequent charge left jury free to determine, without comment on his part, weight to be given to the evidence. Id.

Instructions

In proceeding to probate will, refusal of requested prayers on presumption of undue influence and on testamentary capacity was not error where the charge given properly informed the jury as to the law. Pollard v. Hawfield (1948, 170 F. 2d 170, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 374, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U.S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1039).

Questions for jury

In proceeding for probate of will, where there was evidence that testatrix' sister, who was named sole beneficiary, after taking sole charge of testatrix first made false statements to other relatives with purpose and effect of inducing them not to visit testatrix and then allowed her to suppose, contrary to fact, that the other relatives were making no effort to see testatrix, doing nothing for her and showing no interest in her welfare, issues of fraud and undue influence were for the jury. Duckett v. Duckett (1943, 134 F. 2d 527, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

In will contest, evidence on question whether testatrix at time of making and signing the will was of sound and capable mind was sufficient for jury. Sorrels v. Alexander (1944, 142 F. 2d 769, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

In will contest, evidence on question whether will was obtained or procured by undue influence, duress or coercion was sufficient for jury. Id.

In will contest, evidence of fraud in procurement of will was sufficient for jury. Frene v. Muratori (1944, 142 F. 2d 768, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 101).

Review

Order framing issues is interlocutory only, and reviewable only by special appeal. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1913, 40 App. D.C. 180).

In proceeding to probate will where no exceptions were taken to the charge on undue influence and testamentary capacity, charge on such matters could not be attacked on appeal. Pollard v. Hawfield (1948, 170 F. 2d 170, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 374, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U.S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1039).

Stay by prohibition

Prohibition will not lie to stay proceedings under an order framing issue for trial by jury. In re Dahlgren (1908, 30 App. D.C. 588).

Trial

The trial proceeded when it was shown by the record that at the time the issues were framed and the trial fixed, and at the trial the caveatees were present in person and by their attorneys. Storey v. Storey (1908, 30 App. D.C. 41).

§ 18-514. Wills filed prior to June 8, 1898, may be probated as of real estate

A person interested under a will filed in the office of the Register of Wills for the District of Columbia prior to June 8, 1898, may offer the will for probate as a will of real estate, whereupon such proceedings shall be had as this Code authorizes in regard to wills offered for probate after that date. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 19-313 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 141, 31 Stat. 1213).

Changes are made in phraseology.

In general

This section is permissive and not mandatory. Young v. Norris Peters Co. (1906, 27 App. D.C. 140).

Effect of probate of wills

Stepgrandchildren of a decedent lacked standing to maintain action to annul marriage of decedent and to set aside conveyance of interest in realty to decedent's wife after marriage, since stepgrandchildren as such could not contest marriage alone, and their claim to realty rested upon will of decedent which devised realty to decedent's stepgrandchildren, but will was not probated so that stepgrandchildren could not take realty even if conveyance and marriage were voided. Norris v. Harrison (1952, 198 F. 2d 953, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 103).

Equity jurisdiction

Determination of title to real estate devised by will is within the general jurisdiction of a court of equity. Beyer v. Le Fevre (1902, 22 S. Ct. 765, 186 U.S. 114, 46 L. Ed. 1080).

Jurisdiction

By act of June 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 434, ch. 394, plenary jurisdiction was given the District Supreme Court of all questions as to wills devising real estate in the District of Columbia. Leach v. Burr (1903, 23 S. Ct. 393, 188 U.S. 510, 47 L. Ed. 567).

See note preceding section 11-101.

§ 19-101. Family allowance; construction; penalties

(a) Upon the death of a person leaving a surviving spouse, the spouse is entitled to an allowance out of the personal estate of the decedent of the sum of $2,500 for the personal use of himself and of minor children. The allowance shall be paid in money, or in specific property at its fair value, as the surviving spouse may elect. It is exempt from all debts and obligations of the decedent, and is subject only to the payment of funeral expenses not exceeding $600.

(b) When there is no surviving spouse, the surviving minor children, if any, are entitled to the allowance provided for by subsection (a) of this section. This allowance is payable, in the discretion of the Probate Court, to the person having custody of the children, or to such other person as the court designates. The person to whom the allowance is paid shall use it solely for the care and maintenance of the children.

(c) The allowance provided for by this section is in addition to the respective shares of the surviving spouse and children.

(d) This section applies to estates of all persons dying after June 24, 1949; and if there is any conflict or inconsistency between this section and other provisions of this Part or any other law, this section controls.

(e) Whoever, with respect to the family allowance authorized by this section:

- (1) makes a false affidavit; or
- (2) willfully violates an order of the Probate Court; or
- (3) willfully violates a provision of this section—

- (1) by striking out in subsec. (a) and (e) "$500" and inserting "$2,500" in lieu thereof; and
- (2) by striking out in the third sentence of subsec. (a) "$200" and inserting "$600" in lieu thereof.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 18-801, 18-808, 18-809, 18-810 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394(a)(h)(i)(j), as added June 24, 1949, ch. 244, 63 Stat. 269).

Section consolidates sections 18-801, 18-808, 18-809 and 18-810 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Sections 18-808, 18-809 and 18-810 are also carried into chapter 21 of title 20 herein, to the provisions of which they also related.

Section 18-809 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., in connection with the provisions carried into this section and chapter 21 of title 20 herein, repealed all laws inconsistent therewith to the extent of the inconsistency. This provision is omitted as executed, or obsolete in any event, as the bill to enact this revised Part repeals specifically all prior laws, as such, the provisions of which are carried into this revised Part. However, subsec. (d) of this section provides that this section controls, if there is any conflict or inconsistency with other laws.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20-1325, 20-1705, 20-2101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Family allowance

Provision in District of Columbia Code to effect that surviving spouse is entitled to $500 allowance out of personal estate of decedent for personal use of himself and minor children was intended to supply surviving spouse with some necessary money before any distribution or payment out of estate. In re Estate of I. N. Jones (D.C.D.C. 1966, 259 F. Supp. 951).

Right of surviving spouse to $500 allowance from personal estate of deceased spouse is not a vested right and if surviving spouse dies before receiving allowance, right to its payment is lost and money becomes part of estate of first deceased. Id.

Where husband died before he had received from deceased wife's estate the $500 allowance provided by

§ 19-102. Dower; quarantine; curtesy abolished.

(a) The widow of a deceased man, with respect to parties who inter-married prior to November 29, 1957, or the widow or widower of a deceased person dying after March 15, 1962, is entitled to dower and its incidents as the rights thereto were known at common law with respect to widows, including the use, during her or his natural life, of one-third part of all the land on which the deceased spouse was seized of an estate of inheritance at any time during the marriage. The surviving spouse entitled to dower under this section may remain in the chief dwelling house of the decedent 40 days after the death, without being liable for rent therefor, within which period the dower of the surviving spouse, if not previously assigned to her or him, shall be so assigned. In the meantime, the surviving spouse may have reasonable sustenance out of the estate of the decedent.

(b) The right of dower and its incidents provided for by subsection (a) of this section entitles the widow or widower to lands held by the deceased spouse at any time during the marriage, whether by legal or equitable title, and whether held by the decedent at the time of death, or not, but the right does not operate to the prejudice of a claim for the purchase money of the lands or other lien thereon.

(c) The right of dower provided for by this section does not attach to lands held by two or more persons as joint tenants while the joint tenancy exists. A husband may not claim a right of dower in land which his wife, during the coverture, conveyed or transferred to another person by her sole deed prior to November 29, 1957.

(d) With respect to the real estate of a wife dying after November 29, 1957, there is no estate by the curtesy. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 18-201, 18-201a, 18-202, 18-215a (9 Henry 3, ch. 7, § 1, 1225; Kilty's Rept., p. 205; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 1; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 36, § 164; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1158, 31 Stat. 1375; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, §§ 2, 3, 71 Stat. 560; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87-246, § 3, 75 Stat. 515).

Section consolidates, with changes in phraseology and arrangement, sections 18-201, 18-201a, 18-202 and 18-215a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Section 18-201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which gave the widow a right of common-law dower in the estate of her deceased husband, set forth an old British statute, 9 Henry 3, ch. 7, § 1, 1225, which was continued in force in the District by Act Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1, 31 Stat. 1189 (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 49-301). It provided as follows:

"A widow, after the death of her husband, incontinent, and without any difficulty, shall have her marriage and her inheritance and shall give nothing for her dower, her marriage, or her inheritance, which her husband and she held the day of the death of her husband, and she shall tarry in the chief house of her husband by forty days after the death of her husband, within which days her dower shall be assigned her (if it were not assigned her before) or that the house be a castle; and if she depart from the castle, then a competent house shall be forthwith provided for her, in the which she may honestly dwell, until her dower be to her assigned, as it is aforesaid; and she shall have in the meantime her reasonable estovers of the common; and for her dower shall be assigned unto her the third part of all the lands of her husband, which were his during the coverture, except she was endowed of less of the church door."

The right of dower, and its incidents, were abolished by a former subsec. (a) of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which set forth subsec. (a) of section 3 of the Act of August 31, 1957, cited above. Prior to its general amendment by section 3 of the Act of September 14, 1961 (effective March 15, 1962), cited above, that subsection, in addition to abolishing dower and its incidents, provided: "except that with respect to parties who intermarried prior to the effective date of this Act [November 29, 1957], the wife shall retain her dower rights in all real estate whereof the husband, prior to the effective date of this Act, was seized of an estate of an inheritance at any time during the marriage. As to any such real estate of which the husband dies seized, the share of the wife therein, as provided in section 18-101, shall be, in lieu of her dower rights unless she elects to take the same in similar manner and within the period as authorized in section 18-211 [carried into section 19-113 herein], providing for renunciation of devises and bequests under wills." Section 2 of the 1957 Act (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-215a) abolished curtesy and its incidents, and section 1 thereof, in generally amending section 940 of the Act of Mar. 3, 1901, cited above, as amended (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-101, referred to in the above-quoted provisions, which is carried into section 19-301 herein), completely changed the course of descent of real property in the District of a person dying intestate, by providing that the same persons should succeed to intestate realty as were entitled to succeed to surplus intestate personalty, and that such kindred (including the surviving spouse as such) should share in the realty in the same proportions as they were entitled to share in the personalty. Previously, a surviving spouse could generally claim only dower or curtesy in the real property of her or his deceased mate.

A former subsec. (b) of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which set forth subsec. (b) of section 3 of the Act of August 31, 1957, provided, prior to the amendment of that section by section 3 of the Act of September 14, 1961 (effective March 15, 1962), referred to above:

"(b) the intestate share as provided by section 18-101 [see above], shall attach to all real property owned by husband or wife during coverture: Provided, That neither husband nor wife shall have the right to convey, transfer or encumber his or her real property free of the surviving spouse's interest in case of intestacy, as provided in sections 18-201 [see above], 18-201a 18-210 to 18-212, 18-215a, 18-714 to 18-717, and 30-201, without joinder of the other spouse." (In the original, the reference was to "this Act", meaning the 1957 Act. That Act amended or enacted the sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited in the quoted provisions. For distribution thereof in this revised Part, see tables.)

The Act of September 14, 1961, cited above, abolished this particular type of "intestate share" in real property in so far as spouses whose mates died or die on or after its effective date were concerned (March 15, 1962), and, while, in its general amendment of sections 18-101 and 18-201a and other sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., it continued to provide for the inheritance, by a surviving spouse, of a share of the intestate realty of the surviving spouse (see section 19-301 herein, and revision note thereunder), it created an alternate statutory right of dower in favor of both husbands and wives, "which shall have the same incidents as the common law estates of dower in force and effect immediately prior to November 29, 1957", and which "shall be in lieu of any inchoate rights acquired by or which may have attached to the real estate of any husband or wife by virtue of the provisions of" former subsec. (b) of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as it read prior to such 1961 amendment. While, therefore, former subsec. (b) of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. (Act Aug. 31, 1957, § 3(b), as originally enacted, effective Nov. 29, 1957), relating to this "intestate share", has been superseded and is obsolete, and no reference to the "intestate share" is contained in this section, the provisions of such former subsection are still applicable in the settlement of the estates of married persons who might have died before March 15, 1962, the effective date of the 1961 Act referred to above. It is for this reason that subsec. (b) of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as it read prior to the amendment by the 1961 Act, is quoted in the preceding paragraph of this note.

The 1961 Act did not mention the inchoate common law dower rights which widows might have acquired under section 18-201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and which, in so far as parties who intermarried prior to November 29, 1957, the effective date of the above-mentioned Act of August 31, 1957, are concerned, were preserved by the 1957 Act, but it would seem that these are rights which such wives still possess and may claim if they wish. "Since however, the statutory interest [under section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as last amended by the 1961 Act] is the same size as the common law interest [under section 18-201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.], there is little reason for a widow to claim one rather than the other in any particular land except in so far as preserved dower [under section 18-201] has not attached—i.e., lands which were conveyed away by a husband without joinder before the effective date of the 1957 Act [November 29, 1957] (or, if that is not the material date, then before the effective date of the Amendments Act [1961 Act, effective March 15, 1962])." (Mersch, "Probate Court Practice in the District of Columbia", 1962 Pocket Supp. (Garvey), § 301, p. 42).

Since the surviving spouse's rights to dower and its incidents under section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as amended by the 1961 Act mentioned above, were substantially the same as provided for widows by section 18-201 of the Code (the old British statute), and section 18-202 thereof, subsec. (a) of this section consolidates sections 18-201 and those provisions of section 18-201a setting up the general right to dower and its incidents, and subsec. (b) consolidates section 18-202, which related only to widows, with those provisions of section 18-201a which related to the same subject with respect to a surviving spouse. The general description of dower and its incidents was stated in section 18-201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., so the description thereof in subsec. (a) of this section follows that section, but rephrased in modern language, with surplusage omitted, and the cut-off marriage date of November 29, 1957 specified. The final phrase of section 18-201, "except she were endowed of less at the church door" is omitted as apparently superseded by section 18-211(f) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which is carried into section 19-113(f) herein.

The provision in subsec. (a) for non-liability for rent, during the period of the widow's (and now, also, the widower's) quarantine is new as text, but it appears to be necessarily implied in the provision of section 18-201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., for sustenance ("estovers", in the old British statute). See 4 Kent's Comm., 14 ed., p. 64; also, McKinney's N.Y. Real Property Law § 204.

As stated, subsec. (b) of this section consolidates part of section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which established dower rights for both husbands and wives, and section 18-202 thereof, which related to widows only. The provisions consolidated in subsec. (b) were substantially the same, except that the provision protecting other liens from the operation of the widow's dower rights was contained in section 18-202 only. As set out in subsec. (b) herein, the provision affords a protection of such liens from the operation of both the widow's and the widower's dower rights, in view of the amendatory provision in section 18-201a of the Code, referred to above.

The provision in subsec. (c) of this section relating to joint tenancy interests is also derived from section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., the section which created dower rights for both husbands and wives. The second sentence of subsec. (c) is new as statutory text, but it is not deemed to create any new law. It seems clear, considering existing rights and the present state of the law, that a husband may not, under subssecs. (a) and (b) of this section, or might not, under section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., from which those subsections were partly derived, claim a right of dower in land conveyed by his wife, during the coverture, to another person by her sole deed executed prior to November 29, 1957, the effective date of the Act of August 31, 1957. Prior to that date, the husband had only a restricted right of curtesy in his wife's real property, and the law did not prevent the wife from defeating this right by her sole deed. Therefore, the second sentence of subsec. (c) of this section is added for the purpose of clarification.

Subsec. (d) of this section is based on section 18-215a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which abolished estates by the curtesy, with respect to wives dying after the effective date thereof (November 29, 1957).

Section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which, as stated, created dower rights for both husbands and wives, contained another provision, which read as follows: "and all provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia', approved March 3, 1901, as amended, and all other laws in force in the District of Columbia relating to the right of dower and its incidents shall, on and after the effective date of this amendment [by the 1961 Act, effective March 15, 1962], be construed to be applicable to both husband and wife." This provision is omitted here. Insofar as it affected sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., carried into this revised Part, it is executed in the text of the sections. Insofar as it affects sections in other Parts of the Code, it is preserved by an amendment in a separate section of the bill to enact this revised Part. The amendment strikes out all matter in section 3 of the 1957 Act, as amended by section 3 of the 1961 Act (section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.), except such provision.

Section 3 of act Sept. 14, 1965, provided: "Effective March 15, 1962, all provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia', approved March 3, 1901, as amended, and all other laws in force in the District of Columbia, relating to the right of dower and its incidents, apply to both husband and wife."

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Common law rule

At common law the wife had no dower in an equity of redemption. Follansbee v. Follansbee (1893, 1 App. D.C. 326).

The common law rule that a widow is not entitled to dower in lands to which the husband has a remainder in fee if the remainderman predecease the life tenant is not modified by 1901 Code, § 1158 (this section). Talty v. Talty (1913, 40 App. D.C. 587).

"Prior to 1896, there was no statute giving a wife dower in the equitable estate of her husband, and she was not entitled to any under the common law." Waggaman v. Dulany (1918, 48 App. D.C. 14).

Construction with other laws

Former § 18-204 depriving wife who has been adjudged incompetent of her rights of dower in any real property acquired by husband subsequent to adjudication of incompetency and while adjudication is in force, and this section providing that husband or wife does not have right to convey his or her property free of surviving spouse's interest in case of intestacy without joinder of other spouse, are not repugnant or inconsistent, and former § 18-201a did not repeal section 18-204. Vito v. Bonart and Vito (D.C.D.C. 1958, 163 F. Supp. 747).

Decisions under prior law

Appellant was entitled to a decree declaring a deed of trust to be without legal effect or operation to bar her of her right to dower in the premises therein mentioned and described; and her right and title to dower should, in all respects, be and remain as if said appellant had never joined in said deed; and she was entitled to an assignment of dower, and to an account for rents and profits for the time they have been wrongfully withheld from her. Follansbee v. Follansbee (1893, 1 App. D.C. 326).

When dower was not specifically assigned, the widow of the former owner and mother of the children would not be a proper party. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Taylor (1895, 6 App. D.C. 259).

Inchoate right of dower could not be broader than the estate of the husband upon which it depended. Sis v. Boorman (1897, 11 App. D.C. 116).

A widow being in possession of the only piece of property in which her dower could be assigned, her right thereto ought to confer upon her such continuing right of possession as to bar ejectment by the heirs at law, whose duty it was to make the proper assignment. Wilkes v. Wilkes (1901, 18 App. D.C. 90).

Equitable lien

Equitable lien was superior to dower right. Waggaman v. Dulany (1918, 48 App. D.C. 14).

Purpose

Purpose of provision of former § 18-201a that neither husband nor wife should have the right to convey, transfer or encumber his or her real property free of surviving spouse's interest in case of intestacy without joinder of other spouse was to prevent the destruction of the interstate share of one spouse by a conveyance made by other spouse during lifetime of the former. Vito v. Bonart and Vito (D.C.D.C. 1958, 163 F. Supp. 747).

Refusal to release dower

Equity would not at instance of vendee decree specific performance of a contract for the sale of land when the wife of the vendor refused to relinquish her right of dower to the vendor. Barbour v. Hickey (1894, 2 App. D.C. 207, 24 L.R.A. 763).

Where wife of vendor is entitled to dower in the lands, conveyance of good title can not be made without her consent, and where she refuses to release her dower, equity will not enforce specific performance of husband's contract to sell. Reilly v. Cullinane (1923, 287 F. 994, 58 App. D.C. 17).

Retroactive effect

A retrospective operation will not be given to a statute which interferes with antecedent rights, or by which human action is regulated, unless such be the unequivocal and inflexible import of the terms and the manifest intention of the legislature. Vito v. Vito and Bonart (1959, 272 F. 2d 555, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Rights of incompetent wife

Where before the effective date of former § 18-201a providing that an intestate share would attach to all realty owned by husband or wife during coverture, husband entered into a contract to convey certain realty acquired subsequent to his wife's adjudication of incompetency, husband was authorized to convey the realty without his wife's signature, as fully as if he were unmarried, under former § 18-204 providing for such a conveyance where a married woman has been found upon inquisition to be a lunatic or insane. Vito v. Vito and Bonart (1959, 272 F. 2d 555, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

§ 19-103. Forfeiture of dower by desertion and adultery

(a) A person who voluntarily abandons or deserts his or her spouse and lives with another person with whom he or she commits adultery, and who is convicted of the adultery by a court having jurisdiction, forfeits the right to dower, and is forever barred of an action to demand it.

(b) Subsection (a) of this section does not apply if the aggrieved spouse willingly, and without coercion, pardons the offending spouse and permits the resumption of cohabitation. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-203 (13 Edw. 1, ch. 34, § 4, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 213; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 138; Comp. St. D.C., p. 36, § 165).

The old British statute, 13 Edw. 1, ch. 34, § 4, cited above, as set forth in section 18-203 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"If a wife willingly leave her husband, and go away, and continue with the advouterer, she shall be barred forever of action to demand her dower, that she ought to have of her husband's lands, if she be convict thereupon, except that her husband willingly, and without coercion reconcile her, and suffer her to dwell with him; in which case she shall be restored to her action."

The provisions are rewritten to modernize the language, and to embrace husbands, as well as wives. See section 19-102 herein, also revision note under section 19-102.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Deserting widow's rights

District of Columbia statute setting forth no exceptions to widow's right to elect to take against will except where she by adulterous conduct is barred from claiming dower right permitted widow to attack will although she had deserted testator, had filed divorce proceedings against him, was found to be the guilty party, and divorce was granted to testator, where he died less than six months after entry of decree. In re Estate of S. D. Hanson (D.C.D.C. 1962, 210 F. Supp. 377).

§ 19-104. Absent or incompetent spouse

The spouse of a person who is insane, and has been so adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction and the adjudication remains in force, or who has been absent or unheard of for seven years, may grant and convey by a separate deed, whether it is absolute or by way of lease or mortgage, as fully as if he were unmarried, any real property acquired by him since the adjudication or since the beginning of the absence. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-204 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854 § 1165, 31 Stat. 1375; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87-246, § 5, 75 Stat. 517).

The references to lunatic are omitted as covered by the references to "insane" person. For definition of "insane person", see section 21-501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Construction with other laws

This section depriving wife who has been adjudged incompetent of her rights of dower in any real property acquired by husband subsequent to adjudication of incompetency and while adjudication is in force, and § 18-201a providing that husband or wife does not have right to convey his or her property free of surviving spouse's interest in case of intestacy without joinder of other spouse, are not repugnant or inconsistent, and former § 18-201a did not repeal former § 18-204. *Vito v. inquisition to be a lunatic or insane. Vito v. Vito and Bonart (1959, 272 F. 2d 555, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

§ 19-105. Jointure before marriage as bar to dower

(a) Where real estate is conveyed to persons who intend to marry, or to one of them alone, or to a person and his heirs and assigns, to the use of persons who intend to marry, or to the use of one of them alone, for the purpose of creating for the latter person mentioned in either case a freehold estate for that person's life at least, and with his assent before the marriage, to take effect in possession and profits immediately upon the death of the other, the jointure bars his right or claim of dower in all the real estate of the spouse. The assent of the person for whose benefit the estate is created is evidenced by that person's becoming a party to the conveyance by which it is settled, or, if he is a minor, by his joining with the father or guardian thereof in the conveyance.

(b) The jointure referred to in subsection (a) of this section is not a bar to dower unless it is expressly made and declared to be in satisfaction of the whole dower, and not of any particular part of it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-206 (27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 6, 1535; Kilty's Rept., p. 231; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 296; Comp. St. D.C., p. 39, § 173).

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language, and to embrace prospective husbands, as well as prospective wives. See section 19-102 herein, also revision note under section 19-102.

The old British statute, 27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 6, cited above, as set forth in section 18-206 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"Whereas divers persons have purchased, or have estate made and conveyed of and in divers lands, tenements, and hereditaments unto them and to their wives, and to the heirs of the husband, or to the husband, and to the wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies begotten, or to the heirs of one of their bodies begotten, or to the husband, and to the wife for term of their lives, or for term of life of the said wife; or where any such estate, or purchase of any lands, tenements, hereditaments, hath been, or hereafter shall be made to any husband, and to his wife, in manner and form above expressed, or to any other person or persons, and to their heirs and assigns, to the use and behoof of the said husband and wife, or to the use of the wife, as is before rehearsed, for the jointure of the wife; that then in every such case, every woman married, having such jointure made, or hereafter to be made, shall not claim, nor have title to have any dower of the residue of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments, that at any time were her said husbands, by whom she hath any such jointure, nor shall demand nor claim her dower of and against them that have the lands and inheritances of her said husband; but if she have no such jointure, then she shall be admitted and enabled to pursue, have, and remand her dower by writ of dower, after the due course and order of the common laws".

While the provisions, as herein revised, relating to when the estate, in order to bar dower, must take effect, to assent, and to the requirement that, in order to bar dower, the jointure must expressly be made and declared to be in satisfaction of the whole dower (subsec. (b)), are new to the text when compared with the old British statute, it is not considered that they state new interpretations of the law of legal jointure, as expressed in the British statute. (See, for example, 28 C.J.S. Dower, § 54; 17 Am. Jur., Dower, § 66. See, also, McKinney's N.Y. Real Property Law § 197; Laws of Mass., Ch. 189, § 7; 4 Kent's Comm., 14th ed., p. 56 et seq.

In subsec. (a), references to real estate are substituted for references to lands, tenements, and hereditaments, to conform with modern usage.

§ 19-106. Jointure after marriage; election

If, after persons intermarry, real estate is given or assured for jointure of one of them, in lieu of dower, the person for whose benefit the settlement is made, if he survives the other spouse, shall elect to take the jointure or to claim the dower to which he is entitled under section 19-102. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-205 (27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 9, 1535; Kilty's Rept., p. 231; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 297; Comp. Stat. D.C. p. 40, § 175).

The old British statute, 27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 9, cited above, as set forth in section 18-205 of the D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"If any wife have, or hereafter shall have any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments unto her given and assured after marriage, for term of her life, or otherwise in jointer, and the said wife after that fortune to overlive her said husband, in whose time the said jointer was made or assured unto her, that then the same wife so overliving shall and may at her liberty, after the death of her said husband, refuse to have and take the lands and tenements so to her, given, appointed, or assured during the coverture, for term of her life, or otherwise in jointer, and thereupon to have, ask, demand, and take her dower by writ of dower, or otherwise, according to the common law, of and in all such lands, tenements, and hereditaments as her husband was and stood seized of any state of inheritance at any time during the coverture".

The provisions, as herein revised, are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language, and to embrace husbands, as well as wives. See section 19-102 herein, also revision note under section 19-102.

The more modern term, "real estate", is substituted for "lands, tenements, or hereditaments".

The rewritten provisions are suggested to some extent by McKinney's N.Y. Real Property Law § 199.

§ 19-107. Effect of acts of one spouse

A judgment or decree confessed or recovered against one spouse, and any laches, default, covin, forfeiture, or deed or conveyance of one spouse without the assent of the other, evidenced by his acknowledgment thereof in the manner required by law to pass the contingent right of dower, does not prejudice the right of the other spouse to dower, nor preclude him from the recovery thereof. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-207 (13 Edw. 1, ch. 4, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 212; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 106; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 37, § 169).

Section is taken from part of section 18-207 of D.C. Code 1961 ed. Remainder of Section 18-207 is carried into sections 19-108 and 19-109 herein.

The old British statute, 13 Edw. 1, ch. 4, 1285, cited above, as set forth in section 18-207 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"In case where the husband, being impleaded for land, giveth up the land demanded unto his adversary by covin; after the death of the husband, the justices shall award the wife her dower, if it be demanded. In case the husband loseth the land by default, if the wife, after the death of her husband, demandeth her dower, and if it be alleged, that her husband lost the land, by judgment, and it be found that it was by default, the tenant must answer; then it behooveth the tenant to answer further, and to shew that he had right, and hath in the aforesaid land, according to the form of the writ that the tenant before purchased against the husband. And if he can shew that the husband of such wife had no right in the lands, nor any other but he that holdeth them, the tenant shall go quit, and the wife shall recover nothing of her dower; which thing if he can not shew, the wife shall recover her dower. Where it chanceth that a woman not having right to demand dower, the heir being within age, doth purchase a writ of dower against a gardian, and the gardian endoweth the woman by favour, or maketh default, or by collusion defendeth the plea so faintly, whereby the woman is awarded her dower in prejudice of the heir; it is provided, that the heir, when he cometh to full age, shall have an action to demand the seisin of his ancestor against such a woman, like as he should have against any other deforcior; yet so, that the woman shall have her exception saved against the demandant, to shew that she had right to her dower, which if she can shew, she shall go quit and retain her dower, and the heir shall be grievously amerced, according to the discretion of the justices; and if it not, the heir shall recover his demand, &c. In like manner the woman shall be aided, if the heir or any other do implead her for her dower, or is she lose her dower by default, in which case the default shall not be so prejudicial to her, but that she shall recover her dower, if she have right thereto."

The provisions, as divided and carried into this section and sections 19-108 and 19-109 herein, are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language, and to reflect their apparent intent, scope, and implications, as construed in other jurisdictions by statutes enacted in more modern times, which obviously were derived from them. See, for example, McKinney's N.Y. Real Property Law §§ 203, 464, 465, 469; Ill. Rev. St. 1955, ch. 3, § 174; Alaska Comp. Laws Ann., 1949, §§ 63-1-16 to 63-1-120.

Further, as set out in this section and sections 19-108 and 19-109 herein, the provisions are revised to embrace husbands, as well as wives. See section 19-102 herein, also revision not under section 19-102.

§ 19-109. Recovery of dower obtained by default or collusion; damages

If, during the infancy of an heir of a deceased spouse, or of any other person entitled to the lands of the deceased spouse, the surviving spouse, not having a right of dower, recovers dower by the default or collusion of the guardian of the infant, the infant is not prejudiced thereby, and when he comes of full age he has a right of action against the surviving spouse to recover the lands so wrongfully awarded for dower, with damages in the discretion of the court; but, if it is established in an action brought under this section that the surviving spouse is entitled to the dower, he shall have judgment so declaring, and may, in the discretion of the court, recover damages from the heir or other person. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 19-110. Assignment by guardian; rights of heir

A guardian of a minor heir has the right of assignment or admeasurement of dower; but the heir, when he comes of full age, is not barred by such an assignment if it was wrongfully made pursuant to collusion between the guardian and the tenant in dower, and may have the dower properly assigned or admeasured according to law. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 696, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-208 (13 Edw. 1, ch. 7, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 212; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 111; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 38, § 170).

The old British statute, 13 Edw. 1, ch. 7, cited above, as set forth in section 18-208 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"A writ of admeasurement of dower shall be granted to a gardian; neither shall the heir, when he cometh to full age, be barred by the suit of such a gardian, that sueth against the tenant in dower feignedly, and by collusion, but that he may admeasure the dower after, as it ought to be admeasured by the law."

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language.

§ 19-111. Reendowment upon eviction from jointure

A spouse who is lawfully evicted from lands settled upon him as jointure in lieu of dower, or from a part thereof, is entitled to dower to the extent or value of the lands from which he was evicted. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 696, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-209 (27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 7, 1535; Kilty's Rept., p. 231; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 296; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 40, § 174).

The old British statute, 27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 7, cited above, as set forth in section 18-209 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"If any woman be lawfully expulsed or evicted from her jointer, or from any part thereof, without any fraud or covin, by lawful entry, action, or by discontinuance of her husband, then every such woman shall be endowed of as much of the residue of her husband's tenements or hereditaments, whereof she was before dowable, as the same lands and tenements so evicted and expulsed shall amount or extend unto."

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language, and to embrace husbands, as well as wives. See section 19-102 herein, also revision note under section 19-102.

§ 19-112. Devise or bequest to spouse

Subject to section 19-114, and unless it is otherwise expressed in the will, a devise of real estate or an interest therein, or a bequest of personal estate or an interest therein, to the surviving spouse, bars his or her share in the decedent's estate, and his or her dower rights. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 696, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-210 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1172, 31 Stat. 1376; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 5, 71 Stat. 561).

For the purpose of clarification, and to conform with the probable legislative intent "or" is substituted for "and", preceding "a bequest"; and, preceding "dower rights", the words "and his or her" are substituted for "including". Regarding the latter substitution, it was most probably the legislative intent to bar all dower rights in the circumstances mentioned in the section, not only such rights in the estate of the decedent, but also dower rights with respect to property not in the decedent's estate, that is, property conveyed away by the decedent during the marriage. The substitution is intended to make this clear.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Common law

Under common law existing in Maryland prior to creation of District of Columbia, a husband was not permitted to deprive his wife of her reasonable share of his estate, either directly or indirectly, and a bequest to wife was not considered in lieu of her legal interest, but instead she took both. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 332).

Construction

Where will gave, devised, and bequeathed to wife of testator all her statutory rights in his realty and personalty wheresoever situated at time of his death, she was given such rights as she had in his property under controlling statutes immediately following his death testate, and she was not given intestate share in testator's property. J. B. Nicodemus et al. v. L. W. Bain (1965, 344 F. 2d 501, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

The statutory provision for widows in District of Columbia constitutes a recognition and, in part, a restate-ment of her rights at common law, and it is not to be regarded as an abrogation of common law, but instead, to extent that former § 18-210 failed to cover the entire subject, the common law was to be looked to for amplification and definition. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Evidence

Evidence failed to establish that testator who executed will giving wife all her statutory rights in his realty and personalty and giving entire residue of his estate to wife and his two children, share and share alike, actually intended to give widow merely value of rights she would have had by statute if he had died intestate, in addition to the one-third share of the residue. J. B. Nicodemus et al. v. L. W. Bain (1965, 344 F. 2d 501, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Purpose

Former §§ 18-210 and 18-211 requiring widow to elect between husband's will and her legal interests were enacted to avoid result reached by early cases permitting widow to take both under the will and her legal interest, but it was not their purpose to deprive a widow of her common-law rights. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Renunciation after probate

Widow, who had petitioned for probate of husband's will and for letters testamentary, was not thereafter entitled to set aside former petition and resulting order for probate of will and for letters testamentary. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (D.C.D.C. 1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

§ 19-113. Renunciation of devises and bequests; election; time limitations; renunciation or election by guardian or fiduciary; maximum rights; effect of no devise or bequest or if nothing passes under either; antenuptial or postnuptial agreements

(a) Subject to section 19-114, a surviving spouse is, by a devise or bequest specified in section 19-112, barred of any statutory rights or interest he has in the real and personal estate of the deceased spouse or dower rights, as the case may be, unless, within six months after the will of the deceased spouse is admitted to probate, he files in the Probate Court a written renunciation to the following effect:

"I, A B, widow [or surviving husband] of _____ late of _____, deceased, renounce and quit all claim to any devise or bequest made to me by the last will of my husband [or wife] exhibited and proved according to law; and I elect to take in lieu thereof my legal share of the real and personal estate of my deceased spouse (except that in lieu of my legal share of the real estate, I elect to take dower in all the real estate of my deceased spouse to which that right is applicable)."

(b) In similar manner, where the deceased spouse dies intestate of real estate, and letters of administration are issued with respect to the estate the surviving spouse is barred of dower rights, unless, within six months after the letters of administration have been issued with respect to the estate of the deceased spouse, he files in the Probate Court a written renunciation of his legal share of the intestate real estate to the following effect:

"I A B, widow [or surviving husband] of _____ deceased, in lieu of my legal share of the real estate which my deceased spouse died intestate, elect to take dower in all the real estate of my deceased spouse to which the right is applicable."

(c) If, during the period of six months specified by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, a suit is instituted to construe the will of the deceased spouse, the period of six months for the filing of the renunciation or election commences to run from the date when the suit is finally determined. A renunciation or election may be made in behalf of a spouse unable to act for himself by reason of infancy, incompetency, or inability to manage his property, by the guardian or other fiduciary acting for the spouse when so authorized by the court having jurisdiction of the person of the spouse. The time for renunciation by a spouse may be extended before its expiration by an order of the Probate Court for successive periods of not more than six months each upon petition showing reasonable cause and on notice given to the personal representative and to the other persons herein referred to in such manner as the Probate Court directs.

(d) Where a decedent has not made a devise or bequest to the spouse, or nothing passes by a purported devise or bequest, the surviving spouse is entitled to his legal share of the real and personal estate of the deceased spouse without filing a written renunciation, but may, instead, elect to take dower as provided by subsection (b) of this section.

(e) The legal share of a surviving spouse under subsection (a) or (d) of this section is such share or interest in the real or personal property of the deceased spouse, including dower if elected in lieu of the legal share in the real estate, as he would have taken if the deceased spouse had died intestate, not to exceed one-half of the net estate bequeathed and devised by the will, or, if dower is elected, one-half of the net personal property bequeathed and dower in the real estate devised.

(f) A valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreement entered into by the spouses determines the rights of the surviving spouse in the real and personal estate of the deceased spouse and the administration thereof, but a spouse may accept the benefits of a devise or bequest made to him by the deceased spouse. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 696, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-211 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854; § 1173, 31 Stat. 1376; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 567; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 6, 71 Stat. 561; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87-246, § 4, 75 Stat. 516).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Claims of creditors against spendthrift trust

In a case involving the beneficiary of a spendthrift trust, the court held that the primary purpose of such a trust was to assure that the beneficiary will be provided for, independent of his own improvidence and not necessarily to immunize the income therefrom for the necessities of life. American Security and Trust Co. v. F. Utley (1967, 382 F. 2d 451, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Equitable apportionment of estate taxes

Purpose of the marital deduction provision does not modify meaning of District of Columbia statute whereby dissenting widow can take one-third of surplus after debts, and hence the amount of property received by widow's election, and thus the amount eligible for marital deduction, was a portion of the surplus remaining after deducting entire amount of estate taxes, in view of District of Columbia rule rejecting doctrine of general equitable apportionment of estate taxes. R. H. DelMar et al. v. United States (1968, 390 F. 2d 466, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Congress adopted the marital deduction to provide opportunity for equalization of the tax treatment of estates in common law and community property states. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Acceptance of terms of will

Spouse by accepting benefits of will relinquishes alternative rights to wife's or husband's property. F. Utley v. S. C. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1966, 258 F. Supp. 959).

When widow was aware of her rights within the six-months' period, and did not so renounce them, for the reason that she accepted an annuity instead of her right of dower, she could not make an election later for the purpose of getting refund of income tax. Semmes v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1934, 6 F. Supp. 119).

A widow may not defeat the general purpose of the will by a sale of the property and a division of its proceeds four years after she has elected, by acquiescence and by conduct, to take the provision the will makes for her. Evans v. Evans (1932, 55 F. 2d 533, 60 App. D.C. 371).

Caveat

Where caveat of alleged widower of deceased testatrix was not filed in District of Columbia within three months allowed by statute as to personalty, and alleged widower had filed a renunciation of provisions of will and election to take his legal share as of intestacy under statute, and there were no children born of alleged marriage, so that alleged widower had no interest by curtesy, motion to dismiss caveat would be granted because not timely filed and because alleged widower had no interest sufficient to entitle him to maintain caveat. In re Phillips' Estate (D.C.D.C. 1953, 111 F. Supp. 453).

Common law

Under common law existing in Maryland prior to creation of District of Columbia, a husband was not permitted to deprive his wife of her reasonable share of his estate, either directly or indirectly, and a bequest to wife was not considered in lieu of her legal interest, but instead she took both. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

The common-law rights of widow, as restated and recognized in this section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files written renunciation of bequests contained in her husband's will, remain intact until a valid election has been made by her, or in her behalf, against those interests. Id.

Construction

Under District of Columbia Code, where testator left no child, parent, grandchild, brother or sister or child of a brother or sister, widow who renounced will made by her husband, was entitled to the whole of her husband's personal estate. Wegenast v. Pheyley (1952, 195 F. 2d 776, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 277).

The statutory requirement of an election by widow between her husband's will and her common-law rights is not a "privilege" bestowed by this section but is a "limitation" upon the common-law rights of the widow and must be so construed. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

This section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within specified time she files written renunciation of bequest contained in her husband's will is not a "statute of limitations". Id.

The statutory provision for widows in District of Columbia constitutes a recognition and, in part, a restatement of her rights at common law, and it is not to be regarded as an abrogation of common law, but instead, to extent that former § 18-210 et seq. failed to cover the entire subject, the common law was to be looked to for amplification and definition. Id.

Defective bequest

If husband's bequest in favor of widow is defective, there is no requirement that widow make an election. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Defective gift

Addition of name of depositor's brother to bank account under circumstances not amounting to a gift and for purpose of permitting brother to obtain money in event of depositor's death was ineffective as amounting to an attempted testamentary disposition without compliance with testamentary requirements and as evading this section permitting widow to claim distributive share of personal estate of husband when will makes no devise in her favor. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

Deprivation of rights

District of Columbia statute setting forth no exceptions to widow's right to elect to take against will except where she by adulterous conduct is barred from claiming dower rights permitted widow to attack will although she had deserted testator, had filed divorce proceedings against him, was found to be the guilty party, and divorce was granted to testator, where he died less than six months after entry of decree. In re Estate of S. D. Hanson (D.C.D.C. 1962, 210 F. Supp. 377).

The common-law rights of dower in land and of "thirds" in personal property depended, not alone on the welfare of the widow, but of her children as well, and therefore to interpret a statutory limitation on the common-law rights in such manner as to cut them off arbitrarily, upon death of an incompetent widow, would be to disregard one of the two primary purposes of this section. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Election by court

Upon request, an equity court can act on behalf of, and in interest of, an insane widow in making election between widow's common-law rights and bequest in her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

An incompetent widow cannot, personally, make an election to renounce husband's will, but court of competent jurisdiction can exercise the power, in her behalf, during statutory period or thereafter, prior to her death. Id.

Where widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in husband's will is not exercised on behalf of incompetent widow during her lifetime and matter is brought to attention of equity court, it is court's duty to make election, weighing, in doing so, the various considerations including provision which was made for care and comfort of widow, prior to her death, and the court's determination should be made as of time when widow was living, in light of circumstances then existing. Id.

Election by spouse

Spouse may renounce device or bequest left by will and elect to take such rights as would devolve to him in case of intestacy. F. Utley v. S. C. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1966, 258 F. Supp. 959).

Insane or incompetent widow

Where widow was incompetent at time of death of her husband, widow had no right to elect whether to accept or renounce husband's will, and upon death of widow her administrator had no such authority. Boyer, Administrator C.T.A. etc., v. Bealor Executrix etc. (1959, 271 F. 2d 845, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 262).

Where widow was incompetent and unable to exercise privilege of renouncing bequest contained in her husband's will, if determination was not made of rights of the widow and of her estate, the husband's will would be inoperative as to her and his estate would be distributed, as to her, in the same manner as if he had died intestate. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Where widow is incompetent, the welfare of widow is not sole consideration in determining whether bequest contained in her husband's will should be renounced on behalf of widow, but welfare of her heirs or other dependents may be considered. Id.

The policy of District of Columbia in regard to application to insane widow of this section barring widow of common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files a renunciation of bequest in husband's will is clearly manifested in § 12-201 governing limitation of actions, which contains a blanket exemption in favor of infants and insane persons. Id.

Where widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in husband's will was not exercised on behalf of incompetent widow during her lifetime, complaint of administratrix of widow's estate to recover widow's share of husband's estate and to recover widow's property and damages from trustee of the incompetent widow stated a cause of action. Id.

Laches

Where trustee of insane widow was also beneficiary and representative of the husband's estate, trustee's "laches" in protecting interests of widow could not deprive equity court of power to act in widow's interest in making an election between widow's common-law rights and bequest contained in her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Where an equity court acts in interest of an insane widow in determining whether bequest in husband's will should be renounced, bad faith or laches of heirs or representatives may become proper considerations, along with others, to guide court, but such considerations provide no basis for concluding that an equity court has no power to act in interest of an insane widow or that inaction of her trustee constitutes an election solely by reason of lapse of time. Id.

Petition, right to

If heirs or representatives of insane widow delay in petitioning equity court to act on behalf of insane widow in making an election between widow's common-law rights and bequest in husband's will, those interested in the husband's estate can petition the court to act. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Presumptions

The fact that money was expended under husband's will for care and comfort of his insane widow did not authorize a presumption that the widow had elected to abide by the provisions of her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Purpose

The purpose of this section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files written renunciation of bequest contained in husband's will is that renunciation shall constitute an "election to reject", and a failure to renounce shall constitute an "election to accept" the offer. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

The widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in her husband's will and electing to enjoy her dower or statutory rights is intended to permit her to decide whether her interests will be better served by another arrangement. Id.

This section and § 18-210 requiring widow to elect between husband's will and her legal interests were enacted to avoid result reached by early cases permitting widow to take both under the will and her legal interest, but it was not their purpose to deprive a widow of her common-law rights. Id.

Renunciation after probate

Widow, who had petitioned for probate of husband's will and for letters testamentary, was not thereafter entitled to set aside former petition and resulting order for probate of will and for letters testamentary. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (D.C.D.C. 1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

Widow, who failed to file renunciation within specified statutory period, and who subsequently sought leave to withdraw prior petition for probate and for letters testamentary and declaration to effect that court order for probate of will was null and void enabling widow to renounce her interest under will, should have instead proceeded for order permitting renunciation and election as of date within statutory period, nunc pro tunc. Id.

Renunciation by administrator

Right of surviving incompetent widow to renounce will of husband could not be exercised by her administrator after her death. R. H. Payne et al. v. B. A. Newton, Jr., etc. (1963, 323 F. 2d 621, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Renunciation required

A widow must file a renunciation of her rights under the will in order to take under the law; inadequate provisions under the will do not relieve her of this duty. Cahill v. Eberly (1930, 38 F. 2d 539, 59 App. D.C. 228).

Mere oral declarations privately made by the widow can not take the place of a written renunciation. Id.

Representative of widow

A widow's representative cannot act in her behalf to make renunciation of husband's will, except with permission of court, or unless a statute confers the power. Mead v. Phillips (1943, 135 F. 2d 819, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 365, 147 A.L.R. 322).

Where guardian ad litem of incompetent widow made no suggestion concerning an election in widow's behalf to renounce bequest in husband's will, it was duty of trustee to request promptly a determination by equity court of the widow's interest and where trustee had failed to act it became the duty of the widow's representative to request proper action. Id.

Where widow was incompetent, guardian ad litem made no suggestion concerning an election in widow's behalf to renounce bequest contained in her husband's will and widow's trustee who was also beneficiary and representative of the husband's estate failed to act for protection of interests of widow, court of equity could exercise power of renunciation after expiration of statutory period and after widow's death. Id.

Spendthrift trust

Where will of deceased spouse creates spendthrift trust for benefit of surviving spouse, spendthrift trust is not a free and voluntary gift, inasmuch as surviving spouse gives consideration for receiving benefits of trust by surrendering statutory rights and beneficiary is in effect a purchaser of benefits, he is in same position as though he were creator of trust and provisions surrounding fund with immunity from claims of creditors are void. F. Utley v. A. C. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1966, 258 F. Supp. 959).

Testamentary spendthrift trust created by beneficiary's deceased spouse was invalid as to its spendthrift features, that is, it was not free of claims of creditors, since beneficiary had had right to elect either to accept benefits of will or take share that would have devolved upon him in case of intestacy and by choosing the former he surrendered his statutory rights and therefore gave consideration for receiving benefits of trust. Id.

Taxes upon renunciation

A widow who renounced will of her husband and elected to share in his estate as if he had died intestate could not claim such share in her husband's estate without diminution for Federal estate tax on theory of provisions in decedent's will. G. B. Herson v. Mollie Mills ind.; and as co-executrix of the estate of D. L. Herson, et al. (D.C.D.C. 1963, 221 F. Supp. 714).

Trust property

Where wife has vested remainder interest in trust property, but interest of wife was divested because she predeceased life tenant, husband had no estate of curtesy in the trust property on death of wife and death of life tenant. Noreen et al. v. Sparks et al. (D.C.D.C. 1952, 103 F. Supp. 588, motion denied 104 F. Supp. 675, cause remanded 204 F. 2d 56, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

§ 19-114. Rights of surviving spouse if there is no renunciation

A surviving spouse who does not renounce as provided by section 19-113 is entitled to the benefit of all provisions in his favor in the will of the deceased spouse and shall share, in accordance with sections 19-301, 19-302, 19-303, 19-304, and 20-1901, in any estate of the deceased spouse undisposed of by the will (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966).

REVISION NOTES

§ 19-301. Course of descents generally

(a) The real estate in the District of Columbia, of a deceased person, male or female, if not devised, shall descend in fee simple, and the surplus of the personal estate of a deceased resident of the District, if not bequeathed, shall be distributed, to the surviving spouse, children, and other persons in the manner provided by this chapter. The heirs specified by this subsection take the real estate as tenants in common in the same proportions as they take the surplus personal estate as provided by this chapter.

(b) Subject to the right of dower, the real estate specified by subsection (a) of this section is liable, when the personal estate is insufficient, for the payment of the intestate's funeral expenses, debts, costs of administration, and estate, inheritance, and succession taxes in the same manner and to the same extent as the personal estate of the intestate. When the real estate is sold under a decree of a court having jurisdiction over it, the consent of the surviving spouse to the sale, is not required unless the surviving spouse elects to take dower. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-101 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 845, § 940, 31 Stat. 1342; Mar. 6, 1935, ch. 28, § 3(A), 49 Stat. 39; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 1, 71 Stat. 560; Sept. 14, 1961; Pub. L. 87-246, § 2, 75 Stat. 515).

The Act of August 31, 1957, cited above (of which another section abolished dower and curtesy), amended section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and other sections thereof, to provide an "intestate share" for the surviving spouse, preserving, however, the wife's inchoate right of dower with respect to persons who intermarried prior to its effective date (November 29, 1957). The Act of September 14, 1961, cited above, in amending sections 18-101 and 18-201a, and other sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., abolished this particular type of "intestate share" with respect to persons who died or die after March 15, 1962, its effective date, and, while continuing to provide for the inheritance, by a surviving spouse, of a share of the intestate realty of the deceased spouse, provided an alternate statutory dower interest for both husbands and wives. See section 19-102 herein, and revision note thereunder.

It would seem, however, that the particular type of "intestate share" provided for by the Act of August 31, 1957, is still applicable in the settlement of estates of married persons who died before March 15, 1962, the effective date of the 1961 Act. Therefore, section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as it read after its amendment by the 1957 Act, and before its amendment by the 1961 Act, is set out below in this note.

Section 18-201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as last amended by the 1961 Act, referred to above, is carried into section

- 19-308. Share of father and mother.

19-102 herein. It was enacted by the 1957 Act, referred to above, and for the provisions thereof as they read prior to the 1961 amendments, see revision note under such section 19-102. See, also, Mersch's "Probate Court Practice in the District of Columbia", pocket supplement (Garvey) §§ 282, 301 et seq.

The provisions of section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as carried into this section, reflect, with changes in phraseology and arrangement, the amendment thereof by the 1961 Act.

References to "real estate" are substituted for references to "lands, tenements, or hereditaments" and "real property", to conform with more modern usage, and, with respect to such reference, "real property", in section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to clarify the probable legislative intent. The term, "real estate", is generally regarded as being a broader scope than the term, "real property".

Section 18-101 prior to 1961 amendment.—Section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. (from which, as indicated above, this section is derived), after its amendment by the above-cited Act of August 31, 1957, effective November 29, 1957, and before its amendment by the Act of September 14, 1961, provided as follows:

"On the death of any person seized of an estate in fee simple in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, and intestate thereof, the same shall descend in fee simple to such person's kindred as follows: To those persons, who according to the laws of the District of Columbia now or hereafter in force relating to the distribution of the personal property of intestate, would be the distributees to take the surplus personal property of such intestate, if he or she had died a resident of the District of Columbia and possessed of such surplus of personalty; and such kindred (including the surviving spouse as such) shall take in the same proportions as are or shall be fixed by such laws relating to personal property, and shall take as tenants in common".

Section 18-101 prior to 1957 amendment.—Section 18-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., after amendment of section 940 of the 1901 Act (the source of section 18-101), cited above, by the Act of March 6, 1935, cited above, and before its amendment by the Act of August 31, 1957, cited above, provided as follows:

"On the death of any person seized of an estate in fee simple in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, and intestate thereof, the same shall descend in fee simple to such person's kindred in the following order, namely:

"First. To his child or children and their descendants, if any, equally.

"Second. If there be no child or descendant of a child, then equally to the father and mother of the intestate, or the whole to the sole surviving parent.

"Third. If there be no father or mother, then to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and their descendants equally.

"Fourth. If there be no brother or sister, or descendant from a brother or sister, then the whole shall go to the widow or widower of the intestate.

"Fifth. If none such, then one moiety of the estate shall go to the paternal, the other to the maternal kindred of the intestate in the following order:

"Sixth. First to the grandfather and grandmother equally, but if one be dead the entire moiety to the sole surviving grandparent.

"Seventh. If none, then to the uncles and aunts of the intestate, and their descendants equally.

"Eighth. If none such, then to the great-grandfathers and great-grandmothers, in the same manner prescribed for grandfather and grandmother in subdivision 6.

"Ninth. If none, then to the brothers and sisters of the grandfathers and grandmothers, and their descendants equally.

"Tenth. And so on in other cases, without end, passing to the nearest lineal ancestors and the descendants of such ancestors.

"Eleventh. If there be no paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the maternal kindred; and if there be no maternal kindred, the whole shall go to the paternal kindred. If there be neither maternal nor paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the kindred of the husband or wife of the intestate in the like course as if such husband or wife had died entitled to the estate; and if the intestate has had more husbands or wives than one, and all have died before such intestate, then the estate shall be equally divided among the kindred of the several husbands or wives in equal degree equally."

Descent prior to 1935 amendment.—Prior to the amendment of section 940 of the 1901 Act, cited above, by the 1935 Act, cited above, that section and sections 941-951 of the 1901 Act (31 Stat. 1342, 1343) provided as follows:

"SEC. 940. CHILDREN.—On the death of any person seized of an estate in fee simple in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, and intestate thereof, the same shall descend in fee simple to such person's kindred in the following order, namely: First. "SEC. 946. If there be no such brother or sister or descendant of such brother or sister, then to the grandfather on the part of the mother, and if no such grandfather living, then to his descendants in equal degree equally; if no such descendant of such grandfather, then to the father of such grandfather, and if none such living, then to his descendants in equal degree; and so on, passing to the next male maternal ancestor, and, if none such living, to his descendants in equal degree equally.

"SEC. 947. If there be no such maternal ancestor or descendant from such maternal ancestor, then to the father, and if no father living, then to his descendants in equal degree equally; and if no father or descendant from the father, then to the paternal ancestors and their descendants, in the same manner as hereinbefore directed as to the maternal ancestors.

"SEC. 948. ESTATE ACQUIRED BY PURCHASE.—If the estate was acquired by the intestate by purchase, or descended to or vested in him in any other manner than as hereinbefore mentioned, and there be no child or descendant of a child of such intestate, then the estate shall descend to his brothers and sisters of the whole blood and their descendants in equal degree equally.

"SEC. 949. HALF-BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.—If there be no brother or sister of the whole blood, or descendant of such brother or sister, then to the brothers and sisters of the half blood and their descendants in equal degree equally.

"SEC. 950. PATERNAL AND MATERNAL ANCESTORS ALTERNATELY.—If there be no brother or sister of the whole or the half blood, or any descendant from such, then to the father, and if no father living, then to the mother, and if no mother living, then to the grandfather on the part of the father, and if no such grandfather living, then to the descendants of such grandfather in equal degree equally; and if no such grandfather or any descendant from him, then to the grandfather on the part of the mother, and if no such grandfather, then to his descendants in equal degree equally, and so on without end, alternating the next male paternal ancestor and his descendants, and the next male maternal ancestor and his descendants, and giving preference to the paternal ancestor and his descendants.

"SEC. 951. HUSBAND AND WIFE.—If there be no descendants or kindred of the intestate, as aforesaid, to take the estate, then the same shall go to the husband or wife, if any, as the case may be; and if the husband or wife be dead, then to his or her kindred, in the life course as if such husband or wife had survived the intestate and had then died entitled to the estate by purchase; and if the intestate has had more husbands or wives than one, and all shall have died before such intestate, then the estate shall be equally divided among the kindred of the several husbands or wives in equal degree equally."

Agreements between kin

Where deceased's cousins entered into agreement admitting that other claimants were deceased's uncle and aunt and providing for distribution of deceased's estate but in plenary proceedings to determine heirship cousins refused to execute answer admitting such relationship, and instead filed answer which denied such relationship and stated that the cousins were deceased's sole heirs, after which the alleged uncle and aunt filed answer claiming to be deceased's sole heirs, in cousin's action for declaratory relief, evidence sustained finding that the cousins had not repudiated the agreement and justified determination that the agreement was enforceable. Wueger v. Braun (1943, 132 F. 2d 25, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Ancestral property

Real estate devised to testatrix by her grandmother was ancestral property, and would have descended to her surviving brother as her sole heir at law in the absence of a will under the prior law. Thomas v. Young (1928, 22 F. 2d 588, 57 App. D.C. 282).

Construction of wills

Where will gave, devised, and bequeathed to wife of testator all her statutory rights in his realty and personalty wheresoever situated at time of his death, she was given such rights as she had in his property under controlling statutes immediately following his death testate, and she was not given intestate share in testator's property. J. B. Nicodemus et al. v. L. W. Bain (1965, 344 F. 2d 501, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Where will devised the residue consisting of personal property to heirs at law and next of kin in accordance with existing laws of that District, the surviving next of kin, who were first cousins, are entitled to take all the personality as against second cousins who would have been heirs had really been devised. Binford v. Diller (1950, 177 F. 2d 731, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Evidence

Evidence failed to establish that testator who executed will giving wife all her statutory rights in his realty and personality and giving entire residue of his estate to wife and his two children, share and share alike, actually intended to give widow merely value of rights she would have had by statute if he had died intestate, in addition to the one-third share of the residue. J. B. Nicodemus et al. v. L. W. Bain (1965, 344 F. 2d 501, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

To establish pedigree there must be some competent evidence of relationship between himself and declarants. Welch v. Lynch (1907, 30 App. D.C. 122).

Per stirpes or per capita

Where property descends to descendants of the maternal grandfather, the distribution is per stirpes of the grandfather and not per capita. McManus v. Lynch (1906, 28 App. D.C. 381).

§ 19-302. When surviving spouse entitled to whole

When the intestate leaves a surviving spouse and no child, parent, grandchild, brother, or sister, or the child of a brother or sister of the intestate, the surviving spouse is entitled to the whole. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Pheylan* (1952, 195 F. 2d 776, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 277).

§ 19-303. When surviving spouse entitled to one-third

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Equitable apportionment of estate taxes

Purpose of the marital deduction provision does not modify meaning of District of Columbia statute whereby dissenting widow can take one-third of surplus after debts, and hence the amount of property received by widow's election, and thus the amount eligible for marital deduction, was a portion of the surplus remaining after deducting entire amount of estate taxes, in view of District of Columbia rule rejecting doctrine of general equitable apportionment of estate taxes. R. H. DelMar et al. v. United States (1968, 390 F. 2d 466, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Congress adopted the marital deduction to provide opportunity for equalization of the tax treatment of estates in common law and community property states. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Causa mortis gifts

The United States Supreme Court has held in cases involving a gift causa mortis that title to the property passes at the time of delivery, subject to a condition subsequent that the grantor may revoke the transfer if he lives and that it cannot, therefore, be considered as property of which the grantor dies possessed. Wilkins v. Woodruff (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 59).

Decedent's earned income

Code subdivision, providing for compensation for period between discharge and reinstatement and that reinstated employee shall "for all purposes" be deemed to have rendered service during such period, must be read in its entirety with all of Code provisions for payment of compensation "due" deceased employee, and under the Code provisions, so read, widow, rather than estate, of deceased employee who had not designated beneficiary was entitled to amount paid in settlement of deceased employee's claim for back salary even though it had not yet been determined at time of death that he was entitled to reinstatement and back pay. Joyce v. Scott (1959, 265 F. 2d 369, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Life estate

Will construed to give wife life estate in realty during widowhood, consent of devisees necessary to sale. Evans v. Evans (1932, 55 F. 2d 533, 60 App. D.C. 371).

§ 19-304. When surviving spouse entitled to one-half

When the intestate leaves a surviving spouse and no child or descendant of the intestate, but a father or mother, or brother or sister, or child of a brother or sister, the surviving spouse is entitled to one-half. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW*Federal estate tax marital deduction

Where decedent died intestate survived by her husband, two grandnephews, and six nieces, and surviving husband was entitled to one-half of estate under District of Columbia law, and such one-half qualified for federal estate tax marital deduction, share of husband was not to bear any part of federal estate tax. In the Matter of the Estate of F. W. Collins (1967, 269 F. Supp. 633).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*War-risk insurance

Distributees of war-risk insurance policy after death of the widow were to be determined as of the date of the death of the insured, under this section and § 385 of the Code (§ 18-713). Condon v. Mallan (1929, 30 F. 2d 995, 58 App. D.C. 371).

Where decedent's estate consisted of proceeds from war risk insurance policy and decedent was resident of District of Columbia at the date of death, the law of the District is controlling. Id.

Widow's preference

Under District of Columbia law, a widow has a statutory preference to letters of administration, but this preference is subject to court's discretion. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Where District Court revoked letters of administration granted to decedent's sister, and it appeared that decedent's widow had a claim against major portion of estate, had been long separated from decedent and had delayed a year after death before seeking to be appointed administratrix, district court should have considered an alternative to appointment of widow as administratrix. Id.

Wrongful death

Under the Wrongful Death Act, § 3, the proceeds of the recovery are required to be distributed among the next of kin, which includes both the widow and father, where the decedent leaves no surviving child. Doleman v. Levine (1935, 55 S. Ct. 741, 295 U.S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402).

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-705 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 377, 31 Stat. 1250; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 563).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Wrongful death

Under the Wrongful Death Act, § 3, the proceeds of the recovery are required to be distributed among the next of kin, which includes both the widow and father, where the decedent leaves no surviving child. Doleman v. Levine (1935, 55 S. Ct. 741, 295 U.S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402).

§ 19-306. Children to share equally

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-706 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 378, 31 Stat. 1250).

A minor change in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW*Illegitimate children

District of Columbia intestate succession statute (§ 19-316), whereby illegitimate children may inherit from their mother only, does not discriminate against illegitimate children in violation of due process. E. L. Watts et al. v. J. G. Veneman et al. (1971, 334 F. Supp. 482).

Stepchild's right of inheritance

Under District of Columbia statute abolishing common-law distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood, a stepchild may inherit from a stepparent who dies intestate. In re Estate of W. F. Humphrey (D.C.D.C. 1966, 254 F. Supp. 33; reversed 384 F. 2d 987, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

The statute abolishing common-law distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood is not restricted to particular types of situations, but governs whenever there arises a problem of reciprocal rights as between persons of the whole and half blood; wherever such a situation is confronted irrespective of its form, no distinction may be made. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Indebtedness to children

When mother dies indebted to children and bequeaths to them a portion of her own estate which is more than the indebtedness, such bequest is not in satisfaction for they would inherit the entire estate if no will had been made. Patten v. Glover (1893, 1 App. D.C. 466, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 411, 165 U.S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760).

When mother borrowed money on real estate and gave it to son to establish him in business, taking no security therefor but under agreement that it would be deducted from his share of estate, such advancement operates as an ademption of a legacy. Miller v. Payne (1906, 28 App. D.C. 396).

§ 19-307. Grandchildren's share

(a) Subject to subsection (b) of this section, and to section 19-319, when the intestate leaves a child and a child of a deceased child, the child of the deceased child takes such share as his deceased parent would, if living, be entitled to, and every other descendant in existence at the death of the intestate stands in the place of his deceased ancestor.

(b) Those in equal degree claiming in the place of an ancestor take equal shares. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on that part of section 18-707 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which related to the shares of grandchildren generally. The provisions of section 18-707 which related to advancements are carried into section 19-319 herein.

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-712 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 384, 31 Stat. 1250; Mar. 6, 1935, ch. 28, § 2, 49 Stat. 39).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

In general

The widow on the death of her husband was a distributee of one-half of his personal estate. Owing to her being the beneficiary, this portion could not be ascertained until her death. Her estate then became entitled to her share, and her next of kin, her daughter, inherited her estate. Condon v. Mallan (1929, 30 F. 2d 995, 58 App. D.C. 371).

§ 19-313. Death of distributee before distribution

When a person entitled to distribution dies before the distribution is made, his share goes to his estate or legal representatives. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-713 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 385, 31 Stat. 1250).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-314. Share of posthumous children

A right in the inheritance to real or personal property does not accrue to or vest in a person other than the children of the intestate and their descendants, unless the person is in being and capable in law to take as heir or distributee at the time of the intestate's death; but a child or descendant of the intestate born after the death of the intestate has the same right of inheritance as if born before his death. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-714 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 386, 31 Stat. 1250; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 9(a), 71 Stat. 562).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*In general

"A child en ventre sa mere is deemed to be in esse for the purpose of taking a remainder, or any other estate or interest which is for his benefit, whether by descent, by devise, or under the statute of distribution." Craig v. Rowland (1897, 10 App. D.C. 402).

§ 19-315. No distinction between whole- and half-blood

There is no distinction between the kindred of the whole- and the half-blood. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-715 (June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 530; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 9(b), 71 Stat. 562).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Generally

Under District of Columbia statute abolishing common-law distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood, a stepchild may inherit from a stepparent who dies intestate. In re Estate of W. F. Humphrey (D.C.D.C. 1966, 254 F. Supp. 33; reversed 384 F. 2d 987, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

The statute abolishing common-law distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood is not restricted to particular types of situations, but governs whenever there arises a problem of reciprocal rights as between persons of the whole and half blood; wherever such a situation is confronted irrespective of its form, no distinction may be made. Id.

The illegitimate children of a female and the issue of illegitimate children of a female are capable to take real and personal estate by inheritance from their mother, or from each other, or from the descendants of each other, as the case may be, in like manner as if born in lawful wedlock.

When an illegitimate child of a female dies leaving no descendants, or brothers or sisters, or descendants of brothers or sisters, the mother of the illegitimate child is entitled to the real and personal estate of the illegitimate child, and if the mother is dead, the heirs or distributees of the mother share in like manner as if the illegitimate child had been born in lawful wedlock. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-716 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 387, 31 Stat. 1250; Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85-244, § 9(c), 71 Stat. 562).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Antenuptial children, see § 19-318.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW*Constitutionality

This section, whereby illegitimate children may inherit from their mother only, does not discriminate against illegitimate children in violation of due process. E. L. Watts et al. v. J. G. Veneman et al. (1971, 334 F. Supp. 482).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Construction

A decision of the Maryland court, though not binding in this jurisdiction, should be given great weight in interpreting a statute of the District of Columbia which was presumably derived from the same source as the Maryland statute. Wilson v. Charlent (D.C.D.C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 690).

Construction of terms

"The mother of illegitimate children may be their next of kin, and illegitimate children of any female are next of kin to each other," and the phrase "next of kin" in section 1301 of the Code (§ 16-1201) is used in the same sense. Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (1910, 35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Legislative intent

"It was evidently the intent of Congress in enacting this statute to remove the common-law disability of inheritance through the maternal line, and to that extent places illegitimates upon the same basis as legitimates. This amounted to a declaration of public policy." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (1910, 35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Congress intended that an illegitimate child, insofar as inheritance is concerned, is to be considered in all respects at the child of its mother. It would be highly artificial to draw a distinction between property of which the mother was seized and possessed at the time of her death and the property of which she should have become seized and possessed had she lived. Wilson v. Charlent (D.C.D.C. 1949, 81 Supp. 690).

Proceeds of insurance policy

Where claim under Federal Employee's Group Life Insurance Act arose in District of Columbia, wherein, with regard to descent of personality, illegitimate children are on equal standing with those born in lawful wedlock insofar as mother's estate is concerned, illegitimate children of insured were entitled to share proportionately with her legitimate children in proceeds of policy. Brantley and Mathis v. Skeens, Guardian ad litem (1959, 266 F. 2d 447, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

§ 19-317. Trust estates

When a trustee is seized of the naked legal estate in real estate in fee simple, and dies intestate thereof, the legal estate descends according to section 19-301 to the persons who would inherit the beneficial estate if it were vested in them. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-102 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 952, 31 Stat. 1343).

Reference to "real estate" is substituted for "lands, tenements, or hereditaments", to conform with more modern usage.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-318. Antenuptial children

When a man has a child by a woman whom he afterwards marries, the child, if acknowledged by the man, is, in virtue of the marriage and acknowledgment, legitimated and capable in law of inheriting and transmitting heritable property as if born in wedlock. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-106 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 957, 31 Stat. 1344).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Children born out of wedlock

Child born out of wedlock are legitimated under this section. Thomas v. Murphy (1940, 107 F. 2d 268, 71 App. D.C. 69).

There was no evidence introduced before the court that the father had married either of the women and acknowledged the children as his own, both of which acts, marriage and acknowledgment, are necessary to legitimize children in this jurisdiction under the Code. Blethyn v. Bidder (D.C.D.C. 1949, 80 F. Supp. 962).

§ 19-319. Advancements

(a) If a child or descendant has been advanced by the intestate during the intestate's lifetime, by settlement or portion, real estate or personal estate, the value thereof is reckoned for the purposes of descent and distribution as part of the estate of the intestate descendible and to be divided among his heirs or distributed to his distributees. Where the advancement is equal to or greater than a share, the child or descendant is excluded from any further share in the estate of the intestate and is not liable to refund any part of the amount so advanced; but the surviving spouse has no advantage by bringing the advancement into reckoning. Where the advancement is less than a share, the child or descendant receives so much, only, of the personal estate, and inherits so much, only, of the real estate, of the intestate, as is sufficient to make all the shares of all the children in the whole property, including the advancement, equal. The value of real or personal estate so advanced shall be estimated according to the worth thereof when given. Maintenance or education of a child or descendant, or giving him money or real estate, without a view to a portion or settlement in life, is not an advancement.

(b) Where an advancement to be adjusted, as provided by subsection (a) of this section, consisted of real estate, the adjustment shall be made out of the real estate descendible to the heirs. Where the advancement was in personal estate, the adjustment shall be made out of the surplus of the personal estate to be distributed to the distributees. Where either species of estate is insufficient to enable the adjustment to be fully made, the deficiency shall be adjusted out of the other. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section consolidates section 18-108 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., relating to advancements of real estate, and that part of section 18-707 of the Code relating to advancements of personal estate. Since, in cases of intestacy, real estate and surplus personal estate now go to the same people (see section 19-301 herein), there is no longer any reason for making a distinction between them by having separate sections on advancements. The remainder of section 18-707 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is carried into section 19-307 herein.

While the provisions, as consolidated, are considerably rephrased and modernized, it is not considered that, as so revised in the light of the present state of the law, they effect any important substantive change. For one thing, the provisions of section 18-108 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., giving an election to children of an intestate, or their issue, who have received an advancement of real estate, to come into partition with the intestate's other heirs, on bringing the advancement, or the value thereof at the time the advancement was received, into hotchpot with the estate descended, is omitted. The statement in 4 Kent's Commentaries, 14th Ed., p. 420, that "I do not find this privilege of election conceded by the laws of the other states [that is, by the laws of states other than the few states mentioned], to the child who has been advanced; and there is nothing which would appear to render the privilege of any consequence" seems to the revisers to be just as cogent today. Further, the right of election in respect of advancements of personal estate was not conferred by section 18-707 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and, since, as above stated, real estate and surplus personal estate of an intestate are now taken by the same people and, with respect to children, are taken in the same proportions, it would seem that the provisions for equalizing and adjusting advancements of both types of estates should be uniform.

The language of the provisions, as revised in this section, is suggested, not only by the two sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this section is based, but also, in part, by provisions in McKinney's N.Y. Decedent Estate Law §§ 85, 86. See, also, Vermont Statutes Annotated, Title 14, §§ 1723-1725. This section requires that any advancement, whether of real estate or of personal estate, be figuratively brought into hotchpot for the purpose of equalization and adjustment, but, as heretofore provided, the person who received the advancement is not required to refund any part of the amount or value of the advancement, if it equals or is greater than an intestate share; and, in such a case, he would be excluded from any further share in the estate. And if the amount or value of the advancement is less than a share, there is to be an equalization and adjustment in the manner provided by the section.

The reference to the widow in section 18-707 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is, in subsection (a) of this section, changed to "surviving spouse", to conform with other provisions which had been amended prior to their being carried into this revised Part (see Act Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 563, and the preceding sections in this chapter), and with the change in the course of descents provided by the laws carried into section 19-301 herein.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 19-307.

§ 19-320. Felonious homicide as barring inheritance; insurance policies; bona fide purchasers

(a) A person convicted of felonious homicide of another person, by way of murder or manslaughter, takes no estate or interest in property of any kind from that other person by way of:

(1) inheritance, distribution, devise, or bequest;
or

(2) remainder, reversion, or executory devise dependent upon the death of the other person.

The estate, interest, or property to which the person so convicted would have succeeded or would have taken in any way from or after the death of the decedent goes, instead, as if the person so convicted had died before the decedent.

(b) Policies of insurance directly or indirectly procured by a person convicted as specified by subsection (a) of this section, for his own benefit or payable to him upon the life of the person killed by him, are void.

(c) This section does not affect the rights of bona fide purchasers of property specified by subsection (a) of this section, for value and without notice. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 700, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-109 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 961, 31 Stat. 1344).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-321. Descent through alien ancestor no bar

In making title by descent it is no bar to a party claiming as heir that an ancestor, whether living or dead, through whom he derives his descent from the intestate, is or has been an alien. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 700, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

REVISION NOTES

This chapter continues the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act adopted in the District of Columbia by act March 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, 72 Stat. 67. The Uniform Act was promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1940.

§ 19-501. No sufficient evidence of survivorship

Where the title to property or the devolution thereof depends upon priority of death and there is not sufficient evidence that the persons have died otherwise than simultaneously, the property of each person shall be disposed of as if he had survived, except as provided otherwise by this chapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 700, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-902 (Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 2, 72 Stat. 67).

The source of the provisions is section 1 of the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act. See revision note preceding this section.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-502. Survival of beneficiaries

Where property is so disposed of that the right of a beneficiary to succeed to any interest therein is conditional upon his surviving another person, and both persons die, and there is not sufficient evidence that the two have died otherwise than simultaneously, the beneficiary is deemed not to have survived. Where there is not sufficient evidence that two or more beneficiaries have died otherwise than simultaneously and property has been disposed of in such a way that at the time of their death each would have been entitled to the property if he had survived the others, the property shall be divided into as many equal portions as there were beneficiaries and these portions shall be distributed respectively to those who would have taken in the event that each of the beneficiaries had survived. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 700, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-903 (Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 3, 72 Stat. 67).

The source of the provisions is section 2 of the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act. See revision note preceding section 19-501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-503. Joint tenants or tenants by the entirety

Where there is not sufficient evidence that two joint tenants or tenants by the entirety have died otherwise than simultaneously the property so held shall be distributed, or descend as the case may be, one-half as if one had survived and one-half as if the other had survived. Where there are more than two joint tenants and all have so died the property thus distributed or descended shall be in the proportion that one bears to the whole number of joint tenants.

The term "joint tenants" includes owners of property held under circumstances which entitled one or more to the whole of the property on the death of the others. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 19-504. Insurance policies

When the insured and the beneficiary in a policy of life or accident insurance have died and there is not sufficient evidence that they have died otherwise than simultaneously, the proceeds of the policy shall be distributed as if the insured had survived the beneficiary. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-905 (Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 5, 72 Stat. 673).

Section 4 of the Uniform Act, relating to community property, was not adopted by the Act of March 28, 1958, cited above, nor is it adopted in this revision. It has no relevancy in the District of Columbia.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Federal estate taxes

Where further premiums remained to be paid on policies owned by wife on life of her husband, and wife was the primary beneficiary thereunder and husband and wife died simultaneously, and pursuant to presumption under this section that insured survived the beneficiary the proceeds were paid to secondary beneficiaries, policies should have been included in wife's estate for federal estate tax purposes at their interpolated terminal reserve values and not at the aggregate proceeds payable under the policies. Estate of N. Meltzer et al. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue (1971, 439 F.2d 798).

This chapter does not apply in the case of wills, living trusts, deeds, or contracts of insurance, or any other situation where provision is made for distribution of property different from the provisions of this chapter, or where provision is made for a presumption as to survivorship which results in a distribution of property different from that here provided. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-906 (Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 6, 72 Stat. 67).

§ 19-506. Short title; effective date; chapter not retroactive; construction

(a) This chapter may be cited as the "District of Columbia Uniform Simultaneous Death Act". It is in effect in the District of Columbia as of March 28, 1958, and it does not apply to the distribution of property of a person who died before that date.

(b) Where there is a conflict or inconsistency between a provision of this chapter and other provisions of this Part or other law, the provision of this chapter controls. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 18-901, 18-907, 18-909 (Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 1, 7, 10, 72 Stat. 67, 68), and on Act Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, § 9, 72 Stat. 68 (classified as a note under D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-901).

Section consolidates sections 18-901, 18-907, 18-909 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with section 9 of Act Mar. 28, 1958, Pub. L. 85-356, 72 Stat. 68, which was classified as a note under such section 18-901.

The first sentence of subsec. (a) is from section 9 of the 1958 Act. The source of this sentence is section 8 of the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act.

The first clause of the second sentence of subsec. (a) (through "March 28, 1958,") is based, with changes in phraseology, on section 18-901 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., from which the phrase "providing for the disposition of property where there is no sufficient evidence that persons have died otherwise than simultaneously and to make uniform the law with reference thereto," is omitted as surplusage, considering the rearrangement of the provisions in this chapter to follow more closely the order of the provisions in the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act. The first clause of the second sentence of subsec. (a), as retained (through "March 28, 1958,") has as its source section 11 of the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act. The phrase omitted was not contained in that section.

The second clause of the second sentence of subsec. (a) is based on section 18-907 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. There is no corresponding provision in the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act as last amended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in August, 1953, although, prior to that time, there was a section 5 of that Act containing provisions corresponding with this clause.

Section 18-909 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., in connection with the provisions carried into this chapter, repealed all laws inconsistent therewith. This provision is omitted as executed, or obsolete in any event, as the bill to enact this revised Part repeals specifically all prior laws, as such, the provisions of which have been carried into this revised Part. However, subsec. (b) of this section provides that this chapter controls, if there is any conflict or inconsistency with other laws.

Section 18-910 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which related to separability of provisions with respect to chapter 9 of Title 18 of the Code (in which the simultaneous death provisions, as enacted by the Act of March 28, 1958, cited above, were set out), is omitted as inappropriate in a code of general and permanent law. A separate section in the bill to enact this revised Part provides for separability of provisions with respect to the entire Part.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Descent and distribution

On the basis of the majority rule in the District, testator's attempt to disinherit his caveator brothers and their heirs was ineffective, since he made no gift over of the forfeited estate. J. C. Wilkes, Trustee etc. v. E. L. Freer et al. (1967, 271 F. Supp. 602).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Conversion of property

Where, in 1879, one died without known heirs or next of kin and a sum of money was found on his person which the authorities turned over to the policemen's pension fund, an administrator appointed in 1886 could recover such fund in tort for conversion since there was no authority in law for turning the money over to the pension fund. Tucker v. Nebeker (1894, 2 App. D.C. 326).

Power of court

The probate court, upon a finding that there are no heirs of deceased intestate, has power to decree distribution to District of Columbia as escheatee. Frazier v. Kutz (1944, 139 F. 2d 380, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

The probate court's jurisdiction to hear, determine and decree upon all claims between executors and administrators and legatees or persons entitled to a distributive share of an intestate estate includes duty of finding that there are or that there are not statutory heirs, and upon the finding to make distribution as this section requires. Id.

The probate court has power, in absence of next of kin, to order in a proper case the payment of residuum of intestate's estate to an escheatee, as this section provides. Id.

Presumptions

There is a presumption that an intestate left heirs and the presumption obtains until claimant by escheat overcomes it by strong and convincing evidence. Frazier v. Kutz (1944, 139 F. 2d 380, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Remand for further proof

Where creditor filed petition for administration of deceased's estate stating that after diligent search, creditor was satisfied that deceased died intestate and without surviving relation, and District of Columbia relied upon allegations of creditor's petition, pleadings and evidence were insufficient to authorize probate court to determine whether the District was entitled to distribution under this section, and case was remanded for determination of question whether intestate died without heirs. Frazier v. Kutz (1944, 139 F. 2d 380, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Remoteness of relationship

A bequest to each one of testatrix's cousins living at the time of testatrix's death, irrespective of the remoteness of relationship, and of whether his or her parent cousin should be living, was not intended to incorporate this section, which provides that intestate property shall pass to the District, when there are no relations within the fifth degree. Dalton v. White (1942, 129 F. 2d 55, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Soldiers' Home inmates

Inmate of United States Soldiers' Home in District of Columbia, retired from regular army, and a resident of District of Columbia, who died without legal heirs or next of kin, was a "soldier" within statute providing for funds for support of the Soldiers' Home, and United States rather than District of Columbia was entitled to escheat of his moneys. District of Columbia v. Wolverton (1961, 298 F. 2d 684, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 23).

Time when title vests

If on death of an intestate there were no kin within classes named in this section, property after payment of debts eo instante vested in and became property of the District of Columbia as statutory escheatee. Frazier v. Kutz (1944, 139 F. 2d 380, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Veterans Administration payments

Estate of decedent derived from payments made by Veterans Administration for benefit of decedent, who was not survived by next of kin, and whose last legal residence was in the District of Columbia escheated, under express terms of statute, to the Government and not to the District of Columbia. In re Germanovich's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1954, 122 F. Supp. 169).

SUBCHAPTER I.—EXECUTORS

§ 20-301. Letters testamentary; oath; corporations

(a) When a will or codicil respecting real or personal property has been authenticated and admitted to probate, letters testamentary on the will or codicil shall be issued to the executor named therein, if he:

(1) is legally competent and will accept the trust;

(2) executes the bond required by section 20-302; and

(3) takes, subscribes, and files an oath that he will administer the estate of the deceased according to law and will give a just account of his administration when lawfully called to account.

(b) The conditions of this section as to bond and oath do not apply to corporations authorized under the District of Columbia laws to act as executors. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Refusal of letters to nominated executors

Probate court may refuse letters testamentary to nominated executors only when they are expressly disqualified by statute. H. M. Berryman et al. v. The Riggs National Bank, etc. (1968, 401 F. 2d 993, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

Compliance with statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor is what is contemplated by the terms "legally competent" as used in statute requiring issuance of letters testamentary to executor named in will if he is legally competent. Id.

Testator's choice

Testator's choice should be granted letters testamentary unless he is disqualified under statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor or administrator. H. M. Berryman et al. v. The Riggs National Bank, etc. (1968, 401 F. 2d 993, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 42)

Ancillary letters

Where testatrix, who was domiciled in Michigan and whose estate and beneficiaries were largely in Michigan but who had intangible property in District of Columbia, named resident of District of Columbia, as sole executor, but Michigan court appointed Michigan resident as administrator with will annexed, because Michigan law forbids appointment of a nonresident executor, it was within discretion of District of Columbia court to appoint the Michigan executor as ancillary administrator. Purcell v. Cramton (1944, 143 F. 2d 22, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

The requirement of this section that when any will shall have been authenticated and admitted to probate letters testamentary thereon shall be issued to the executor named therein, if he is legally competent and will accept the trust, does not apply to ancillary letters. Id.

Liability of executor

An executor executing a general bond is responsible for payment of debts and claims to extent of assets collected only, and cannot be sued on general bond until determination is made of the extent to which creditors can be paid from assets. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

§ 20-302. Bond of executor

Before letters testamentary are issued to an executor, other than a local corporation authorized by the laws of the District of Columbia to act as an executor, named in a will or codicil, he shall execute a bond, with security to be approved by the court, in such penalty as the court requires, with a condition that he will administer according to law and to the will of the testator all his goods, chattels, rights, credits, and the proceeds of all his real estate that may be sold for the payment of his debts or legacies, which, at any time, come to his possession or to the possession of another person for him, and in all other respects faithfully perform the trusts reposed in him. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(1), 84 Stat. 566.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

REVISION NOTES

Section is derived from part of section 20-301 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 20-301, relating to issuance of letters testamentary, and oath, are carried into section 20-301 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20-301, 20-304.

§ 20-303. Bonds for debts only; removal of executor for waste

(a) Where a testator, by last will and testament, requests that his executor be not required to give bond for the performance of his duty, the bond required of the executor shall be in such penalty as the court considers sufficient to secure the payment of the debts due by the testator, of not more than double the value of the personal estate. Where the bond is less than this sum the court may increase it to require an additional bond if the court deems the bond as given to be insufficient to secure the payment of the debts of the testator.

(b) If a party interested makes it appear to the court that an executor who has given a bond only as is provided for by this section is wasting the assets of the estate, or that the assets are in danger of being lost, wasted, or misappropriated, the court may remove the executor or require him to give additional bond with security in a penalty sufficient to secure the interests of all the creditors, distributees, and legatees entitled to take the estate. On his failure to give bond as required, his letters may be revoked and he shall deliver forthwith to the substituted executor all the assets of his testator in his possession or under his control. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Avoidance of deed

If deed was procured by undue influence and deceased grantor left a valid will, her executor had right to avoid the deed. Kashouty v. Deep (1942, 126 F. 2d 233, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

§ 20-304. Special bond of executor

(a) When the executor is the residuary legatee of the personal estate of the testator, or if the residuary legatee of full age notifies his consent to the court, he may, instead of the bond prescribed by section 20-302 or 20-303, give bond with security approved by the court, in a penalty prescribed by the court, conditioned to pay all the debts and just claims against the testator, all damages which may be recovered against him as executor, and all legacies bequeathed by the will. In this case, he may not be required to file an inventory or render an account.

(b) If the executor gives a special bond as provided by this section, he is personally answerable for the full amount of all debts, claims, and damages that may be recovered against him as executor as if he were sued in his own right, and a legatee may recover the full amount of his legacy in a suit on the executor's bond, and the giving of the bond shall be considered an assent to the legacy. The sureties on the bond are not liable for a greater amount than the penalty thereof. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

With respect to recovery by a legatee by suit on the bond, the words "or in equity" are omitted, as there is only one form of action in the District Court, which is known as a "civil action". See Rule 2 of the Federal Court of Civil Procedure. See, also, Rule 2 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

In the first sentence of subsec. (b), "personally answerable" is substituted for "answerable", for the purpose of clarification. See section 20-333 herein, relating to special bond of administrators.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20-333, 20-353, 20-701, 20-702.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Actions on bonds

This section does not prevent recovery on special bond until debt or claim sued upon has been recovered in a separate action brought against executor. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

Executor's special undertaking

Although executrix in giving a special undertaking rendered herself personally liable for all debts and just claims against testator, special bond given by executrix did not guarantee claimant's right to recover on claim rejected by executrix and claimants were required to sue within statutory period. McNeill and Fuller v. Selby (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 160).

Liability of executor

A special bond given by an executor who is also residuary legatee operates as an admission that there are sufficient assets in the estate to pay all debts and forecloses that question, and executor assumes thereby responsibility of payment of debts to the full extent of his personal estate. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

§ 20-305. Joint or separate bonds of co-executors

Where two or more persons are appointed executors, the court may take a separate bond with security from each of them or a joint bond with security from all of them together. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 20-306. Failure to qualify; letters of administration with the will annexed

Where the sole executor named in the will was present at the probate of the will, and does not, within 20 days thereafter, file a bond as required by this subchapter, and qualify as executor by taking the oath required by section 20-301, letters of administration with the will annexed may be granted as if an executor had not been named. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-305 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 266, 31 Stat. 1233).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-307. Absent executor; summons; notice

Where the sole executor named in the will was not present at the probate of the will, but is within the District, a summons may be issued to him, either at the instance of a person interested or ex officio by the Register of Wills, requiring him to appear and file his bond as required by law within 5 days after service of the summons. If he is not found in the District of Columbia, notice shall be given to him by publication to appear within 10 days after publication of notice, and on his failure to appear and give his bond and qualify by taking the prescribed oath, letters of administration with the will annexed may be granted as if an executor had not been named. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-306 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 267, 31 Stat. 1233; June 24, 1949, ch. 242, § 2, 63 Stat. 268).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-308. Summons to each of several executors

Where there is more than one executor named in a will, there may be the same proceeding with respect to each of them as if he were the sole executor, and any circumstances under which letters of administration with the will annexed may be granted on failure of a sole-named executor authorize the granting of letters testamentary to one or more of the executors on failure of one or more of the others. Any circumstances under which letters of administration with the will annexed may be granted on failure of a sole-named executor authorize the granting of the letters of administration on failure of all the executors named to appear and qualify as provided by this subchapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-309. Renunciation

If an executor named in a will files or transmits to the Probate Court an attested renunciation of his executorship, there shall be the same proceeding with respect to granting letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed as if the party so renouncing had not been named in the will. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 20-310. Disqualification of executor

Where a person named as executor is disqualified from serving, letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed may be granted as if he had not been named as executor. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-311. No power to act without letters

Where letters testamentary are granted to one or more of the executors named in a will on failure of the rest, an executor not named in the letters may not, in any manner, interfere with the administration. Where letters of administration with the will annexed are granted, an executor named in the will may not, in any manner, interfere with the administration. An executor named in a will may not, before letters testamentary are granted to him, dispose of any part of the estate of the deceased or interfere therewith, further than is necessary to collect and preserve it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 20-312. Forms of letters testamentary

The following is the form of letters testamentary to be issued under the seal of the Probate Court:

The only other change is the capitalization of "register of wills".

Generally

Coverage afforded decedent by automobile liability policy pursuant to automobile rental agreement made by decedent in District of Columbia while decedent was not ordinary transient in relationship with the District constituted "personal estate in District" within statute providing that on death of any person leaving personal estate in District, letters of administration on his estate may be granted. M. Milmo v. J. Toomey (1966, 356 F. 2d 793, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Contents of petition

Where petition of sister of deceased in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia properly asked for letters of administration and necessarily claimed that deceased died intestate because his holographic will was unwitnessed, the petition did not make two claims and had only one purpose, namely, the securing of administration, though it prayed that the holographic will be denied probate and record, and therefore appeal of sister from order denying motion for rehearing would not be dismissed, on ground that it offended Federal Rule of Civil Procedure, Rule 54(b), 28 U.S.C. App., providing that when more than one claim for relief is presented, court may direct entry of final judgment on one or more but less than all of the claims only on expressed determination that there is no just reason for delay and on express direction for entry of judgment. Shaffer v. Children's Hospital Society of Los Angeles, Calif. (1959, 285 F. 2d 107, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

Discretion of court

Under District of Columbia statutes relating to appointment of administrators of decedents' estates, a court has discretion to select an administrator from outside the immediately preferred class, provided there is a sound reason to depart from the scheme of statutory preferences, but a next of kin who is not barred by a specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters of administration has a mandatory preference over a creditor or a person not in any preferred classification. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Eligibility

Consul of Greece in the city of Washington entitled to sole administration of estate of deceased national. Diamantopoulos v. Glekas (1926, 11 F. 2d 200, 56 App. D.C. 151).

Appointment of administrator in Virginia does not imply a finding of domicile in Virginia. In re Grinnage's Estate (1939, 101 F. 2d 695, 69 App. D.C. 370).

Appointment of administrator in Virginia does not prevent granting of letters of administration of personality in the District by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia. Id.

Jurisdiction

District Court sitting in probate had jurisdiction to appoint ancillary administrator by reason of asset which consisted solely of protection afforded by automobile liability policy in District of Columbia to decedent who was no transient with relation to the District when entering into automobile rental contract giving rise to the policy rights. M. Milmo v. J. Toomey (1966, 356 F. 2d 793, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

That District Court allegedly should decline jurisdiction over tort action against decedent's estate from forum non conveniens considerations did not demonstrate lack of jurisdiction to appoint ancillary administrator so that suit might be brought against him for damages arising out of Pennsylvania collision killing decedent and certain occupants of a vehicle other than that decedent rented in District of Columbia. Id.

Largest creditor

The District of Columbia statute providing that administration may be granted on application of largest creditor in absence of application for administration by one entitled to apply therefor and statute providing for service of process on nonresident motorist involved in automobile accident in District of Columbia permitted motorist who had cause of action against estate of deceased nonresident motorist for injuries sustained in collision in District to have administrator appointed for decedent, where cause of action, if established, would give motorist right to proceed against decedent's insurer, notwithstanding that decedent's widow was named as executrix in decedent's will and that she had declined or failed to come into District of Columbia and that petition for administration recited that decedent was resident of District of Columbia. G. J. O'Sullivan v. A. G. Hicks (1963, 313 F. 2d 900, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

Property

A claim against the United States does not furnish the foundation for a local administration when the decedent was domiciled in another jurisdiction at the time of his death. In re Coit's Estate (1894, 3 App. D.C. 246).

A government check in the possession of the treasurer of the United States, payable to a particular person, is for jurisdictional purposes personal property in the District of Columbia. In re Grinnage's Estate (1939, 101 F. 2d 695, 69 App. D.C. 370).

Removal of administrator

Unless power of probate court to remove an administratrix for a particular cause can be found in this chapter or by necessary inference therefrom, it does not exist. Perkins v. Berger (1945, 145 F. 2d 856, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 286).

The fact that administratrix asserted a stale claim against deceased's estate did not authorize removal of administratrix. Id.

§ 20-332. Oath and bond of administrator

(a) Before an administrator, other than a local corporation authorized by the laws of the District of Columbia to act as administrator, enters upon his duties, he shall:

(1) take and subscribe an oath similar to that prescribed for executors; and

(2) file in the Probate Court his bond, with security approved by the court, in such penalty as the court requires, with condition to administer according to law all the money, goods, chattels, rights, and credits of the deceased, and in all other respects perform the trust reposed in him.

(b) If the court orders the sale of the decedent's real estate, the administrator, other than a local corporation authorized by the laws of the District of Columbia to act as administrator, shall give a like bond conditioned to administer the proceeds from the real estate that may be sold for the payment of the decedent's debts which come into his possession or to the possession of another person for him. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(1), 84 Stat. 566.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended subsection (a)(2) by striking out "to the United States".

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-202 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 274, 31 Stat. 1234).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Consular officer

A bond is required where Greek consul is appointed administrator of estate of deceased national. Diamantopoulos v. Glekas (1926, 11 F. 2d 200, 56 App. D.C. 151).

CROSS REFERENCE

Bonds required of trust companies, see §§ 26-333, 26-334.

(a) Where the person appointed as administrator is entitled to the residue of the estate after the payment of the debts, he may, instead of the bond prescribed by section 20-332, execute a bond, with security approved by the court, in such penalty as the court considers sufficient, conditioned for the payment of all debts and claims against the deceased, and all damages which may be recovered against him as administrator; and if the administrator files the written consent of those entitled to the residue and they are all of full age, the court may direct that only the special bond provided by this section be given. In this case, the administrator is not required to return inventory or account.

(b) When the administrator gives a special bond as provided by this section, he is personally answerable for all debts, claims, and damages which may be recovered against him, in like manner as the executor who gives a similar bond as provided by section 20-304. The sureties on the bond are not liable for a greater amount than the penalty thereof. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

This section is referred to in sections 20-353, 20-701, 20-702.

In general

Where ordinarily dispute involved in action by widow against administrator to recover her distributive share of estate would be within jurisdiction of federal District Court for the District of Columbia sitting as a Court of Probate, but action was brought in Municipal Court of the District of Columbia because administrator had given a special bond, which relieved him from accounting and made personally answerable for debts and claims against estate, and it was determined that widow was entitled to prevail, administrator was not entitled to allowance of attorneys' fees. Ashton v. Ashton (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A.2d 459).

§ 20-334. Persons entitled to administer; order of preference

(a) The Probate Court may grant letters of administration of the estate of a person dying intestate to one or more of the following persons, according to the order of preference indicated:

(1) where there is a surviving spouse and a child or children, to the surviving spouse or to the child, or one or more of the children qualified to act as administrator;

(2) where there is a surviving spouse and no child, the surviving spouse shall be preferred, and, next to the surviving spouse, a grandchild shall be preferred;

(3) where there is no surviving spouse, or child, or grandchild to act, the father or mother shall be preferred;

(4) where there is no surviving spouse, or child, or grandchild, or father, or mother to act, brothers and sisters shall be preferred; and, when there is no brother or sister, the next of kin shall be preferred;

(5) relations of the whole blood shall be preferred to those of the half-blood in equal degree; and relations of the half-blood shall be preferred to those of the whole blood in a remoter degree;

(6) relations descending shall be preferred to relations ascending, in the collateral line; for example, a nephew shall be preferred to an uncle;

(7) a person may not be preferred in the ascending line beyond a father or mother, or in the descending line below a grandchild.

(b) Where a person described in subsection (a) of this section is incompetent to serve, administration shall be granted as if he or she were not living.

(c) Where there are no relations of the intestate, or those entitled to letters of administration decline to appear and apply for them, after proper summons or notice, administration may be granted to the largest creditor applying therefor. When creditors neglect to apply, the court may exercise its discretion in granting administration. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, § 7, 85 Stat. 314.)

AMENDMENT

1971—Section 7 of Act Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, amended section—

(1) by striking out in clause (3) of subsection (a) "the father shall be preferred; and, where there is no father, the mother shall be preferred", and inserting in lieu thereof "the father or mother shall be preferred"; and

(2) by deleting in such subsection (a), clauses numbered (5), (9), and (10), and redesignating clauses numbered (6), (7), and (8) as (5), (6), and (7) respectively.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 20-204 to 20-216 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 254 §§ 276-288, 31 Stat. 1234, 1235; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 561, 562).

Section consolidates sections 20-204 to 20-216, inclusive, of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with changes in phraseology and arrangement necessary to effect the consolidation.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 20-339.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appointment by other court

The validity of appellee's appointment as administratrix by the New Jersey court is not an essential condition to her appointment as administratrix ad litem. Welch v. Welch (1927, 19 F.2d 686, 57 App. D.C. 212).

Appointment of outsider

If there is next of kin, who is not barred under specific statutory disqualification, and who applies for letters, creditor or person not in any preferred classification may not be appointed administrator. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (D.C.D.C. 1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

Under this section providing that, if intestate leaves widow or child, administration shall be granted either to widow or child, appointment of complete outsider as administrator was not justified, even though widow had failed in earlier proceeding to establish documents proffered by her as decedent's will and was seeking to charge estate with expenses of that proceeding and relations between widow and decedent's child were strained. Brooks v. De Lacy etc. (1958, 257 F.2d 227, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 223).

Brother or mother

Appointment of decedent's brother as administrator de bonis non upon death of decedent's father and administrator, held properly within discretion of court on motion of divorced mother for removal. Haviland v. Harriss (1931, 50 F.2d 1069, 60 App. D.C. 255).

Caveat

Where testatrix by purported will left her entire estate to her son, and estate included no realty in District of Columbia, and son offered will for probate in District of Columbia, husband of testatrix lacked necessary interest in estate to file a caveat, even though husband might be appointed administrator if will should be set aside, since husband would take same share of estate whether will was or was not sustained. Kimberland v. Kimberland (1953, 204 F.2d 38, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Date of appointment

Where one has so conducted himself by management of a business and sale of assets belonging to a decedent that he becomes an executor de son tort, his subsequent appointment as administrator reflects back to the death of the decedent. Penn v. Whidden (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A.2d 136).

Discretion of court

Court may, for good reason, appoint administrator from among class of next of kin accorded lesser priority by statute. J. F. Gage et al. v. The Riggs Nat'l Bank of Washington, D.C., et al. (1964, 337 F.2d 105, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 69).

Where preferred classes contending for appointment as administrator were paternal first cousins and a maternal first cousin, appointment of bank, as outsider, with express approval of sole surviving representative of secondarily preferred class of maternal first cousins was not abuse of discretion, in view of fact that organization which was not party to proceeding held assignments of 40 percent of interests of each of paternal cousins and that if paternal first cousin was appointed, services which counsel would render for him in that capacity would be paid for by such organization. Id.

Where all next of kin were first cousins of deceased, and all male next of kin filed declinations, but only female next of kin applied for letters of administration, her application would be granted, and application of close friend and creditor of deceased for letters of administration would be denied. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (D.C.D.C. 1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

Fact that male next of kin of deceased filed declarations and consented to appointment of creditor of deceased as administratrix did not divest female next of kin of equal degree of statutory right to appointment as administratrix. Id.

Under District of Columbia statutes relating to appointment of administrator of decedents' estates, a court has discretion to select an administrator from outside the immediately preferred class, provided there is a sound reason to depart from the scheme of statutory preferences, but a next of kin who is not barred by specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters of administration has a mandatory preference over a creditor or a person not in any preferred classification. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Largest creditor

The District of Columbia statute providing that administration may be granted on application of largest creditor in absence of application for administration by one entitled to apply therefor and statute providing for service of process on nonresident motorist involved in automobile accident in District of Columbia permitted motorist who had cause of action against estate of deceased nonresident motorist for injuries sustained in collision in District to have administrator appointed for decedent, where cause of action, if established, would give motorist right to proceed against decedent's insurer, notwithstanding that decedent's widow was named as executrix in decedent's will and that she had declined or failed to come into District of Columbia and that petition for administration recited that decedent was resident of District of Columbia. G. J. O'Sullivan v. A. G. Hicks (1963, 313 F. 2d 900, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

Nonresident alien

Brother of deceased alien who was naturalized preferred to widow and parents who are nonresident aliens. Lely v. Kalinoglu (1935, 76 F. 2d 983, 64 App. D.C. 213, 100 A.L.R. 1523, certiorari denied 55 S. Ct. 925, 295 U.S. 765, 79 L. Ed. 1707).

Order of priority

Male paternal first cousins were preferred class over female maternal first cousins as to right to letters of administration. J. F. Gage et al. v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 715, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Values of substance inhere in right to letters of administration and those upon whom that right has been conferred by statute should not be deprived of it, except as statute has provided. Id.

In appropriate case and for sound reasons, discretion may be exercised to select an administrator from among lesser preferred classes of next of kin. Id.

Priority of next of kin

If there is a next of kin who is not barred under a specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters, a creditor or person not in any preferred classification may not be appointed. J. F. Gage et al. v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 715, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Where neither pleadings nor oral argument brought to court's attention question that appointment of an outsider as administrator turned upon issue of whether there has been a declination by cousins, appointment of bank as administrator would be remanded for further proceedings. Id.

Remand for further proof

Where creditor filed petition for administration of deceased's estate stating that after diligent search, creditor was satisfied that deceased died intestate and without surviving relation, and District of Columbia relied upon allegations of creditor's petition, pleadings and evidence were insufficient to authorize probate court to determine whether the District was entitled to distribution under escheat statute, § 18-717, and case was remanded for determination of question whether intestate died without heirs. Frazier v. Kutz (1944, 139 F. 2d 380, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Right to appointment

These statutory regulations imply a right to appointment upon the part of the described parties, in the absence of disqualification, and consequently after they are once regularly appointed and qualified they can not be removed without notice and a trial. Brosnan v. Brosnan (1923, 289 F. 547, 53 App. D.C. 149).

In the absence of competent relatives or creditors administration shall be granted at the discretion of the court. Diamantopoulos v. Glekas (1926, 11 F. 2d 200, 56 App. D.C. 151).

Statutory scheme

This section setting forth scheme as to who shall be appointed administrator, court may in its discretion depart from the statutory scheme where there is a sound reason to do so. Dial v. Johnson (1958, 259 F. 2d 189, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Validation of acts

Where one has so conducted himself by management of business and sale of assets belonging to a decedent that he becomes an executor de son tort, his subsequent appointment as administrator validates any previous acts which would have been valid if done after his appointment and his acts as executor de son tort, though void, are thereby made valid. Penn v. Whidden (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 136).

Widow's preference

Under District of Columbia law, a widow has a statutory preference to letters of administration, but this preference is subject to court's discretion. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Where District Court revoked letters of administration granted to decedent's sister, and it appeared that decedent's widow had a claim against major portion of estate, had been long separated from decedent and had delayed a year after death before seeking to be appointed administratrix, district court should have considered an alternative to appointment of widow as administratrix. Id.

§ 20-335. Notice of application

Upon an application for letters of administration, such notice thereof shall be given, by publication or otherwise, as the rules of the court require. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 20-336. Declining administration

If a person entitled to administration declines it in writing, the court shall proceed as if he or she were not entitled to it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-218 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 291, 31 Stat. 1235).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-337. Form of letters of administration

The following is the form of letters of administration to be issued under the seal of the Probate Court: District of Columbia:

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(2) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out in the form referred to therein "the Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "the Chief Judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 15-707.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-219 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 293, 31 Stat. 1235; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(a)(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

§ 20-338. Administrator with the will annexed; preference

Where a will admitted to probate does not appoint an executor, or the executor therein appointed has died or renounced the executorship, or is incompetent to serve, administration shall be granted with the will annexed to the person who would have been entitled to administration in case of the intestacy of the deceased testator. A residuary legatee named in the will, shall be, in an appointment under this section, preferred to all, except a surviving spouse. The condition of the bond of the administrator so appointed and the oath to be taken by him and his duties and liabilities are the same as if he had been appointed executor in the will and had received letters testamentary. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

The provision for preference to a widow is changed to provide for preference to a surviving spouse, to conform with the probable legislative intent, considering the Act of Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 561, which, with respect to preference in granting ordinary letters of administration, amended a number of other sections of the above-cited 1901 Act, referring to the widow, to add a reference to the surviving husband. Those provisions are carried into section 20-334 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-339. Administrator de bonis non; form of letters; duties

If an executor or administrator dies before the administration of an estate is completed, the court may exercise its discretion in granting letters of administration de bonis non or de bonis non cum testamento annexo, as the case requires, giving preference to the person who would be entitled in the order provided by section 20-334, if he applies for the letters. The form of the letters is the same as in the case of an original administration, except that it shall be confined to the property of the deceased not already administered. The authority shall be, under the court's direction, to administer all property herein described as assets and not distributed or delivered or retained by the executor or former administrators. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-105 (Mar. 3 1901, ch. 854, § 299, 31 Stat. 1237).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appointment of brother or mother

Where decedent's father was also his administrator, the appointment, at father's death, of brother as administrator, to exclusion of divorced mother, was proper. Haviland v. Harriss (1931, 50 F. 2d 1069, 60 App. D.C. 255).

Discretion of court

Under District of Columbia statutes relating to appointment of administrators of decedents' estates, a court has discretion to select an administrator from outside the immediately preferred class, provided there is a sound reason to depart from the scheme of statutory preferences, but a next of kin who is not barred by specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters of administration has a mandatory preference over a creditor or a person not in any preferred classification. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

SUBCHAPTER III.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RELATING TO EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

§ 20-351. Competency to serve as executor or administrator; determination

(a) Letters testamentary or of administration may not be granted to a person who:

- (1) has been convicted of an infamous offense; or
- (2) is a mentally-ill person, as defined by section 21-501; or
- (3) under conservatorship as defined in section 21-1501; or
- (4) is under 18 years of age; or
- (5) is an alien.

(b) The Probate Court shall determine all questions as to the disqualification, on any of the grounds specified by subsection (a) of this section, of persons claiming to be entitled to letters testamentary or of administration, after such notice to them as the court directs. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(3), 84 Stat. 566.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended subsection (a)(2) by striking out "an insane person" and inserting in lieu "a mentally-ill person".

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Refusal of letters to nominated executors

Probate court may refuse letters testamentary to nominated executors only when they are expressly disqualified by statute. H. M. Berryman et al. v. The Riggs National Bank etc. (1968, 401 F. 2d 993, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

Compliance with statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor is what is contemplated by the terms "legally competent" as used in statute requiring issuance of letters testamentary to executor named in will if he is legally competent. Id.

Testator's choice

Testator's choice should be granted letters testamentary unless he is disqualified under statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor or administrator. H. M. Berryman et al. v. The Riggs National Bank etc. (1968, 401 F. 2d 993, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

Compensation although disqualified

Where petitioners failed to bring the disqualification of the administrator to the attention of the probate court until administration was almost completed, such administrator will be allowed reasonable commissions and compensation to date of appointment and qualification of his successor, including expenses and reasonable attorney's fees, and costs of the proceeding will be taxed against petitioners. In re Allen's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1940, 30 F. Supp. 243).

Construction

This section prohibiting granting of letters testamentary or of administration to person convicted of infamous crime is not discretionary, and if such disqualification is discovered after letters have been issued appointment should be revoked. Dial v. Johnson (1958, 259 F. 2d 189, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Derivation of probate system

The District of Columbia probate system is largely derived from Maryland, and, ordinarily, courts of the District follow Maryland decisions. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Discretion of court

Though court has power and under District of Columbia statute to select administrator from outside immediately preferred class, exercise of that discretion must take into account scheme of statutory preferences, and court must have sound reason to depart therefrom. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (D.C.D.C. 1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

Under District of Columbia statutes relating to appointment of administrators of decedents' estates, a court has discretion to select an administrator from outside the immediately preferred class, provided there is a sound reason to depart from the scheme of statutory preferences, but a next of kin who is not barred by specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters of administration has a mandatory preference over a creditor or a person not in any preferred classification. Randall v. Bockhorst (1956, 232 F. 2d 334, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Disqualification or removal

In proceeding on petition for removal of administrator on ground that he had been convicted of an infamous crime, order refusing removal must be vacated and set aside in order that there could be an express judicial finding made as to whether administrator had been convicted as alleged, and order entered for his removal if finding was against him on that issue. Dial v. Johnson (1958, 259 F. 2d 189, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

An order removing a disqualified administrator is a final appealable order. Perry v. Wilson (1931, 48 F. 2d 1021, 60 App. D.C. 109).

Petitioners whose knowledge of the disqualification of administrator existed at the time of his appointment are reprimanded by the court for failure to disclose it at that time. In re Allen's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1940, 30 F. Supp. 243).

Conviction of conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act is sufficient to disqualify and cause removal of an administrator. Id.

Fraud in securing appointment

If trial court found that administrator had perpetrated fraud in securing appointment, trial court should exercise its discretion to determine whether fraud was a sound reason for it to depart from statutory scheme in designating administrator. Dial v. Johnson (1958, 259 F. 2d 189, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

§ 20-352. Persons between 18 and 21 years of age

When letters testamentary or of administration are granted to a person above 18, but under 21, years of age, the bond executed by him for the faithful performance of his duties is as binding as if he were of full age. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-102 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 294, 31 Stat. 1236).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-353. Application for letters; contents; bond; sale of real estate

When a person applies to the Probate Court for letters testamentary or of administration, he shall set forth, under oath, as fully as possible, all the personal and real estate left by the decedent and the amount of his debts as far as can be ascertained. The penalty of the bond required of him, except in the cases provided for by sections 20-303, 20-304, and 20-333, shall be sufficient to secure the proper application of all the personal estate of the testator or intestate. If it becomes necessary to sell the real estate of the decedent, in part or in whole, the executor or administrator shall give such additional bond, with approved security, as the court directs, to secure the proper application of the proceeds arising from the sale. Where an executor is empowered by the will to sell the real estate of the testator, for any purpose, he shall account for the proceeds in the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-104 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 295, 31 Stat. 1236).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-354. Will proved after letters of administration granted; revocation; pending actions; judgments; accounting; liability

(a) Where administration is granted, and, afterwards, a will disposing of the estate of the deceased is proved according to law, and letters testamentary are issued thereon, the letters testamentary constitute a revocation of the letters of administration. The executor obtaining letters may prosecute civil actions commenced by the administrator and obtain judgment in his own name, and may defend suits commenced against the administrator. The executor shall have the benefit of all judgments obtained by the administrator, and is bound by all judgments obtained against the administrator to the extent of assets received by the executor, unless the judgments were obtained by fraud.

The administrator, without delay, shall account for and deliver to the executor all personal estate and proceeds of realty sold in his possession, belonging to the deceased, in default of which his bond may be sued upon by the executor or administrator with the will annexed.

(b) The administrator may not be held to answer for acts lawfully done by him, in good faith and in ignorance of the will, before an actual or implied revocation of his letters. When distribution of the estate, or part of it, has been lawfully made by him, the distributees, and their personal representatives, and not the administrator, are answerable for the property so distributed, or its value, to the persons entitled to it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is derived from the first two paragraphs of section 20-106 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The third (final) paragraph of section 20-106 is carried into section 20-355 herein.

In the first paragraph, "civil actions" is substituted for "any actions at law or in equity". In ordinary civil cases in the District Court, and the Court of General Sessions, there is now only one form of action, known as a "civil action". See Rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and Rule 2 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Defenses to compulsory accounting

That time within which a caveat to will could be filed by heirs not found within jurisdiction but given notice of application for probate of will by publication had not yet expired was not a sufficient defense to residuary legatee's action against executor to compel an accounting and distribution of residuary estate. Cashell v. Eslin (D.C.D.C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

Duty of executor

After probate of a will and until its revocation, executor is required to act in accordance with terms of will, and, in absence of wrongdoing on his part, is fully protected in so doing. Cashell v. Eslin (D.C.D.C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

Effect of letters of administration

Letters of administration granted on a petition setting out the existence of a will and averring that no proceedings had been taken for its probate and seeking no adjudication as to the will, and the order being silent on that point, is not an adjudication that decedent died intestate. Morris v. Foster (1922, 278 F. 321, 51 App. D.C. 238, certiorari denied 42 Ct. 586, 259 U.S. 582, 66 L. Ed. 1074).

A subsequent probate of the will and granting of letters testamentary revoke the letters of administration. Id.

§ 20-355. Will declared invalid after distribution; liability

When a will is adjudged invalid in an action begun after lawful distribution of the estate, or a part of it, by the executor, in good faith and without his knowledge of the invalidity of the will, and without notice to him that the action was intended, the distributees of the property, and their personal representatives, and not the executor, are answerable for the property so distributed, or its value, to the persons entitled to it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is derived from the third (final) paragraph of section 20-106 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The first and second paragraphs of section 20-106 are carried into section 20-354 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-356. Removal of co-executor or co-administrator for negligence or misconduct; complaint; recovery of loss or damage

If a joint executor or administrator apprehends that he is in danger of suffering by the negligence or misconduct in the administration or the improper use or misapplication of the assets of the estate by a co-executor or co-administrator, he may make complaint to the court. Upon adjudging the complaint to be well founded, the court may revoke the letters of the executor or administrator so complained of and compel the delivery and surrender to the remaining executor or administrator of the assets, books, papers, and evidences of debt, of the estate in the possession or control of the person whose letters have been revoked. The remaining executors or administrators may recover, in a civil action, for loss or damage they may suffer through the executor or administrator whose letters have been revoked. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on section 20-107 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as the latter related to executors and administrators. Insofar as it related to collectors, it is carried into section 20-505 herein.

In the provision authorizing the remaining executors, etc., to recover for loss or damage, "civil action" is substituted for "action on the case". See revision note under section 20-354 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Grounds for removal

Where executor has made improper payment of claims but has not disposed of salable property unauthorizedly, court's only direct sanction is to order executor to correct or protect against his impropriety, and if executor fails to comply, then to remove him. C. P. Henry v. J. A. Grimes, Jr. (1964, 334 F. 2d 550, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 160).

Executor's commission is not fixed by Probate Court until final settlement of his accounts, and he may not ordinarily collect any fees on account before his services terminate. Id.

This section providing that if any joint executor, administrator, or collector shall apprehend that he is likely to suffer by negligence or misconduct in administration or improper use or misapplication of assets of estate by any coexecutor, coadministrator, or cocollector, he may make complaint to court, and if complaint shall be adjudged "well founded," court shall have authority, in its discretion, to revoke powers and authority of executor, administrator, or collector, does not necessarily require that complaint be adjudged "well founded" in sense that there be a final determination on merits of question of ownership of controverted property, before removal can be had. Goldsborough v. Marshall (1957, 243 F. 2d 240, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Where husband of deceased wife and a daughter of deceased wife by former marriage were appointed as co-administrators of estate of deceased wife, and controversy arose as to whether certain realty standing in name of deceased wife and sum of money deposited in husband's name were in fact property of husband, and daughter filed a motion under this section as administrator for removal of husband as coadministrator, husband's removal was authorized by this section, on ground that daughter's complaint was "well founded." Id.

Jurisdiction

Where husband of deceased wife and one of deceased wife's daughters were appointed as coadministrators of estate of wife, and daughter filed motion for removal of husband as coadministrator, because of controversy as to whether realty standing in deceased wife's name and sum of money deposited in husband's name were in fact property of husband, and federal District Court entered first order removing husband and appointing a neutral party as administrator, and husband then appealed from first order, District Court had jurisdiction to enter second order appointing another neutral party as administrator, when first neutral party declined appointment. Goldsborough v. Marshall (1957, 243 F. 2d 240, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

§ 20-357. Additional bond; failure to provide; revocation; delivery of assets

Where the Probate Court is satisfied that the bond already given by an executor or administrator is insufficient, it may require the executor or administrator to file an additional bond, and on his failure to do so may revoke his letters. Upon the revocation of letters under this section, the executor or administrator whose letters are so revoked shall forthwith deliver to any substituted executor or administrator all the assets of his testator or intestate in his possession or control. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Petition for additional bond

Court has power, upon petition of attorney who has contract with executrix for payment of a fee, but no lien on proceeds of judgment, alleging insolvency of executrix and her intention to remove the fund from the jurisdiction on its receipt, to require the executrix to give additional bond, or revoke her letters and thus prevent collection of judgment by her. Parish v. McGowan (1912, 39 App. D.C. 184, reversed on other grounds 35 S. Ct. 543, 237 U.S. 285, 59 L. Ed. 955). See, also, Cropper v. McLane (1895, 6 App. D.C. 119, dismissed 16 S. Ct. 1200, 163 U.S. 682, 41 L. Ed. 316).

(a) If a surety of an executor or administrator apprehends that he is in danger of suffering from the suretyship, he may apply for relief to the Probate Court. The court may call upon the party to give counter security, to be approved by the court. If the party so called on does not, within a fixed reasonable time, give counter security, the court may order the property remaining in his hands as executor or administrator to be delivered up to the surety, and the court may enforce the delivery by process. Without delay, the executor or administrator shall return an inventory of the property delivered to the surety. Under the immediate order of the court, the surety shall sell, distribute, and deliver up the property contained in the inventory, as the case requires, as if the surety were the executor or administrator.

(b) To prevent a double administration and consequent inconvenience to creditors and other persons interested in the estate, the executor or administrator specified by subsection (a) of this section shall continue to discharge his trust, unless the court revokes his letters for a just cause, and he shall be answerable for the property in the same manner as if it were not, on his default, delivered to the surety.

The executor or administrator may sue the surety and recover damages if he suffers from the misconduct of the surety, in diminishing any part of the property, without obtaining an allowance therefor from the court. The surety shall bring into court, to be deposited with the Register of Wills, the money arising from the sale of any property as provided by this section, to be applied according to this Part. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

(a) On the application of an administrator de bonis non the court may order the executor or the administrator of a deceased executor or administrator to deliver over to him all the personal property that was in the hands of the deceased executor or administrator, as such, and also all the money, bonds, notes, accounts, and evidences of debt that the deceased executor or administrator may have taken, received, and held at the time of his death, including the proceeds of sale of either personal or real estate made by the deceased executor or administrator, which shall be deemed unadministered assets.

(b) If an executor or administrator of a deceased executor or administrator fails to comply, by a day named, with an order issued under subsection (a) of this section, the court may enforce its order by attachment against him, and may direct that his bond, or the bond of the deceased executor or administrator, or both, be sued upon for the use of the administrator de bonis non. Minor changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 20-1710.

§ 20-360. Executor of his own wrong

Whoever, without authority of law, takes, receives, or injuriously interferes with personal property of a deceased person who died intestate, is liable as an executor of his own wrong:

(1) to the persons aggrieved; and

(2) to the rightful administrator for the full value of the personal property taken or received by him and for all damages caused to the estate by his acts.

He may not retain or deduct any part of the estate, except for funeral expenses or debts of the deceased or other charges which rightful executors or administrators might have been compelled to pay. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat., 710, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-113 (43 Eliz., ch. 8, § 2, 1601; Kilty's Rep., p. 236; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 427; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 41, § 178).

The old British statute, 43 Eliz., ch. 8, § 2, 1601, cited above, as set forth in section 20-113 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"Every person and persons that shall obtain, receive, and have any goods or debts of any person dying intestate, or a release or other discharge of any debt or duty that belonged to the intestate, upon any fraud, or without valuable consideration as shall amount to the value of the same goods or debts, or near thereabouts (except it be in or towards satisfaction of some just and principal debt of the value of the same goods or debts to him owing by the intestate at the time of his decease) shall be charged and chargeable as executor of his own wrong; and so far only as all such goods and debts coming to his hands, or whereof he is released or discharged by such administrator, will satisfy, deducting nevertheless to and for himself allowance of all just, due and principal debts upon good consideration, without fraud, owing to him by the intestate at the time of his decease, and of all other payments made by him, which lawful executors or administrators may and ought to have and pay by law."

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and to simplify and modernize the language. See Laws of Mass., ch. 195, § 14, 15.

The reference to funeral expenses is new, but it does not constitute a change in substance, as these expenses are one of the "charges which rightful executors or administrators might have been compelled, by law to pay".

§ 20-361. Liability of executor or administrator of deceased executor or administrator for waste or conversion

The executor or administrator of a person who, as executor, either of right or of his own wrong, or as administrator, wasted or converted to his own use any part of the estate of a deceased person, is liable and chargeable in the same manner as his testator or intestate would have been, if living. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Section consolidates sections 20-112 and 20-114 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

The two old British statutes, 30 Car. (Charles) 2, ch. 7 § 2, 1677, and 4 and 5 Wm. and Mary, ch. 24, § 12, 1692, cited above, as set forth in sections 20-114 and 20-112, respectively, of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

(30 Car. 2, ch. 7, § 2, 1677)

"All and every the executors and administrators of any person or persons, who as executor or executors in his or their own wrong, or administrators, shall waste or convert any goods, chattels, estate or assets of any person deceased to their own use, shall be liable and chargeable in the same manner as their testator or intestate would have been if they had been living."

(4 and 5 Wm. and Mary, ch. 24, § 12, 1692)

"All and every the executor and executors, administrator or administrators of an executor or administrator of right, who shall waste or convert to his own use, goods, chattels, or estate of his testator or intestate, shall from henceforth be liable and chargeable in the same manner as his or their testator or intestate should or might have been."

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and to simplify and modernize the language. See McKinney's N.Y. Decedent Estate Law § 112.

§ 20-362. Investment of funds

Where, under the provisions of a will, it is necessary for an executor or an administrator with the will annexed to retain in his hands the personal estate, or a part thereof, after all just claims are discharged, as in a case where money or another thing is directed to be paid at a distant period or upon a contingency, he shall apply to the Probate Court for a decree or directions relating thereto. The court may decree or direct:

(1) what part of the personal estate shall be retained or appropriated for the purpose and in what manner it shall be disposed of;

(2) in what manner the legacy or benefit shall be secured to the person entitled thereto at a future period or upon the happening of a contingency;

(3) how the necessary part of the personal estate to be appropriated for the purpose shall be prevented from being unproductive; and

(4) how the necessary part of the personal estate to be appropriated for the purpose shall be applied, agreeably to the intent of the will or the construction of law, should the contingency not take place.

Income—Distribution

A reading of the entire will of testatrix was sufficient to establish her intent to distribute the proceeds from the sale of corporate stock to those named as specific legatees, not to the residuary legatee; therefore, the income which was earned by investment of the proceeds of the sale of the corporate stock was properly distributed to the named specific legatees in the will. *In re Estate of M. ##### Duties of executor

Under a bequest of the income of a fund to a life tenant, with remainder over, it is the duty of the executor to invest the fund, pay the income to the person entitled for life, and preserve the principal for the remainderman. Payne v. Robinson (1905, 26 App. D.C. 283, 6 Ann. Cas. 784).

Status of executor

"The executor does not cease to be executor because the period of administration, so called, may be passed. He is still executor as long as he has anything under the will to execute." Marfield v. McCurdy (1905, 25 App. D.C. 342).

"The principal difference between an executor during the period of administration and an executor after the lapse of the period of administration is that the former is responsible to the probate court for the faithful execution of his trust, the latter to a court of equity." Id.

§ 20-363. Continuing decedent's business; petition and affidavits; accounting; debts as expenses of administration

(a) The Probate Court may authorize a fiduciary accountable to it to continue a business of the decedent until further order of the court and may order the discontinuance of the business at any time.

(b) An order under subsection (a) of this section authorizing the continuance of a business may not be entered until after the fiduciary has filed a petition under oath, supported by the affidavits of two reputable persons familiar with the decedent's business, setting forth:

- (1) the appraised value of the business;
- (2) whether the decedent conducted the business at a profit or loss; and
- (3) the estimated amount of the monthly expenses necessary to be incurred in order to continue the business.

(c) A fiduciary who is given an authorization to conduct the decedent's business shall file with the Register of Wills monthly statements showing:

- (1) receipts and disbursements;
- (2) debts contracted, and obligations incurred; and
- (3) the profit or loss.

(d) Debts contracted and obligations incurred in continuing a business of the decedent constitute an expense of administration of the estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1960 ed., § 20-116 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 123a, as added Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 556; June 18, 1953, ch. 131, § 1, 67 Stat. 66).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Computation of commissions

No case is made for payment to executor in operating decedent's business over and above the amount already permitted by the Code. Stoner v. Doherty (1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

Continuing business

Executor is not required to continue the business of a decedent although he followed the appropriate practice in obtaining the approval of the court to do so. Stoner v. Doherty (1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

§ 20-364. Recordation of executor's and administrator's bond; copies to interested parties; actions on bonds

(a) The Register of Wills shall record in his office every bond executed by an executor or administrator. The Register of Wills shall deliver, on demand, to a person conceiving himself to be interested in the administration of the estate, a copy of the bond, under his hand and seal. Upon this copy, an action may be maintained, in the name of the District of Columbia, for the use of the party interested. In the action, judgment may be recovered for the damage actually sustained.

(b) In the manner provided by subsection (a) of this section, an administrator appointed in the place of an executor or administrator who has resigned, or has been removed, or whose letters have been revoked, may maintain an action against the former executor or administrator, and his sureties, on his administration bond, for loss and damage to the estate resulting from this breach of duty.

(c) A creditor may not maintain an action on a testamentary or administration bond for a claim against the testator or intestate:

(1) until, when practicable, an action has been commenced against the executor or administrator of the deceased and:

(A) a summons issued in the action has been returned "Not to be found"; or

(B) a writ of fieri facias or of attachment, issued on a judgment against the executor or administrator, has been returned "nulla bona"; or

(2) until, in the judgment of the court before whom the action may be tried, there is such apparent insolvency of the executor or administrator or insufficiency of his effects as to leave the creditor without remedy except by action on the bond.

(Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(4), 84 Stat. 566.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(4) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended subsection (a) by striking out "in the name of the United States" and inserting in lieu thereof "in the name of the District of Columbia".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 15-707.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-109 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 297, 31 Stat. 1236; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Actions within section

This section was inapplicable to action against an executrix, on a special bond, to recover value of a note executed by testator. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

This section governs actions on general bonds and the normal "administration of estates" which involves the collection, management, and distribution of estate, including legal proceedings necessary to satisfy claims of creditors, next of kin, legatees, or whatever other parties may have any claim to property of a deceased person. Id.

Construction by Maryland court

A decision of the Maryland Court of Appeals interpreting Maryland statute from which a section of District of Columbia Code was derived was not controlling because rendered after law was adopted by the District, but was persuasive of proper interpretation of the District statute. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

Effect of judgment

Whether a judgment or decree against an administrator is conclusive evidence of the debt in an action against the surety on his bond, although the preponderance of authority seems to affirm that it is, see Bonding Co. v. United States ex rel. Paynter (1904, 23 App. D.C. 535).

Execution and return

"The requirement of execution and return was satisfied, notwithstanding the return was made the next day after issue, by order of the plaintiff's attorney." Bonding Co. v. United States ex rel. Paynter (1904, 23 App. D.C. 535).

Special undertaking

That executor with consent of residuary legatee gave a special undertaking instead of a general bond did not affect executor's obligation to account to residuary legatee and make distribution of such legatee's share of residuary estate within a reasonable time after such residue could be determined. Cashell v. Eskin (D.C.D.C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

The giving of a special undertaking by executor creates a personal obligation to creditors and legatees not present where a general bond is given. Id.

§ 20-365. Service on nonresident executor or administrator; failure to give power of attorney

Before original or ancillary letters testamentary or of administration are issued, the person designated, if a nonresident of the District of Columbia, shall file in the office of the Register of Wills an irrevocable power of attorney designating the Register of Wills and his successors in office as the person upon whom all notices and process issued by a competent court in the District may be served, with like effect as personal service, in relation to all suits, matters, causes, or things affecting or pertaining to the estate in which the letters are to be issued. The Register of Wills shall forthwith forward by registered or certified mail to the address of the executor or administrator, which shall be stated in the power of attorney, all notices and process served upon the Register under this section.

If the person fails to file the power of attorney within 10 days after the entry of the order of appointment, the order shall stand revoked, and he shall forfeit all rights to the office. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-118 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, 308a as added Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 562).

Section is based on section 20-118 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as the latter related to service on nonresident executors and administrators. Insofar as it related to service on collectors and guardians, it is carried into chapter 5 of this title, and chapter 1 of Title 21, respectively. See tables.

In the provision of the first paragraph requiring the Register of Wills to forward all notices and process to the executor or administrator by registered mail, a reference to certified mail is added so that either type of mail transmission may be utilized. Act June 11, 1960, Pub. L. 86-507, 74 Stat. 200, specifically amended many Federal and District of Columbia laws theretofore requiring the use of registered mail with respect to various matters, to provide for the alternative use of certified mail. While it did not amend section 20-118 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this section is based, it is considered to have been the legislative intent to amend most, if not all, existing laws on the subject. See Senate Report No. 1489, May 26, 1960, to accompany H.R. 10996, 86th Cong., 2d Sess., the bill which, upon enactment, became the Act of June 11, 1960.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-366. Resignation; petition; accounting; liability

Where a person, after having accepted the office of executor or administrator, desires to resign the office, he may file his petition to that effect, accompanied by a full and particular account, under oath, of his receipts and disbursements, if any. The court shall thereupon direct such notice as it deems proper to be given of the application, and, if cause is not shown to the contrary, may release and discharge him from his office and enter such order as to costs and commissions and impose such terms in other respects as the nature of the case requires. The executor or administrator is not, by the discharge, released from liability for past acts, defaults, or omissions of duty. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-119 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 292, 31 Stat. 1235).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Appointment

Where judgment creditor, who had become resident and domiciliary of Virginia, died in Virginia while appeal from such judgment was pending, and person named as executor in judgment creditor's purported will had filed such will with clerk of court in Virginia but had not taken further proceedings thereunder, the district court should have appointed a collector of assets of estate of judgment creditor. Belt v. Lynn (1954, 211 F. 2d 431, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

§ 20-502. Oath and bond of collector; form

(a) Before letters are issued to a collector other than a local corporation authorized under the laws of the District of Columbia to act as collector, he shall take and subscribe the following oath:

"I, ———, do swear that I will well and truly discharge the office of collector of the personal estate of ———, deceased, according to the tenor of the letters granted me by the Probate Court and the directions of law, to the best of my knowledge, so help me God."

(b) The collector shall also, before letters are issued to him, execute a bond, in a penalty and with security to be approved by the court, with the following condition: "The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bounden ——— shall well and honestly discharge the office of collector of the personal estate of ———, deceased, in the District of Columbia, and shall make or cause to be made a true and perfect inventory or inventories of such of the personal estate, and debts as come to his possession or knowledge and make return of them to the Probate Court, and shall also deliver to the person or persons who shall be authorized by the court to receive them such of the goods, chattels, personal estate, and debts as shall come to his possession, except such as shall be allowed for by the court, then the obligation shall be void; it shall otherwise be in full force at law." (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Sept. 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149 (1), (5), 84 Stat. 566, 567.)

torney designating the Register of Wills and his successors in office as the person upon whom all notices and process issued by a competent court in the District may be served, with like effect as personal service, in relation to suits, matters, causes, or things affecting or pertaining to the estate in which the letters are to be issued. If the person fails to file the power of attorney within 10 days after the entry of the order of appointment, the order shall stand revoked, and he shall forfeit all rights to the office. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Section is based on section 20-118 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as the latter related to service on nonresident collectors. Insofar as it related to service on nonresident executors and administrators, and guardians, it is carried into sections 20-365 and 21-110 herein, respectively.

In the provision of the first paragraph requiring the Register of Wills to forward all notices and process to the collector by registered mail, a reference to certified mail is added for the same reason stated in revision note under section 20-365 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-504. Duties of collector; liability; commission; additional bond requirements if real estate to be possessed

(a) The collector shall collect the personal estate of the deceased, including the debts due him, and cause them to be appraised, and return an inventory thereof, as an administrator is required to do, and may, under the authority of the court, sell perishable articles and bring suits for debts or other property, as an administrator may do, and shall account for the money recovered. The collector may, if authorized by the court, take possession of, hold, manage, conserve, and control all real estate affected by the will in dispute, and shall discharge, pendente lite, all the duties of an administrator, including the payment of debts. He is liable to an action by a creditor of the deceased and is entitled to the protection of all provisions of law expressly relating to executors and administrators.

(b) The collector may be allowed a commission not exceeding 10 per centum on the personal property, debts due the estate, and rentals from real estate actually collected by him.

(c) Where the collector is authorized by the court to take possession of the real estate affected by the will or wills in dispute, the letters of collection shall so expressly specify, and his bond as collector, in addition to the several matters set forth in section 20-502, shall specifically include the faithful performance of his duties with respect to the real estate. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Attorney's fees

An attorney whose services are rendered to an estate at request of collector of estate may look to the estate for his compensation and measure of allowance to the attorney is such as court may consider proper in light of applicable facts. Buck v. Putnam (1945, 146 F. 2d 662, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Where account of collector of estate showed collection of assets to amount of approximately $580,000, allowance of fee of $6,000 to collector's attorney for services rendered by him to collector in administration of estate was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Commission

Where account of collector of an estate showed collection of assets to amount of approximately $580,000, allowance of a commission of 1½ percent of fund handled by collector during the 10-month period which he served was not an abuse of discretion. Buck v. Putnam (1945, 146 F. 2d 662, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Decisions under prior law

Probate court has authority, in case of the contest of a will, to appoint a collector of the personal estate, under § 304 of the 1901 Code (31 Stat. 1237 ch. 854 (§ 20-401)), and his powers, when so appointed, are those in general of a temporary administrator. Hutchins v. Dante (1913, 40 App. D.C. 262).

Duty of executors and trustees in respect to the payment of income is merely ministerial, and the collector, acting as administrator, may, under the court's direction, temporarily perform that duty. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1913, 41 App. D.C. 122).

Under §§ 306-308 of the 1901 Code (31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854 (§§ 20-403 to 20-405)), collectors may bring suits, but there is no expression permitting suits to be brought against them. Berry & Whitmore Co. v. Dante (1915, 43 App. D.C. 110).

Attorneys rendering services to the estate may recover fees from collector when such services were requested by collector in his representative capacity. Brandenburg v. Dante (1920, 261 F. 1021, 49 App. D.C. 141).

Powers of collector

Collector has no power under this section (as amended) to prosecute appeal from order disbaring his decedent from practice of law. Metzger v. O'Donoghue (1923, 288 F. 461, 53 App. D.C. 107).

A collector of an estate for time being performs all duties and exercises all powers of an administrator. Buck v. Putnam (1945, 146 F. 2d 662, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

§ 20-505. Removal of co-collector for negligence or misconduct; complaint; recovery of loss or damage

If a joint collector apprehends that he is in danger of suffering by the negligence or misconduct by a co-collector in the administration or the improper use or misapplication of the assets of the estate, he may apply to the court for relief. Upon adjudging the complaint to be well founded, the court may revoke the powers and authority of the collector so complained of and compel the delivery and surrender to the remaining collector of the assets, books, papers, and evidences of debt, of the estate that may be in the possession or control of the person so dismissed from the administration. The remaining collectors may recover, in a civil action, for any loss or damage they may suffer through the collector whose powers have been revoked. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on section 20-107 of D.C. Code, 1960 ed., insofar as the latter related to collectors. Insofar as it related to executors and administrators, it is carried into section 20-356 herein.

In the provision authorizing the remaining collectors to recover for loss or damage, "civil action" is substituted for "action on the case". See revision note under section 20-354 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-506. Cessation of powers

On the granting of letters testamentary or of administration the power of a collector cease. He shall deliver, on demand, all the property and money of the decedent in his hands and excepted by section 20-504, to the person obtaining the letters, and the latter may be permitted to prosecute suits commenced by the collector as if they had been begun by him, and may also defend suits brought against the collector by a creditor of the deceased. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1960 ed., § 20-404 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 307, 31 Stat. 1238; Apr. 19, 1920, § 1, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 562).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Action commenced by collector

Upon granting of letters testamentary or of administration, power of collector of assets of estate of judgment creditor would cease, and executor or administrator could be permitted to prosecute any action commenced by collector. Belt v. Lynn (1954, 211 F. 2d 431, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Services of attorney

This section contemplates that the collector may bind the estate for the services of counsel. Brandenburg v. Dante (1920, 261 F. 1021, 49 App. D.C. 141).

Variance between decree and order

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, had been ordered to turn over concealed assets to collector of deceased's estate, whereas petitioner was held in contempt on petition of executor of estate for failing to deliver assets to the executor who had been appointed subsequent to the entry of the turn-over order, alleged variance between contempt decree and the turn-over order was not "fatal," since, upon the grant of letters to the executor, he was entitled to prosecute any suit commenced by the collector as if the suit had been begun by the executor. Watkins v. Rives (1942, 125 F. 2d 33, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

§ 20-507. Liability of collector for refusing to deliver estate

If a collector neglects or refuses to deliver over the property and estate to the executor or administrator, the court may, by citation and attachment, compel him to do so, and the executor or administrator may also proceed, by civil action, to recover the value of the assets from him and his sureties by action on his bond. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-405 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 308, 31 Stat. 1238; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 562).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Right to sue

Congress was careful to use words that in no way abridged the right to pursue such a remedy of one in whose favor the remedy was inferentially recognized in the preceding sections. Brandenburg v. Dante (1920, 261 F. 1021, 49 App. D.C. 141).

An executor or administrator who has not filed a special bond provided for by sections 20-304 and 20-333, or a collector shall, within two months after his appointment, or such longer time as the court allows, make and return, upon oath, into court a true inventory of all the personal estate of the deceased which are by law to be administered and which have come to his possession or knowledge. Where the court deems it proper, it may also order him to include in the inventory all the real estate of the deceased. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

On the granting of letters testamentary or of administration or letters of collection, a warrant, except in the cases provided by sections 20-304 and 20-333, shall issue to two suitable persons not interested in the estate, to appraise the estate of the deceased, known to them or shown to them by the executor, administrator, or collector. They shall severally take and subscribe an oath well and truly, without partiality or prejudice, to value the personal estate and, if so directed, the real estate, of the deceased, as far as these items and properties come to their knowledge, to the best of their skill and judgment. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 20-704. Appraisal; notice; return

The executor, administrator, collector or appraisers shall give notice to the persons immediately interested in the administration, or at least two of them, if they are numerous, of the time and place of making the appraisal. Thereupon, they shall proceed at that time and place to value the property and estate, setting down each article or item separately, with the value thereof, in dollars and cents. When the appraisal is completed, they shall certify it under their hands and seals, and return it with the inventory. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 20-705. Contents of inventory

The inventory shall contain a particular statement of all other securities for the payment of moneys belonging to the deceased, and of all other debts and accounts due him, which are known to the executor, administrator, or collector, who shall designate those debts which he considers good, as distinguished from those which he considers desperate or doubtful, and also an account of all moneys belonging to the deceased which come to his hands. When, after an inventory is returned, assets not therein included come to the knowledge of the executor, administrator, or collector, an additional inventory and appraisal shall be promptly prepared and filed in the same manner. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

There shall be excepted from the inventory the wearing apparel of the deceased, family pictures, the family Bible, and schoolbooks used in the family, and provisions for the support of the family, on hand at the time of the decedent's death. Where the decedent was the head of a family, or a householder, the property exempt under sections 15-501 to 15-503 shall so continue exempt from all claims against the decedent, and shall be distributed by the court to such members of the family or household as in the judgment of the court the exigencies of the particular case require. Family portraits "seem to have been recognized as heirlooms at common law, and as such went to the heirs at law, and not to the executor * * *." By custom they are not included in the inventories in the District. Brown v. Easterhazy (25 W.L.R. 478).

§ 20-707. Collector's inventory

If an inventory is returned by a collector the executor or administrator thereafter administering shall, within two months after his appointment, return either a new inventory in place of the collector's inventory or an acknowledgment in writing that he has received from the collector the articles contained in the first inventory, and consents to be answerable for it, as if the inventory had been made out by him as executor or administrator, unless it appears that he has been prevented from making the return by the improper detention of the personal estate of the deceased by the collector. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Totten trusts

Bank account, that contained over signature of the decedent what purported to be a trust agreement which provided that decedent was grantor, to himself as trustee, of funds represented by the account and that he could withdraw or transfer such funds in whole or in part, thus removing them from the trust, and, in the event of his death, funds represented by the account should be transferred or paid to account of beneficiary, constituted a valid revocable inter vivos trust that was terminated upon death of decedent, thus entitling the beneficiary to receive the corpus. Enterprise Federal Savings and Loan Association v. A. Q. Ehrlich et al. (1972, 337 F. Supp. 1332).

Effect of solvency

Where it is substantially stated in the bill that decedent's estate will be solvent, plaintiff's remedy may best be sought in the probate court rather than in court of equity. Street v. Stubblefield (1927, 20 F. 2d 1017, 57 App. D.C. 276, certiorari denied 48 S. Ct. 121, 275 U.S. 564, 72 L. Ed. 428).

Gifts causa mortis

Money paid defendant by his brother shortly before the latter's death, at a time when his illness was expected to result in death at any time, was a valid gift causa mortis, where decedent was of sound mind at the time of the gift, the defendant cared for him during his last illness and paid the final expenses, and there was sufficient personalty remaining to satisfy the widow's claim. Railey v. Railey (D.C.D.C. 1940, 30 F. Supp. 121).

Option to purchase real estate

Ninety-nine-year lease, with option to purchase, is personalty. Bean v. Reynolds (1899, 15 App. D.C. 143).

Rents

§ 20-902. Discharge or bequest of debt or demand not valid against creditors; disposition

A discharge or bequest in a will, of a debt or demand of a testator is not valid as against the creditors of the deceased, but constitutes only as<sup>1</sup> a specific bequest of the debt or demand, and the amount thereof shall be included in the inventory of the effects of the deceased and included as an asset for the payment of his debts, if necessary for that purpose, and, if not so necessary, shall be paid in the same manner and proportion as other specific legacies. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-903. Claims of testator against executor not discharged; disposition; liability of surety

The naming of a person as executor in a will is not a discharge or bequest of a just claim which the testator had against him. The claim shall be included among the credits and effects of the deceased in the inventory, and the executor is liable for it, as for so much money in his hands, at the time the debt or demand becomes due. He shall apply and distribute it, in the payment of debts and legacies and among the next of kin, as part of the personal estate of the deceased. However, the sureties of the executor are not liable where the claim against the executor would have been uncollectible if another person had been executor. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20-904, 20-905.

§ 20-904. Failure of executor to include claims of testator against executor in inventory; remedy

If an executor fails to include a claim which the testator had against him in the list of debts due the deceased, a person interested in the administration may allege the failure by petition to the Probate Court. The court, with the consent of the parties, may decide the matter, or it may be referred by the parties, with the court's approval; or at the instance of either party the court may direct an issue to be tried by a jury. If the claim in any such proceedings is decided to be a just claim of the decedent against the executor, the executor shall be charged with the amount thereof as provided by section 20-903. This section is referred to in section 20-905.

§ 20-905. Debt due by administrator or collector

In like manner as provided by section 20-903, an administrator or collector shall include a claim against himself, and on his including it, or failure to do so, there shall be the same proceeding as described in section 20-903 or 20-904 with regard to an executor. The rule provided by section 20-903 applies to his sureties. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

AMENDMENT

1971—Section 9 of Act Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, amended item 20-1106 by inserting “; sales without reference to the auditor” immediately preceding the period at the end thereof.

§ 20-1101. Sale of personal estate

Where an executor or administrator does not have money sufficient to discharge the just debts of and claims against the decedent, the Probate Court shall, on his application, made after the return of an inventory, direct a sale of the personal property contained therein, or of such part as the court considers proper, and in such manner and on such terms as the court directs. The court may direct a sale if it deems it advantageous to the persons interested in the administration, on the application of any of them. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 20-1102. Order for sale

An executor not so authorized by the will, or an administrator, may not sell property of his decedent without an order of the Probate Court. A sale made without a previous order authorizing it is void and does not pass title to the purchaser. If an executor or administrator sells, pledges, or disposes of property without a previous order, his letters may be revoked and an administrator appointed, who shall immediately recover possession of the property; and the removed executor or administrator may be proceeded against by attachment. Where there are two or more executors or administrators, and a sale, pledge, or disposition of property has been made without the consent of all, the revocation extends only to the persons so offending, and the remaining executors or administrators may discharge the duties of their office and institute proceedings for the recovery of the property and attachment as provided by this section. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

The words "not so authorized by the will", in the first line are from former section 18-603.

Application of section

This section should be applied where an administrator not only has become actively a party to an arrangement by which another makes an appropriation of estate assets such as a business before his appointment but during the course of his administration confirms it by refusing to include the property within his inventory, to report, or to account for the profits of the business, and to take steps to secure its recovery or legal disposition after full warning that that might be required. Burke v. Canfield (1941, 121 F. 2d 877, 74 App. D.C. 6).

Common law

"At common law an executor or administrator had absolute power of disposal over all personal property coming into his hands, including choses in action, and such sales protected purchasers, except where fraud appeared." Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Harris (1916, 45 App. D.C. 474).

Construction

"Owing to this rule of the common law, statutes providing for the granting of decrees of court as to sales generally are construed to be for the protection of the administrator and not as a limitation of his power." Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Harris (1916, 45 App. D.C. 474).

"The provisions of section 323 (this section) of our code were intended to apply merely to local executors and administrators dealing with property within this jurisdiction. The section declares, * * *, his letters may be revoked, clearly indicating, we think, that the prohibition was not intended to extend to contracts made by executors and administrators of other jurisdictions. In other words, this statute was addressed to the constituent elements or validity of a local contract by executors and administrators, rather than to the procedure to be followed in establishing all contracts by executors and administrators, wherever made." Id.

Jurisdiction

District court, in an action for construction of a will, had no authority to order sale of testatrix' realty, such matter being one to be determined by probate court in accordance with applicable sections of District of Columbia. Littlepage et al. v. Hart and Littlepage Jr. (1958, 250 F. 2d 774, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 111).

Revocation of letters

Statute providing that letters of executor or administrator may be revoked if he shall sell, pledge or dispose of any property without previous order applies only to unauthorized disposal of salable property and not to improper payment of claims. C. P. Henry v. J. A. Grimes Jr. (1964, 334 F. 2d 550, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 160).

Probate Court was not authorized to remove executor on ground that executor on his own initiative paid himself sum from assets of estate on account of his commission as executor and as fees for his services as attorney-in-fact for decedent before her death. Id.

§ 20-1103. Sale of real estate directed in will; procedure; failure to act

Where a testator has directed his real estate to be sold for the payment of his debts or legacies, the executor may sell and convey it, and shall account for the proceeds of the sale to the Probate Court in the same manner as for the proceeds of personal estate. Such a sale is not valid unless it is ratified by the court after notice given by publication according to the practice in equity. If the executor refuses or declines to act, or dies without executing the power vested in him, the court, on the application of a person interested, may appoint an administrator de bonis non with the will annexed to execute the power in the same manner in which the executor appointed by the will might have done. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

For a discussion of what is meant by the phrase "according to the practice in equity", as used in section 18-604 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. (and as carried into this section), see Mersch's Probate Court Practice in the District of Columbia, 2d ed. (1952), § 1671 et seq. See, also, De Marco v. Kertz (1945), 151 F. 2d 305, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 204.

Specific performance

Where probate judge had rejected executor's sale of realty to plaintiffs and had accepted a higher offer, plaintiffs were not entitled to specific performance of contract or to recover damages from executor for breach of contract in absence of showing that procedures followed by probate judge were contrary to law. E. H. Savage, etc. v. C. L. Pinderhughes, Executor etc. (1967, 382 F. 2d 171, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 222).

Approval of court

Where executor was empowered by will to sell real estate at his discretion, court's refusal to approve sale by executor because of a higher bid would not be disturbed, except that before accepting the higher bid the court should afford the original bidder, and other bidders, opportunity to submit further bids if desired. De Marco v. Kertz (1945, 151 F. 2d 305, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

The Judicial Sales Act, 28 U.S.C. §§ 847-849, and the local civil rules of the District Court for the District of Columbia adopted thereunder are applicable only to sales which are required or authorized by court order, and not those under a power created by will; hence, for sales made by executor under terms of a will, ratification by the probate court according to the practice in equity is required, and not in accordance with provisions of said sections. Id.

Price of bid

Where a will authorizes executor to sell real estate at his discretion, the bidder makes his offer to the executor subject to the approval of the court, as required by this section, and in selling the property the court is acting as trustee for the parties in interest and must exercise a wise, judicial discretion to secure for the estate the highest price consistent with a just regard for the rights of the bidder. De Marco v. Kertz (1945, 151 F. 2d 305, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

The general rule applicable to public judicial sales of property, that the court will not ordinarily set aside a sale made in the manner prescribed by law because of mere inadequacy of price, grew out of the necessity of encouraging free bidding at public sales, and rule is not applicable to a private sale. Id.

Rejection of offer or bid

Where a will authorizes executor at his discretion to sell real estate, a private offer, which is made subject to ratification by the court under this section, may be rejected when a higher bid is made at any time prior to ratification. De Marco v. Kertz (1945, 151 F. 2d 305, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

§ 20-1104. Power of co-executors to sell real estate under will

Where a power to sell lands, tenements, or other hereditaments is given by a will to executors as such, and a person named as executor refuses, after the death of the testator, to act or accept the trust, sales under the power made by the executors who qualify and accept the trust are as effectual in law as if the other executors had joined in the sale. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-605 (21 Henry 8, ch. 4, § 1, 1529; Kilty's Rept., p. 230; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 280; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 20, § 85).

The old British statute, 21 Henry 8, ch. 4, § 1, 1529, cited above, as set forth in section 18-605 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided:

"Where part of the executors named in any testament of any person so making or declaring any will of any lands, tenements, or other hereditaments to be sold by his executors, after the death of any such testator, do refuse to take upon him or them the administration and charge of the same testament and last will wherein they be so named to be executors, and the residue of the same executors do accept and take upon them the cure and charge of the same testament and last will; then all bargains and sales of such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, so willed to be sold by the executors of any such testator, as well heretofore made, so hereafter to be made by him or them, only of the said executors that so doth accept, or that heretofore hath accepted and taken upon him or them any such cure or charge of administration of any such will or testament, shall be as good and as effectual in the law, as if all the residue of the same executors named in the said testament, so refusing the administration of the same testament, had joined with him or them in the making of the bargain and sale of such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments so willed to be sold by the executors of any such testators, which heretofore hath made or declared, or that hereafter shall make or declare any such will, of any such lands, tenements or other hereditaments after his decease, to be sold by his executors."

The provisions are rewritten to omit surplusage and modernize the language. See New York Surrogate's Court Act § 224.

Where two or more trustees are appointed by the will to execute a trust, or are empowered to sell, dispose of, or convey lands or other property devised to them jointly, upon the death of any one or more of them the survivors may execute the trust or power. If one of the trustees, in writing, signed by him and attested by a witness, relinquishes or disclaims the trust or refuses to act under the will, and delivers the writing to the Probate Court for record, his right to act ceases, and the remaining trustees appointed by the will may execute the trusts of the will and make sales and execute conveyances and other acts necessary for that purpose. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Effect of death

A trust charged upon the executors, as such, does not become extinct by the death of one of them, and if the executors were authorized to sell real estate, the survivor can sell it. Kennedy v. Mangan (1922, 278 F. 1009, 51 App. D.C. 296).

When will devised real property in trust for missing brother and if not heard from in seven years to have trustees sell, in such case the trustees had power to sell the property after seven years for the benefit of legatees, and equity would limit power to sell only if required by express terms of the will. Id.

§ 20-1106. Authority of court regarding sales of realty; responsibility for proceeds; restrictions on sales; auditor's report; sales without reference to auditor

The Probate Court has plenary authority to administer the real estate situated in the District of Columbia of decedents as far as may be necessary for the payment of funeral expenses, debts, costs of administration, and estate, inheritance and succession taxes, and legacies, and to distribute among those entitled thereto the surplus proceeds of sales of real estate made in the course of the administration. The bonds of executors and administrators are responsible for the proceeds of sale of real estate sold by them under the order of the court for purposes of administration. A sale of real estate may not be made unless it is required for the purposes of paying the above-mentioned charges and such legacies as are chargeable upon the real estate, or, except where consents have been filed with the court as hereinafter provided, until the auditor of the court has ascertained and reported those debts and legacies, the deficiency of personal assets, and the real estate necessary to be sold for the payment of the charges and legacies. Objections to the report may be filed, heard and determined as provided by rules of court. Upon a proper showing by the fiduciary of an estate that the personal estate of a decedent is insufficient to meet all of the aforesaid charges and that all or part of the decedent's real estate must be sold to pay all or part of the said charges, the court may order the sale of all or part of said real estate without reference to the auditor, provided all persons who have an interest in the real estate to be sold shall have filed with the court their consents to the sale thereof. In the event a person having an interest in the said real estate is not sui juris, the court may accept on his behalf the consent of a fiduciary duly appointed for the estate of said person, or may appoint a guardian ad litem who shall have the right to file a consent on behalf of said person. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, § 8, 85 Stat. 314.)

1971—Section 8 of Act Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, amended section—

(1) by inserting in the third sentence immediately after the word "or" the following: ", except where consents have been filed with the court as hereinafter provided,";

(2) by adding the fifth and sixth sentences relating to consent to sale without reference to auditor; and

(3) by adding at the end of the section heading "sales without reference to auditor".

With respect to the auditor's report, the fourth sentence, "Objections to the report may be filed, heard and determined as provided by rules of court", is substituted for the final phrase of section 18-607 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., "and such report shall be subject to exception", to bring this provision into line with current terminology and with what presumably is current practice in any event. See Rule 53(e)(II) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Under Rule 81 thereof those rules do not apply to probate proceedings in the District Court except to appeals in such proceedings, but Rule 1 of the District Court's General Rules provides that the General Rules "apply so far as practicable and to the extent matters of procedure are not specifically provided by statutes to all suits and proceedings in this Court", and that they "shall supplement the Federal Rules of Procedure, Civil and Criminal, and shall be construed in harmony therewith"; and Rule 43(b) of the Court's Probate Rules, provides, with respect to reference to the Court's auditor, as required by the provisions carried into this section, that the "period prescribed by Rule 53(e)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for the filing of objects to the report of the Auditor may be waived in writing if such waiver is signed by all parties who have received notice of the filing of the report".

In the second sentence of the provisions as revised, the reference "the court" is substituted for "said justice" for the purpose of uniformity with the other provisions of the section. There was no other reference to a "justice" in section 18-607 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Allowance of litigation costs

Where testator, prior to his second marriage, had made will giving his property to his stepchildren, but shortly after testator's death a child was born of the second marriage, resulting in litigation and a holding that the will was revoked by the marriage and birth of the child, and the personal estate was insufficient to pay all costs of litigation, the court properly charged against the real estate an allowance to executors for services of their attorneys and an allowance to the infant's guardian ad litem. Pascucci v. Hart (1947, 160 F. 2d 255, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 12).

The authority of the probate court to sell real estate to pay debts and legacies includes the right to sell to pay the ordinary and necessary administration costs, and where litigation was necessary in the establishment of an infant's right to title to realty, the costs of such litigation would be entitled to priority over debts and legacies. Id.

Collateral attack

If the court had jurisdiction, the sale cannot be attacked collaterally. Duncanson v. Manson (1894, 3 App. D.C. 260, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U.S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105).

Decisions under prior law

Prior to the enactment of the Code, the Supreme Court of this District had "jurisdiction and power to decree the sale of the real estate of a deceased debtor, whether the title be legal or equitable, for the payment of debts; and upon the allegation that the deceased was seized * * * and died indebted, there would be furnished a foundation for a decree of sale of such real estate." Duncanson v. Manson (1894, 3 App. D.C. 260, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U.S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105).

Distribution after payment of debts

When the real estate of an intestate is sold in administration proceeding in the District of Columbia for the payment of his debts, there can be no distribution of any part of the proceeds until after payment of all of the estate's debts, and this provision is not limited to debts payable to residents of the District. Wiggins v. Mayer (1928, 22 F. 2d 869, 57 App. D.C. 293).

Executors' expenses

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by former §§ 18-607 to 18-609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

Jurisdiction

District court, in an action for construction of a will, had no authority to order sale of testatrix' realty, such matter being one to be determined by probate court in accordance with applicable sections of District of Columbia. Littlepage et al. v. Hart and Littlepage Jr. (1958, 250 F. 2d 774, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 111).

Personal property must be found to be insufficient

The statute contemplates a prior determination of the insufficiency of the personal property before an administrator can claim rents. Shields v. Shields (1940, 101 F. 2d 255, 69 App. D.C. 331).

§ 20-1107. Bond to prevent sale of real estate

An order for the sale of real estate may not be granted if a person interested in the estate gives bond, with security to be approved by the Probate Court, conditioned to pay all the debts, or legacies, or both, as the case may be, that shall eventually be found due, and the costs of administration. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(1), 84 Stat. 566.)

REVISION NOTES

Executors' expenses

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by former §§ 18-607 to 18-609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

§ 20-1108. Sale of real estate to satisfy debts and legacies

Where the Probate Court is satisfied, upon a report of the auditor, that it is necessary to sell the real estate, or a part thereof, it shall authorize the executor or administrator to sell the property, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the payment of the debts or legacies, or both, on such terms as the court directs. Any surplus of the proceeds of the sale, after payment of debts and legacies and costs of administration, is deemed real estate, and shall be distributed among the heirs or devisees as their interests may appear. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-609 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 148, 31 Stat. 1214).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Effect of directions in will

A conveyance of real estate to trustees with specific directions to sell as soon as possible, converted such property into personalty, by the doctrine of equitable conversion, and was therefore subject to federal estate tax. Tait v. Dante (C.C.A. 4, 1935, 78 F. 2d 303, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 134, 296 U.S. 614, 80 L. Ed. 436).

Executors' expenses

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by former §§ 18-607 to 18-609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

§ 20-1109. Sale of property subject to dower

Where there is a surviving spouse entitled to dower in the real estate of the decedent, the Probate Court, before authorizing a sale of the real estate, shall issue a commission to one or more suitable persons to set off and assign the dower out of the estate, and the dower shall be so assigned. If the court finds that the surviving spouse's dower cannot be set off without injury to the property, if he consents thereto by answer to the petition, the real estate may be sold free of the dower, and the surviving spouse shall receive out of the proceeds a commutation of dower according to the practice in equity. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

The provisions are revised to refer to the dower of a surviving spouse, rather than to that of a widow only, as a surviving husband now also has a right of dower, given to him by statute. See section 19-102 herein, and revision note thereunder.

Changes are made in phraseology.

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 20-1110. Appointment of trustee to sell real estate; bond

When a person dies having devised real estate to be sold, without having appointed a trustee to sell the property, or if the person so appointed neglects or refuses to execute the trust, or dies before the execution of the trust, the Probate Court may, on the application of a person interested, appoint a trustee to sell and convey the property and apply the proceeds of sale to the purposes intended. Where a trustee is appointed by last will to execute a trust, and a person interested in the execution of the trust makes it appear that it is necessary for the safety of those interested therein that the trustee should give bond and security for the due execution of the trust, the Court may order and direct that a bond be given by the trustee by a day named, and on failure of the trustee to give the bond, with security to be approved by the court as directed, the court may displace the trustee and appoint another in his stead, who shall give the bond. The bond may be sued on for the use of a person interested. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(6), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(6) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Probate Court", and by striking out "shall be given to the United States and".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 15-707.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-611 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 94, 31 Stat. 1204).

"United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and "District Court" are substituted for "equity court" and "said court", respectively, to conform the terms with the existing organization and practice of the court. See revision note under section 18-110 herein. The District Court possesses general equity powers.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Removal of trustee

Where testator devised realty in trust to cotrustees, and the trustees were incompatible, and one trustee had employed obstructionist tactics to hinder execution of trust by the other, and had taken no steps himself to execute the trust, under District of Columbia Code, court would appoint other trustee as sole trustee. Hughes et al. v. Hughes (D.C.D.C. 1953, 112 F. Supp. 899).

When a person dies leaving real estate in possession, remainder, or reversion, and not leaving personal estate sufficient to pay his debts, the Court, on a suit instituted by any of his creditors, may decree that all the real estate left by the person, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be sold to pay the charges mentioned in section 20-1106. This section applies whether the heirs or devisees are residents or nonresidents, are of full age or infants, and are of sound mind or are insane, and also where the deceased left no heirs or it is not known whether he left heirs or devisees or the heirs or devisees are unknown. Where there are no known heirs the United States attorney for the District of Columbia shall be notified of the suit and appear therein. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-612 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 96, 31 Stat. 1204).

"United States District Court for the District of Columbia" is substituted for "said equity court". See revision notes under sections 20-1111 and 18-110 herein.

Words "or are insane" are substituted for "or non compos mentis", for the purpose of uniformity. For definition of "insane person", see section 21-501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Collateral attack

If sale of real estate is made under a decree, an infant cannot successfully in later proceeding, collaterally attack the decree when he was present in person and did not object to appointment of guardian for him. Duncanson v. Manson (1894, 3 App. D.C. 260, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U.S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105).

Parties

In a creditors' bill filed for purpose of subjecting real estate of a deceased person as assets to payment of his debts, the executor or administrator is a necessary party, but if there are no personal assets, and consequently no qualified executor or administrator, a creditors' bill may be maintained without executor or administrator. Plumb v. Bateman (1894, 2 App. D.C. 156).

Personal estate insufficient

Allegation and proof of deficiency in personal assets is jurisdictional in proceedings under this section. Dahlgren v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (1913, 41 App. D.C. 201).

In suit brought under this section by creditors of a decedent, a decree ordering the sale of decedent's real estate for payment of creditors' claims was affirmed, the personal estate being insufficient to pay them. West v. McLaughlin (1927, 18 F. 2d 813, 57 App. D.C. 163).

Disputed claims

"Under section 330 of the code (this section) the approval of a claim properly proved relieves the executor or administrator from liability if he elects to pay it; but, by section 342 (§ 18-516) he may contest it at law, and in such action the approval of the probate court is deprived of even evidentiary value * * *. It is settled in this District that the probate court is without jurisdiction to compel an executor or administrator to pay a claim asserted against a decedent's estate." Miniggio v. Hutchins (1915, 43 App. D.C. 117).

Liability of executor or administrator

This section was designed to relieve the executor or administrator from liability if he should elect to pay claims passed upon by the court, or properly proved. Clawans v. Sheets (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

Suit

There is nothing in this section which prevents suit on a claim which has neither been exhibited to the executor legally authenticated nor passed by the probate court. Clawans v. Sheets (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

§ 20-1302. Judgment or decree; voucher or proof

The voucher or proof of a judgment or decree shall be a short copy thereof under seal, attested by the clerk of the court where it was obtained, who shall certify that the judgment or decree has not been satisfied. There shall likewise be a certificate of a person authorized to administer oaths, indorsed on or annexed to a statement of the debt due on the judgment or decree, that the creditor or his agent since the death of the deceased has taken before him the following oath: "That the creditor has not received any part of the sum for which the judgment or decree was passed except such part (if any) as is credited". Where the creditor on the judgment or decree is an assignee of the person who obtained it, the oath shall continue, as follows: "and that to the best of his knowledge or belief no other person has received any part of the sum except such part (if any) as is credited". An assignee shall also produce the assignment under the hand of the assignor. Where there is more than one assignment, each assignment shall be produced under the hand of the party assigning. Where the claim is for rent, there shall be produced the lease itself, or the deposition of a credible witness, or an acknowledgment in writing of the deceased, establishing the contract and the time which has elapsed during which rent was chargeable, and a statement of the sum due for the rent, with an oath of the creditor or agent indorsed thereon "that no part of the sum due for the rent or any security or satisfaction for the same has been received except what (if any) is credited."

The proof of a claim for rent in arrears, in order to render the claim a preferred claim, shall be the proofs and vouchers for rent specified by this section, and proof that the claim is such that an attachment therefor might be levied on the deceased's goods and chattels in the hands of the administrator. The preference given for rent does not impair the landlord's right of attachment where he believes it proper to exercise the right. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. ## § 20-1308. Claims outside of District

When an affidavit or deposition to prove claims has been taken out of the District of Columbia, it is valid if taken and certified by a notary public as provided by this chapter, or by a person there authorized to administer oaths, and certified to be such under the seal of the clerk of a court of record, or by an officer having official cognizance of the fact, and the oath shall be as available as if taken before an officer authorized to administer oaths within the District of Columbia. The additional certificate specified by this section is not required as to notaries public within the United States or a place under the jurisdiction thereof when the seal of the notary is attached. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-510 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 337, 31 Stat. 1244; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1309. Executor's or administrator's claim to be under oath

Where a creditor is an executor or an administrator his claim may not be received, although vouched and approved as provided by this chapter, unless he makes oath, to be certified as provided by this chapter, "that it does not appear from any book or writing of his decedent that any part of the claim has been discharged except what (if any) is credited, and that to the best of the deponent's knowledge and belief no part of the claim has been discharged and no security or satisfaction given for it except what (if any) is credited." (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 20-1310. Plea of limitations within discretion of executor or administrator

An executor or administrator is not required to avail himself of the statute of limitations to bar what he supposes to be a just claim. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Approval of court

Under this section providing that it shall not be duty of executor or administrator to avail himself of act of limitations to bar what he supposes to be just claim but matter shall be left to his honesty and discretion, administrator first passes upon justice of barred claims then, such claims must be critically examined by probate court and they may not be allowed unless court is satisfied that they are just. Helen Rothenberg, Caveator, etc. v. Rothenberg (1959, 273 F. 2d 825, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 11).

§ 20-1311. Claims may be rejected and disputed

An executor or administrator is not required to discharge a claim of which vouchers and proofs have been exhibited as provided by this chapter, but may reject and at law dispute the claim where he has reason to believe that the deceased never owed the debt, or had discharged it, or a part thereof, or had a claim in bar. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-516 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 342, 31 Stat. 1244).

Changes are made in phraseology.

In general

An executor or administrator may contest a claim properly proved at law. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

Executors special undertaking

Although executrix in giving a special undertaking rendered herself personally liable for all debts and just claims against testator, special bond given by executrix did not guarantee claimant's right to recover on claim rejected by executrix and claimants were required to sue within statutory period. Selby and Fuller v. McNeill (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 160).

§ 20-1312. Passing of claims not conclusive

An order made by the Probate Court that an account or claim will pass when paid is not valid to establish the claim or account. Where the executor or administrator thinks fit to contest it, the account or claim does not derive validity from the order, but shall be proved in the same manner as if the order had not been made. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

Effect of passing claim

The probate court is without jurisdiction to compel an executor to pay a claim asserted against a decedent's estate. J. F. Bird et al., Executors etc. v. C. B. Sullivan Jr. (1963, 316 F. 2d 675, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

A probate court's approval, however expressed, of a claim against an estate is in legal effect an order that claim will pass when paid, but if executor or administrator contests claim, probate court's order approving it is deprived of even evidential effect. Id.

An executor or administrator may contest at law a claim properly proved, and, in such action, the approval of the probate court by this section is deprived of even evidentiary effect. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

§ 20-1313. Payment of claims

An executor or administrator shall, within thirteen months from the date of his letters, or within such further time, not exceeding four months, as the Probate Court allows on his making oath that he has reason to apprehend that the personal estate and assets which are or shall be in his hands will be insufficient to discharge the just debts of and claims against the deceased, discharge all the claims known to him or pay each claimant his just proportion of the money then in his hands, retaining as directed by this chapter. Also, he shall, once in every six months after the first distribution, make a distribution of the money which has since come to his hands until he has fully administered, and on failure his administration bond may be sued upon. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-519 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 344, 31 Stat. 1244).

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 20-1315.

§ 20-1314. Notice of distribution

When an executor or administrator is to make payment or distribution among the creditors of his decedent, he may give notice three successive weeks previously in a convenient newspaper of the time and place for making it. If a creditor does not attend in person or by agent or attorney to receive the amount or proportionable part of his claim, all interest on the claim or proportionable part ceases from that time. The executor or administrator shall at any time thereafter, on demand, pay the claims, or a proportionable part, to the party, his agent, or duly authorized attorney. When the executor or administrator proceeds to make an additional payment or dividend he may advertise as provided by this section, and interest ceases as also provided by this section. If, at the time for the making of an additional dividend, a just claim, established as directed by this chapter, is exhibited, the creditor is entitled to such sum as will place him on an equal footing with those who have already received a dividend. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-522 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 345, 31 Stat. 1244).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1315. Retaining for claims

An executor or administrator shall pay all just claims against his decedent exhibited to him, or a just proportionable part thereof, according to the assets. Where a claim is known to him, although it is not exhibited, he shall retain the assets, or a just proportionable part, for the benefit of the creditor. Where an executor or administrator has actual knowledge of a claim which has not been exhibited or passed he shall give notice in writing to the creditor, requiring the claim to be either exhibited or passed, as provided by this chapter, within 30 days if the creditor is a resident of the District of Columbia, and within 90 days if he is a nonresident. After the expiration of that period, and after the expiration of the period for distribution provided by section 20-1313, the executor or administrator may not be required to retain any part of the estate for the benefit of the creditor, unless in the meantime the claim has been so exhibited or passed. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-523 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 346, 31 Stat. 1245).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Basis for rejection

Where claimant filed a duly authenticated claim with the office of the register of wills and the claim was entered on the claims docket, ruling that the executor could take notice of the claim from the court's records, and effectively reject it, was erroneous, since the only way in which the executor could reject the claim was if there was an actual exhibition of the claim to him, legally authenticated. Lewis v. Smith, Executor, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 188).

Failure to exhibit

This section does not provide that failure to exhibit in response to the notice will bar the claim. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

Sufficiency of exhibition

The exhibition of an authenticated claim prior to the appointment of the executor was a sufficient exhibition so that, upon qualification, executor could make an effective rejection of it, and where the claimant did not bring suit thereon within three months, he was barred by the short statute of limitations. Lewis v. Smith, Executor, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 188).

§ 20-1316. Executor or administrator to withhold amount claimed pending litigation

Where an action is commenced against an executor or administrator for the recovery of a larger debt or damages than he considers due, so that it cannot be ascertained before verdict, the executor or administrator may retain such sum to meet the debt or damages as the Probate Court allows. Where more than enough is allowed, the party shall afterwards account for it, but a sum may not be retained on account of the further debt or damages when the court is satisfied that there will be money sufficient coming in after the dividend to meet the damages, or a just proportion thereof, regard being had to other claims. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-524 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 347, 31 Stat. 1245).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1317. Claims of executors and administrators to be passed by Court

An executor or administrator may not be allowed to retain for his own claim against the decedent, unless the claim is passed by the Probate Court. Such a claim stands on an equal footing with other claims of the same nature. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-512 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 339, 31 Stat. 1244).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Examination by court

Administratrix' claims against estate will be critically examined by probate court and will not be allowed unless the court is satisfied that they are good. Perkins v. Berger (1945, 145 F. 2d 856, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 286).

Submission to court

An executrix was precluded from asserting her claim to certain securities on theory that she was entitled thereto under a joint venture agreement with decedent, where executrix failed to submit her claim to the probate court, filed an account which omitted all reference to her purported claim, and without authority of the court retained assets bequeathed by terms of the will to decedent's sister. M. J. de Pingre v. M. Weissappel (1963, 322 F. 2d 415, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 202).

§ 20-1318. Period during which creditors may file suit after claim is contested

If a claim is exhibited against an executor or administrator which he considers his duty to dispute or reject, he may retain in his hands assets proportioned to the amount of the claim, which assets shall be liable to other claims, or to be delivered up or distributed in case the claim is not established. If, on a claim exhibited and disputed, the creditor or claimant does not, within three months after the dispute or rejection, commence a suit for recovery, he is forever barred. On a dividend to be made three months after the dispute or rejection and failure to bring suit, the executor or administrator may proceed to pay or distribute as if he had no knowledge or notice of the claim or as if it did not exist. If the claim is sued upon within the three-month period, it may be ascertained by verdict or otherwise, and the court shall proceed as directed by this chapter, regard being had to the rules laid down by this chapter as to the notice to be given by the executor or administrator and distribution or payment shall be made after the notice. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Immediately after the provision that the creditor should be forever barred if the creditor should not commence suit within three months after the dispute or rejection, the following provision appeared in section 18-518 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.: "and the executor or administrator may plead this section in bar, together with the general issue or other plea proper to bring the merits of the cause to trial". This provision is omitted as obsolete, as such matters of procedure are now covered by court rules—in the District Court, by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure; and in the Court of General Sessions, by its rules governing practice and procedure in civil actions in its civil division, promulgated pursuant to former section 11-756(b) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which, along with other former sections, is now section 13-101 of the Code. See, particularly, Rules 7, 8 and 12 in each group of rules.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Computation of time

If legally authenticated claim is exhibited to executor or administrator and he rejects it, his rejection sets in motion running of three-month statute of limitations and any claim sued on more than three months after rejection is barred. F. M. Graham, formerly F. M. Frel, Administratrix etc. v. S. Gordon etc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 838).

Where endorser of installment note had brought action against estate for face amount of note but was awarded judgment only for installments which he had paid, subsequent action which sought to recover additional installments paid and which was commenced more than three months after administratrix had rejected his prior claim was not barred by three-month statute of limitations. Id.

Construction

Statute creating three-month limitation period for asserting claim which had been rejected by executor or administrator must be strictly construed. F. M. Graham, formerly F. M. Frel, Administratrix etc. v. S. Gordon etc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 838).

Administrator may not start running of short statute of limitations by rejecting claim which has not been authenticated. Id.

Where claim originally rejected is different in form from claim sued upon, short statute of limitations does not bar suit. Id.

Effect of other decision on issue of jurisdiction

In an action to enforce default judgment rendered by New York court, federal court's dismissal of defendants' counterclaim was not res judicata on issue of validity of the New York judgment, where issue of jurisdiction of New York Court to render that judgment, although mentioned in defendants' points and authorities in opposition to motion to dismiss, was apparently not the determinative factor in that decision, and order of dismissal did not indicate that it was based on finding that New York court had jurisdiction, and there was no reference in the order to question of jurisdiction. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Plaintiff who sued to enforce default judgment rendered by New York court was not entitled to judgment on pleadings because the federal court for District of Columbia previously had granted plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendants' counterclaim which had alleged invalidity of the New York judgment, where the reason for dismissing counterclaim was not enunciated. Id.

Enforcement of foreign judgment

Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings treated as a motion for summary judgment, in an action to enforce a default judgment rendered by a New York court on a note executed by defendants' decedent would be denied, where defendants' allegations in opposition to the motion including showing that only connection with New York state was that note provided that the note should be governed by New York laws raised genuine issues of material fact which, if proved, would establish that New York court lacked jurisdiction. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Full faith and credit

Full faith and credit clause of the Constitution did not preclude an inquiry by the federal court in District of Columbia in an action brought to enforce a default judgment entered by New York Supreme Court into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment sought to be enforced. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Inquiry into jurisdiction of foreign court

In an action to enforce default judgment rendered by a New York court, in making inquiry into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment federal court was bound to apply the law of New York applicable to question of jurisdiction rather than the District of Columbia law notwithstanding the jurisdictional standards of the District of Columbia might not support a judgment such as the one rendered by the New York court. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

In an action to enforce a default judgment rendered by a New York court against defendants who were not served in New York, federal court was not precluded from inquiring into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment on grounds that defendants were required to go into New York state to contest jurisdiction since defendants were free to ignore the proceedings and ultimately resist any enforcement of default judgment since if judgment-rendering court lacked jurisdiction, the judgment was a nullity. Id.

Action against devisee

A right of action by decedent's creditors to subject decedent's property in hands of devisee under decedent's will to payment of plaintiffs' claims was not extinguished by their failure to institute action against executor of decedent's estate within three months, limited by this section, after executor's rejection of claims. Robinson v. Henderson (D.C.D.C. 1956, 145 F. Supp. 463).

Claim in process of administration

The 1949 amendment to this section reducing from nine to three months the period for bringing suit on rejected claim against estate was not intended to apply to claim against estate in process of administration at time of enactment of statute, and hence action for services rendered deceased and not compensated for in deceased's will as promised by deceased could be instituted within nine months after rejection of claim, where this section was amended after administration of estate had begun. Kalis v. Leahy (1951, 183 F. 2d 633, 88 U.S.

App. D.C. 166, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 797, 341 U.S. 926, 95 L. Ed. 1858)

Computation of time

A claim so exhibited and disputed is specifically barred, unless suit for its recovery is commenced within nine months after its rejection. National Sav. & Trust Co. v. Ryan (1920, 262 F. 613, 49 App. D.C. 159). See, also, Clawans v. Sheets (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

If a claim is exhibited to the executor, legally authenticated, and the executor rejects it, his rejection sets in motion the running of the three-month statute of limitations, and any claim sued upon more than three months after rejection is barred. Lewis v. Smith, Executor, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 188).

The exhibition of an authenticated claim prior to the appointment of the executor was a sufficient exhibition so that, upon qualification, executor could make an effective rejection of it, and where the claimant did not bring suit thereon within three months, he was barred by the short statute of limitations. Id.

Action on claim against testator's estate filed more than two years and 11 months after rejection of claim by executrix was barred. McNeill and Fuller v. Selby (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 160).

Although executrix in giving a special undertaking rendered herself personally liable for all debts and just claims against testator, special bond given by executrix did not guarantee claimant's right to recover on claim rejected by executrix and claimants were required to sue within statutory period. Id.

Construction

This section is designed to facilitate the administration and distribution of estate, but since it is an exceptional abbreviation of the general statute of limitations, it must be given a construction almost penal in its strictness, and hence if an executor rejects a claim which has not been exhibited to him, legally authenticated, his attempted rejection does not start the running of the short statute of limitations. Lewis v. Smith, Executor, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 188).

Decisions under prior law

Prior to enactment of the Code, law of Maryland as to limitations was in force in the District. Glover v. Patten (1897, 17 S. Ct. 411, 165 U.S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760).

§ 20-1319. Executor or administrator not responsible for claims made after distribution

When all the assets have been paid away, delivered, or distributed as directed by this chapter, and afterwards a claim is exhibited of which the executor or administrator has no knowledge or notice by the exhibition of the claim legally authenticated, as required by this chapter, he is not answerable for it. When he is sued for a claim and makes it appear to the court in which suit is brought that he has so paid away, delivered, or distributed, and the plaintiff cannot prove that the defendant had notice as herein specified before the payment, delivery, or distribution, the court, although the amount of the claim against the deceased may be ascertained, may not give judgment until the plaintiff is able to show further assets coming into the defendant's hands; but if the plaintiff proves notice, as herein specified, of the claim against the defendant, judgment may be immediately given for such sum as the plaintiff ought to have received at the dividend, and fieri facias may issue and have effect, and further judgment may be given on the coming in of further assets. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D. C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-525 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 349, 31 Stat. 1245).

In general

An executor is exonerated as to any claims as to which he had not legal notice prior to distribution. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

§ 20-1320. Notice to creditors to file claims

An executor or administrator who, after six months from the date of his letters, pays away assets to the discharge of just claims is not answerable for any claim of which he had no knowledge or notice by an exhibition of the claim legally authenticated, if, at least three months before he makes distribution he causes to be inserted in as many newspapers as the Probate Court directs, a notice to the following effect: "This is to give notice that the subscriber, of _____, has obtained from the Probate Court letters testamentary (or of administration) on the personal estate of _____, late of _____, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscriber on or before the _____ day of _____ next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the estate.

"Given under my hand this _____ day of _____." (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(7), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(7) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section striking out "Probate Court of the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Probate Court".

Claim in process of administration

The 1949 amendment to former § 18-518 reducing from nine to three months the period for bringing suit on rejected claim against estate was not intended to apply to claim against estate in process of administration at time of enactment and hence action for services rendered deceased and not compensated for in deceased's will as promised by deceased could be instituted within nine months after rejection of claim, where former § 18-518 was amended after administration of estate had begun. *Kalis v. ## Historical

This section is similar to the Maryland Act of 1798 as amended (Acts 1828, ch. 131, § 2). Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

§ 20-1321. Report and proof of notice

The executor or administrator may report to the court, with an affidavit of the proof thereof annexed, the fact of having given the notice specified by

§ 20-1323. Docket of claims

The Register of Wills shall enter in a suitable book, to be provided by him for that purpose, all claims against a decedent as they are regularly passed by the Probate Court, giving the date of the passage, the name of the creditor, the character of the claim, whether on note or open account, bond, bill, obligation, judgment, or other evidence of debt, and the amount thereof; and the entry of a claim upon the docket constitutes notice to the executor or administrator of its existence. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

This section is referred to in section 20-1324.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Notice of claim

The executor is charged with notice of claims only in case they shall be exhibited to him, legally, and then treated, or shall have been passed by the probate court and entered by the register of wills upon his docket. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

§ 20-1324. Filed claim no evidence of correctness if disputed; filing as tolling limitations

A claim entered on the docket as provided by section 20-1323 does not afford evidence as to the justice or correctness of a debt therein entered when it is controverted by an executor or administrator in a suit instituted for the recovery of the debt; and it does not take a debt out of the operation of a defense of limitations. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Word "defense" is substituted for "plea", to conform with current practice and procedure. See Rules 7, 8 and 12 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the rules governing civil actions in the civil division of the Court of General Sessions, respectively.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1325. Priorities

(a) The debts of the decedent shall be paid according to the following priority:

(1) funeral expenses, according to the condition and circumstances of the deceased, not exceeding $600;

(2) claims for rent in arrears for which an attachment might be levied by law;

(3) judgments and decrees of courts in the District of Columbia;

(4) all other just claims, which shall be on an equal footing, without priority.

(b) Where there are not sufficient assets to discharge all the judgments and decrees specified in item (3) of subsection (a) of this section, a proportionate dividend shall be made between the judgment and decree creditors.

(c) This section is subject to section 19-101 and chapter 21 of this title relating to the family allowance and the administration of small estates. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

The provisions set out as subsec. (c) are new as text, but are in accordance with existing law, considering the enactment, in 1949, of section 18-801 et seq. of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., relating to family allowance and the administration of small estates, the provisions of which are carried into section 19-101 herein and chapter 21 of this revised title.

Application of statutes

The statutes are equally applicable to the administration of all estates in the District, whether domiciliary or ancillary. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1939, 105 F. 2d 768, 70 App. D.C. 245, 124 A.L.R. 1268).

Funeral expenses

Former §§ 18-520 and 20-605 limiting the amount for funeral expenses to $600 merely provided for a limitation on the amount which might be given priority over claims of other creditors and beneficiaries, and not an invariable maximum that was required always to be observed, and therefore claim for funeral expenses in amount of $3,863 was properly ordered to be paid pro rata with other general claims lawfully payable out of deceased's estate. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 52 A. 2d 280).

Executors were not controlled by limitation of former §§ 18-520 and 20-605 in view of discretionary authority granted them by will empowering executors to pay funeral expenses in such amount as they deemed proper, but they were bound to act in good faith and expend only such amount as in their discretion they deemed proper. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (1948, 168 F. 2d 571, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 4 A.L.R. 2d 990).

Executors did not have burden to establish good faith and sound discretionary action under provision of will empowering them to pay funeral expenses in such amount as they deemed proper, and burden was on funeral establishment which attacked their action, to prove the charge. Id.

Former §§ 18-520 and 20-605 relating to funeral expenses limited amount allowable for funeral expenses in absence of authority by testator to contrary and even then such sections should have controlled where estate was solvent. Id.

Judgment not docketed

Judgment of municipal court not docketed in Supreme Court is not entitled to preference. In re Neuland's Estate (44 W. L. R. 378).

Monument

An allowance to executrix for purchase of monument placed over grave of deceased is proper, where the rights of creditors have not been prejudiced. Sinnott v. Kenaday (1899, 14 App. D.C. 1, reversed on other grounds 21 S. Ct. 233, 179 U.S. 606, 45 L. Ed. 339).

§ 20-1326. No claim to be noticed unless legally authenticated

An executor or administrator is not bound to discharge a claim against his decedent unless it is exhibited to him, legally authenticated, or unless the claim has been passed by the Probate Court and entered by the Register of Wills upon his docket. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-502 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 357, 31 Stat. 1247).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction

The meaning of this section is to be deduced from the language of its heading as well as from the language of the body thereof. Clawans v. Sheetz (1937, 92 F. 2d 517, 67 App. D.C. 366).

The phrase "To be noticed" and the words "To discharge" must be read together to determine the meaning of the statute. Id.

§ 20-1327. Meeting of creditors

An executor or administrator may appoint a meeting of creditors on a day approved by the court, and passage of claims, payment, or distribution may be there made under the court's direction and control. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18-521 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 358, 31 Stat. 1247).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1328. Distribution of residue

When it appears by the first or other account of an executor or administrator that all the claims against, or debts of, the decedent which have been known by or notified to him have been discharged or allowed for in his account, he shall deliver up and distribute the surplus or residue of the personal estate not disposed of by a will, as directed by chapters 3 and 7 of title 19, but his power and duty with respect to future assets do not cease. After the delivery he is not liable for debts afterwards notified to him, when he has advertised as directed by this chapter, unless assets afterwards come into his hands which are answerable for debts. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 20-1329. Creditor's rights against property of non-resident decedent; limitation

(a) On the death of a person not domiciled in the District of Columbia at the time of his death so much of his real and personal estate in the District of Columbia as may be necessary for the payment and discharge of just claims against him of creditors and persons domiciled in the District of Columbia are also the subject of administration under authority and direction of the Probate Court, irrespective of the personal estate of the decedent at his place of domicile or elsewhere.

(b) The prosecution of claims referred to by subsection (a) of this section shall be commenced within six months after the death of the decedent. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Effect of appointment of guardian of nonresident minor's estate

Appointment by a local court of a guardian of a non-resident minor's estate on basis that situs of property in which minor had alleged interest was in District of Columbia did not change domicile of minor and the appointment did not, in and of itself, make the nonresident a local creditor or give local-creditor-basis for denying transfer of funds of deceased from local ancillary proceedings to domiciliary proceedings in Florida. M. N. Suydam, etc., et al. v. J. E. Suydam (1968, 404 F. 2d 1332, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Transfer of funds to domiciliary administration

Granting of motion to transfer funds from ancillary to domiciliary proceedings in Florida after full evidentiary hearing was an exercise of discretion. M. N. Suydam, etc., et al. v. J. E. Suydam (1968, 404 F. 2d 1332, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Court on motion of ancillary administratrix properly transferred funds of deceased to Florida where domiciliary administration took place where there were no locally domiciled creditors but rather only a nonresident's claim presented locally. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Constitutionality

This section properly construed does not give an unconstitutional preference to local creditors over non-resident creditors. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1939, 105 F. 2d 768, 70 App. D.C. 245, 124 A.L.R. 1268).

Insolvent estates

The correct rule in the administration of an insolvent estate is to marshal the assets and distribute them ratably among creditors of the same class, irrespective of their source. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (1945, 149 F. 2d 825, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Law governing interest

In ancillary administration proceedings in estate of a Maryland resident, question as to rate of interest allowable on claims against estate was to be determined under District of Columbia law. Hightstown Rug Co. v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (1947, 162 F. 2d 10, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

Liability for non-payment

Fact that voluntary payment by local debtor of local assets to a foreign domiciliary executor or administrator might afford a valid acquittance of the debt under some circumstances does not establish that a debtor who refuses to pay such assets voluntarily to such foreign representative should be held liable in damages. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C.D.C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

A bank which refused to make payment to foreign domiciliary executor of testatrix's funds held by bank in checking and savings accounts until elapse of period of one year within which local debtors could assert their claims against the assets, unless otherwise protected against such claims, was not liable for interest on the funds withheld, as damages. Id.

Measure of tax on encumbered property

While a tax on inheritance or succession is not a property tax but a duty or excise laid on the privilege of taking property by descent, it is measured by the market value of the transferred property at the time the owner died. Hyman v. District of Columbia (1957, 247 F. 2d 585, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 179).

Where an unqualified devise transfers legal title, if it is encumbered at the date of death, the then market value of the property transferred is the gross value, less the encumbrance for inheritance tax purposes. Id.

Where decedent owed her brother a large sum of money and her will provided that if he had a claim on her realty interest, devise thereof should be "subject to such claim or lien" District of Columbia Inheritance Tax should have been computed not on the gross value of the realty received by the brother, but on the value thereof after the brother's claim thereon had been deducted. Id.

Participating creditors

Where insolvent nonresident died possessed of property in the District of Columbia, ancillary administrator was appointed, but no claims were filed by local creditors, and only two nonresident creditors presented claims, the District Probate Court had discretionary power to require that other creditors, who had filed claims in the domiciliary estate, be given notice and allowed to participate with creditors who had filed claims in ancillary estate. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (1945, 149 F. 2d 825, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Purpose

This section is intended for the protection of local creditors. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (1945, 149 F. 2d 825, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Remedy

Under this section, local creditors are given an opportunity to assert their claims against local assets of a decedent domiciled elsewhere. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C.D.C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

Time for action against ancillary

This section, making property of nonresident decedent subject of administration in District of Columbia " * * * Provided, The prosecution of such claims is begun in said court within six months after the death of such decedent", does not place time limitation on filing of action by local creditor against ancillary administrator. Stitt v. Simpson Admt'x etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 719).

Time for assertion of claims

Former § 18-518 reducing from nine to three months the period for bringing suit on rejected claim against estate was not intended to apply to claim against estate in process of administration at time of enactment of statute, and hence action for services rendered deceased and not compensated for in deceased's will as promised by deceased could be instituted within nine months after rejection of claim, where section was amended after administration of estate had begun. Kalis v. Leahy (1951, 183 F. 2d 633, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 166, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 797, 341 U.S. 926, 95 L. Ed. 1358).

Former § 18-501 providing that District of Columbia assets of a nonresident decedent were subject to claims of persons domiciled in District, and subject to administration in District, provided prosecution of claims was begun within six months after death of decedent, was intended to extend protection to local creditors for six months only, and where no claims were filed against bank account of a nonresident decedent within six months of death bank was required to honor demand of nonresident representative Gearheart, Jr., Administrator, v. Bank of Commerce & Savings (D.C.D.C. 1956, 138 F. Supp. 472).

Ordinarily, the period of one year fixed by former § 18-501 was period that local debtor might reasonably await assertion of claims of local creditors before making payment to a foreign domiciliary executor or administrator, unless otherwise protected against such claims. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C.D.C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

Transmission of funds

Where there were no locally domiciled creditors, the probate court might, in its discretion, order the funds in hands of ancillary administrator to be transmitted to the domiciliary administrator, even though some creditors from other states had presented their claims locally. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (1945, 149 F. 2d 825, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Chapter 15.—SUITS

Sec.

- 20-1501. Suits by and against executors and administrators.
- 20-1502. Judgments against executor or administrator; amount of damages; when assessed.
- 20-1503. Concealment of assets by strangers.
- 20-1504. Concealment by executor or administrator.
- 20-1505. Suits by foreign executors and administrators.
- 20-1506. Suits on bonds against heirs.

(a) Executors and administrators may commence and prosecute any civil action which the testator or intestate might have commenced and prosecuted, and may be sued in any civil action which might have been maintained against the deceased.

(b) In a civil action based on a tort claim, brought by or against an executor or administrator, the right of action conferred by this section is limited to damages for personal injury. It does not include the right to recover for pain and suffering. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-501 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 327, 31 Stat. 1241; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 19, 1948, ch. 508, § 2, 62 Stat. 488; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

In one place, "civil action" is substituted for "personal action at law or in equity", and in another, "civil action" is substituted for "action at law or in equity", to conform with Rules 2, respectively, of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions. Those rules provide that in ordinary civil cases there shall be only one form of action, to be known as a "civil action".

The restriction, in section 20-501 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., of suits against executors and administrators to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, is omitted from this section as superseded by former section 11-755(a) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which is now section 11-961(a) of the Code, and under which such suits, if within the jurisdictional amount therein specified, shall be brought in the Court of General Sessions.

The provision excluding damages for pain and suffering in civil actions based on tort claims is separated from the other provisions and placed in subsec. (b) of this section, where it is reworded for the purpose of clarification. See Phillips v. Lust (D.C.D.C. 1949), 82 F. Supp. 63.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Attachment or garnishment

The District Court for District of Columbia has exclusive jurisdiction of suits against an executor on claims against the estate, but an attachment or garnishment directed to an executor, in connection with an action against a third party who claims an interest in the estate, is not a "suit against executor" within jurisdiction of district court. Frank v. Malone (1942, 126 F. 2d 651, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 296).

Compromise

Where executor reasonably believed that estate was entitled to claim Government bonds notwithstanding their registration in names of decedent or another person, and reasonably claimed an interest in savings account deposits which were made entirely from decedent's money, and when question of ownership of bonds and deposits was first raised, such other person might have made claim of complete ownership of both, the situation furnished the basis for a valid compromise and settlement of the respective claims. Magruder v. National Metropolitan Bank of Wash. (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 828).

Construction

While perhaps proviso excepting damages for pain and suffering is somewhat inartistically drawn, nevertheless it is not ambiguous and the legislative history supports this conclusion. Phillips v. Lust (D.C.D.C. 1949, 82 F. Supp. 63).

Jurisdiction

"An executor or administrator cannot be sued in another jurisdiction than that which the administration of the estate is depending, for an accounting, or for acts involving the administration of the estate, or the assets thereof in his hands as such executor or administrator." Johns v. Herbert (1894, 2 App. D.C. 485).

If, however, he becomes a trustee of the property, after the estate should be closed, "he is amenable to suit in the courts of any jurisdiction within which he may be found." Id.

"An administrator or executor cannot sue or be sued in his representative capacity in any other jurisdiction than the one of his appointment, except where it is permitted by the laws of the jurisdiction in which the suit is sought to be maintained." Bryan v. Curtis (1908, 30 App. D.C. 234).

The right conferred by § 329 of the 1901 code (§ 20-505) does not imply "that suit can be maintained in the courts of the District against such administrator or executor." Id.

Section 1 of the Municipal Court Act (41 Stat. 1310), this section, and § 328 of the 1901 code (§ 20-502) are in part materia, and must be construed together. The municipal court has no jurisdiction over suits against executors or administrators. Sanford v. Sanford (1923, 286 F. 777, 52 App. D.C. 315).

Parties

Where mortgagor executed mortgage covering Pennsylvania realty and died resident of Pennsylvania, mortgagor's administrator was a "necessary party" to suit for an accounting against mortgagees by executrix of estate of mortgagor's mother who was the mortgagor's sole heir. Cain v. Hutson (1942, 127 F. 2d 19, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 335, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U.S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

Reliance on status

In a prior case, former § 20-501 was construed as not only permitting but requiring the presence of an executor as a plaintiff in action of this nature, and as such case has not been changed or overruled, etc., executors were warranted in relying upon the Code provision, so construed, as direct statutory authority to institute action to avoid a deed. Ransey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

Res judicata

Where success of executrix in suit to set aside testator's sale of realty would inure solely to individual benefit of executrix as sole beneficiary under will, ordinary distinction between her representative and her individual capacity was not material for purposes of application of doctrine of res judicata by virtue of prior ejectment suit against executrix individually. Jamison v. Garrett (1953, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 232, 205 F. 2d 15).

Where former ejectment action brought by grantee of realty against possessor who claimed an equitable title under grantor's oral agreement to devise was settled by stipulation which provided that possessor should receive payment for all rights and should deliver to grantee a quitclaim deed, judgment therein, which incorporated stipulation, was res judicata of subsequent suit by possessor, as executrix of grantor's will of which she was sole beneficiary, to set aside sale of realty to grantee, but in which she failed to assert any ground which was unknown to her at time of ejectment action. Id.

Sale by executor

When will directs the executor to sell the real estate of testator, the legal title vests in him and he has the power to convey, and also authority to enforce specific performance of contract for the sale. Griffith v. Stewart (1908, 31 App. D.C. 29, affirmed 30 S. Ct. 528, 217 U.S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

§ 20-1502. Judgments against executor or administrator; amount of damages; when assessed

(a) When the verdict of the jury in a suit against an executor or administrator is against the defendant, or he is willing to confess judgment, and the debt or damages which the deceased, if alive, ought to pay, is ascertained by verdict, or confession, or otherwise, the court shall assess the sum which the executor or administrator ought to pay, regard being had to the amount of assets in his hands and the debts due to other persons. When it appears to the court that there are assets to discharge all just claims against the deceased, the judgment shall be for the whole debt or damages found by the jury, or confessed, or otherwise ascertained, and costs. When it appears to the court that there are not sufficient assets to discharge all just claims against the deceased, the judgment shall be for such sum only as bears a just proportion to the amount of the debt or damages and costs, regard being had to the amount of all the just claims and of the assets.

(b) The court may not assess, as provided by subsection (a) of this section, and enter judgment against an executor or administrator until the time limited by law or by the court for the executor or administrator to pass his account has expired and the executor or administrator has made oath that he does not have assets to discharge all the just claims. The account settled by the Probate Court, in which the debt or damages sued for ought to be stated, is evidence to show the amount of assets and claims; and the court may, when the actual debt or damages are ascertained, refer the matter to an auditor to ascertain the sum for which judgment shall be given. When the judgment is for a sum inferior to the real or actual damage and costs, it shall also stipulate "that the plaintiff be entitled to such further sum as the court shall hereafter assess on discovery of further assets in the hands of the defendant". The court, at any time afterwards, when applied to by the plaintiff, on three days' notice to the defendant or his attorney, may assess and give judgment for such further proportionable sum as the plaintiff appears entitled to, regard being had as provided by this section to the amount of the debt and other claims. On a judgment entered as provided by this section a fieri facias may issue against the defendant, and either his own goods or the goods of the deceased may be thereupon taken and sold. The executor or administrator shall discharge the judgment or put it on a footing with other just claims, and on failure his bond may be sued upon by the plaintiff. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

Assets

"Assets" for purpose of determining sufficiency of "assets" to discharge just claims of estate means property, real or personal, tangible or intangible, legal or equitable, which can be made available for, or can be appropriated to, the payment of debts. Stoner v. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 699).

Attachment

Statute providing that on judgment entered against personal representative fieri facias may issue and either the representative's own goods or those of the deceased may be taken and sold contemplates use of writs of attachment and garnishment where indicated to supplement the discovery of goods and credits and the satisfaction of judgment against representative. R. A. Bishop, Executor, etc. v. G. L. Baker et al. (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 912).

Estate funds on deposit in bank were not in custodia legis and were subject to attachment for satisfaction of judgment obtained against executor by creditor of estate in District of Columbia Court of General Sessions to which United States District Court holding probate court had certified suit against executor. Id.

Defenses

Executors sued for debt or damages and making oath under this section as to insufficiency of assets cannot successfully raise such defense by merely raising doubt as to sufficiency of assets or leaving matter vague, but must establish precisely the condition of estate so that court may not know exactly what part of claim should be allowed, and hence oath that "executors cannot determine that they will have sufficient assets to pay all claims" was insufficient. Stoner v. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington (D.C.D.C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 699).

Judgment

In action against an executor on a demand, unless defense of insufficiency of assets is interposed, judgment may be entered for the full amount of demand sued on. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

In action against an executor on a demand, a feri facias may issue against the executor, and either his own goods or goods of deceased may be taken and sold. Id.

Final judgment would not be entered against administratrix of one liable for accounting until plaintiff had complied with this section governing judgments against executor or administrator, and court would retain jurisdiction for purpose of enabling plaintiff to comply and of entering final judgment. Cafritz v. Corporation Audit Co. (D.C.D.C. 1945, 60 F. Supp. 627).

Jurisdiction

Section 1 of the Municipal Court Act (former § 11-703) and sections 327 and 328 of the 1901 Code (former §§ 20-501, 20-502) were in pari materia, and were required to be construed together. Cases covered by said sections 327 and 328 were to be treated as exceptions to those coming within the purview of section 1. Sanford v. Sanford (1923, 286 F. 777, 52 App. D.C. 315).

Procedure in collection of claims

Proceeding for collection of claims against estate is against executor in his official capacity to determine amount of demand sued on, the value of assets in hands of executor, and proration of the two. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D.C. 376).

When an executor, administrator, or collector believes that a person is concealing any part of his decedent's estate, he may file a petition in the court alleging the concealment, and the court may compel an answer thereto on oath. When the court is satisfied, upon an examination of the whole case, that the party charged has concealed any part of the estate of the deceased, it may order the delivery thereof to the executor, administrator, or collector, and may enforce obedience to the order in the same manner in which orders of the court may be enforced. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-503 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 122, 31 Stat. 1209).

Changes are made in phraseology.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Determination of ownership

On petition of creditor, court is without jurisdiction to order fund in possession of third person (who claims an interest therein) paid into the registry of the court. Cook v. Speare (1898, 13 App. D.C. 446).

Purpose of section is to furnish prompt remedy for discovery of assets and their reduction to possession when discovered. "But we are unable to find a further intention to confer upon the probate court jurisdiction to determine the question of the actual ownership of such property" as between executor and rival claimant. Richardson v. Daggett (1904, 24 App. D.C. 440).

Jurisdiction

The probate court of the District of Columbia does not have jurisdiction to decide disputes concerning title or possession of property, as between representatives of an estate and strangers who claim adversely to the estate. Watkins v. Rives (1942, 125 F. 2d 33, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Where petitioner had offered for probate a will in which he was named executor and he acted upon his testamentary authority and did not question jurisdiction of probate court of District of Columbia over him until after an earlier will had been admitted to probate, and rule had been sought by new executor to require the petitioner to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failure to comply with a turn-over order, the petitioner's conduct constituted a "waiver" of objection that he became a stranger to the estate from the moment that the will which he had offered for probate was declared invalid, and that therefore probate court was without jurisdiction to adjudge him in contempt. Id.

§ 20-1504. Concealment by executor or administrator

If a person interested in a decedent's estate by petition alleges that the executor, administrator, or collector has concealed or has in his hands and has omitted to return in the inventory or list of debts any part of his decedent's assets, and the court finally adjudges and decrees in favor of the allegations of the petition, in whole or in part, it shall order an additional inventory or list of debts, as the case may be, to be returned by the executor, administrator, or collector, and appraisement to be made accordingly, to comprehend the assets omitted. The court may compel obedience to the order, and, if it is not complied with, revoke the letters and order the bond of the executor, administrator, or collector to be put in suit. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-504 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 124, 31 Stat. 1210).

Changes are made in phraseology.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Jurisdiction

Where an executor asserts title to assets adversely to the decedent's estate, the probate court of the District of Columbia has jurisdiction under statute to try the question of title thereby presented. Watkins v. Rives (1942, 125 F. 2d 33, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Right to hearing

Petition charging executor with concealing assets is a pleading only and not evidence; and executor is entitled to his day in court—in other words, to a trial upon the evidence. Brosnan v. Brosnan (1923, 289 F. 547, 53 App. D.C. 149).

A person to whom letters testamentary or of administration have been granted by the proper authority in any of the United States or the territories thereof may maintain a suit or action and prosecute and recover a claim in the District of Columbia in the same manner as if the letters had been granted to him in the District. The letters, or a copy thereof certified under the seal of the authority granting them, are sufficient evidence to prove the granting of the letters, and that the person has administration. The Probate Court may, however, upon the petition of any one interested, require from the person the security required by law in like cases from a resident administrator or executor, or the court may grant auxiliary or ancillary letters, if the case requires, to the same person or other persons. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 149(7), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 149(7) of Act of July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "Probate Court of the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Probate Court."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-505 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 329, 31 Stat. 1242.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

Ancillary letters

Where testatrix, who was domiciled in Michigan and whose estate and beneficiaries were largely in Michigan but who had intangible property in District of Columbia, named resident of District of Columbia as sole executor, but Michigan court appointed Michigan resident as administrator with will annexed, because Michigan law forbids appointment of a nonresident executor, it was within discretion of District of Columbia court to appoint the Michigan executor as ancillary administrator. Purcell v. Cramton (1944, 143 F. 2d 22, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

The requirement of former § 20-301, that when any will should have been authenticated and admitted to probate letters testamentary thereon should be issued to the executor named therein, if he was legally competent and would accept the trust, did not apply to ancillary letters. Id.

Ordinarily ancillary letters are granted to the domiciliary executor or administrator. Id.

Law governing

"Letters of administration obtained in the jurisdiction of the domicile of the decedent prevail over letters of administration de bonis non granted in this District, and the statute confers upon such foreign administrator the right 'to recover from any individual within the District of Columbia effects or money belonging to the testator or intestate, and that letters testamentary or of administration obtained in either of the States or Territories of this Union give a right to the person having them to receive or give discharges for assets, without suit, which may be in the hands of any person in the District of Columbia.' Kane v. Paul (1840, 14 Pet. (39 U.S.) 33, 10 L. Ed. 341)." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (1910, 35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

A suit filed by a Maryland executor for specific performance of a contract to buy realty located in Maryland must be governed by the law of that state. Griffith v. Stewart (1908, 31 App. D.C. 29, affirmed 30 S. Ct. 528, 217 U.S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

Local administrator, however, may maintain action for death by wrongful act over the objection of the defendant where "the foreign executor did not attempt to bring this suit, and is not here complaining because it was brought by appellee. In such a situation, we think, he may be presumed to have waived any right conferred upon him by the local statute, and that such waiver may be taken advantage of by the real party in interest." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (1910, 35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926). See, also, Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lipscomb (1903, 22 App. D.C. 104).

Under this section, the domiciliary administrator of a Michigan decedent's estate might have the estate in the District of Columbia administered by the probate court, or might apply for the appointment of an ancillary administrator. Wiggins v. Mayer (1928, 22 F. 2d 869, 57 App. D.C. 293).

While authorizing a domiciliary administratrix to sue in the courts of the District of Columbia, this section limits the purposes of such suits and, by implication, limits exercise of the power to situations in which no ancillary administration has been granted in the District. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1939, 105 F. 2d 768, 70 App. D.C. 245, 124 A.L.R. 1268).

Nothing contained in this section reveals an intention on the part of Congress to abandon the well-established principle of law which governs ancillary administrations. Id.

Parties in specific performance

Such an executor may maintain specific performance without joining heirs. Griffith v. Stewart (1908, 31 App. D.C. 29, affirmed 30 S. Ct. 528, 217 U.S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

§ 20-1506. Suits on bonds against heirs

A creditor by a bond which purports to bind the heirs of the obligor may not sue the heirs in respect of assets descended to them, but shall make his claim against the estate in the same manner as required of other creditors. Debts arising by specialty and by simple contract, without distinction, are payable primarily out of the personal estate, and, if that is insufficient, are payable equally and without preference out of the proceeds of the real estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

The reference in section 20-506 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., "at common law", with respect to prohibiting suits by bond creditors against heirs, is omitted as obsolete. Under rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and rule 2 of the civil rules of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, there is only one form of action, known as "civil action".

For the purpose of clarifying the meaning and scope of the provisions, the words "but shall make his claim against the state in the same manner as that required of other creditors" are inserted.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Real estate mortgages

Debts by specialty and by simple contract, shall be payable primarily out of the personal estate. Mortgage on devised real estate must be paid out of the personal property. Tracy v. Atwell (1929, 32 F. 2d 392, 58 App. D.C. 397).

Chapter 17.—ACCOUNTS

Sec.

- 20-1701. Time for rendering first account.
- 20-1702. Subsequent accounts.
- 20-1703. Failure to account.
- 20-1704. Assets to be charged.
- 20-1705. Disbursements and allowances.
- 20-1706. Bequests to executors.
- 20-1707. Executor of deceased executor or administrator to render account.
- 20-1708. Accounts of deceased executrix or administratrix.
- 20-1709. Lost property.
- 20-1710. Executor or administrator of deceased executor or administrator entitled to commission; accounts.

§ 20-1701. Time for rendering first account

An executor or administrator shall render to the Probate Court within twelve months from the date of his letters the first account of his administration, and may render the account six months after the date of his letters. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-601 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 361, 31 Stat. 1247; June 24, 1949, ch. 242, § 7, 63 Stat. 268).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Annual account of fiduciaries

Where will creating trust and naming trustee did not require trustee to account to court, mere appointment of substitute trustee and his choosing to ask court's instruction in regard to a particular matter did not bring trustee within court rule requiring fiduciary administering estate under "supervision" of court to file annual account and report. Smithson v. Callahan (1944, 141 F. 2d 13, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Under rule requiring fiduciary administering an estate under "supervision" of court to file annual account and report, quoted word implies more than power in court to intervene, in its discretion, in order to prevent or redress improper action by trustee and implies a duty in trustee to consult court before taking action. Id.

§ 20-1702. Subsequent accounts

When the first account of an executor or administrator does not show the estate which was on hand to be fully administered, the executor or administrator shall render other accounts from time to time until the estate is fully administered, under such rules as the court establishes. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-602 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 362, 31 Stat. 1247; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1703. Failure to account

If an executor or administrator fails to return an account within the time limited by law or fixed by the rules of court, or within such further time as the Probate Court allows, his letters, on application of a person interested, may be revoked and administration granted at the discretion of the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-603 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 363, 31 Stat. 1247; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1704. Assets to be charged

In the account, the executor or administrator shall state, on one side, the assets which have come to his hands, according to the inventory returned to the court, or received and appraised after the inventory returned, and the sales made under the court's direction. The inventories shall show the articles of the estate, and the sales, the amount of their value, and where they have been sold. For articles so sold the executor or administrator shall be charged the price according to the return. When articles have been sold for credit and not yet paid for they shall be accounted for in a subsequent account, and all moneys received for debts due the decedent shall be included in the account. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-604 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 364, 31 Stat. 1248).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Counsel fees

Counsel fees for defending will be charged against the estate. McIntire v. McIntire (1904, 24 S. Ct. 196, 192 U.S. 116, 48 L. Ed. 369).

Effect of settlement

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts held not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights. Claudy v. Duvall (1925, 5 F. 2d 381, 55 App. D.C. 319).

Income from specific bequests

Dividends accruing after death of testatrix upon shares of stock specifically bequeathed are not subject to administrative costs until residuary bequests are exhausted. Nash v. Ober (1894, 2 App. D.C. 304).

Interest on assets

If executor mingles money belonging to estate with his own or is negligent in not paying it over or investing it to render it productive, he is chargeable with interest. Mades v. Miller (1894, 2 App. D.C. 455).

§ 20-1705. Disbursements and allowances

On the other side of the account the executor or administrator shall state the disbursements made by him, and debts and allowances, as follows:

(1) funeral expenses, to be allowed at the discretion of the court, according to the condition and circumstances of the deceased, not exceeding $600, except that for special cause shown the court may make an additional allowance, not exceeding $400;

(2) the family allowance provided for by section 19-101;

(3) the debts of the deceased proved or passed as directed by this title, and paid or retained;

(4) the allowance for things lost, or which have perished without his fault, which allowance shall be according to the appraisement;

(5) the commissions of the executor or administrator, which shall be, at the discretion of the court, not under one per centum nor exceeding ten per centum on the amount of the inventories, excluding what is lost or has perished; and

(6) the allowance to the executor or administrator for his costs, attorney fees, and extraordinary expenses which the court considers proper to allow. (Sept. 14 1965, 79 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-605 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 365, 31 Stat. 1248; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 529; Aug. 1, 1953, ch. 308, § 1, 67 Stat. 358).

Item (2), relating to the family allowance, is new as text, but presumably should be included, considering section 19-101 herein, to which the item refers. The provision for the family allowance was enacted in 1949. See also, section 20-1325 herein, relating to priorities and preferences in the payment of debts and other expenses of the estate.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Compensation of executor or administrator

Where attorney who drew will which nominated attorney as executor and authorized payment of ten percent for his services was attesting witness to will, attorney had "financial interest" which constituted a "beneficial interest" within the meaning of § 18-104 and fixed commission was void but court would allow fee for work performed. In re Estate of M. B. Small (1972, 346 F. Supp. 600).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Ancillary commissions

Where commissions to ancillary executors of approximately 2.5 percent of the amount of the ancillary estate and the attorney's fees in approximately the same amount were allowed and there was nothing in the record to indicate that a caveat was pending or immediately contemplated at the domicile of the testatrix, District Court did not abuse its discretion in allowing the fees and commission. Powell v. Ogden & Sellers, Ancillary etc. (1960, 278 F. 2d 451, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 6).

Where commissions of approximately 2.5 percent of the amount of the ancillary estate and attorneys fees in approximately the same amount were allowed, the Court of Appeals would assume that the domiciliary court, in fixing commissions, would take into account the payments made to the same persons in their capacity as ancillary executors, notwithstanding that the 10 percent limitation in the District statute could not apply outside the jurisdiction and hence could not place a limit on the commissions allowable to the domiciliary executors. Id.

Authority for payments

An executor should not make payments to himself on account of commissions until he has been authorized by court to do so. Doherty v. Stoner (1948, 169 F. 2d 965, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Where it was certain, because of size of inventory and provision of will fixing his compensation at 10% thereof, that executor would ultimately be entitled to commissions largely in excess of advances on commissions which he prematurely paid to himself, and that executor had substantially completed his work, unauthorized withdrawals by executor resulted in no harm to estate, and executor would not be charged with interest on commissions which he withdrew prematurely. Id.

Compensation of executor or administrator

This section "places a limitation beyond which the court may not go in allowing compensation for the services of an executor or administrator, or executors or administrators, in administering an entire estate." Brosnan v. Fox (1923, 284 F. 923, 52 App. D.C. 143).

"In the case of succession the court must make only such allowances * * * to the succeeding executors or administrators within the limitation fixed by the statute." Id.

The court has power to compensate an executor for defending the validity of a contested will, which is finally adjudicated void. Id.

Computation of commissions

Where executor sold testatrix' realty, executor was entitled to have his commission based on gross sale price rather than net sum received, notwithstanding that debts and charges were taken out of sale price by title insurance company which handled the settlement after sale and that only the net sum was turned over to executor. Doherty v. Stoner (1948, 169 F. 2d 965, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Where testatrix on date of her death had on deposit in local bank the sum of $44,219.73, and bank held her note for $25,000, and on due date, which was before executor qualified, bank charged testatrix' account with principal of note and accrued interest, so that executor succeeded to a credit of only $19,053.06, entire deposit of $44,219.73 was properly a part of inventory upon which executor's commissions were to be calculated. Id.

No case is made for payment to executor in operating decedent's business over and above the amount already permitted by the Code. Stoner v. Doherty (1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

Discretion of court

Provision in will directing that executor be allowed maximum compensation permitted by law nullified court's discretion under this section as to amount of executor's commissions. Doherty v. Stoner (1948, 169 F. 2d 965, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Effect of settlement of final accounts

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts held not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights Claudy v. Duvall (1925, 5 F. 2d 381, 55 App. D.C. 319).

Funeral expenses

A child's guardian would be granted permission to pay funeral expenses of child's mother in a reasonable amount out of estate received by child and where such allowances out of a decedent's estate were limited by this section to a maximum of $600, payment would be authorized in that amount instead of the sum of $821 prayed for. In re Fitzwater's Guardianship (D.C.D.C. 1947, 69 F. Supp. 866).

This section placing a limit of $600 on disbursements by executor or administrator for funeral expenses means $600 for a funeral within the District of Columbia, so that where a body has been transported from the District of Columbia for burial elsewhere executor or administrator may disburse not more than $600 for expenses in the District of Columbia and not more than $600 for expenses outside of the District of Columbia. In re Tunison's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 573).

Inventory items

Disbursements for payroll, operating and miscellaneous expenses incurred in continuing a business until its sale are not inventory items within the meaning of the section authorizing commissions. Stoner v. Doherty (1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

No allowance prior to final settlements

"An executor, prior to final settlement of the estate, or the termination of his services in connection with the estate, is not entitled to an allowance of commissions." Brosnan v. Fox (1923, 284 F. 923, 52 App. D.C. 143).

An executor is not entitled to commission prior to final settlement of estate or termination of his services, but such rule should not be applied in such a way as to create unnecessary hardship. Doherty v. Stoner (1948, 169 F. 2d 965, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Probate Court's authority to compel payment

An attorney may have a claim against executors or estate which he can collect in an action at law in district court but statute authorizing executors to pay attorneys' fees and probate court to allow such fees in executors' accounts does not authorize probate court to order executors to pay the fees. J. F. Bird et al., Executors etc. v. C. B. Sullivan, Jr. (1963, 316 F. 2d 675, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

§ 20-1706. Bequests to executors

Where anything is bequeathed to an executor by way of compensation, an allowance of commission may not be made unless the compensation appears to the court to be insufficient. Where it is insufficient, it shall be reckoned in the commission to be allowed by the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-606 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 366, 31 Stat. 1248).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Financial interest

Where attorney who drew will which nominated attorney as executor and authorized payment of ten percent for his services was attesting witness to will, attorney had "financial interest" which constituted a "beneficial interest" within the meaning of § 18-104 and fixed commission was void but court would allow fee for work performed. In re Estate of M. B. Small (1972, 346 F. Supp. 600).

§ 20-1707. Executor of deceased executor or administrator to render account

The executor or administrator of a deceased executor or administrator who dies before an account of his administration has been rendered shall render an account showing the amount of the assets received and the payment made by his decedent. The account so rendered shall, if found by the court to be correct, be admitted to record as other administration accounts. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-607 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 370, 31 Stat. 1249).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1708. Accounts of deceased executrix or administratrix

The husband of an executrix or administratrix who dies before a final account of her administration has been settled shall render an account, if required by the court, showing the amount of money and property received and of payments and disbursements made by the executrix or administratrix, or that may have been received or paid by him, and not before accounted for with the court. The account so rendered shall, if found by the court to be correct, be admitted to record as other administration accounts in cases where the executrix or administratrix rendered them in person. If the husband refuses to render the account, the court may proceed against him by attachment, and may commit him until he renders the account. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-608 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 371, 31 Stat. 1249).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1709. Lost property

The Probate Court may make allowance to an executor, administrator, or collector for property of the decedent which has perished or been lost without the fault of the party. Profit may not be made and loss may not be sustained by an executor or administrator in the increase or decrease of the estate under his management. He shall return an inventory and account for the increase, and may be allowed for the decrease on the settlement of the final or other account. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-609 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 372, 31 Stat. 1249).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1710. Executor or administrator of deceased executor or administrator entitled to commission; accounts

The executor or administrator of a deceased executor or administrator shall return, on oath, to the court, on or before the day named as provided by section 20-359(b), a list of the bonds, notes, accounts, and money provided by subsection (a) of that section, and may retain out of the money such commission as the court allows, not exceeding ten per centum on the principal inventory. The personal estate and money turned over by him constitute assets in the hands of the administrator de bonis non, to be accounted for by him as such. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-610 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 303, 31 Stat. 1237).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Agreements as to compensation

"An executor or administrator may agree to serve for less than the compensation fixed in the statute, and if he does so the agreement will be enforced." Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Convention of Protestant Episcopal Church of Diocese of Washington (1924, 293 F. 833, 54 App. D.C. 14, 34 A.L.R. 913).

Compensation fixed by will

Executor qualifying under will fixing commission at 3 percent can not subsequently claim a larger sum, although it acted on advice of counsel that the limitation was void and stated in its petition that it based its application on that advice. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Convention of Protestant Episcopal Church of Diocese of Washington (1924, 293 F. 833, 54 App. D.C. 14, 34 A.L.R. 913).

Allowance of commission. Sinnott v. Kenaday (1899, 14 App. D.C. 1, followed in 14 App. D.C. 484, reversed on other grounds 21 S. Ct. 233, 179 U.S. 606, 45 L. Ed. 399). See, also, Marfield v. McMurdy (1905, 25 App. D.C. 342); Howard v. Howard (1912, 38 App. D.C. 575); Brosnan v. Fox (1923, 284 F. 923, 52 App. D.C. 143).

Time for payment

Generally, an executor's commissions should be withheld until final settlement of the estate or termination of his services, but this rule is one of caution and should not be applied so as to create unnecessary hardship. Maloney v. Foundry M. E. Church (1944, 139 F. 2d 388, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 263).

Where the bulk of an estate had been collected and the balance appeared to be dependent on the results of long litigation, the executor, claiming a commission of 5 percent of the principal assets converted to cash, should be given an opportunity to show that postponement of payment would be an unreasonable hardship not necessary to protect the estate against his resignation or disqualification. Id.

In its discretion, after hearing evidence, the court may allow advance payment of an executor's commissions if it finds that otherwise unavoidable delay in final settlement will cause an unreasonable hardship and there is no reasonable probability that the remaining amount will be insufficient to satisfy claims of a possible successor. Id.

When the debts of an intestate, exhibited and proved, or notified and not barred, have been discharged or settled, or allowed to be retained for as directed by this title, the administrator shall make distribution of the surplus as provided by chapters 3 and 7 of Title 19. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Equitable apportionment of estate taxes

Purpose of the marital deduction provision does not modify meaning of District of Columbia statute whereby dissenting widow can take one-third of surplus after debts, and hence the amount of property received by widow's election, and thus the amount eligible for marital deduction, was a portion of the surplus remaining after deducting entire amount of estate taxes, in view of District of Columbia rule rejecting doctrine of general equitable apportionment of estate taxes. R. H. DelMar et al. v. United States (1968, 390 F. 2d 466, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Congress adopted the marital deduction to provide opportunity for equalization of the tax treatment of estates in common law and community property states. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

"It is not the full and complete administration of the estate that marks the period of distribution, but the payment of or allowance for all debts and claims made known against the estate, after notice given, and when that is done it at once becomes the duty of the administrator to deliver up and distribute the residue of the estate to those entitled thereto." *Sterrett v. #### § 20-1902. Distribution of specific property

Where the surplus remaining in an administrator's hands after payment of all just debts exhibited and proved or notified and not barred, or after retaining for them, consists of specific property or articles mentioned in the inventory, the administrator, if he cannot satisfy the parties, may apply to the court to make distribution. The Probate Court may appoint a day for making distribution, and by summons call on the parties to appear, and, at the appointed time, proceed to distribute. If a majority in point of value neglect to appear, or, if appearing, object to the distribution of the articles, or if the court deems a sale of the articles or any part of them more advantageous, it shall order a sale accordingly, and the rules provided by this title relative to a sale by order of the court shall be observed. #### § 20-1903. Distribution of specific articles; how to be made

When a distribution of specific articles is to be made the court may appoint two disinterested persons, not in any way related to the parties concerned, to make the distribution among the persons entitled as to them seems proper; or when, in their opinion, upon a view of the articles, a distribution among the persons entitled could not be by them made which would operate equally, but a sale thereof would be more advantageous to the persons, they shall return to the court their opinion in writing. The court shall thereupon order a sale of the articles, upon reasonable notice, and cause the proceeds of the sale to be equally distributed among the parties entitled. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 20-1904. Partial distribution

When a person applies to the Probate Court by petition, and satisfies the court that he is in want of subsistence or greatly straitened in circumstances, and that it probably will not require more than one-half of the assets to discharge the debts, the court may direct the executor or administrator to deliver to the petitioner any part of what the court believes will be his distributive share, or any part of a legacy or bequest in money not exceeding one-third part, the petitioner giving bond, with security approved by the court, to the executor or administrator for returning the part so delivered, or an equivalent, with interest, when so directed by the court. The court may determine in a summary way on the petition, after summons against the executor or administrator duly returned "summoned" or "non est". (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

"Section 391 (former § 18-720) authorizes the court to deliver any part of what the court shall suppose will be the distributive share," and the requirement of a bond was sufficient protection in the event that the beneficiary should subsequently be divested of her interest in the estate. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1913, 41 App. D.C. 122).

Collectors

Collector may be authorized to make partial distribution under this section. Hutchins v. Hutchins (1913, 41 App. D.C. 122).

Trustees

This section confers no jurisdiction on an equity court to order partial distribution of a fund administered by a trustee under its supervision. Hutchins v. Dante (1913, 40 App. D.C. 262).

§ 20-1905. Distribution of specific bequests

The court, in like manner as provided by section 20-1904, on a petition by a person in circumstances as described in that section, to whom a specific legacy or bequest has been made, being satisfied that the assets, exclusive of all specific legacies, will not be nearly exhausted by debts, may direct the executor or administrator with the will annexed to deliver to the petitioner the specific legacy or bequest on his giving bond as provided by section 20-1904. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

"Ordinarily it would be safer for an administrator to pursue the course pointed out by this latter section (this section), but there is no express command of the law that he should do so." Miller-Shoemaker Real Estate Co. v. Sturgeon (1908, 31 App. D.C. 406).

"This provision merely gives expression to the well-settled rule that a legacy is payable in cash, unless some other form of payment is authorized by the person entitled. In the present case the distributee was a non-resident, and the executors, waiving their right to make payment here under the direction of the court, assumed the risk of sending the money by check to California. To absolve themselves from responsibility to the distributee, it must appear that he expressly or impliedly authorized them so to act, and, unless he did, in contemplation of law the money still is in their hands and they must respond to the order of the court" directing them to pay it. In this case the check was received and cashed by an imposter, and the executors were directed to pay the legatee his distributive share. Moore v. Moore (1917, 47 App. D.C. 23).

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts was not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights. Claudy v. Duvall (1925, 5 F. 2d 381, 55 App. D.C. 319).

§ 20-1908. Distribution of minor's share

If (1) any person entitled to a distributive share of a decedent's estate is under twenty-one years of age and is not otherwise under a legal disability, (2) such distributive share consists of personal property or money of the value of not more than $1,000, and (3) there is no duly appointed and qualified guardian for such person—

(A) if such person is eighteen years of age or over, the executor or administrator may deliver such share to such person and his receipt shall be sufficient voucher therefor;

(B) if such person is under eighteen years of age, the executor or administrator may deliver such share to the custodian of such person and the receipt of such custodian shall be sufficient voucher therefor.

§ 20-2101. Petition for distribution of small estate; order

(a) When a person dies, leaving a small estate consisting only of personal property of a value not in excess of $2,500, the surviving spouse or minor children entitled to the family allowance authorized by section 19-101 may file in the Probate Court a petition, under oath, declaring:

- (1) the time and place of decedent's death;
- (2) the known next of kin;
- (3) the known assets and by whom they are held;
- (4) that the petitioner has made a diligent search to discover all assets of the deceased;
- (5) the amount of the funeral expenses and to whom they are due; and
- (6) that the assets do not exceed $2,500 in value.

The minor children shall act through the person having their custody or a next friend.

(b) When the Probate Court is satisfied that the allegations in a petition filed under subsection (a) of this section are true, it shall enter a final order:

- (1) declaring that formal administration is not necessary and that probate of a will is not required;
- (2) fixing the amount of funeral expenses allowable and specifying to whom they are due and out of what property they are to be paid;
- (3) vesting title to the remainder of the property in the surviving spouse or minor children, as the case may be, in satisfaction of the family allowance; and
- (4) directing the persons having possession of the property to pay over, transfer, and deliver it as allotted.

The Probate Court may also authorize in the order, or by further order, the sale of any of the property as the exigencies of the situation require. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, § 2, 85 Stat. 313.)

§ 20-2102. Waiver of administration; notice to creditors; final order

(a) When a person dies intestate, leaving a small estate consisting only of personal property of a value not in excess of $2,500, and there is no surviving spouse or minor child, the person entitled to be preferred in the appointment of an administrator may file in the Probate Court a petition, under oath, declaring:

- (1) the time and place of the decedent's death;
- (2) the known next of kin;

(3) that diligent search has been made for a will and none has been found;

(4) the known creditors, together with the amount of each claim, including contingent and disputed claims;

(5) the amount of the funeral expenses;

(6) the known assets and by whom they are held;

(7) that the petitioner has made a diligent search to discover all assets and debts of the deceased;

(8) that the assets do not exceed $2,500 in value; and

(9) that there are no known legal proceedings pending in which the decedent is a party.

(b) When the Probate Court is satisfied that the allegations in a petition filed under subsection (a) of this section are true, it shall enter a preliminary order declaring that formal administration is not necessary, and instructing the petitioner to publish once, in substantially the usual form, notice to creditors to exhibit their claims, duly authenticated, within 30 days after the notice. The notice shall be inserted in one newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia as the court directs.

(c) When a preliminary order has been entered and the notice has been published, as provided by subsection (b) of this section, and the time provided in the notice has expired, the petitioner shall file, under oath, a statement, with the usual proof of publication attached, that the notice has been published, and that the time has expired, and listing all then known creditors, including contingent and disputed claims, and the amount of each claim.

(d) When the Probate Court is satisfied that the statement filed under subsection (c) of this section is true, and after hearing and disposing of any objections filed in the court by persons interested in the estate, it shall enter a final order:

(1) directing the petitioner to pay from the estate all the claims, in the order of priority provided by law;

(2) authorizing a person having possession of any property of the estate to transfer, pay over, and deliver it in accordance with the petitioner's directions; and

(3) decreeing that, after the Register of Wills certifies upon the final order that he has seen the vouchers for the payment of the claims and is satisfied that the claims, as well as the fees provided for by this chapter, have been paid, the remaining balance of the estate, if any, shall be vested:

(A) in the adult surviving children, equally; or

(B) if there is no adult surviving child, then in those persons who would be entitled to the remaining balance of the estate under chapter 3 of Title 19.

The share of a minor is payable, in the discretion of the court, to the person having custody of the minor or to such other person as the court designates, to be used solely for the care and maintenance of the minor.

(e) The court may also provide in its final order issued under subsection (d) of this section for the sale of any property, upon such terms as it deems advisable, and for the distribution of the proceeds in accordance with the order. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 731, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-88, § 2, 85 Stat. 313.)

The marshal shall post a copy of the warrant upon each parcel of land named in the schedule and cause so much of the warrant as relates to land to be recorded with the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia. He shall receive such fees for serving the warrant as the court allows, but not more than those established by law for similar service upon a writ of attachment. If the petition is dismissed, the fees and the cost of publishing and serving the notice provided for by this chapter shall be paid by the petitioner; but if a receiver is appointed, they shall be paid by the receiver and allowed in his account. #### SUBCHAPTER I.—APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN; BOND

§ 21-101. Natural guardians of the person

(a) The father and mother are the natural guardians of the person of their minor children. When either dies or is incapable of acting, the natural guardianship of the person devolves upon the other.

(b) This section does not affect the power of a court of competent jurisdiction to appoint another person guardian of the children when it appears to the court that the welfare of the children requires it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Subsec. (b) is new to the provisions as they were set out in section 21-101 of D.C. Code 1961 ed., but the provisions of subsec. (b) were contained in a proviso in the basic statute, that is, section 1123 of the 1901 Act cited above. The latter section was divided into two parts upon classification to the District of Columbia Code, one part comprising section 21-101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which is carried into subsec. (a) of this section, and the other comprising section 21-108 thereof, which is carried into section 21-105 herein. The proviso was included in section 21-108, but was not included in section 21-101, although, in the original enactment, it apparently related to the provisions set out in both. Therefore, it is restored to this section as subsec. (b). In the provisions as so restored, "court of competent jurisdiction" is substituted for "court of equity". The district court, which has both legal and equitable jurisdiction, no longer has a special term known as "equity court". See revision note under section 18-110 herein.

The part of § 21-108, preceding the proviso, is set out as subsection (a) of section 21-105.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Custody of child

In action by wife for maintenance and support, exclusive custody of minor children of the parties should not have been awarded to wife where husband and wife and the children remained living together in the same household. R. L. Clements v. R. Clements (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 195).

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by illegitimate child's mother who sought control and custody of child who was in control of nonparent, awarding of custody of child to mother was not an abuse of discretion, where mother had made persistent efforts to obtain child and evidence indicated that she was a presently fit mother. Bell and Bell v. Leonard (1958, 251 F. 2d 890, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 179).

Custody of child awarded to mother notwithstanding that after divorce she committed adultery with the man she subsequently married, the father of child having died and left the child in the possession of grandfather. Sardo v. Villapiano (1936, 81 F. 2d 255, 65 App. D.C. 121).

It is established both by statute and common law that as between the grandfather and the mother the child should be entrusted to the mother, unless such a course is inconsistent with the child's welfare. Id.

A child of parties to divorce proceeding is a "ward of court" and the court has power to change the custody of the child, to enforce parental obligations to provide for maintenance, and if necessary to remove the child from the custody of both parents. Emrich v. McNeil (1942, 126 F. 2d 841, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 146 A.L.R. 1146).

A reservation in original divorce decree is not necessary for the exercise of court's continuing jurisdiction concerning custody and maintenance of minor child. Id.

Where husband established a separate domicile in the District of Columbia, the wife remaining in North Carolina with the minor children by agreement, in granting husband a divorce the District of Columbia court was without jurisdiction to make an award of custody of children, since their domicile remained in North Carolina. Oxley v. Oxley (1947, 159 F. 2d 10, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

§ 21-102. Testamentary guardians of the person

When one parent is dead, the other, whether of full age or not, may, by last will and testament, appoint a guardian of the person to have the care, custody, and tuition of his infant child, other than a married female; and if the person so appointed refuses the trust, the Probate Court may appoint another person in his place. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-102 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, 1124, 31 Stat. 1369).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-106.

§ 21-103. Appointment of guardians of the person by court; limitation of number of wards

(a) When an infant has neither a natural nor testamentary guardian, a guardian of the person may be appointed by the Probate Court in its own discretion or on the application of a next friend of the infant.

(b) Only trust companies may act as guardian of the person for more than five infants at one time, unless the infants are members of one family. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-103 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1125, 31 Stat. 1369; Mar. 3, 1927, ch. 350, 44 Stat. 1383).

Section 21-103 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is divided into subsections (a) and (b), the latter containing the substance of the proviso.

The words "and the same" in the expression "at one and the same time" are omitted as surplusage.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Continuance of jurisdiction

Where United States District Court holding Probate Court once assumed jurisdiction over parties to proceedings involving guardianship of child, that jurisdiction continued for all purposes, and if either party felt aggrieved by the orders of the court his remedy lay with that court or on appeal therefrom. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction of the United States District Court holding Probate Court did not stop short of enforcing its own decrees in proceedings to remove guardian of child and appoint another guardian. Id.

Enforcement of decrees

Although recourse to District Court may be necessary to effectuate decrees of District Court holding Probate Court, Probate Court is but an arm of District Court and the full judicial machinery of the District Court is available to enforce lawful decrees of its component parts. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Even if the United States District Court holding Probate Court were powerless to enforce a custody decree, other avenues are open in the District Court to give litigants relief through enforcement of such a decree. Id.

Jurisdiction

The United States District Court holding Probate Court has jurisdiction to grant custody of minors in guardianship cases. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction over guardianship matters is given to United States District Court holding Probate Court, while Domestic Relations jurisdiction is vested in Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court. Id.

§ 21-104. Termination of guardianship of the person

A natural guardianship or an appointive guardianship of the person of an infant ceases, in the case of a male infant when he becomes 21 years of age, and in the case of a female infant when she becomes 18 years of age or marries. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-129 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1126, 31 Stat. 1369).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-106.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Majority of female infants

Under this section, an 18-year-old female alone has power over her person and is entitled to consent for herself to any form of medical treatment; thus, her application for appointment of a special guardian, after receiving information from hospital that it would not permit use of its facilities to perform scheduled therapeutic abortion unless it received written consent of a parent or guardian or a court order of similar legal effect, would be denied. In re Guardianship of B. Boe (1971, 322 F. Supp. 873).

Majority of female infants

There is no statute in force in the District of Columbia which clearly provides that female infants shall as a general rule attain their majority at the age of 18 years; exceptions to the common-law rule have been provided by statute, but these recognize the continued existence of the general rule of the common law. Jones v. Jones (1934, 72 F. 2d 829, 63 App. D.C. 373, 95 A.L.R. 352).

Marriage of infant

Where a 13-year-old girl, legally married, was committed to the Board of Children's Guardians two years later as destitute and homeless, and later committed to the Reform School as incorrigible, she was not entitled to release on habeas corpus, on the ground of her marriage. Richardson v. Browning (1927, 18 F. 2d 1008, 57 App. D.C. 186).

§ 21-105. Appointment by deed or will for child inheriting from parent

(a) In case of the death of either parent from whom his or her minor children inherit or take by devise or bequest, the parent may by deed or last will and testament appoint a guardian of the property of the children, subject to the approval of the proper court of the District of Columbia.

(b) This section does not limit or affect the power of a court of competent jurisdiction to appoint another person guardian of the children when it appears to the court that the welfare of the children requires it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

In subsec. (b), "court of competent jurisdiction" is substituted for "court of equity". The district court, which has both legal and equitable jurisdiction, no longer has a special term known as "equity court". See revision note under section 18-110 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

By this provision the power of equity to guard the welfare of the child is preserved. Church v. Church (1921, 270 F. 359, 50 App. D.C. 237).

§ 21-106. Guardian of estate

(a) Subject to sections 21-101 to 21-104, when land descends or is devised to an infant under 21 years of age, or the infant is entitled to a distributive share of the personal estate of an intestate, or to a legacy or bequest under a last will, or acquires real or personal property by gift or purchase, the Probate Court may appoint a guardian of the infant's estate; and if there is a guardian of the person of the infant the guardian of the estate so appointed may be the same or a different person.

(b) The appointment may be made at any time after the probate of the will or the grant of administration when the infant is entitled as a devisee, legatee, or next of kin.

(c) Only trust companies may act as guardian of the estate of more than five infants at one time, unless the infants are entitled to shares of the same estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-110 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1127, 31 Stat. 1369; Mar. 3, 1927, ch. 350, 44 Stat. 1383).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Law governing

A guardian of the estate should be appointed "in accordance with the laws of the place in which the property is found." Lehmer v. Hardy (1924, 294 F. 407, 54 App. D.C. 51).

Nonresident infants

"The courts of the District of Columbia have no authority to appoint guardians of the persons of infants who do not reside and are not domiciled within their territorial jurisdiction." Lehmer v. Hardy (1924, 294 F. 407, 54 App. D.C. 51).

§ 21-107. Preferences in appointment of guardian of estate

In appointing a guardian of the estate of an infant, unless said infant be over 14 years of age as hereinafter directed in section 21-108, the court shall give preference to—

(1) the father, if living; or

(2) if he is dead, then to the mother, if living;

or

(3) if the infant is a married female, to her husband—

when in the judgment of the court the parent or husband is a suitable person to have the management of the infant's estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-112 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1128, 31 Stat. 1369).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-108. Selection of guardian by infant

(a) When a guardian, either of the person or the estate, of an infant is appointed, the infant shall, if practicable, be brought before the court, and, if over 14 years of age, shall be entitled to select and nominate his or her guardian.

(b) When a guardian has been appointed before the infant has attained the age of 14 years, the infant, upon arriving at that age, may select a new guardian, notwithstanding the appointment before made.

(c) The court shall pass upon the character and competency of the guardian selected by the infant, and the guardian shall be:

- (1) required to give bond as in other cases;
- (2) subject to the control of the court; and
- (3) under the same obligations and discharge the same duties—as if selected by the court.

(d) When, after a guardian of the estate has been appointed, the infant selects a new guardian upon arriving at the age of 14 years, and the new selection is approved by the court, and the person selected is duly appointed and qualified, the guardian previously appointed shall settle his final account and turn over his ward's estate to the newly appointed guardian. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Sections 21-111 and 21-113 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are consolidated. Section is basically section 21-111 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Those provisions of the subsection (c) which relate to the giving of bond and to control of the court over the guardian are derived from section 21-113 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The consolidation avoids the duplication of provisions which exists in sections 21-111 and 21-113 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-107.

§ 21-109. Husband as guardian of estate

When a female infant to whom a guardian of her estate has been appointed marries, she may select her husband as the guardian of her estate, with the approval of the court; and after he is duly appointed and qualified by giving bond, as is required in other cases, the powers of the guardian previously appointed shall cease, and he shall settle his final account and turn over his ward's estate to her husband, according to the order and directions of the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-114 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1140, 31 Stat. 1371).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-110. Service on nonresident guardian; failure to give power of attorney

Before original or ancillary letters of guardianship are issued, the person designated, if a nonresident of the District of Columbia, shall file in the office of the Register of Wills an irrevocable power of attorney designating the Register of Wills and his successors in office as the person upon whom all notices and process issued by a competent court in the District may be served, with like effect as personal service, in relation to all suits, matters, causes, or things affecting or pertaining to the estate in which the letters are to be issued. The Register of Wills shall forthwith forward by registered or certified mail to the address of the guardian, which shall be stated in the power of attorney, all notices or process served upon the Register under this section.

If the person fails to file the power of attorney within 10 days after the entry of the order of appointment, the order shall stand revoked, and he shall forfeit all rights to the office. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 20-118 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 308a, as added Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 562).

Section is based on section 20-118 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as the latter related to service on nonresident guardians. Insofar as it related to service on executors and administrators, and collectors, it is carried into sections 20-365 and 20-503 herein, respectively.

In the provision of the first paragraph requiring the Register of Wills to forward all notices and process to the guardian by registered mail, a reference to certified mail is added for the same reason stated in revision note under section 20-365 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-111. Ancillary guardian of estate of nonresident infant

When an infant residing outside the District of Columbia is entitled to property or to maintain an action in the District of Columbia, a general guardian or committee of his estate, appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction in the State or territory where the infant resides, or a person at the request of the guardian or committee, may petition the court for ancillary letters as guardian or committee. The petition shall be under oath, accompanied by certified copies of as much of the record and proceedings as shows the appointment of the guardian or committee and that he has given a sufficient bond to account for all property and money that may come into his hands by virtue of the authority conferred. The court may thereupon issue to the guardian or committee ancillary letters as such guardian or committee, without citation, or may cite such persons as it believes proper to show cause why the application should be refused; and the court shall require the security required by law in like cases from a resident guardian or committee. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section relates only to infants. Section 21-115 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as it related to mentally ill persons is carried into section 21-705.

Changes are made phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Veterans' legislation

Sections 44 and 45, D.C. 1929 (this section and § 21-116), are of local application and must give way to laws of Congress relating to veterans' affairs. First Nat. Bank v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1940, 30 F. Supp. 730).

Colorado bank may sue in the courts of the District of Columbia, as conservator, for the recovery of monthly payments of a veteran's government insurance, and is not required to have an ancillary guardian appointed. Id.

§ 21-112. Suits by ancillary guardian

(a) Upon the granting of ancillary letters, the guardian may institute and prosecute to judgment any action in the courts of the District of Columbia, take possession of all property of his ward, and collect and receive all moneys belonging and due to him therein, give full receipt and acquittances for debts, and release all claims, liens, and mortgages belonging to the ward, on property in the District of Columbia, in the same manner as if his authority had been originally conferred by the Probate Court.

(b) The guardian shall give security for the costs which may accrue in an action brought by him, in the same manner as other nonresidents bringing suit in the courts of the District. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(a)(1), 84 Stat. 567.)

Ancillary proceedings

Word "ancillary" as used differentiates between original jurisdiction and proceedings which are subordinate and auxiliary thereto. First Nat. Bank v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1940, 30 F. Supp. 730).

Suit under original appointment

One who had been appointed guardian of her two minor children by courts of Virginia, and who also had been appointed ancillary guardian by the United States District Court for District of Columbia, could bring suit in Municipal Court under her original appointment and was not required to sue as ancillary guardian. De Bobula v. Coppedge (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 40 A. 2d 255).

§ 21-113. Enjoining husband, parents, or testamentary guardian from interfering with minor's estate

On application of a friend of an infant entitled to real or personal estate, or in the exercise of its own discretion, the court may enjoin a parent or husband or testamentary guardian from interfering with the infant's estate without being appointed and giving bond as guardian of the estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Felonies

Under this section prescribing fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, as punishment for any offense not specifically covered by sections of this code, all common-law misdemeanors, not embodied in any act of Congress, became felonies in District of Columbia, since any offense potentially punishable by imprisonment for more than one year is a "felony." United States v. Davis (D.C.D.C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 749, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 99, 167 F. 2d 228, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1501, 334 U.S. 849, 92 L. Ed. 1772).

(Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(a)(2), 84 Stat. 567.)

If a surety of a guardian by petition sets forth that he apprehends himself to be in danger of loss in consequence of his suretyship, and prays the court to be relieved, the court, after summoning the guardian to answer the petition, may require him to give counter security to indemnify his original surety or to deliver his ward's estate into the hands of the surety or of another person. In either case, the court shall require sufficient security for the proper management and application of the estate to be given by the person into whose hands the estate is delivered, and make such other order as seems just. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Will as being a part of a ward's estate

Requiring adult children of ward to transfer to conservators alleged testamentary document entrusted to children by ward was not improper on ground that will was not part of ward's estate in his lifetime. *C. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Reasonable compensation

A figure of 5% as a flexible rule of thumb for fixing reasonable compensation, in ordinary case, to guardians ad litem and conservators appointed pursuant to statute governing guardians of property of mentally incompetent persons, is permissible. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Compensation of conservator

In view of facts that duties of conservator and guardian are basically the same, and that District of Columbia Code providing for appointment of conservators is silent as to compensation of conservators and merely provides that conservators shall have same rights and powers as guardians and that court shall have the same powers with respect to property of any person for whom conservator has been appointed as it has with respect to property of infants under guardianships, compensation of conservator should be fixed under this section limiting compensation of guardians to fixed percentage of amounts actually collected if and when disbursed. In re Searle (D.C.D.C. 1953, 118 F. Supp. 273).

Compensation of temporary conservator

Compensation of temporary conservator would not be determined under this section fixing compensation of guardian but would be determined by considering the character of services rendered, the size of the estate, and the compensation awarded guardian ad litem and attorney for the guardian. In re Searle (D.C.D.C. 1953, 118 F. Supp. 273).

Limitation of compensation

Limitation of compensation of committee of insane person to five per cent of amount received and disbursed precludes allowance of additional fees. Hines v. Paregol (1935, 77 F. 2d 953, 64 App. D.C. 306).

Committee who has wisely and judiciously preserved the estate of a lunatic should not be denied reasonable compensation merely because he had preserved the estate instead of expending it. In re Gallen (D.C.D.C. 1937, 18 F. Supp. 683).

§ 21-144. Property subject to liens

When an infant is entitled to real or personal estate in the District of Columbia which is liable to a mortgage, trust, or lien, or is in any way charged with the payment of money, the court may decree in the case as if the infant were of full age. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

the court may decree the execution of the contract or enter a just and proper decree, as if the parties were of full age. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 21-146. Contract for sale by adult in behalf of himself and infant

When a contract is made for the sale of real estate by persons interested therein jointly or in common with an infant, for and in behalf of all the persons so interested, which the court, upon a hearing and examination of the circumstances, considers to be for the interest and advantage both of the infant and of the other persons interested therein to be confirmed, the court may confirm the contract and order a deed to be executed according to it. Sales and deeds made in pursuance of the order are sufficient in law to transfer the estate and interest of the infant in the real estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Section 21-208 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., contained additional provisions as follows: "and the proceeds of such sale shall be invested for the infant's benefit in other real estate or in such other manner as the court may direct; and if the infant, after any such sale, shall die intestate or under twenty-one years of age, the proceeds of such sale, or so much thereof as may remain at his death, if not reinvested in other real estate, shall be considered as real estate, and shall pass accordingly to such persons as would have been entitled to the estate if it had not been sold". These provisions are omitted as obsolete or, in any event, unnecessary, in view of later developments in the laws of inheritance in the District of Columbia, under which real and personal property now go to the same persons (see section 19-301 et seq. herein). Apparently, the only effect the omitted provisions, if retained, would have under existing law would be procedural, that is, the re-invested proceeds would not go into the hands of the administrator and would not be available for sale to satisfy debts unless all other property were exhausted. Considering the said change made by Congress in the inheritance laws, it is not deemed to have been the legislative intent to maintain such an (now) undesirable distinction, or that the omission of the quoted provisions from this section effects a substantive change.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-155.

§ 21-153. Exchanges; appointment of trustees

In decreeing an exchange of an infant's estate for other property, pursuant to section 21-151, the court need not require equality or sameness in the quantity or character of the estate or interest, and the court may appoint trustees to execute the deeds necessary to carry the exchange into effect. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-209 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 161, 31 Stat. 1216).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-155.

§ 21-154. Ratification of sales by court

A sale of property of an infant is not effectual to pass title to the property sold until it is reported to and ratified by the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is new, but its provisions were part of law of the District of Columbia until the enactment of the Act of September 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, 78 Stat. 944, section 19(e) of which repealed section 115e of the D.C. Code of 1901 (as added by Act June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 524), which had been classified to section 21-305 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Section 115e of the 1901 Code contained provisions corresponding with those of this new section, but related to both infants and persons non compos mentis. The Act of September 15, 1964, in its other provisions, enacted new laws relating to the mentally ill, only, and those provisions are carried into chapter 5 of Title 21 of this revised Part. It was probably not intended to repeal section 115e of the 1901 Code, insofar as it related to infants. Therefore, the provisions, with respect to infants, are restored in this section.

§ 21-155. Sale or exchange of particular estate or remainder; application of income

Where an infant is entitled to a particular estate, as for life or years, and another person is entitled to an estate in remainder or reversion or by way of executory devise in the same property, or the other person is entitled to the particular estate and the infant is entitled in remainder or reversion or executory devise, the court may decree a sale or exchange as provided by sections 21-148 to 21-153, having reference solely to the interests of the infant, if the other person so interested consents to the sale or exchange and execute the conveyances necessary to carry it into effect. The court shall direct the annual income from the fund or property acquired by the sale or exchange to be applied according to the interests of the respective parties. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section 21-210 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., contained an additional provision as follows: "And in case of the death of said infant under twenty-one years of age the proceeds of any such sale not invested in real estate shall be deemed real estate and pass to those who would be entitled if the property had not been sold". This provision is omitted for the same reason stated in revision note under section 21-152 herein for omitting certain provisions from that section.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-156. Lease of infant's estate

Where it appears to the court that it will be to the advantage of the infant that his real estate be demised, the court shall decree that it be demised for a term of years not to exceed the minority of the infant, yielding such rents and on such terms and conditions as the court directs. Where the infant is entitled to only a part of the estate, the decree demising the estate shall be made only if all the owners of the other interests assent. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-211 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 163, 31 Stat. 1216; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 527).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Assignment of contract

Assignment of an existing lease is not a "demise" within this section providing for court approval of any demise of an infant's real estate. Sweeney v. Jacobsen (D.C.D.C.

1952, 103 F. Supp. 393, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93, affirmed 202 F. 2d 461).

Mortgage of minor's realty

Orphans court had power to authorize sale of minor's realty for his support, and hence power to authorize a mortgage. Middleton v. Parke (1894, 3 App. D.C. 149).

§ 21-157. Mortgage of infant's estate

Where it appears to the court by proof that it would be for the advantage of the infant to raise money by mortgage for his maintenance or to improve his real property or to pay off charges, liens, or incumbrances thereon, the court may, on the application of the guardian or of the infant by next friend, decree a conveyance of the property, by mortgage or deed of trust, to be executed by the guardian, on such terms as to the court seem expedient. This section also applies where the infant holds jointly or in common with other persons of full age or holds a portion of the estate, as a particular estate, for life or years or in remainder or reversion, if the other owners interested, all being of full age, consent to the decree and unite in the mortgage or deed of trust. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-158. Final account

On arrival of a ward at the age of 21 years the guardian shall exhibit a final account of his trust to the court, and shall, agreeably to the court's order, deliver up to the ward all the property of the ward in his hands and if he fails to do so, his bond may be sued upon for the use of the party interested, and he may be attached. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(a)(3), 84 Stat. 567.)

REVISION NOTES

This chapter continues the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act adopted in the District of Columbia by Act Oct. 15, 1962, Pub. L. 87-821, § 1, 76 Stat. 938-942 (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., Supp. II, secs. 21-225 to 21-234). Actually section 1 of the 1962 Act amended generally sections 1-11 of Act Aug. 3, 1956, ch. 947, 70 Stat. 1028-1031, which, in the main volume of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., had been set out as sections 21-214 to 21-224. The Uniform Gifts to Minors Act was promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1956, and is based upon a "Model Act Concerning Gifts of Securities to Minors", which was drafted and sponsored by the New York Stock Exchange and the Association of Stock Exchange Firms. The above-cited Act Aug. 3, 1956, ch. 947, 70 Stat. 1028-1031, had been based, prior to its general amendment by the 1962 Act cited, upon the Model Act.

Minor changes are made in phraseology and style.

§ 21-302. Gifts of securities, money, life insurance, or annuity contracts to minors; manner of making

(a) An adult may, during his lifetime, make a gift of a security, money, life insurance or annuity contract to one who is a minor on the date of the gift, if the subject of the gift is a security:

(1) in registered form, by registering it in the name of the donor, another adult, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for [name of minor] under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act";

(2) not in registered form, by delivering it to an adult other than the donor or a trust company, accompanied by a statement of gift in the following form, in substance, signed by the donor and the designated custodian:

GIFT UNDER THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA UNIFORM GIFTS TO MINORS ACT

I, [name of donor], hereby deliver to [name of custodian] as custodian for [name of minor] under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act, the following security(ies); [insert an appropriate description of the security or securities delivered sufficient to identify it or them].

Dated:-----

[Name of custodian] hereby acknowledges receipt of the above described security(ies) as custodian for the above minor under the above Act.

-----

Dated:-----

(3) Where the subject of the gift is a life insurance or annuity contract, the donor shall register the ownership of the contract in his own name or in the name of an adult member of the minor's family or in the name of a guardian of the minor, followed by the words "as custodian for [name of minor] under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act", and the contract shall be delivered to the person in whose name it is thus registered as custodian. Where the contract is registered in the name of the donor as custodian, the registration of itself constitutes the delivery required by this section.

(4) Where the subject of the gift is money, by paying or delivering it to a broker or a financial institution for credit to an account in the name of the donor, another adult, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for [name of minor] under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act."

(c) A donor who makes a gift to a minor as prescribed by subsection (a) of this section shall promptly do all things within his power to put the subject of the gift in the possession and control of the custodian, but neither the donor's failure to comply with this subsection, nor his designation of an ineligible person as custodian, nor renunciation by the person designated as custodian affects the consummation of the gift. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 745, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Apr. 19, 1968, Pub. L. 20-290, § 1(2), 82 Stat. 98.)

§ 21-303. Gift irrevocable; rights and duties of guardian or custodian

(a) A gift made as prescribed by this chapter is irrevocable and conveys to the minor indefeasibly vested legal title to the security, money, life insurance or annuity contract given, but a guardian of the minor does not have a right, power, duty, or authority with respect to the custodial property, except as provided by this chapter.

(b) By making a gift in the manner prescribed by this chapter, the donor incorporates in his gift all the provisions of this chapter and grants to the custodian, and to any issuer, transfer agent, financial institution, broker, insurance company, or third person dealing with a custodian, the respective powers, rights, and immunities provided by this chapter. ### § 21-304. Custodian to be one person; rights, powers, and duties of custodian

(a) Only one person may be the custodian. He shall collect, hold, manage, invest, and reinvest the custodial property.

(b) The custodian shall pay over to the minor for expenditure by him, or expend for the minor's benefit, so much of or all the custodial property as the custodian deems advisable for the support, maintenance, education, and benefit of the minor in the manner, at the times, and to the extent that the custodian in his discretion deems proper, with or without court order, with or without regard to the duty of himself or of any other person to support the minor or his ability to do so, and with or without regard to any other income or property of the minor which may be applicable or available for any such purpose.

(c) The court, on the petition of a parent or guardian of the minor, or of the minor if he has attained the age of 14 years, may order the custodian to pay over to the minor for expenditure by him or to expend so much of or all the custodial property as is necessary for the minor's support, maintenance, or education.

(d) To the extent that the custodial property is not so expended, the custodian shall:

(1) deliver or pay it over to the minor on his attaining the age of 21 years; or

(2) if the minor dies before attaining that age, thereupon deliver or pay it over to the estate of the minor.

(e) A custodian, notwithstanding statutes restricting investments by fiduciaries, may invest and reinvest the custodial property as would a prudent person of discretion and intelligence who is seeking a reasonable income and the preservation of capital, or he may, without liability to the minor or his estate, retain a security given to the minor in the manner prescribed by this chapter.

(f) A custodian may dispose of custodial property in the manner, at the times, for the prices, and upon the terms he deems advisable. He may vote in person or by general or limited proxy a security which is custodial property. He may consent, directly or through a committee or other agent, to the reorganization, consolidation, merger, dissolution, or liquidation of an issuer, a security which is custodial property, and to the sale, lease, pledge, or mortgage of any property by or to the issuer, and to any other action by the issuer. He may execute and deliver all instruments in writing which he deems advisable to carry out any of his powers as custodian.

(g) A custodian shall register each security which is custodial property and in registered form in the name of the custodian, followed in substance, by the words: "as custodian for [name of minor] under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act". He shall hold all money which is custodial property in an account with a broker or in a financial institution in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the same words. He shall keep all other custodial property separate and distinct from his own property in a manner to identify it clearly as custodial property.

(h) A custodian shall keep records of all transactions with respect to the custodial property, and make them available for inspection at reasonable intervals by a parent or legal representative of the minor or by the minor, if he has attained the age of 14 years.

(i) A custodian has, as powers in trust, with respect to the custodial property, in addition to the rights and powers provided by this chapter, all the rights and powers which a guardian has with respect to property not held as custodial property.

(j) Where the subject of the gift is a life insurance or annuity contract, the custodian has all the incidents of ownership in the contract which he may hold as custodian to the same extent as if he were the owner thereof personally. The designated beneficiary of contract held by a custodian shall be the minor or, in the event of his death, the minor's estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 747, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Apr. 19, 1968, Pub. L. 90-290 § 1(3), 82 Stat. 98.)

(a) A custodian is entitled to reasonable compensation for his services and to reimbursement from the custodial property for his reasonable expenses incurred in the performance of his duties, but may act without compensation.

(b) Compensation for a guardian or custodian shall be according to:

(1) any direction of the donor when the gift is made, where it is not in excess of a statutory limitation of the District of Columbia for guardians or custodians;

(2) any statute of the District of Columbia applicable to custodians or guardians;

(3) any order of the court.

(c) A custodian may not be required to give a bond for the performance of his duties.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Under sections 22-3501 to 22-3511, term "not insane" must be read to mean "not 'mentally ill'" within meaning of sections 21-501 to 21-591 and sections 22-3501 to 22-3511 apply only to those who are not mentally ill while compulsory treatment of those who are mentally ill is governed by sections 21-501 to 21-591. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

— With other laws

The District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act was not repealed by the 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Court of Appeals would not read into the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act the procedural protections of the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Limitation of applicability of chapter

The protection of the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act is limited to those who are declared insane or of unsound mind pursuant to a court order and does not include any person previously committed under the Sexual Psychopath Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

§ 21-502. Commission on Mental Health; composition; appointment and terms of members; organization; chairman; salaries

(b) Appointment of members of the Commission shall be for terms of four years each, which shall be staggered as provided by section 2 of the Act approved June 8, 1938 (chapter 326, 52 Stat. 625), under which, except for the original four-year term of the lawyer-member, staggered terms of one year for two members, two years for two members, three years for two members, and four years for two members, were made.

(c) The physician-members of the Commission shall serve on a part-time basis and shall be rotated by assignment of the Chief Judge of the court, so that at any one time the Commission shall consist of the Chairman and two physician-members. Physician-members of the Commission may practice their profession during their tenure of office, but may not participate in the disposition of the case of a person in which they have rendered professional service or advice.

(d) The court shall also appoint an alternate lawyer-member of the Commission who shall have the same qualifications as the lawyer-member of the Commission and who shall serve on a part-time basis and act as Chairman in the absence of the permanent Chairman.

(e) The salaries of the members of the Commission and its employees shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of section 305, chapter 51, subchapter III of chapter 53, and sections 5341, 5342, 5504, 5509 and 7154, of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The alternate Chairman shall be paid on a per diem basis at the same rate of compensation as fixed for the permanent Chairman. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (1), 84 Stat. 567.)

CODIFICATION

(e) the reference "section 305, chapter 51, subchapter III of chapter 53, and sections 5341, 5342, 5504, 5509 and 7154, of title 5, U.S. Code, relating to the classification of government employees and related matters" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended subsection (a) by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

CONTINUATION IN OFFICE EXISTING MEMBERS OF COMMISSION

Section 150(d), of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358 provided:

"Members of the Commission on Mental Health established under section 21-502 of title 21 of the District of Columbia Code who are in office on the effective date of this title shall continue in office as provided in subsection (b) of that section."

CONTINUANCE OF EXISTING COMMISSION ON MENTAL HEALTH

Section 2 of act Sept. 14, 1965, provided:

"The Commission on Mental Health continued by section 21-502 of Part III, District of Columbia Code, as set out in section 1 of this Act, [Titles 18 to 21] is the Commission established by the Act approved June 8, 1938 (chapter 326, 52 Stat. 625), as amended, and continued by section 20 of the Act approved September 15, 1964 (Pub. Law 88-597, 78 Stat. 954). Chapter 5 of Title 21 of Part III, District of Columbia Code, as set out in section 1 of this Act, [Titles 18 to 21] does not affect or impair the existence of the Commission so established and continued, and does not alter the pay or the terms of office of the members of the Commission serving as such on December 31, 1965."

REVISION NOTES

Section is from part of section 21-352 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-352 is carried into section 21-503 of this revised Part. The provisions carried into this section are subdivided into subsections for the purpose of easier reference.

Section 20 of Act Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597 (78 Stat. 954) provided: "The Commission on Mental Health to which reference is made in section 3 of this Act [section 21-352 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.] is the Commission established by the Act of June 8, 1938 (52 Stat. 625), as amended. Nothing contained in any amendment made by this Act shall be construed to affect or impair the existence of the Commission so established, or to alter the pay or the terms of office of the members of such Commission serving as such on the day preceding the date of enactment of this Act." The Commission was established by the Act of June 8, 1938 (52 Stat. 625), as had been classified to section 21-308 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and which was repealed by the Act of Sept. 15, 1964. Section 20 of the latter Act, quoted above is not carried into this revised Part, as it is inappropriate in a code of general and permanent law, and it, as well as all other provisions of the Act of Sept. 15, 1964, is repealed by this revision. However, provisions based on all other provisions of that Act are carried into this chapter, and a separate section of the bill to enact this revised Part contains provisions corresponding with those of section 20 of the 1964 Act.

Section 21-352 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., continued the provision of former section 21-308 of the Code by providing that the terms of physician-members of the Commission should be staggered. In subsec. (b) of this section, these provisions are revised to give a clearer understanding of how these terms are staggered, by referring back to the Act of June 8, 1938, ch. 326, 52 Stat. 625, which established the Commission, and by preserving the more detailed provisions thereof (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., former § 21-308) with respect to the staggered terms, which terms commenced with the original appointments under that Act.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-503. Examinations and hearings; subpoenas; witnesses; place

(a) The Commission shall examine alleged mentally ill persons, inquire into their affairs and the affairs of persons who may be legally liable for their support, and make reports and recommendations to the court.

(b) Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the Commission may conduct its examinations and hearings either at the courthouse or elsewhere at its discretion. The court may issue subpoenas at the request of the Commission returnable before the Commission, for the appearance of the alleged mentally ill person, witnesses, and persons who may be liable for his support. The Commission, or any of the members thereof, are competent and compellable witnesses at any trial, hearing or other proceeding conducted pursuant to this chapter and the physician-patient privilege is not applicable. REVISION NOTES

Section is from that part of section 21-352 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that is not carried into section 21-502 of this revised Part.

The provisions are subdivided into subsections for easier reference, and minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Sufficiency of record

Since examining doctors concluded that person committed under sections 22-3501 to 22-3511 was not insane but they had no occasion to consider whether he was nonetheless mentally ill, there was no record on the question and habeas corpus petition must be remanded for hearing and findings of fact necessary to determine whether statute was properly applied to petitioner. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

SUBCHAPTER II.—VOLUNTARY AND NONPRO-TESTING HOSPITALIZATION

§ 21-511. Voluntary hospitalization

A person may apply to a public or private hospital in the District of Columbia for admission to the hospital as a voluntary patient for the purposes of observation, diagnosis, and care and treatment of a mental illness. Upon the request of such a person 18 years of age or over, or, in the case of a person under 18 years of age, of his spouse, parent, or legal guardian, the administrator of the public hospital to which application is made shall, if an examination by an admitting psychiatrist reveals the need for hospitalization, or the administrator of the private hospital to which application is made may, admit the person as a voluntary patient to the hospital for the purposes described by this section, in accordance with this chapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

(a) A voluntary patient admitted to a hospital pursuant to section 21-511 may, at any time, if he is 18 years of age or over, obtain his release from the hospital by filing a written request with the chief of service. Within a period of 48 hours after the receipt of the request, the chief of service shall release the patient making the request. A voluntary patient under 18 years of age, so admitted, may, at any time, obtain his release from the hospital in the same manner, upon the written request of his spouse, parent, or legal guardian.

(b) When the chief of service determines that a voluntary patient hospitalized pursuant to section 21-511 has recovered or that continued hospitalization of the patient is no longer beneficial to him, or advisable, the chief of service may release him from the hospital. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 21-513. Hospitalization of nonprotesting persons

A friend or relative of a person believed to be suffering from a mental illness may apply on behalf of that person to the admitting psychiatrist of a hospital by presenting the person, together with a referral from a practicing physician. For the purpose of examination and treatment, a private hospital may accept a person so presented and referred, and a public hospital shall accept a person so presented and referred, if, in the judgment of the admitting psychiatrist, the need for examination and treatment is indicated on the basis of the person's mental condition and the person signs a statement at the time of the admission stating that he does not object to hospitalization. The statement shall contain in simple, nontechnical language the fact that the person is to be hospitalized and a description of the right to release set out in section 21-514. The admitting psychiatrist may admit a person so presented, without referral from a practicing physician, if the need for an immediate admission is apparent to the admitting psychiatrist upon preliminary examination. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Review

Absent jury demand, trial court at hearing (after Commission on Mental Health found patient was mentally ill and likely to injure others if allowed to remain at liberty and recommended hospitalization) had authority to evaluate Commission hearing and to reject Commission report and on remand court should consider merits of patient's contentions (including contention that it was improper to commit patient as an involuntary patient because he was already hospitalized as a nonprotesting patient under this section) and take additional evidence if necessary. In re A. Walls (1971, 442 F.2d 749, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

§ 21-514. Release of patients hospitalized under section 21-513

Unless proceedings for hospitalization under court order have been initiated under subchapter IV of this chapter, a hospital, upon the written request of a patient hospitalized pursuant to section 21-513, shall immediately release him. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

SUBCHAPTER III.—EMERGENCY HOSPITALIZATION

§ 21-521. Detention of persons believed to be mentally ill; transportation and application to hospital

An accredited officer or agent of the Department of Public Health of the District of Columbia, or an officer authorized to make arrests in the District of Columbia, or a physician of the person in question, who has reason to believe that a person is mentally ill and, because of the illness, is likely to injure himself or others if he is not immediately detained may, without a warrant, take the person into custody, transport him to a public or private hospital, and make application for his admission thereto for purposes of emergency observation and diagnosis. The application shall reveal the circumstances under which the person was taken into custody and the reasons therefor. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (2), 84 Stat. 567.)

Commencement of judicial proceedings

Physician's petition for judicial hospitalization of patient commenced the judicial proceedings so that detention of patient during course of proceedings was authorized even though petition was not filed until almost four weeks after patient had been admitted to hospital. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

Constitutionality

Statutes providing for involuntary commitments must meet the challenge that they are unconstitutionally vague whether the proceedings are labeled civil or penal. In re M. Alexander (1972, 336 F. Supp. 1305).

Statutory standard for involuntary commitment, requiring, inter alia, that one be likely "to injure himself or other persons," is sufficiently definite to survive constitutional challenge of vagueness. Id.

Observation and diagnosis

Section 21-562, requiring that a person hospitalized in a public hospital for mental illness shall, during his hospitalization, be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment, covers persons hospitalized under any statutory authorization but every patient hospitalized for observation is not necessarily entitled to an immediate and full-blown therapeutic program. In re J. Curry (1971, 452 F. 2d 1360, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

Seizure

Although there was no arrest of person who was involuntarily detained on ground that he was mentally ill and likely to injure himself or others, he was "seized" within meaning of Fourth Amendment when he was taken into custody and involuntarily deprived of his liberty. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Arrest

A policeman may not make, without the superintendent's order, an arrest which he may not make with such order. Jillson v. Caprio (1950, 181 F. 2d 523, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Construction with other laws

Former § 21-326 providing for apprehension and detention by police of insane persons found in public places was required to be read together with other sections of former civil insanity statute, and particularly former §§ 21-310 and 21-311 implementing procedure initiated under former § 21-326. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

False imprisonment

Where the basis in action for false imprisonment was an arrest made at the request of appellee physician, the arrest was unlawful since such arrest of alleged insane persons have been permitted by Congress in only two sorts of circumstances, both absent here. Jillison v. Caprio (1950, 181 F. 2d 523, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Grounds for apprehension

This section providing emergency procedure for apprehension of persons thought to be insane should not be defeated by over-technical construction, but it does require that arresting officer reasonably believe that person apprehended is insane and incapable of managing his own affairs or that he is a menace to public peace; and such section authorizes only initial arrest and detention. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Interim detention

Where police officer had woman, who cut her wrist taken to hospital where she was placed in psychiatric ward, on ground that she had attempted suicide, doctors at hospital were not civilly liable in false imprisonment action for interim detention of woman prior to receipt of court order. Orvis v. Brickman (1952, 196 F. 2d 762, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

Petition

Government's verified petition which failed to allege that person arrested by police was of unsound mind or insane did not comply with this section permitting a commitment proceeding to be commenced by arrest of an alleged insane person and defect in petition was not remedied by two psychiatric reports attached thereto where such reports were unverified and ambiguous in terms employed and conclusions reached. Overholser Supt. etc. v. Williams (1958, 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Under no statute is court authorized to commit any person for mental examination on petition which fails to state facts upon which an allegation of present insanity is based. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Privileged affidavit

Defendant had probable cause to sign affidavits submitted to District of Columbia police as basis for arrest of plaintiff as person of unsound mind, and consequently affidavit was privileged under District of Columbia law, where plaintiff had disclosed to defendant her fears that people were trying to kill her, that unknown persons had damaged her personal possessions and had tried to poison her food, a psychiatrist's report that plaintiff was suffering from paranoid condition was read at hearing held by committee, of which defendant was a member, considering plaintiff's fitness for continued federal employment. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (D.C.D.C. 1963, 216 F. Supp. 814).

Privileged statements

Government psychologist who had several interviews with plaintiff and who considered expert medical opinion before making affidavit used in arrest of plaintiff as person of unsound mind, preliminary to lunacy proceeding in District of Columbia, had probable cause to sign affidavit, statements contained in affidavit were privileged and plaintiff could not recover from psychologist for libel after being discharged. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (1964, 331 F. 2d 476, U.S. App. 2d Ct.).

Sufficiency of evidence

If one adjudged insane never saw or talked with physicians who filed affidavits prior to his arrest, and spoke only momentarily after arrest to physician who testified that examination disclosed need for hospital care, adjudication of insanity must be vacated. In re R. V. Helman (1961, 288 F. 2d 159, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

§ 21-522. Examination and admission to hospital; notice

Subject to the provisions of section 21-523, the administrator of a private hospital, may, and the administrator of a public hospital shall, admit and detain for purposes of emergency observation and diagnosis a person with respect to whom application is made under section 21-521, if the application is accompanied by a certificate of a psychiatrist on duty at the hospital stating that he has examined the person and is of the opinion that he has symptoms of a mental illness and, as a result thereof, is likely to injure himself or others unless he is immediately hospitalized. Not later than 24 hours after the admission pursuant to this subchapter of a person to a hospital, the administrator of the hospital shall serve notice of the admission, by registered mail, to the spouse, parent, or legal guardian of the person and to the Commission on Mental Health. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (b) of section 21-355 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-355 is carried into sections 21-521, 21-523 to 21-528 and 21-583.

Observation and diagnosis

Section 21-522, requiring that a person hospitalized in a public hospital for mental illness shall, during his hospitalization, be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment, covers persons hospitalized under any statutory authorization but every patient hospitalized for observation is not necessarily entitled to an immediate and full-blown therapeutic program. In re J. Curry (1971, 452 F. 2d 1360, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

One confined in a mental hospital involuntarily for limited period for purposes of "observation and diagnosis" has right to be given the attention incident to such observation and diagnosis. Id.

There is no irrebuttable presumption that involuntary patient in mental hospital is receiving appropriate program of observation merely because he is hospitalized under statute that permits "emergency observation and diagnosis." Id.

The overall therapeutic process, that begins with observation and diagnosis to determine whether treatment is required, must be initiated as soon as the period of involuntary hospitalization in public mental hospital begins. Id.

§ 21-523. Court order requirement for hospital detention beyond 48 hours; maximum period for observation

A person admitted to a hospital under section 21-522 may not be detained in the hospital for a period in excess of 48 hours from the time of his admission, unless the administrator of the hospital has, within that period, filed a written petition with the court for an order authorizing the continued hospitalization of the person for emergency observation and diagnosis for a period not to exceed 7 days from the time the order is entered. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Construction

Statute providing that a person admitted to hospital for emergency observation and diagnosis may not be detained for period over 48 hours unless hospital administrator has filed petition for order authorizing continued hospitalization must be read in connection with another provision providing that hospital administrator may, if judicial proceedings for hospitalization have been commenced, detain person in hospital during course of the judicial proceedings. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

§ 21-524. Determination and order of court

(a) Within a period of 24 hours after the court receives a petition for hospitalization of a person for emergency observation and diagnosis, filed by the administrator of a hospital pursuant to section 21-523, the court shall:

(1) order the hospitalization; or

(2) order the person's immediate release.

(b) The court, in making its determination under this section, shall consider the written reports of the agent, officer, or physician who made the application under section 21-522, the certificate of the examining psychiatrist which accompanied it, and any other relevant information. ##### Notice

Notice of signing of order under statute providing, inter alia, that within 24 hours after court receives a petition for hospitalization of a person for emergency observation and diagnosis the court shall order the hospitalization or order the person's immediate release, which statute authorizes a seven-day commitment, should be given within 24 hours so that a hearing may be had within the first two days of the seven-day period since, when personal freedom is at issue, due process demands that a person's legal status be determined at the earliest possible time. *In re J. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-526.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appointment of counsel

Public Defender Service should be appointed to represent patient who has been involuntarily detained on grounds that he has symptoms of mental illness and is likely to injure himself or others, at least until retained counsel notes his appearance. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Burden of proof

The Government has the initial burden of producing evidence showing probable cause justifying further detention of an involuntary mental patient. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Commitment papers containing mere conclusory statements will not suffice to provide probable cause at hearing in relation to person who has been involuntarily detained on grounds that he is likely to injure himself or others; conclusions in the papers must be sufficiently detailed and supported by facts to allow the court to perform its function of passing on their credibility in determining whether probable cause exists for continued incarceration. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

When neither the validity of documents signed by physician and psychiatrist relating to emergency hospitalization of person who was alleged to be mentally ill nor the accuracy of the opinions and information in the documents is contested, there is an adequate basis for continuing the emergency hospitalization. Id.

Hearing

In the future, in relation to hearing on emergency hospitalization of person who is alleged to be mentally ill, conferences should be held in open court on the record, reporter should be present for conferences in chambers, or judge should state for the record in the presence of counsel what was discussed and agreed upon at a conference at which no reporter was present, in order that there might be effective review. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Notice

Notice of signing of order under statute providing, inter alia, that within 24 hours after court receives a petition for hospitalization of a person for emergency observation and diagnosis the court shall order the hospitalization or order the person's immediate release, which statute authorizes a seven-day commitment, should be given within 24 hours so that a hearing may be had within the first two days of the seven-day period since, when personal freedom is at issue, due process demands that a person's legal status be determined at the earliest possible time. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Probable cause

Probable cause to believe that a patient should be hospitalized must be shown by the Government to justify seven-day commitment order at hearing held under statute providing that the court shall grant a hearing to a person whose continued hospitalization is ordered under statute, if he requests a hearing, which hearing shall be held within 24 hours after receipt of the request. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

At a hearing on involuntary detention of person who is alleged to be mentally ill and likely to injure himself or others if not immediately detained, the Government may rely upon the papers that were before the judge who authorized the seven-day commitment under statute; if the judge at the hearing concludes from these papers that there is probable cause to believe the person is mentally ill and, as result thereof, is likely to injure himself or others if not detained, he may find the hospitalization legal unless the person offers evidence that sufficiently rebuts the documentary evidence. Id.

Rational basis exists for allowing Government, at hearing on detention of patient believed to be mentally ill and likely to injure himself or others if not immediately detained, to make a showing of probable cause on the papers alone, without the personal testimony of physicians; only if counsel for patient makes a proffer of contrary proof or challenges the accuracy of the facts or diagnoses in the papers should the Government be compelled to offer live testimony. Id.

Treatment

Allegations of involuntary patient in District of Columbia public mental hospital, in hospital's proceeding to extend period of hospitalization, warranted hearing on whether hospital had taken any step toward observation and diagnosis or whether hospital had provided only custodial care; if patient establishes truth of his allegations, he must either be released or be provided care that is consonant with goals of observation and diagnosis, and ultimately of treatment if considered necessary under diagnoses. In re J. Curry (1971, 452 F. 2d 1360, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

§ 21-526. Extension of maximum periods of time

If the maximum period of time prescribed by section 21-512, 21-523, 21-524, or 21-525, during which an action or determination may or shall be taken, expires on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, the period may be extended to not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

To eliminate repetition, those provisions of subsec. (b) of section 21-353, and of subsecs. (c), (d) and (e) of section 21-355, of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which, with respect to the maximum periods of time prescribed by those subsections, provided for identical extensions of time if the maximum period expired on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, are consolidated into this revised section. The remaining provisions of those subsections are carried, respectively, into the sections referred to in this section, and remainders of sections 21-353 and 21-355 are carried into sections 21-511, 21-512, 21-521 to 21-525, 21-527, 21-528 and 21-583.

Changes necessary to effect the consolidation are made.

§ 21-527. Examination and release of person; notice

The chief of service of a hospital in which a person is hospitalized under a court order entered pursuant to section 21-524 shall, within 48 hours after the order is entered, have the person examined by a physician. If the physician, after his examination, certifies that in his opinion the person is not mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or others if not presently detained, the person shall be immediately released. The chief of service shall, within 48 hours after the examination has been completed, send a copy of the results thereof by certified or registered mail to the spouse, parents, attorney, legal guardian, or nearest known adult relative of the person examined. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (f) of section 21-355 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-355 is carried into sections 21-521 to 21-526, 21-528 and 21-583.

With respect to notice, the reference to certified mail is inserted to give the chief of service an alternative method of furnishing a copy of the results to the spouse or parents, etc. A similar provision is in most statutes requiring the mailing of notices, documents, etc. See Act June 11, 1960, Pub. L. 86-507, 74 Stat. 200; also, 39 U.S.C., § 5013; also, House Report No. 1492, Apr. 12, 1960, and Senate Report No. 1489, May 26, 1960, both 86th Cong., 2d sess., to accompany H.R. 10996, 86th Cong., which, upon enactment, became said Act of June 11, 1960.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-528. Detention of person pending judicial proceedings

Notwithstanding any other provision of this subchapter, the administrator of a hospital in which a person is hospitalized under this subchapter may, if judicial proceedings for his hospitalization have been commenced under subchapter IV of this chapter, detain the person in the hospital during the course of the judicial proceedings. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (h) of section 21-355 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-355 is carried into sections 21-521 to 21-527 and 21-583.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Statute providing that a person admitted to hospital for emergency observation and diagnosis may not be detained for period over 48 hours unless hospital administrator has filed petition for order authorizing continued hospitalization must be read in connection with another provision providing that hospital administrator may, if judicial proceedings for hospitalization have been commenced, detain person in hospital during course of the judicial proceedings. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

SUBCHAPTER IV.—HOSPITALIZATION UNDER COURT ORDER

SUBCHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This subchapter is referred to in sections 21-514, 21-528, 21-581.

§ 21-541. Petition to Commission; copy to person affected

(a) Proceedings for the judicial hospitalization of a person in the District of Columbia may be commenced by the filing of a petition with the Commission on Mental Health by his spouse, parent, or legal guardian, by a physician, by a duly accredited officer or agent of the Department of Public Health, or by an officer authorized to make arrests in the District of Columbia. The petition shall be accompanied by:

(1) a certificate of a physician stating that he has examined the person and is of the opinion that the person is mentally ill, and because of the illness is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty; or

(2) a sworn written statement by the petitioner that:

(A) the petitioner has good reason to believe that the person is mentally ill, and, because of the illness, is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty; and

(B) the person has refused to submit to examination by a physician.

(b) Within three days after the Commission receives a petition filed under subsection (a) of this section, the Commission shall send a copy of the petition by registered mail to the person with respect to whom it was filed. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsecs. (a) and (b) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

With respect to furnishing a copy of the petition to the person affected, a reference to certified mail is inserted for the same reason stated in revision note under section 21-527.

Changes are made in phraseology.

CROSS REFERENCE

Payment of hospitalization expense of criminally insane, see § 24-301.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-542, 21-551, 21-582.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Commencement of judicial proceedings

Physician's petition for judicial hospitalization of patient commenced the judicial proceedings so that detention of patient during course of proceedings was authorized even though petition was not filed until almost four weeks after patient had been admitted to hospital. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

Constitutionality

Statutes providing for involuntary commitments must meet the challenge that they are unconstitutionally vague whether the proceedings are labeled civil or penal. In re M. Alexander (1972, 336 F. Supp. 1305).

Statutory standard for involuntary commitment, requiring, inter alia, that one be likely "to injure himself or other persons," is sufficiently definite to survive constitutional challenge of vagueness. Id.

Habeas corpus

Interest of justice and furtherance of congressional objective required application, to pending habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner confined in Saint Elizabeths Hospital in District of Columbia as insane person, of principles adopted in District of Columbia Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act, passed after commitment. C. Lake v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent, etc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 657, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner, who was found to be somewhat senile, had poor memory, had wandered away on few occasions, and was unable to care for herself at all times, and who had been confined in Saint Elizabeths Hospital in District of Columbia as insane person, would be remanded to District Court, for inquiry into other alternative courses of treatment. Id.

Review

Absent jury demand, trial court at hearing (after Commission on Mental Health found patient was mentally ill and likely to injure others if allowed to remain at liberty and recommended hospitalization) had authority to evaluate Commission hearing and to reject Commission report and on remand court should consider merits of patient's contentions and take additional evidence if necessary. In re A. Walls (1971, 442 F. 2d 749, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

Scope of mandatory commitment

Notwithstanding fact that appeal of denial of petition for writ of habeas corpus by person who was acquitted by reason of insanity and summarily committed to mental hospital pursuant to mandatory provisions of District of Columbia statute raised substantial questions concerning scope of mandatory commitment and its relationship to the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act, in view of petitioner's unconditional release from hospital while appeal was pending, appeal was dismissed as moot. S. I. Solomon v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 170, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

Construction with other laws

Former § 21-326 providing for apprehension and detention by police of insane persons found in public places was required to be read together with other sections of former civil insanity statute, and particularly former §§ 21-310 and 21-311 implementing procedure initiated under former § 21-326. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Sufficiency of petition

Government's verified petition which failed to allege that person arrested by police was of unsound mind or insane did not comply with former § 21-310 permitting a commitment proceeding to be commenced by arrest of an alleged insane person and defect in petition was not remedied by two psychiatric reports attached thereto where such reports were unverified and ambiguous in terms employed and conclusions reached. Overholser Supt. etc. v. Williams (1958, 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

§ 21-542. Hearing by Commission; presence and rights of person affected; hearing regarding liability

(a) The Commission shall promptly examine a person alleged to be mentally ill after the filing of a petition under section 21-541 and shall thereafter promptly hold a hearing on the issue of his mental illness. The hearing shall be conducted in as informal a manner as may be consistent with orderly procedure and in a physical setting not likely to have a harmful effect on the mental health of the person named in such petition. In conducting the hearing, the Commission shall hear testimony of any person whose testimony may be relevant and shall receive all relevant evidence which may be offered. A person with respect to whom a hearing is held under this section may, in his discretion, be present at the hearing, to testify, and to present and cross-examine witnesses.

(b) The Commission shall also hold a hearing in order to determine liability under the provisions of section 21-586 for the expenses of hospitalization of the alleged mentally ill person, if it is determined that he is mentally ill and should be hospitalized as provided under this chapter. The hearing may be conducted separately from the hearing on the issue of mental illness. If conducted separately, it may be conducted by the Chairman of the Commission alone. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (c) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-544.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

Aid of District of Columbia Commission on Mental Health is available in habeas corpus proceedings as well as commitment proceedings. C. Lake v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent, etc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 657, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

§ 21-543. Representation by counsel; compensation; recess

The alleged mentally ill person shall be represented by counsel in any proceeding before the Commission or the court, and if he fails or refuses to obtain counsel, the court shall appoint counsel to represent him. The counsel so appointed shall be awarded compensation by the court for his services in an amount determined by it to be fair and reasonable. The compensation shall be charged against the estate of the individual for whom the counsel was appointed, or against any unobligated funds of the Commission, as the court in its discretion directs. The Commission or the court, as the case may be, shall, at the request of the counsel so appointed, grant a recess in the proceeding to give the counsel an opportunity to prepare his case. A recess may not be granted for more than five days. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (d) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Appointment of counsel

Public Defender Service should be appointed to represent patient who has been involuntarily detained on grounds that he has symptoms of mental illness and is likely to injure himself or others, at least until retained counsel notes his appearance. In re J. Barnard (1971, 455 F. 2d 1370, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24-302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Appointment of counsel

Alleged insane person has a right to be represented by counsel in proceeding to commit him as a person of unsound mind, and if he is not so represented independently the court shall appoint either an attorney or guardian ad litem. Dooling v. Overholser (1957, 243 F. 2d 825, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Where proceeding was commenced to commit person to hospital as a person of unsound mind, and court appointed counsel for such person and granted her request that counsel be discharged, such person was not represented by counsel or guardian ad litem at proceeding, and her commitment was invalid. Id.

Costs and attorney's fees

Petitioner for writ de lunatico inquirendi, who contracted with counsel voluntarily, must bear expense of counsel and taxable costs of proceedings and costs and expense of petitioner's counsel were not chargeable against patient. In re Colohan (D.C.D.C. 1950, 93 F. Supp. 641).

Petitioner for writ de lunatico inquirendi was not required to rely on corporation counsel but could secure counsel of own choice. Id.

Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Supt., etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Representation by counsel

In proceedings before commission on mental health relative to sanity of person, such person must be represented either by an attorney or a guardian ad litem who is an impartial person not otherwise interested in the proceeding; the guardian ad litem need not always be an attorney; he may be a relative or friend selected by the court. Dooling v. Overholser (1957, 243 F. 2d 825, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Where question was raised whether representation by counsel or guardian ad litem was required in incompetency proceeding before Mental Health Commission and Court of Appeals held the commitment invalid because of absence of representation before both the commission and the court, the ruling as to need for representation before commission was not obiter dictum even if commitment could have been found to be invalid for lack of representation in court alone. Id.

§ 21-544. Determinations of Commission; report to court; copy to person affected; right to jury trial

If the Commission finds, after a hearing under section 21-542, that the person with respect to whom the hearing was held is not mentally ill or if mentally ill, is not mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall immediately order his release and notify the court of that fact in writing. If the Commission finds, after the hearing, that the person with respect to whom the hearing was held is mentally ill, and because of the illness is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall promptly report that fact, in writing, to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. The report shall contain the Commission's findings of fact, conclusions of law, and recommendations. A copy of the report of the Commission shall be served personally on the alleged mentally ill person and his attorney. An alleged mentally ill person with respect to whom the report is made has the right to demand a jury trial, and the Commission, orally and in writing, shall advise him of this right. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (3), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

Section is from subsec. (e) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-545.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW*Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Construction

Statute to effect that when it appears to court that accused is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand proceedings against him court may order accused committed for observation and treatment if necessary did not authorize trial judge's affording hearing to determine for commitment purposes mental condition of accused found not guilty by reason of insanity, applying release standards of 1964 Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act or extending to accused rights which the 1964 Act guaranteed only to those civilly committed. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Danger to community

Consideration of a person's likely danger to community is appropriate in civil commitment proceedings but is irrelevant in a criminal trial. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Habeas corpus

Aid of District of Columbia Commission on Mental Health is available in habeas corpus proceedings as well as commitment proceedings. C. Lake v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent, etc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 657, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Least restrictive alternative

The principle of the least restrictive alternative consistent with the legitimate purposes of a commitment inheres in the very nature of civil commitment, which entails an extraordinary deprivation of liberty justifiable only when the respondent is "mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty." J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

The court held that the principle of the least restrictive alternative is equally applicable to alternative dispositions within a mental hospital. Id.

Purpose of confinement

The court held that in reviewing on habeas corpus a civilly committed patient's confinement in a mental hospital, it should satisfy itself that no less onerous disposition would serve purpose of commitment. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Review

Absent jury demand, trial court at hearing (after Commission on Mental Health found patient was mentally ill and likely to injure others if allowed to remain at liberty and recommended hospitalization) had authority to evaluate Commission hearing and to reject Commission report and on remand court should consider merits of patient's contentions and take additional evidence if necessary. In re A. Walls (1971, 442 F. 2d 749, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

Treatability

Treatability of one having a mental disease or defect is not an appropriate consideration at a criminal trial, and its relevance may even be doubtful in a civil commitment determination. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Commission's report

Where petitioner made no demand for a jury trial or a further hearing by the court under this section after Commission on Mental Health adjudged him of unsound mind and ordered his commitment, the District Court, in habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect petitioner's transfer to Colorado, was authorized to act on commission's report and recommendations without more, except to examine them and find them sufficient. Hovard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

§ 21-545. Hearing and determination by court or jury; order; witnesses; jurors

(a) Upon the receipt by the court of a report referred to in section 21-544, the court shall promptly set the matter for hearing and shall cause a written notice of the time and place of the final hearing to be served personally upon the person with respect to whom the report was made and his attorney, together with notice that he has five days following the date on which he is so served within which to demand a jury trial. The demand may be made by the person or by anyone in his behalf. If a jury trial is demanded within the five-day period, it shall be accorded by the court with all reasonable speed. If a timely demand for jury trial is not made, the court shall determine the person's mental condition on the basis of the report of the Commission, or on such further evidence in addition to the report as the court requires.

(b) If the court or jury, as the case may be, finds that the person is not mentally ill, the court shall dismiss the petition and order his release. If the court or jury finds that the person is mentally ill and, because of that illness, is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty, the court may order his hospitalization for an indeterminate period, or order any other alternative course of treatment which the court believes will be in the best interests of the person or of the public. The Commission, or a member thereof, shall be competent and compellable witnesses at a hearing or jury trial held pursuant to this chapter. The jury to be used in any case where a jury trial is demanded under this chapter shall be impaneled, upon order of the court, from the jurors in attendance upon other branches of the court, who shall perform the services in addition to and as part of their duties in the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (f) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-546, 21-551.

Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Appeal and error

Patient, who was committed under this chapter, whose testimony was responsive to questions of court and counsel, and who evinced capacity to observe and full knowledge of events in relation to which he testified, is not entitled to relief on appeal on theory that, due to his mental illness, his testimony was so inherently unreliable that no conclusions could be drawn from it. In re E. L. Penn (1970, 443 F. 2d 663, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Burden of proof

Burden of proof, in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty by reason of insanity, is the same as that for civilly committed patients. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that habeas corpus petitioner must prove that his detention is illegal by preponderance of evidence applies in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity, and thus court must find, by preponderance of evidence, that patient's commitment is no longer valid, that is, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons due to illness. Id.

Civil commitment of alleged criminal

Defendant who was insane for purpose of responsibility at time of offense may not be insane for purpose of civil commitment at time of verdict, or although competent to stand trial, he may be insane, dangerous and in need of treatment for purpose of civil commitment. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Civil commitment, when warranted

In order to warrant civil commitment, it is not essential that illness fit specifically into any of various classes of mental illnesses recognized by American Psychiatric Association. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Commitment procedure

Commission of criminal acts does not give rise to a presumption of dangerousness which, standing alone, justifies substantial difference in commitment procedures and confinement conditions for mentally ill, and that, while prior criminal conduct is relevant to the determination whether person is mentally ill or dangerous, it cannot justify denial of procedural safeguards for such determination, and that while prior criminal conduct is a relevant consideration it does not provide automatic basis for allowing significant and arbitrary differences in such conditions where defendant is acquitted on his own plea of insanity. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Prior criminal conduct cannot be deemed sufficient justification for substantial differences in procedures and requirements for commitment of those found not guilty by reason of insanity and other mentally ill persons. Id.

Rule that prior criminal conduct cannot be deemed sufficient justification for substantial differences in procedures and requirements for commitment of those found not guilty by reason of insanity and other mentally ill persons applies whether plea of insanity is raised by defendant, prosecutor or court. Id.

There is no reasonable basis for distinction for commitment purposes between those who plead insanity and those who have defense thrust upon them, and neither may be automatically deprived of type of protection afforded by 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Fact that persons acquitted by reason of insanity have committed criminal acts and that such fact may tend to show they meet requirements for commitment does not remove such requirements nor justify total abandonment of procedures used in civil commitment proceedings to determine whether such requirements have been satisfied. Id.

Persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings. Id.

Where feasible, requirements of Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act as to notice, counsel, and jury trial should be followed in connection with judicial hearing afforded persons found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Rule that persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings is applicable prospectively only. Id.

Construction

Statute sanctioning commitment of mentally ill person, a drastic curtailment of the rights of citizens, must be narrowly construed in order to avoid deprivations of liberty without due process of law. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Interest of justice and furtherance of congressional objective required application, to pending habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner confined in Saint Elizabeths Hospital in District of Columbia as insane person, of principles adopted in District of Columbia Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act, passed after commitment. C. Lake v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent, etc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 657, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner, who was found to be somewhat senile, had poor memory, had wandered away on few occasions, and was unable to care for herself at all times, and who had been confined in Saint Elizabeths Hospital in District of Columbia as insane person, would be remanded to District Court for inquiry into other alternative courses of treatment. Id.

Danger to community

Consideration of a person's likely danger to community is appropriate in civil commitment proceedings but is irrelevant in a criminal trial. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Evidence

Evidence supported finding that patient, who was committed under this chapter, was likely to injure himself or others. In re E. L. Penn (1970, 443 F. 2d 663, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Even if admission of certain testimony by psychiatrists, in proceeding in which patient was committed under this chapter, was error on ground that testimony was hearsay violating patient's rights to confrontation, such error was not prejudicial, in view of sufficient other evidence warranting finding that patient was likely to injure himself or others. Id.

In absence of evidence that husband was of sound mind or had requisite mental capacity to execute any documents, ratify acts of another or authorize the signing of his name at time wife completed form requesting Veterans Administration to pay her a portion of husband's disability benefits, the previous adjudication of incompetence is presumed to be of continuing validity and trial court's findings that all representations made by wife to Veterans Administration were at husband's request and were ratified by him, and that he authorized wife to sign his name on benefit form were erroneous. A. D. Martin v. L. P. Martin (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 141).

In view of psychiatrists' testimony that person was suffering from condition which substantially impaired his health, that the condition was interrelated with his mental deficiency, and that his antisocial behavior occurred as result and manifestation of underlying mental illness, there was sufficient evidence for jury to find that person in addition to being mentally deficient was suffering from a mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Grounds for commitment

To sustain a civil commitment under District of Columbia Code it is insufficient to find that a person is mentally deficient even when such condition is accompanied by some antisocial behavior, and government must prove by preponderance of evidence that individual suffers from mental illness, whether related or unrelated to mental deficiency, and that danger-productive behavior of individual results from mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Hearing

Court's review of hospital's treatment plan for patient involuntarily committed because of mental illness is of very limited nature, and the court may not decide whether hospital has made best possible decision as to course of treatment but only whether it has made permissible decision based on relevant information and within broad range of discretion given to the hospital administrator. In re H. Jones (1972, 338 F. Supp. 428).

Primary function of doctors is treating sick, not testifying in court; and, therefore, to maximum extent possible, court will rely on written record, rather than personal testimony of treating physicians, in reviewing treatment plan for patient involuntarily committed because of mental illness. Id.

Patient suffering from mental illness that was treated with care designed to maintain his health and see that his physical needs were satisfied is singularly deserving of judicial overview to guaranty that least restrictive alternatives are explored before his initial commitment proceedings are terminated. Id.

Instructions

To extent that district court's instruction reflected government trial counsel's view that mental deficiency in and of itself constituted a mental illness within District of Columbia statute relating to civil commitment instruction was improper, but when court's charge was taken in its entirety the jury had been clearly and properly informed they could not commit person simply because of his mental deficiency. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Investigation discretionary

Provision of the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act providing that court may order hospitalization or any other alternative course of treatment makes court's duty to investigate discretionary and not mandatory. C. Lake v. Dr. D. C. Cameron (1967, 267 F. Supp. 155).

Justification for treatment

Evidence in committed petitioner's habeas corpus proceeding established that actual medical and psychiatric treatment extended to petitioner was fully warranted and that, in view of petitioner's tendency to wander, there was no facility within district, other than mental hospital with closed wards, presently capable of treating her. C. Lake v. Dr. D. C. Cameron (1967, 267 F. Supp. 155).

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24-302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Purpose of confinement

The court held that in reviewing on habeas corpus a civilly committed patient's confinement in a mental hospital, it should satisfy itself that no less onerous disposition would serve purpose of commitment. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Review

Absent jury demand, trial court at hearing (after Commission on Mental Health found patient was mentally ill and likely to injure others if allowed to remain at liberty and recommended hospitalization) had authority to evaluate Commission hearing and to reject Commission report and on remand court should consider merits of patient's contentions and take additional evidence if necessary. In re A. Walls (1971, 442 F. 2d 749, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

Treatability

Treatability of one having a mental disease or defect is not an appropriate consideration at a criminal trial, and its relevance may even be doubtful in a civil commitment determination. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Treatment

Court has authority to explore alternative courses and facilities for treatment of patient involuntarily committed because of mental illness, both outside and within the hospital complex. In re H. Jones (1972, 338 F. Supp. 428).

Patient's right to review his conditions of hospital treatment under statute and his right to petition for writ of habeas corpus at any time does not preclude court from making its inquiry to guaranty that its commitment order is implemented with least restrictive alternatives. Id.

Validity of prison officials' policy

The simple fact that the prisoner was back in prison at time case was heard did not relieve court of obligation to appraise validity of prison officials' continuing policy of commitments without hearing to mental institutions, inasmuch as prisoner was still subject to that policy. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Burden of proof

Burden of proof is on party seeking civil commitment for insanity and only if trier of fact is satisfied that alleged insane person is insane may he be committed. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Commitment procedure

Supreme Court granted certiorari, where important questions were raised as to procedure for confining criminally insane in District of Columbia and as to possible constitutional infirmities in statute under which commitment was made as applied to circumstances in case. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

When person suspected of insanity is also accused of crime, trial court is not to be permitted to commit such person to a mental hospital without benefit of a jury or of the Mental Health Commission, even though the person is competent to stand trial, but there must be a report and recommendation by the commission, a jury's verdict if demanded, and a district court order. Williams v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1958, 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

Community interest

The community is not without means of protecting itself if at time that a prisoner's sentence ends he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or to be insane or mentally incompetent. Carter v. United States (1960, 283 F. 2d 200, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

The existence of possibilities to protect society from, and to treat, prisoner convicted of sodomy, or other sexual crimes, in the event he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or insane, of unsound mind or otherwise defective during imprisonment or at time his sentence ends, does not relieve bench and bar of responsibility of endeavoring to reach at the earliest possible stage, ideally prior to trial and sentence, the approach to a particular case which appears to be most just and appropriate, having regard to the individual's mental condition, his history, and the possibility of rehabilitating him and restoring him to usefulness in the community. Id.

Confinement without trial

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, was under indictment for an assault but court found that he was of unsound mind and dangerous, his confinement without criminal trial in ward of hospital which resembled a prison did not deprive him of constitutional rights, since confinement was not due to the indictment. Knighton v. Overholser (1945, 145 F. 2d 860, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 294).

Construction

Where aunt was of unsound mind, she could not care for herself and her property, niece was interested in her welfare, and suitable committee had been appointed after proceedings in which all relatives took part and to which none objected, the description under this section of the person who may file petition for appointment of committee should be liberally construed. Duvall v. Humphrey (1946, 153 F. 2d 798, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

Construction with other laws

Former § 21-326 providing for apprehension and detention by police of insane persons found in public places must be read together with other sections of civil insanity statute, and particularly former §§ 21-356 and 21-311 implementing procedure initiated under former § 21-326. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Costs and attorney's fees

Petitioner for writ de lunatico inquirendi, who contracted with counsel voluntarily, must bear expense of counsel and taxable costs of proceedings and costs and expense of petitioner's counsel were not chargeable against patient. In re Colohan (D.C.D.C. 1950, 93 F. Supp. 641).

District not a voluntary creditor

District of Columbia was entitled to reimbursement for expenses of treatment of incompetent veteran from committee of the veteran from date of her appointment until the veteran was transferred to the rolls of the Veterans Administration which now bears the costs involved, since the District was not a voluntary "creditor" within the statute exempting from claims of "creditors" payments of benefits due or to become due under any law administered by the Veterans Administration. T. Savoid, Committee etc. v. District of Columbia (1961, 288 F. 2d 851, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Evidence

In habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect transfer of petitioner, a committed insane person, to Colorado as the state of his residence, petitioner was not entitled to relief in absence of evidence that Colorado was willing to receive him as a legal resident entitled to admission into the custody of Colorado officials having charge of insane persons. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Where an inmate of National Soldiers' Home in Togus, Maine, shot and killed one of the physicians of the home and was thereafter committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital in the District of Columbia on finding that he was insane, such person was not entitled to be transferred to Maine on ground that he was a citizen and resident of the State of Maine and not a resident of the District of Columbia in absence of proof that State of Maine was willing to receive and care for him, or to be discharged without proper provision for his care and restraint. Williams v. Overholser (1943, 137 F. 2d 545, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

Findings of court

Appointment of committee was not invalid because of absence of finding that ward was dangerous, unfit to be at large, and in need of treatment, where ward was not arrested and detained pending trial. Duvall v. Humphrey (1946, 153 F. 2d 798, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

No District of Columbia statute or inherent equity power permits commitment to institution upon mere showing that man is potentially dangerous to others. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Habeas corpus

Findings, on habeas corpus application for release from mental institution to which petitioner had been confined upon his acquittal for insanity, that petitioner was free from mental disease and mental defect and could not be dangerous by reason of any mental disease or defect did not meet standards required by statute in not containing finding of freedom from such abnormal mental condition as would make individual dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future, irrespective of fact that his mental health might have improved. W. Overholser v. H. T. O'Bierne (1962, 302 F. 2d 852, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

That one confined to mental institution because of his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity would no longer be committable under civil procedure could constitute no ground for his release where there was no showing that he had recovered to point where he was free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose himself or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

Evidence adduced by petitioner seeking release on habeas corpus from mental institution to which he had been confined pursuant to his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity was insufficient to establish that he had made necessary recovery to point where he would be free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose him or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

Where, after setting aside accused's plea of guilty to charge of public drunkenness, and committing accused to hospital for examination and observation, the municipal court found accused of unsound mind and ordered him confined to another hospital but did not determine whether accused was competent to stand trial, accused would be entitled to release on writ of habeas corpus unless the municipal court determined that he was mentally incompetent to stand trial and ordered him confined on that ground or unless proper lunacy proceedings were instituted. Williams v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1958, 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

Even though it appears factually on a habeas corpus hearing that petitioner is insane, if he has been confined under a void statute or a void proceeding, he is entitled to order of discharge so far as his then confinement is concerned. Dooley v. Overholser (1957, 243 F. 2d 825, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Where person of unsound mind had been committed to hospital under invalid proceeding, habeas corpus proceeding would be remanded to district court for discharge of party from custody unless within five days after entry of order new incompetency proceedings were instituted. Id.

The trial court still has the authority which it has always had to order the immediate discharge of a patient if, after a hearing on habeas corpus proceeding, it be of the opinion that the patient is of sound mind. Such remedy is expressly reserved to it by § 21-325. Prior cases to the contrary are overruled. Overholser v. Boddie (1950, 184 F. 2d 240, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 186, 21 A.L.R. 2d 999).

Where evidence of petitioner seeking release from detention and of doctor-psychiatrist in charge of petitioner was insufficient to create doubt on judgment of those detaining petitioner as insane, trial judge did not abuse his discretion in failing to submit without request, question of petitioner's mental condition to the Commission on Mental Health. Appel v. Overholser (1948, 164 F. 2d 511, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 379).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to this chapter, the record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to require a re-examination of his mental condition by the Commission on Mental Health in accordance with this chapter, under which he was committed. Ex parte De Marcos (D.C.D.C. 1946, 65 F. Supp. 231).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to statutory provisions therefor, the only question before court was whether record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to justify reopening commitment proceeding. Id.

The issue of sanity or insanity cannot be determined on merits on habeas corpus proceeding instituted by persons confined in a hospital for insane, but, if petitioner makes a sufficient showing that he was committed improperly, the judge may enter an order providing for discharge of petitioner unless within a reasonable time a proper proceeding is initiated. Overholser v. Treibly (1945, 147 F. 2d 705, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 389, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 38, 326 U.S. 730, 90 L. Ed. 434).

Where question arose regarding whether procedure in lunacy proceedings was proper but order of adjudication and commitment was set aside and procedure thereafter adopted conformed to legal requirements and resulted in order of adjudication of insanity and of commitment, the allegedly insane person was not entitled to writ of habeas corpus. Wrobel v. Overholser (1945, 145 F. 2d 859, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 293, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 712, 324 U.S. 854, 89 L. Ed. 1413).

Where petitioner seeks writ of habeas corpus to obtain release from confinement in mental hospital on ground that his mental health is restored, and petitioner demands an examination by independent experts, or in a doubtful case, even in absence of such a demand, it is the right of court to seek assistance of Commission on Mental Health in determining sanity of petitioner. De Marcos v. Overholser (1943, 137 F. 2d 698, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U.S. 785, 88 L.

This section establishing the Commission of Mental Health vests a discretion in court to require the Commission's expert assistance in a habeas corpus proceeding in which by reason of his poverty petitioner is unable to secure the testimony of other professional witnesses. Id.

In habeas corpus proceeding where petitioner sought release from confinement on ground that his mental health was restored, and requested that court provide expert witnesses in petitioner's behalf, not members of Commission on Mental Health, court denying request should have offered petitioner an examination by the Commission, but defect was cured by petitioner's insistence in appellate court that such relief if offered would be refused. Id.

Hearing

This section providing that when mental health commission has made determination that person is found not to be sane, commission has duty to apply to court for hearing and commission shall cause to be served personally upon patient written notice of time and place of final hearing, hearing for which notice is required is hearing before court rather than hearing before mental health commission. Lafferty v. District of Columbia (1960, 277 F. 2d 348, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 318).

Where patient was not given required statutory notice of court hearing leading to adjudication that he was of unsound mind and he did not learn of decree until he returned to District of Columbia, after an absence, about a year after its date, he was entitled to have decree set aside, and court's denial of a petition which he had filed before he had learned that he had been adjudged of unsound mind and which sought review of mental health commission report and recommendations did not make issues presented on petition for review of decree adjudging him of unsound mind res judicata. Id.

Petitioner's delay of some two and one-half years in instituting proceedings for review of decree adjudging him to have been of unsound mind after he learned of decree which was entered without his having been afforded required statutory notice of hearing did not, under circumstances, constitute an unreasonable delay or a ground for denial of relief. Id.

In general

The statute as a whole makes clear that a proceeding in equity is contemplated for initial determination of insanity, and not the writ of habeas corpus. Barry v. Hall (1938, 98 F. 2d 222, 69 App. D.C., 350).

Judicial determination required

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial in determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 283 F. 2d 388).

Jurisdiction

The United States District Court is not shown to have lost jurisdiction over either the subject matter of the criminal prosecution or the person of petitioner, by reason of the proceedings to determine his sanity, or those connected therewith or consequent thereon (D.C. 1901 Edit. § 927). Ormsby v. United States (C.C.A. 6, 1921, 273 F. 977).

Nearest relative available

Under this section authorizing "nearest relative available" to file petition for writ of de lunatico inquirendo and for appointment of committee, the quoted phrase is an elastic term, and is not intended to require an aged relative, who might make himself available, if no one else were available, to bear the burden of starting a proceeding, but it is intended to exclude officious intermeddling. Duwall v. Humphrey (1946, 153 F. 2d 798, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

Niece was "nearest relative available" entitled to file petition for writ of de lunatico inquirendo and for appointment of committee for aunt, where her 81-year-old brother and her 84-year-old sister joined with other relatives in requesting appointment of a committee. Id.

Presumptions

Adjudication of insanity, as long as not rescinded, creates rebuttable presumption that mental incapacity of person continues thereafter, and strength of such presumption is affected by character and causes of the mental disturbance, possibility of lucid intervals, and various other considerations. Life Ins. Co. of Virginia v. Herrmann (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 828).

Probable cause

Question of whether undisputed facts constitute probable cause for believing person named in District of Columbia lunacy proceeding to be insane or of unsound mind is one of law to be decided by court. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (1964, 331 F. 2d 476, U.S. App. 2d Ct.).

Procedure

Where a motion to amend findings of fact and a decree of adjudication and commitment as a person of unsound mind was made eight months after entry of such order, relief from part of judgment ruling that defendant was not a resident of the District of Columbia could be granted by court under rule providing for relief from judgment or order by a court, rather than under rule providing that motions to amend findings of fact must be made not later than ten days after entry of judgment. District of Columbia v. Stackhouse (1956, 239 F. 2d 62, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 242).

Right to counsel

Alleged insane person has a right to be represented by counsel in proceeding to commit him as a person of unsound mind, and if he is not so represented independently the court shall appoint either an attorney or guardian ad litem. Dooling v. Overholser (1957, 243 F. 2d 825, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Where proceeding was commenced to commit person to hospital as a person of unsound mind, and court appointed counsel for such person and granted her request that counsel be discharged, such person was not represented by counsel or guardian ad litem at proceeding, and her commitment was invalid. Id.

Sufficiency of petition

Government's verified petition which failed to allege that person arrested by police was of unsound mind or insane did not comply with this section permitting a commitment proceeding to be commenced by arrest of an alleged insane person and defect in petition was not remedied by two psychiatric reports attached thereto where such reports were unverified and ambiguous in terms employed and conclusions reached. Overholser Supt. etc. v. Williams (1958, 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

§ 21-546. Periodic requests for examination of hospitalized patient; procedure for examination and detention or release; petition to court

(a) A patient hospitalized pursuant to a court order obtained under section 21-545, or his attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parent, or other nearest adult relative, may, upon the expiration of 90 days following the order and not more frequently than every 6 months thereafter, request, in writing, the chief of service of the hospital in which the patient is hospitalized, to have a current examination of his mental condition made by one or more physicians. If the request is timely it shall be granted. The patient may, at his own expense, have a duly qualified physician participate in the examination. In the case of such a patient who is indigent, the Department of Public Health shall, upon the written request of the patient, assist him in obtaining a duly qualified physician to participate in the examination in the patient's behalf. A physician so obtained by an indigent patient shall be compensated for his services out of any unobligated funds of Department of Public Health in an amount determined by it to be fair and reasonable. If the chief of service, after considering the reports of the physicians conducting the examination, determines that the patient is no longer mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if not hospitalized, the chief of service shall order the immediate release of the patient. However, if the chief of service, after considering the reports, determines that the patient continues to be mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if not hospitalized, but one or more of the physicians participating in the examination reports that the patient is not mentally ill to that extent, the patient may petition the court for an order directing his release. The petition shall be accompanied by the reports of the physicians who conducted the examination of the patient. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (a) of section 21-357 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-357 is carried into this chapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-547, 21-549, 21-589.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Administrators discretion

The court held that efficient hospital administration requires the courts to accord administrators much broader discretion in determining the appropriateness of an intra-hospital disposition of mentally ill person than in assaying the need for hospitalization ab initio; however, additional restrictions beyond those necessarily entailed by hospitalization are as much in need of justification as any other deprivations of liberty; and judicial review of internal decisions is not precluded. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Basis of Confinement

Confinement of the mentally ill rests upon basis substantially different from that which supports confinement of those convicted of crime since confinement of mentally ill depends not only upon validity of initial commitment but also upon continuing status of the patient. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Supt etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Mental patient who seeks complete release from confinement by writ of habeas corpus need only establish, by the preponderance of the evidence, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons because of mental illness. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Supt etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Since habeas corpus proceeding on petition of mental patient for complete release from confinement is not strictly adversary in nature, conventional rules regarding the burden of coming forward with evidence do not apply, and the hearing court and the parties bear equal responsibility to see that decision is had upon all the relevant evidence. Id.

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

The administrative remedy for mental patient that must be exhausted prior to petition for habeas corpus is the medical examination, rather than request for examination, and if the examination has been conducted within six months prior to habeas corpus petition, the administrative remedy is exhausted. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Supt etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Only if the required medical examination is in progress when the mental patient's habeas corpus petition is filed has the patient failed to exhaust his administrative remedy of complete medical examination. Id.

If the mental hospital has ignored its duty to the patient in its care, its misconduct may not be imputed to the patient and thereby prejudice patient's right to judicial review of his custody. Id.

If a mental patient is undergoing medical examination at the time his petition for habeas corpus is filed, the district court should defer action on the petition pending mental hospital's completion of the examination and if, after completion, the patient desires to continue with his petition, the district court should proceed to determination of the issues. Id.

Delay of plenary hearing on mental patient's petition for habeas corpus is not justified by patient's failure to avail himself of his right to be examined by an outside psychiatrist. Id.

Mental hospital is adequately informed of a patient's desire to invoke such internal remedies as exist in hospital by the filing of a petition seeking judicial review in district court. Id.

If adequate internal remedies of mental hospital are in process at the time mental patient files habeas corpus petition, proper procedure is to delay action on petition rather than to dismiss it. Id.

Mentally ill person

A person is "mentally ill" if he suffers from an abnormal condition of mind that substantially affects mental or emotional processes, and substantially impairs behavioral control. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Periodic examinations

Statute governing release of persons acquitted by reason of insanity entitles patient to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist and, if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent, etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that patient committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity is entitled to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist, and that if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing applies to all cases including those previously committed under statute providing for mandatory commitment of persons acquitted by reason of insanity. Id.

Petition for release

When a mental hospital patient's habeas corpus petition for release from mental hospital is based on his mental health at time petition was filed, the petition is not subject to dismissal on grounds that the merits of his claim had been determined in prior proceedings or that failure to present the issues in prior proceedings amounted to inexcusable neglect. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Since ten months had elapsed between denial of previous petition for habeas corpus and mental patient's subsequent petition, sufficient time had passed for patient to raise issue that his condition at time of petition warranted his release from confinement in mental institution. Id.

Under this section, petition for habeas corpus by mental patient seeking his release on ground that his present status no longer justifies commitment may be dismissed as repetitive only if that ground was adequately heard and determined adversely to the patient in a judicial proceeding within six months preceding the new application. Id.

Under this section, even if previous application by mental patient on same grounds was heard and determined within six months preceding the new application, the district court has full power to hold plenary hearing, on the issue of patient's present mental condition, if the court believes that the interests of justice would thereby be served. Id.

Under this section, if mental patient's petition for habeas corpus is based solely on grounds relating not to present status but rather to specific past events, the question of whether a new hearing is required is equivalent to that in case of a prisoner seeking release under habeas corpus or equivalent process. Id.

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24-302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Questions of fact

The presence of an abnormal mental condition, and the extent to which it impairs mental or emotional processes and controls, are questions of fact; how substantial such an impairment must be to be considered a mental illness is a matter of law. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

The likelihood of future misconduct of the mental patient who seeks release from confinement, the type of misconduct to be expected, and its probable frequency are questions of fact; whether the expected harm, and its apparent likelihood, are sufficiently great to warrant coercive intervention are questions of law. Id.

Release provisions

Release provisions of statute governing commitment to mental hospital of one found not guilty by reason of insanity are valid even though they differ from civil commitment procedures by authorizing court review of hospital's decision to release patient. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Equal protection is not offended by allowing government or court opportunity to insure that standards for release of civilly committed patients are faithfully applied to patients committed after having been found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Scope of judicial review

When the mental patient is seeking complete release from confinement, the scope of judicial review of hospital administrator's decision is broader and the function of the hearing court is not simply to review the hospital's decision for unreasonableness, but rather itself to decide ultimate the question of whether the present status of the patient is such that continued confinement is justifiable. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Sufficiency of return to petition for release

In this case, the court held that the mental hospital's return to habeas corpus petition filed by mental hospital was not sufficient to warrant trial court in denying plenary hearing on patient's mental condition at time of filing of petition. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Validity of prison officials' policy

The simple fact that the prisoner was back in prison at time case was heard did not relieve court of obligation to appraise validity of prison officials' continuing policy of commitments without hearing to mental institutions, inasmuch as prisoner was still subject to that policy. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

§ 21-547. Judicial determination of petition filed under section 21-546; order; physicians as witnesses

In considering a petition filed under section 21-546, the court shall consider the testimony of the physicians who participated in the examination of the patient, and the reports of the physicians accompanying the petition. After considering the testimony and reports, the court shall either (1) reject the petition and order the continued hospitalization of the patient, or (2) order the chief of service to immediately release the patient. A physician participating in the examination shall be a competent and compellable witness at any trial or hearing held pursuant to this chapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 757, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Burden of proof

Burden of proof is on party seeking civil commitment for insanity and only if trier of fact is satisfied that alleged insane person is insane may he be committed. F. C. Lynch v. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Judicial determination required

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

§ 21-548. Periodic examinations by hospital authorities; release

The chief of service of a public or private hospital shall, as often as practicable, but not less often than every six months, examine or cause to be examined each patient admitted to a hospital pursuant to this subchapter and if he determines on the basis of the examination that the conditions which justified the involuntary hospitalization of the patient no longer exist, the chief of service shall immediately release the patient. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-549, 21-589.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Basis of confinement

Confinement of the mentally ill rests upon basis substantially different from that which supports confinement of those convicted of crime since confinement of mentally ill depends not only upon validity of initial commitment but also upon continuing status of the patient. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

The administrative remedy for mental patient that must be exhausted prior to petition for habeas corpus is the medical examination, rather than request for examination, and if the examination has been conducted within six months prior to habeas corpus petition, the administrative remedy is exhausted. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Only if the required medical examination is in progress when the mental patient's habeas corpus petition is filed has the patient failed to exhaust his administrative remedy of complete medical examination. Id.

If the mental hospital has ignored its duty to the patient in its care, its misconduct may not be imputed to the patient and thereby prejudice patient's right to judicial view of his custody. Id.

§ 21-549. Preservation of other rights to release

Sections 21-546 to 21-548 do not prohibit a person from exercising a right presently available to him for obtaining release from confinement, including the right to petition for a writ of habeas corpus. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 757, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 21-550. Surety

The court in its discretion may require a petitioner under this subchapter to file an undertaking with surety to be approved by the court in such amount as the court deems proper, conditioned to save harmless the respondent by reason of costs incurred, including attorney's fees, if any, and damages suffered by the respondent, as a result of any action under this subchapter. ## SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-589.

§ 21-551. Nonresidents

(a) If a person ordered committed to a public hospital by the court pursuant to section 21-545 is found by the Commission, subject to a review by the court, not to be a resident of the District of Columbia, and to be a resident of another place, he shall be transferred to the State of his residence if an appropriate institution of that State is willing to accept him. If the person is an indigent, the expense of transferring him, including the traveling expenses of necessary attendants, shall be borne by the District of Columbia.

(b) For the purposes of this section, "resident of the District of Columbia" means a person who has maintained his principal place of abode in the District of Columbia for more than one year immediately prior to the filing of the petition referred to in subsection (a) of section 21-541. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 757, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-361 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 12, 78 Stat. 952).

The provisions are subdivided into subsections for easier reference, and changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-589, 21-906.

Burden of proof

A committed insane person to establish and enforce his right to be transferred to Colorado as the state of his residence was required to show either that Colorado was willing to receive him into its custody or that there was means of enforcing his right to be received as against the state and its officials. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Indigent insane

In contemplation of the law, the public health service is a friend of the indigent insane. Barry v. Hall (1938, 98 F. 2d 222, 62 App. D.C. 350).

In general

This section providing for commitment of an insane person found not to be a resident of the District of Columbia and for transfer to the state of his residence does not purport to confer the right of transfer on persons found not to be resident in the District or whose residence cannot be ascertained, and the finding referred to is the one made in the commitment proceedings. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

This section providing for commitment of an insane person found not to be a resident of the District of Columbia and for transfer to the state of his residence does not contemplate that a committed insane person shall be transferred in any case to the state of his residence without regard to its willingness to receive him, and it is intended that the person shall be delivered into the hands of state officials charged with custody of insane residents. Id.

Jurisdiction

In habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect transfer of committed insane person to Colorado as the state of his residence under this section, District of Columbia courts had no power or jurisdiction to enforce Colorado's obligation, even if section obligated Colorado to receive person on showing of residence made, where neither Colorado nor its officials were made parties to proceeding. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Petition

Where petition for writ of habeas corpus to effect transfer of petitioner, a committed insane person, to Colorado did not state a cause of action in that respect, petitioner was not prejudiced by inadequacy of hearing conducted by petitioner in his own behalf with regard to the admission of evidence and other action which competent counsel would have taken, except in a procedural sense, and that was not sufficient to require another hearing. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Principal place of abode

The phrase "principal place of abode" as used in this section providing that a resident of the District of Columbia, as used in such section, means a person who has maintained his principal place of abode in the District of Columbia for more than one year prior to filing of petition for commitment, does not require physical presence. District of Columbia v. Stackhouse (1956, 239 F. 2d 62, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 242).

Where defendant, who was committed to a hospital as an insane person, had her residence in the District of Columbia during her childhood, her subsequent confinement in numerous mental institutions did not effect a change in her residence, nor did the fact that she lived in college towns as a student, during which times she returned home for summer vacations, result in the loss of her District of Columbia residence. Id.

Waiver

Where committed insane person was ably represented on appeal from judgment dismissing habeas corpus petition by counsel who raised no issue concerning sanity and conceded at argument that a hearing on question of sanity could result only in remand to custody, and adequacy of hearing was questioned only in respect to alleged right of transfer of person to Colorado, counsel's action constituted a "waiver" of any right to further hearing on question of sanity. Howard v. Overholser (1942, 130 F. 2d 429, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

SUBCHAPTER V.—RIGHT TO COMMUNICATION; EXERCISE OF OTHER RIGHTS

SUBCHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This subchapter is referred to in section 21-589.

§ 21-561. Mail privileges; censored mail; return to sender; visiting hours

(a) A person hospitalized in a public or private hospital pursuant to this chapter may:

- (1) communicate by sealed mail or otherwise with an individual or official agency inside or outside the hospital; and
- (2) receive uncensored mail from his attorney or personal physician.

(b) All incoming mail or communications other than mail or communications referred to in subsection (a) of this section may be read before being delivered to the patient, if the chief of service believes the action is necessary for the medical welfare of the patient who is the intended recipient.

Mail or other communication which is not delivered to the patient for whom it is intended shall be immediately returned to the sender.

(c) This section does not prohibit the administrator from making reasonable rules regarding visitation hours and the use of telephone and telegraph facilities. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (a) of section 21-358 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed: Remainder of section 21-358 is carried into this subchapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-562. Medical and psychiatric care and treatment; records

A person hospitalized in a public hospital for a mental illness shall, during his hospitalization, be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment. The administrator of each public hospital shall keep records detailing all medical and psychiatric care and treatment received by a person hospitalized for a mental illness and the records shall be made available, upon that person's written authorization, to his attorney or personal physician. The records shall be preserved by the administrator until the person has been discharged from the hospital. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (b) of section 21-358 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-358 is carried into this subchapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Availability of treatment

Availability of treatment for persons civilly committed to hospital as mentally ill had been sufficiently demonstrated in case so that it was not necessary to decide question of whether court erred in ordering hospitalization at particular hospital in absence of showing that he would receive medical and psychiatric treatment there. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Basis for indefinite commitment

Indefinite commitment under sexual psychopath law is justifiable only upon a theory of therapeutic treatment. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383).

Construction

Neither federal statute pertaining to mental incompetency after arrest, nor this section pertaining to mail privileges, conferred "a broad confidentiality" upon letters sent by defendant to various people while he was undergoing court-ordered mental observation at hospital. United States v. R. L. Ammidown (1972, 341 F. Supp. 1355).

Construction with other laws

The District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act was not repealed by the 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Court of Appeals would not read into the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act the procedural protections of the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Disclosure of records

When a patient is committed to a public mental hospital for treatment, the hospital has a statutory obligation to make its records available to his counsel and to his personal physician, and justice demands no less for a patient who is committed to hospital for observation in preparation for criminal trial. United States v. E. A. Schappel (1971, 445 F. 2d 716, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 240; aff'g 336 F. Supp. 12).

The court held that hospital to which mentally ill person has been civilly committed may not disclose hospital records to outside parties without patient's consent does not imply that it is forbidden to introduce them in court where they are relevant to patient's contentions on habeas corpus. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Evidence

Evidence, including testimony of examining and observing doctors that the defendant was without mental disorder, established that the defendant, whose defense was insanity, was not suffering from mental illness at time of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon. United States v. E. A. Schappel (1969, 336 F. Supp. 12, aff'd 445 F. 2d 716, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 240).

In view of psychiatrists' testimony that person was suffering from condition which substantially impaired his health, that the condition was interrelated with his mental deficiency, and that his antisocial behavior occurred as result and manifestation of underlying mental illness, there was sufficient evidence for jury to find that person in addition to being mentally deficient was suffering from a mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Habeas corpus

Alleged denial of mental patients' right to treatment would require remand of habeas corpus petition for a new hearing. S. A. Dobson and R. Stultz v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 383 F. 2d 519, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

Petitioner involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity had right to treatment that was cognizable in habeas corpus, and law and justice required remand for hearing and findings on whether petitioner had received adequate treatment and, if not, the details and circumstances underlying the reason why he had not. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Habeas corpus relief would be available to one involuntarily committed to public hospital as sexual psychopath but who is not receiving reasonably suitable and adequate treatment, and lack of such treatment could not be justified by lack of staff or facilities. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 388; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Hearings

Allegations of involuntary patient in District of Columbia public mental hospital, in hospital's proceeding to extend period of hospitalization, warranted hearing on whether hospital had taken any step toward observation and diagnosis or whether hospital had provided only custodial care; if patient establishes truth of his allegations, he must either be released or be provided care that is consonant with goals of observation and diagnosis, and ultimately of treatment if considered necessary under diagnosis. In re J. Curry (1971, 452 F. 2d 1360, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

Instructions

To extent that district court's instruction reflected government trial counsel's view that mental deficiency in and of itself constituted a mental illness within District of Columbia statute relating to civil commitment instruction was improper, but when court's charge was taken in its entirety the jury had been clearly and properly informed they could not commit person simply because of his mental deficiency. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment

If court finds that a mandatorily committed patient is in custody in violation of Constitution and laws, for failure to receive treatment, it may allow hospital a reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment, but if opportunity for treatment has been exhausted or is otherwise inappropriate, conditional or unconditional release may be in order. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Records—Sufficiency

Generally, when a patient at a public mental hospital seeks to challenge the legality of decisions regarding treatment accorded him or manner of his confinement, hospital may not rely upon information or explanations not in the patient's hospital record to justify decision: records on their face must be adequate to demonstrate propriety of challenged decisions and may not be rehabilitated by subsequent demonstration in court. D. Williams v. L. D. Robinson, Acting Sup't etc. (1970, 432 F. 2d 637, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

Until the hospital can demonstrate existence and adequacy of mechanisms to insure complaining patient fair opportunity to place facts and arguments in administrative record, patient complaining of treatment or manner of confinement must be allowed opportunity to show, by reference to evidence outside hospital records, that even decision proper on face of records did not meet applicable standards; if the patient relies upon evidence outside face of records, hospital may rebut showing by going beyond records as well. Id.

In a habeas corpus proceeding by patient in public mental hospital complaining of manner of confinement, government is entitled to remand, despite insufficiency of hospital records in record to support confinement, where importance, for purposes of judicial review, of inclusion of additional records may not have been sufficiently clear and government claimed that the records were available to justify confinement. Id.

Public mental hospital records disclosing only reports from hospital's security force detailing investigation of robbery and conclusion that patient was perpetrator and doctor's memorandum stating that the patient had been identified as one who had threatened employee are, while sufficient to support interim determination that hospital security required patient's prompt transfer to maximum security unit, insufficient to support continued confinement in absence of showing that patient had been afforded reasonable opportunity to test evidence against him or that there was adequate plan of treatment. Id.

Right to treatment

One involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity has a right to treatment. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, hospital need not show that treatment will cure or improve him but only that there is bona fide effort to do so, and this requires hospital to show that initial and periodic inquiries are made into needs and conditions of patient with view to providing suitable treatment for him, and that the program provided is suited to his particular needs. Id.

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, effort should be to provide treatment which is adequate in light of present knowledge. Id.

Continuing failure to provide suitable and adequate treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity cannot be justified by lack of staff or facilities. Id.

Scope of judicial review

Where the decision of the hospital's administration challenged by mental patient relates essentially to internal administration of the hospital such as the patient's right to adequate treatment, transfer to less restrictive ward, or conditional release, judicial review is limited to determination whether the administrator of hospital has made permissible and reasonable decision in view of relevant information and within broad range of discretion. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Treatment of patient

One hospitalized involuntarily cannot be relegated to unattended ward while hospital officials maintain pretext that he is being observed and diagnosed; custodial care is no more justified by labeling it "diagnosis" than by labeling it "treatment." In re J. Curry (1971, 452 F. 2d 1360, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

Under this section providing that a person hospitalized in public hospital for a mental illness shall be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment, the hospital may be required to show that it is making "a bona fide effort" to cure or improve the patient and that the treatment provided "is suited to his particular needs." J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

§ 21-563. Use of mechanical restraints; record of use

A mechanical restraint may not be applied to a patient hospitalized in a public or private hospital for a mental illness unless the use of restraint is prescribed by a physician. If so prescribed, the restraint shall be removed whenever the condition justifying its use no longer exists. A use of a mechanical restraint, together with the reasons therefor, shall be made a part of the medical record of the patient. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (c) of section 21-358 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-358 is carried into this subchapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-564. Exercise of property and other rights; notice of inability; persons hospitalized prior to September 15, 1964

(a) A patient hospitalized pursuant to this chapter may not, by reason of the hospitalization, be denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, and hold a driver's license, unless the patient has been adjudicated incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction and has not been restored to legal capacity. If the chief of service of the public or private hospital in which the patient is hospitalized is of the opinion that the patient is unable to exercise any of the rights referred to in this section, the chief of service shall immediately notify the patient and the patient's attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parents, or other nearest known adult relative, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, the Commission on Mental Health, and the Commissioner of the District of Columbia of that fact.

(b) A person in the District of Columbia who, by reason of a judicial decree ordering his hospitalization entered prior to September 15, 1964, is considered to be mentally incompetent and is denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold a driver's license solely by reason of the decree, shall, upon the expiration of the one-year period immediately following September 15, 1964, be deemed to have been restored to legal capacity unless, within the one-year period, affirmative action is commenced to have the person adjudicated mentally incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, however, That in those cases in which a committee has heretofore been appointed and the committee'ship has not been terminated by court action, such committee shall continue to act under the supervision of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia under its equity powers. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (3), (4), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended subsections (a) and (b) by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

Section 150(c) (4) further amended subsection (a) by striking out "Board of Commissioners" and inserting in lieu "Commissioner."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsecs. (d) and (e) of section 21-358 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-358 is carried into this subchapter.

In subsec. (b) of this revised section, the date "September 15, 1964," is substituted for "the date of enactment of sections 21-351 to 21-366" in one place, and for "such date of enactment" in another place, The Act of September 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, cited in first paragraph of this note, enacted sections 21-351 to 21-366 of D.C. Code. 1961 ed.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Construction

Only those hospitalized pursuant to Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act are guaranteed by the civil rights act to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold driver's license. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Effect of commitment

Commitment to St. Elizabeth's hospital does not automatically render person incompetent for most purposes. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Adjudication as necessary

This section is not operative until a person has been adjudged non compos mentis except in case of application for an ancillary committee. Cooper v. Burton (1942, 127 F. 2d 741, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

A general or domiciliary committee for an allegedly insane person in New Jersey could not be appointed by District of Columbia courts without an adjudication of insanity, and there could not be an adjudication of insanity in absence of personal jurisdiction over the person. Id.

This section relates solely to appointment of committees or trustees for persons who have been adjudged non compos mentis, and it could not be relied on in support of a petition to obtain an adjudication to that effect. Id.

Allegations of petition

Under no statute is court authorized to commit any person for mental examination on petition which fails to state facts upon which an allegation of present insanity is based. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Costs and maintenance of ward committed to Government Hospital

District of Columbia has an action against the committee of an insane person with homicidal tendencies, who has been committed to Government Hospital for the Insane, to recover from his estate for costs and maintenance. DePue v. District of Columbia (1916, 45 App. D.C. 54, Ann. Cas. 1917E, 414).

Functions of committee

Under law of District of Columbia, committee of an incompetent is the mere conservator of the ward's estate and his authority is mainly ministerial or administrative. In re Estate of Church (D.C.D.C. 1956, 141 F. Supp. 703).

Under law of District of Columbia, committee of an incompetent cannot, without authority of the court which appointed him, exercise a right which is personal to the incompetent or perform an act which is contrary to the incompetent's intentions expressed before his disability. Id.

This section conferring on equity court full power and authority to superintend and direct affairs of persons non compos mentis, implies that any discretionary power of committee of an incompetent must be exercised under supervision of the appointing court. Id.

Hearing to be allowed relatives

Appointment before hearing relatives is voidable and not void. Coleman v. Schwartz (1921, 268 F. 701, 50 App. D.C. 111).

Jurisdiction of court

Courts of equity have no inherent jurisdiction to decree sale of lunatic's property for better investment. Clark v. Mathewson (1896, 7 App. D.C. 382).

Lunatic's suit for annulment of marriage

Lunatic may file suit for annulment of marriage, through next friend, but committee should be joined as party defendant. Mackey v. Peters (1903, 22 App. D.C. 341).

Procedural requirements

Procedural requirements of civil insanity statute were enacted by Congress for protection of all persons alleged to be insane in civil proceedings, and those statutory safeguards are not to be withheld from those with criminal records. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Procedure for commitment

This section dealing with court's power to superintend and direct affairs of persons who have been adjudged non compos mentis provides no procedure for commitment of insane persons. In the Matter of Dallas O. Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 871, affirmed 252 F. 2d 629, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 248).

Property, jurisdiction over

District of Columbia courts have power to grant protection to property of insane persons wherever they may be at a particular time, if the property itself is located in the District. Cooper v. Burton (1942, 127 F. 2d 741, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Property rights of surviving co-owner

Where one purchased United States Savings Bonds in her own name and in name of her son as co-owners, and mother then became incompetent and her committee unnecessarily redeemed bonds without authorization of court or notice to co-owner son, and mother then died, son was entitled to substituted bearer bonds or to whatever funds could be traced to bearer bonds which existed at time of mother's death. In re Estate of Church (D.C.D.C. 1956, 141 F. Supp. 703).

Reimbursement

Under former § 21-318 providing for commitment of insane person and that committee of such person, if estate was sufficient for purpose, should pay cost to District of Columbia for maintenance, and that, if it appeared that insane person had not sufficient estate out of which his maintenance might "properly" be fully met, then court might order payment by relatives of such sum necessary to provide for maintenance, the word "properly" did not refer to adequacy of estate after making allowance for support of dependents, but referred to general equity power of court to make such orders and decrees for management and preservation of insane person's estate as to court might seem proper, and hence act did not give authority to fix payments by committee at less than full cost of care where funds of estate were adequate. District of Columbia v. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1952, 104 F. Supp. 538).

Provision that the committee or trustee of insane person shall reimburse the District for care and expenses up to the time of the appointment of such committee or trustee was intended to relate back to the date of the passage of the act and no further. Baker v. District of Columbia (1912, 39 App. D.C. 42).

Residence

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia has no power to adjudicate the mental condition of a lunatic in New Jersey because she formerly lived in the District. Cooper v. Burton (1942, 127 F. 2d 741, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Selection of committee

Court has discretion in selection of committee. Coleman v. Schwartz (1921, 268 F. 701, 50 App. D.C. 111).

Statute of limitations

Statute of limitations did not begin to run against repayment of loans made to incompetent's estate by estate's committee until committee's death, when account of estate remained open and unsettled throughout committee's tenure up to and including time of his death. W. H. Clarke, executor etc. v. V. K. Hickman, Jr., Committee etc. (1962, 307 F. 2d 660, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

§ 21-565. Statement of release and adjudication procedures and of other rights

Upon the admission of a person to a hospital under a provision of this chapter, the administrator shall deliver to him, and to his spouse, parents, or other nearest known adult relative, a written statement outlining in simple, nontechnical language all release procedures provided by this chapter, setting out all rights accorded to patients by this chapter, and describing procedures provided by law for adjudication of incompetency and appointment of trustees or committees for the hospitalized person. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 759, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (f) of section 21-358 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder is carried into this subchapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SUBCHAPTER VI.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 21-581. Proceedings instituted by Commissioner of the District of Columbia

Proceedings instituted by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia to determine the mental condition of an alleged indigent mentally ill person or a person alleged to be mentally ill, with homicidal or otherwise dangerous tendencies, shall be according to the provisions of subchapter IV of this chapter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 759, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (5) (A), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (5) (A) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section, (i) by striking out "Commissioners" in subsection (a) and in the section heading and inserting in lieu thereof "Commissioner", and (ii) by striking out "(a)" and subsection (b).

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 21-306, 21-307 (Feb. 23, 1905, ch. 738, § 1, 33 Stat. 740; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 1, 56 Stat. 190).

Subsection (a) is from section 21-306 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and subsection (b) is from section 21-307 of the Code, as last amended by Act Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 19(f), 78 Stat. 954, which repealed a former last sentence of section 21-307.

The provisions carried into this section were not a part of Act Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, 78 Stat. 944 (D.C. Code, 1961, ed., § 21-351 et seq.), on which nearly all other provisions of this revised chapter are based, but, as carried into this section, are revised and integrated with this revised chapter, by substituting, in subsection (a), "mentally ill" for "insane", and "subchapter IV of this chapter" for "the code of law for the District of Columbia relating to lunacy proceedings". The provisions of 21-351 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as revised and carried into 21-501 of this revised Part, by use of the term "this chapter" in the introductory clause, extend the definition of "mentally ill person" to that term as used in this section.

In subsection (b) references to the criminal courts of the district are changed to refer to the District Court, to conform with the present organization of the courts and court procedure in the District. References to municipal court are changed to refer to the Court of General Sessions pursuant to Act Oct. 23, 1962, Public Law 87-873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171, and Act July 8, 1963, Public Law 88-60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77, both of which changed the name of the municipal court to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. See section 11-901 et seq. of the D.C. Code, 1961 ed., Supp. IV.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-582. Petitions, applications, or certificates of physicians

(a) A petition, application, or certificate authorized under section 21-521 and subsection (a) of section 21-541 may not be considered if made by a physician who is related by blood or marriage to the alleged mentally ill person, or who is financially interested in the hospital in which the alleged mentally ill person is to be detained, or, except in the case of physicians employed by the United States or the District of Columbia, who are professionally or officially connected with the hospital.

(b) A petition, application, or certificate of a physician may not be considered unless it is based on personal observation and examination of the alleged mentally ill person made by the physician not more than 72 hours prior to the making of the petition, application, or certificate. The certificate shall set forth in detail the facts and reasons on which the physician based his opinions and conclusions. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 759, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (h) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-583. Physicians and psychiatrists as witnesses

A physician or psychiatrist making application or conducting an examination under this chapter is a competent and compellable witness at any trial, hearing or other proceeding conducted pursuant to this chapter and the physician-patient privilege is not applicable. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (g) of section 21-355 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-355 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-584. Witness fees

Witnesses subpoenaed under the provisions of this chapter shall be paid the same fees and mileage as are paid to other witnesses in the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (6), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (6) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "witnesses in the courts of the United States" and inserting in lieu thereof "other witnesses in the court".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D. C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-362 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 13, 78 Stat. 952).

The only change is the substitution of "chapter" for "sections 21-351 to 21-366". Sections 21-351 to 21-366 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are carried into this chapter.

§ 21-585. Confinement in jail prohibited

A person apprehended, detained, or hospitalized under any provision of this chapter may not be confined in jail or in a penal or correctional institution (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-363 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 14, 78 Stat. 952).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-589.

Basis for court's determination

The court concluded that before it can determine that hospital's decision to confine patient in maximum security ward is, within its broad discretion, "permissible and reasonable in view of the relevant information," it must be able to conclude that hospital has considered and found inadequate all relevant alternative dispositions within hospital. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

§ 21-586. Financial responsibility for care of hospitalized persons; judicial enforcement

(a) The father, mother, husband, wife, and adult children of a mentally ill person, if of sufficient ability, and the estate of the mentally ill person, if the estate is sufficient for the purpose, shall pay the cost to the District of Columbia of the mentally ill person's maintenance, including treatment, in a hospital in which the person is hospitalized under this chapter. The Commission on Mental Health shall examine, under oath, the father, mother, husband, wife, and adult children of an alleged mentally ill person whenever those relatives live within the District of Columbia, and ascertain their ability or the ability of the estate to maintain or contribute toward the maintenance of the mentally ill person. The relatives or estate may not be required to pay more than the actual cost to the District of Columbia of maintenance of the alleged mentally ill person.

(b) If a person made liable by subsection (a) of this section for the maintenance of a mentally ill person fails so to provide or pay for the maintenance, the court shall issue to him a citation to show cause why he should not be adjudged to pay a portion or all of the expenses of maintenance of the patient. The citation shall be served at least 10 days before the hearing thereon. If, upon the hearing, it appears to the court that the mentally ill person has not sufficient estate out of which his maintenance may properly be fully met and that he has relatives of the degree referred to in subsection (a) of this section who are parties to the proceedings, and who are able to contribute thereto, the court may make an order requiring payment by the relatives of such sums as it finds that they are reasonably able to pay and as may be necessary to provide for the maintenance and treatment of the mentally ill person. The order shall require the payment of the sums to the District of Columbia treasurer annually, semiannually, quarterly, or monthly as the court directs. The treasurer shall collect the sums due under this section, and turn them into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. The order may be enforced against any property of the mentally ill person or of the person liable or undertaking to maintain him in the same way as if it were an order for temporary alimony in a divorce case. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from subsec. (g) of section 21-356 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 21-356 is carried into this chapter. See tables.

Changes are made in phraseology.

PRESERVATION OF ACTIONS AND LIABILITIES UNDER REPEALED LAWS

Section 4 of act Sept. 14, 1965, provided: "The repeal by section 8 of this Act, of section 19(b) of the Act approved September 15, 1964 (Pub. Law 88-597, 78 Stat. 953; D.C. Code, 1961 ed., Supp. IV, 1965, sec. 21-308 note), and the prior repeal, by section 19(a) of such Act approved September 15, 1964 (78 Stat. 953) of the Act approved June 8, 1938 (chapter 326, 52 Stat. 625; D.C. Code, 1961 ed., sec. 21-308), as amended, and of the Act approved August 9, 1939 (chapter 620, 53 Stat. 1293; D.C. Code, 1961 ed., secs. 21-310 to 21-318, 21-320 to 21-325), as amended, do not affect (1) any action or proceeding brought prior to September 15, 1964, and existing on December 31, 1965, or (2) any liability incurred by a person for the payment of the costs of maintenance and treatment of an insane or incompetent person hospitalized in the District of Columbia prior to September 15, 1964, and any such action or proceeding shall be heard or determined and such liability continued in accordance with the provisions of those Acts in the same manner and to the same extent as if they had not been repealed."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-542, 21-589.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Estoppel

Since the estate of a mentally ill person is statutorily obligated in District of Columbia to pay full cost of his care and maintenance if it is sufficient to do so, and since decendent's estate was sufficient to pay for his care, hospital employee was without authority to relieve decedent or his estate from this obligation imposed by law, and the District of Columbia is not estopped from bringing an action for reimbursement by virtue of conduct of employee in purporting to contract to accept a lesser amount in satisfaction of obligation. District of Columbia v. M. Stewart, Administratrix, etc. (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 117).

Support and education of adult child

A father is not legally required to support and educate an adult child, except as specified by statute when the child is in need of public assistance or is hospitalized because of mental illness. W. T. Spence v. F. A. Spence (D.C. App. 1970, 266 A. 2d 29).

Claim against veterans' committee

District of Columbia could not recover, out of funds paid by Veterans' Administration to committee of veteran, for payments made to hospital for veteran's maintenance and treatment prior to appointment of committee for veteran. District of Columbia v. Reilly etc. (1957, 249 F. 2d 524, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 9).

Construction

Statute governing liability of father for cost of maintenance and treatment of insane child is not violative of due process. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

District of Columbia statute governing liability of father for cost of maintenance and treatment of insane child creates liability which is not limited to father living in District. Id.

Former § 21-319 giving consideration to support of insane person's dependents in fixing amount of payments to be made to hospital caring for such insane person was repealed by former §§ 21-310 to 21-318, 21-320 to 21-325 which provided in terms for repeal of inconsistent statutes and which did not authorize giving consideration to support of insane person's dependents in fixing payments to be made by committee of insane person's estate to hospital for cost of care. District of Columbia v. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1952, 104 F. Supp. 538).

Construction with other laws

Former § 21-319 giving consideration to support of insane person's dependents in fixing amount of payments to be made to hospital caring for such insane person was repealed by former §§ 21-310 to 21-318, 21-320 to 21-325, which provided in terms for repeal of inconsistent statutes and which did not authorize giving consideration to support of insane person's dependents in fixing payments to be made by committee of insane person's estate to hospital for cost of care. District of Columbia v. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1952, 104 F. Supp. 538).

District not a voluntary creditor

District of Columbia was entitled to reimbursement for expenses of treatment of incompetent veteran from committee of the veteran from date of her appointment until the veteran was transferred to the rolls of the Veterans Administration which now bears the costs involved, since the District was not a voluntary "creditor" within the statute exempting from claims of "creditors" payments of benefits due or to become due under any law administered by the Veterans Administration. T. Savoid, Committee etc. v. District of Columbia (1961, 288 F. 2d 851, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Evidence

Evidence supported finding that father of mental incompetent was financially able to pay $75 per month toward cost of maintenance and treatment of incompetent in public hospital. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

In general

The effect of act Feb. 23, 1905, 33 Stat. 740, ch. 738, requiring the committee or trustee of an incompetent to reimburse the District for care and expenses up to time of appointment of committee was to prevent the running of the statute of limitations. Fitzhugh v. District of Columbia (1940, 109 F. 2d 837, 71 App. D.C. 290).

Liability for expenses of incompetent

The reference in District of Columbia Mental Health Statute for issuance of citations to show cause to persons "hereinabove made liable" for expenses and maintenance of mentally ill person does not refer merely to persons found by Commission to be able to pay, but refers to first clause stating that certain close relatives as well as committee or guardian of ward's estate must pay maintenance expenses if able. Harris v. District of Columbia (1966, 357 F. 2d 593, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 133).

An order requiring relative to pay past expenses for maintenance of mentally ill person is not limited to those cases where relative was able to pay the amount at the time the expenses were incurred, and if obligation cannot be satisfied at time it arises, equity and statute demand that it be satisfied when and if relative becomes of sufficient ability. Id.

A determination by the District of Columbia Mental Health Commission of ability of relative to pay expenses for maintenance of committed mentally ill person is not a prerequisite to relative's liability for those expenses. Id.

Liability of relative of a mentally ill person for past maintenance expenses is not subject to a hard and fast rule, but is to be resolved according to the equities. Id.

Father's liability for portion of cost of maintenance of mental incompetent in public hospital commenced as of date on which authorities demanded contribution from him. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

The question of a husband's liability for the maintenance of an insane wife in a public institution, "when it shall arise in the future, will be settled" under the act of June 8, 1938, ch 326. Fitzhugh v. District of Columbia (1940, 109 F. 2d 837, 71 App. D.C. 290).

Liability of parent's estate

It was not inequitable to charge estate of incompetent mother, who had participated in proceedings for commitment of her mentally ill child which had resulted in an order requiring monthly payments of $30, for expense incurred above amount paid in maintaining child in institution for the past 17 years, where conservator of mother's estate did not contend judgment for that amount was unreasonable or beyond the means of the estate. Harris v. District of Columbia (1966, 357 F. 2d 593, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 133).

Payment of expenses of incompetent

It is the duty of the committee or trustee to pay maintenance charges up to the date of appointment, and the expense thereafter becomes a liability of the lunatic's estate, to be enforced under the general statutes for the administration of lunatic's property. Fitzhugh v. District of Columbia (1940, 109 F. 2d 837, 71 App. D.C. 290).

St. Elizabeths Hospital is a United States Government institution, but insane persons residing in the District of Columbia are admitted and the expense of their support and treatment is chargeable to the District of Columbia. Id.

Reimbursement

Estate of patient committed to hospital while resident of District of Columbia was liable to District of Columbia for her maintenance. J. B. Cullen, Administrator, etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 914).

Even though a ward's estate was entirely derived from veterans benefit payments, the entire estate was not exempt, and portion of the estate converted into permanent investments was subject to claims of the District of Columbia for reimbursement of funds expended in caring for the ward. District of Columbia v. G. A. Phillips, committee, etc. (1965, 347 F. 2d 795, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 11).

Where insane person was committed to hospital and committee appointed of his person and estate, and committee was ordered to pay certain sum to District of Columbia for hospital care, which sum was less than actual cost because of need of support of insane person's wife, upon insane person's death, estate was liable for portion of cost of care for which District had not been reimbursed, and in rendering judgment for unpaid balance District Court had no authority to consider need of deceased insane person's dependents for support.

Under former § 21-310 et seq., providing for commitment of insane person and that committee of such person, if estate was sufficient for purpose, should pay cost to District of Columbia for maintenance, and that, if it appeared that insane person had not sufficient estate out of which his maintenance might "properly" be fully met, then court might order payment by relatives of such sum necessary to provide for maintenance, the word "properly" did not refer to adequacy of estate after making allowance for support of dependents, but referred to general equity power of court to make such orders and decrees for management and preservation of insane person's estate as to court might seem proper, and hence act did not give authority to fix payments by committee at less than full cost of care where funds of estate were adequate. Id.

Where insane person was committed to hospital and committee was appointed of person and estate, and committee was ordered to pay certain sum, less than actual cost, to District of Columbia for hospital care, upon death of insane person, even if estate were inadequate to satisfy entire amount of balance of cost of care, District of Columbia would be entitled to judgment for entire balance and to be paid its pro rata share of proceeds of estate on same basis as any other creditor. Id.

Support of dependents

In committing insane person to hospital and appointing committee of his person and estate and in fixing amount of payments to District of Columbia on account of cost of care of insane person to be made out of insane person's estate, there is no authority to consider support of dependents. District of Columbia v. Graves (D.C.D.C. 1952, 104 F. Supp. 538).

§ 21-587. Veterans' Administration and military hospital facilities

This chapter does not require the admission of a person to a Veterans' Administration or military hospital facility unless the person is otherwise eligible for care and treatment in the facility. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-359 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 10, 78 Stat. 952).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-589.

§ 21-588. Forms

All applications and certificates for the hospitalization of a person in the District of Columbia under this chapter shall be made on forms approved by the Commission on Mental Health and furnished by it. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-364 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 15, 78 Stat. 952).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-589.

§ 21-589. Persons hospitalized prior to September 15, 1964

(a) Subject to subsection (b) of this section, the provisions of sections 21-546 to 21-551, subchapter V of this chapter and sections 21-585 and 21-588 apply to a person, who, on or after January 1, 1966, is a patient in a hospital in the District of Columbia by reason of having been declared insane or of unsound mind pursuant to a court order entered in a noncriminal proceeding prior to September 15, 1964.

(b) A request made by a patient referred to in subsection (a) of this section for an examination authorized by section 21-546 may be made on April 15, 1966, by the patient, or his attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parent, or other nearest adult relative, and not more frequently than every six months thereafter. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-366 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 17, 78 Stat. 953).

The dates, January 1, 1966, September 15, 1964, and April 15, 1966, which is the order in which they appear in the provisions as revised in this section, are substituted for the corresponding provisions in section 21-366 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to conform with the revision. September 15, 1964, was the date of enactment and effective date of section 21-366. January 1, 1966, is the effective date of this revised Part, and also of the repeal of all provisions of former Part III of the Code (including section 21-366), on which this revised Part is based. Section 21-366 permitted the first request for an examination authorized by the provisions that have been carried into subchapter IV of this chapter to be made at the expiration of a 30-day period following September 15, 1964, or approximately on October 15, 1964, and "not more frequently than every six months thereafter". In computing six-month periods following October 15, 1964, it is determined that the date of April 15, 1966, is the first of such periods to expire after January 1, 1966, the effective date of this revised Part.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-590. Discharge as cured; restoration to legal status

When a person adjudged to be of unsound mind in the District of Columbia who is committed to Saint Elizabeths Hospital, or any other institution, recovers his reason, and is discharged from the institution as cured, the Superintendent of Saint Elizabeths Hospital, or the official in charge of the institution where he has been under treatment and has been so discharged, shall immediately file with the clerk of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia his sworn statement that, in his opinion, the person was not of unsound mind at the time of his discharge. The statement is sufficient to authorize the court to order the person restored to his former legal status as a person of sound mind. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(c) (3), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c) (3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-330 (Feb. 23, 1905, ch. 738, § 2, 33 Stat. 740; July 1, 1916, ch. 209, § 1, 39 Stat. 309; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Commitment by Secretary of Navy

Where retired officer in military service had been committed on order of Secretary of Navy to hospital for insane and statutes made no provision for reexamination of person committed on order of Secretary, or for initiation, by the person committed of a proceeding to secure such reexamination, procedure of habeas corpus was available for the latter purpose. Overholser v. Treibly (1945, 147 F. 2d 705, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 326 U.S. 730, 90 L. Ed. 434).

Discretionary relief

Patient who, after adjudication that she was of unsound mind, eloped from District of Columbia mental hospital and subsequently recovered mental health, had no right, in seeking restoration to status of person of sound mind, to statutory hearing before Mental Health Commission, or, since she was free, to habeas corpus, but was entitled to discretionary relief within court's inherent power. In re Harriet DuBois (D.C.D.C. 1962, 207 F. Supp. 909).

Habeas corpus proceedings

Where a petition for writ of habeas corpus has been presented, legally sufficient on its face to start the court's machinery in motion, the judge should appoint either a guardian or counsel to represent the petitioner in the further stages of the proceeding. Overholser v. Treibly (1945, 147 F. 2d 705, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 326 U.S. 730, 90 L. Ed. 434).

Recommitment without hearing

Where petitioner had been committed to public mental hospital in District of Columbia in 1958 and after petitioner had left without permission an entry was made in hospital records showing that petitioner was discharged as "improved," petitioner could not four years later be recommitment under the prior order without a further hearing on ground that petitioner had not been legally restored. W. G. Gillis v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1963, 324 F. 2d 419, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 387).

§ 21-591. Offenses and penalties

Whoever:

(1) without probable cause for believing a person to be mentally ill:

(A) causes or conspires with or assists another person to cause the hospitalization, under this chapter, of the person first referred to; or

(B) executes a petition, application, or certificate pursuant to this chapter, by which he secures or attempts to secure the apprehension, hospitalization, detention, or restraint of the person first referred to;

or

(2) causes or conspires with or assists another person to cause the denial to a person of a right accorded to him by this chapter;

or

(3) being a physician or psychiatrist, knowingly makes a false certificate or application pursuant to this chapter as to the mental condition of a person—shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-360 (Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, § 11, 78 Stat. 952).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-592. Return to hospital of an escaped mentally ill person

When a person has been ordered confined in a hospital or institution for the mentally ill pursuant to this chapter and has left such hospital or institution without authorization or has failed to return as directed, the court which ordered confinement shall, upon the request of the administrator of such hospital or institution, order the return of such person to such hospital or institution. (Added, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 150(c) (7) (A), title I, 84 Stat. 568.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is new, and is inserted to conform the provision carried into this chapter with those of Act Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88-597, 78 Stat. 944, which are carried into chapter 5 of this title (section 21-501 et seq.), in which the terms "mental illness" and "mentally ill person" are defined and used. See Senate Report No. 925, Feb. 27, 1964, and House Report No. 1833, Aug. 20, 1964, both to accompany S. 935, 88th Cong., 2d Sess., the bill which became the Act of September 15, 1964.

For the purpose described above, the term "mentally ill person" is substituted, in the provisions carried into this chapter, for the terms "person non compos mentis", "idiot", and "lunatic".

§ 21-702. Property subject to liens

Where a mentally ill person is entitled to real or personal estate in the District of Columbia which is liable to a mortgage, trust, or lien, or is in any way charged with the payment of money, the court may decree in the case as if the mentally ill person were of sound mind. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

- (1) is entitled to real or personal estate in the District of Columbia bound by an executory contract entered into by the person from whom he derived title; or
- (2) claims a right or interest in property under such a contract—

the court in either case may decree the execution of the contract or enter a proper decree, as if the parties were of sound mind. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-704. Contract for sale by adult in behalf of himself and mentally ill person

When, upon a hearing and an examination of the circumstances, the court considers a contract for the sale of real estate by persons interested therein jointly or in common with a mentally ill person, to be for the interest and advantage both of the mentally ill person, and of the other persons interested therein, the court may confirm the contract and order a deed to be executed according to it. Sales and deeds made in pursuance of the order are sufficient in law to transfer the estate and interest of the mentally ill person in the real estate. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 21-705. Ancillary guardian of nonresident mentally ill person

When a mentally ill person residing outside the District of Columbia is entitled to property or to maintain an action in the District of Columbia, a general guardian or committee of his estate, appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction in the State or territory where the mentally ill person resides, or a person at the request of the guardian or committee, may petition the court for ancillary letters as guardian or committee. The petition shall be under oath, accompanied by certified copies of as much of the record and proceedings as shows the appointment of the guardian or committee and that he has given a sufficient bond to account for all property and money that may come into his hands by virtue of the authority conferred. The court may thereupon issue to the guardian or committee ancillary letters as such guardian or committee, without citation, or may cite such persons as it believes proper to show cause why the application should be refused; and the court shall require the security required by law in like cases from a resident guardian or committee. ## REVISION NOTES

Section is new as statutory text in this title, but its definition of "feeble-minded person" is largely patterned upon section 32-603 of this Code, which, in addition to relating to sections remaining in chapter 6 of Title 32, also related to the sections formerly set out in that title the provisions of which are revised and transferred to this chapter of revised Title 21.

The definition of "District Training School" is set out herein for the purpose of clarification, considering the transfer of the above-mentioned provisions to this revised title. In this definition, the words referring to any successor to the institution are inserted for the purpose of preserving the scope or application of this chapter, should any reorganizational changes, with respect to the commitment and care of feeble-minded persons, be made in the future.

Under Reorganization Order No. 58, June 30, 1953, as amended, of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, issued under authority of Presidential Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952, 66 Stat. 852, and set out in the Appendix to Title 1 of this Code, the District Training School was made a component of the Children's Center within the Department of Public Welfare.

For definitions of "mental illness" and "mentally ill person", see section 21-501, which is in chapter 5 of this title, referred to in this section.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(202) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory function of the Board of Commissioners under this section to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-607 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 6, 43 Stat. 1135; Mar. 16, 1926, ch. 58, §§ 1, 2, 44 Stat. 208).

"Department of Public Welfare" is substituted for "Board of Public Welfare", to conform with Reorganization Order No. 58, June 30, 1953, as amended, of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia which abolished the Board of Public Welfare, and, insofar as the functions of the former Board with respect to the commitment, maintenance, etc., of the feeble-minded were concerned, transferred them to the Department of Public Welfare created by that order. The order was issued under authority of Presidential Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952, 66 Stat. 852, and is set out in the Appendix to Title 1 of this Code. See, particularly, Part IV, par. G, subpar. 2, thereof.

The reference to chapter 6 of Title 32 is inserted because, while most of the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1925, cited above, which were classified to that chapter and title, are transferred to this chapter of revised Title 21, some of them remain there, and the reference in this section, at least, should accordingly cite chapter 6 of Title 32, as well as this chapter.

Words "at the time of commitment" are inserted after "not more than 45 years of age", for the purpose of clarification, and also to conform with Reorganization Order No. 58, mentioned above, in which similar words are used.

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21-1108A, 21-1111.

§ 21-1111. Proceedings to charge relatives legally responsible for maintenance of public patient; collection of maintenance payments; enforcement of order; liability of decedent's estate

(a) When a court orders the admission of a person to Forest Haven as a public patient or when a person is admitted to Forest Haven as a patient under section 21-1108A, and the court finds at any time that the patient does not have an estate out of which the District of Columbia may be fully reimbursed for his maintenance, a parent, spouse, and adult children of the substantially retarded person, if of sufficient financial ability, shall pay the cost to the District of Columbia of his maintenance at the institution. The Commissioner of the District of Columbia may petition the court, during the commitment of the substantially retarded person to the institution, to direct any of those relatives to pay the District of Columbia, in whole or in part, for his maintenance at the institution. They may not be required to pay more than the actual cost to the District of Columbia of his maintenance.

(b) When the court finds that a relative specified by subsection (a) of this section is able to pay for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person, in whole or in part, it may make an order requiring payment by him or all the relatives of such sums as it finds that he or they are reasonably able to pay and as may be necessary to provide for his maintenance. The order shall require the payment of the sums to the Finance Office of the Department of General Administration, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency, of the District monthly, as the court directs. The Finance Office, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency, as the case may be, shall collect the sums due under this section and section 21-1110, and turn them into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia.

(c) If a relative made liable for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person fails to provide or pay for the maintenance, or his part thereof, in accordance with the order of the court, the court shall issue to him a citation to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt. The citation shall be served at least 10 days before the hearing thereon.

(d) An order issued under this section may be enforced against any property of a relative made liable for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person, in the same way as if it were an order for temporary alimony in a divorce case.

(e) Upon the death of a relative ordered by the court to pay for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person in whole or in part, the estate of the relative is liable to the District of Columbia for the unpaid amount due the District of Columbia under the order of court at the time of his death, and the claim of the District of Columbia is a preferred claim against his estate. #### TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Organization Order No. 121, dated Dec. 12, 1957, provided for the Finance Office in the Department of General Administration composed of the Office of the Finance Officer, Property Tax Division, Treasury Division, Accounting Division, and Data Processing Division. The Treasury Division had the function of collecting revenues of the District and depositing the same with the Treasurer of the United States. Organization Order No. 121 was revoked by Organization Order No. 3, dated Dec. 13, 1967, Part IVC of which prescribed the functions of the Finance Office within a newly established Department of General Administration. Functions of the Finance Office as stated in Part IVC of Org. Ord. No. 3 were transferred to the Director of the Department of Finance and Revenue by Commissioner's Order [Organization Action] No. 69-96, dated Mar. 7, 1969.

The Orders are set out in the appendix to title 1.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-616 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 15, 43 Stat. 1138; Apr. 28, 1945, ch. 102, 59 Stat. 100; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

In two places, "court" is substituted for "United States District Court for the District of Columbia", as there should be no question as to what court is referred to. The references are to the District Court. See section 21-1103 herein. The provisions carried into the sections following thereafter did not refer to the court by its full name.

In subsec. (b), the references "Finance Office of the Department of General Administration, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency" and "Finance Office, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency, as the case may be" are substituted, respectively, for the two references in section 32-616 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to the Collector of Taxes, to conform with Reorganization Order No. 20, Nov. 10, 1952, as amended, and Organization Order No. 121, Dec. 12, 1957, as amended, of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, issued under authority of Presidential Reorg. No. 5 of 1952, 66 Stat. 852, and set out in the Appendix to Title 1 of this Code, Organization Order No. 121 having rescinded and superseded Reorganization Order No. 20. Under those orders, the office of Collector of Taxes was abolished, and the functions thereof are now performed by the Finance Office of the Department of General Administration through one or more of its constituent agencies or divisions. The words referring to "its successor" are included in these references to preserve the scope and application of the provisions in which the references appear, should there be further reorganizational changes affecting the terms used or functions prescribed therein.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-1108A.

§ 21-1112. Public patients may become private patients by filing bond and paying advance

When a person is admitted to Forest Haven as a public patient, and thereafter the bond and advance payment referred to in section 21-1109 are executed and delivered to the court, the court shall make an order changing the status of the person from a public to a private patient. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, § 2(a) (2), 84 Stat. 1087.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 2(a) (2) of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, amended section by striking out "the District Training School" and inserting in lieu thereof "Forest Haven".

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-617 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 16, 43 Stat. 1138).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-1113. Restrictions on discharge; petition for discharge; causes for discharge; superintendent to be notified; notice of variation of order; denial on<sup>1</sup> one petition not a bar to another

(a) A substantially retarded person admitted to Forest Haven pursuant to an order of court may not be discharged therefrom except as provided by this section, but the right of petition for the writ of habeas corpus may not be abridged.

(b) After the admission of a substantially retarded person pursuant to an order of court provided by this chapter, a relative or friend of the substantially retarded person, or a reputable citizen, or the superintendent of the institution, or the Department of Public Welfare, may petition the court that entered the order of admission to discharge the substantially retarded person, or to vary the order of the court admitting him to the institution.

(c) When, on the hearing of a petition filed pursuant to subsection (b) of this section, the court is satisfied that the welfare of the substantially retarded person or of the other persons or of the community requires his discharge or a variation of the order, it may enter an order of discharge or variation as it deems proper.

(d) Discharges and variations of orders may be ordered or made if:

(1) the person adjudged to be substantially retarded is not substantially retarded; or

(2) the person has so far improved as to be capable of caring for himself; or

(3) the relatives or friends of the substantially retarded person are able and willing to supervise, control, care for, and support him, and request his discharge, and, in the judgment of the Superintendent of Forest Haven, evil consequences are not likely to follow the discharge.

(e) The enumeration of grounds of discharge or variation by subsection (d) of this section does not exclude other grounds of discharge or variation which the court deems adequate, having regard for the welfare of the person concerned or of other persons or of the community.

(f) On a petition for discharge or variation filed pursuant to this section, the court may discharge the substantially retarded person from all supervision, control, and care, or make such variation of the order as to maintenance as the court deems fit under all the circumstances appearing at the hearing of the petition.

(g) The Superintendent of Forest Haven shall be notified of the time and place of hearing on a petition for discharge or variation filed pursuant to this section, as the court directs, and an order of discharge or variation may not be entered without giving the Superintendent a reasonable opportunity to be heard. The court may notify such other persons, relatives, and friends of the substantially retarded person as it deems proper, of the time and place of the hearing on the petition.

(h) A person may not be charged with any greater degree of financial responsibility for the support of a substantially retarded person by variation of the order as to maintenance without notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard.

(i) The denial of one petition for discharge or variation is not a bar to another petition on the same or different ground filed within a reasonable time thereafter, the reasonable time to be determined by the court in its discretion, discouraging frequent, repeated, frivolous, ill-founded petitions for discharge or variation of a prior order. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(g) (1) (A), 84 Stat. 568; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, § 2(a) (1), (2), 84 Stat. 1087.)

Section 150(g) (1) (A) of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, amended section by striking out "feeble-minded" and inserting in lieu "substantially retarded".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT BY PUB. L. 91-358

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-618 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 17, 43 Stat. 1138; Mar. 16, 1926, ch. 58, §§ 1, 2, 44 Stat. 208).

In subsec. (b), "Department of Public Welfare" is substituted for "Board of Public Welfare", for the same reason given in revision note under section 21-1102 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 21-1114. Proceeding when child brought before Family Division appears substantially retarded

When a child is brought before the Family Division of the Superior Court upon allegations that he is delinquent, neglected, or in need of supervision, and it appears to the court, on the testimony of a physician or psychologist or other evidence, that the child is substantially retarded within the meaning of this chapter, the court may adjourn the proceedings, other than proceedings on a motion to transfer pursuant to section 16-2307, and direct a suitable officer of the court or other suitable reputable person to file a petition under this chapter. The court may order that, pending the preparation, filing, and hearing of the petition, the child be detained in a place of safety, or be placed under the guardianship of a suitable person, if that person enters into a recognizance for his appearance. (Sept.

14, 1965, 79 Stat. 771, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(g) (7), 84 Stat. 568; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, § 2(a) (1) (12), 84 Stat. 1087.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 2(a) (1) (12) of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, amended section (1) by striking out "feeble-minded" and inserting in lieu thereof "substantially retarded", and (2) by striking of "feeble-minded" in the heading and inserting in lieu thereof "substantially retarded."

Section 150(g) (7) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section (A) by striking out "juvenile court of the District of Columbia as a dependent or delinquent child" and inserting in lieu thereof "Family Division of the Superior Court upon allegations that he is delinquent, neglected, or in need of supervision".

(B) by striking out "feeble-minded" and inserting in lieu thereof "substantially retarded",

(C) by inserting ", other than proceedings on a motion to transfer pursuant to section 16-2307," after "the proceedings" in the first sentence, and

(D) by striking out "brought before juvenile court appears feeble-minded" in the section heading and inserting in lieu thereof "brought before Family Division appears substantially retarded".

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-620 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 19, 43 Stat. 1139).

Since, in section 32-620 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., the first reference, near the beginning, was to "child", only, and a reference was made, also, to the juvenile court, it would seem that the section was intended to relate only to children. Therefore, the term "person", in other references in that section to "person or child", is omitted from the revised provisions as surplusage.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-1115. Inquiry under this chapter if person convicted of offense

(a) On the conviction by a court of record of competent jurisdiction of a person of an offense, or of a violation of an ordinance which is in whole or in part a violation of a statute of the District of Columbia, the court when satisfied on the testimony of a physician or a psychologist or other evidence that the person is substantially retarded within the meaning of this chapter, may suspend sentence, or suspend the entering of an order sending the person to a jail, prison, or reformatory, or to a training or industrial school, and direct that a petition be filed pursuant to this chapter.

(b) When the court directs a petition to be filed pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, it may order that, pending the preparation, filing and hearing of the petition, the person be detained in a place of safety, or be placed under the guardianship of a suitable person, if that person enters into a recognizance for his appearance.

(c) Where, upon the hearing of a petition filed pursuant to this section or pursuant to a subsequent hearing under this chapter, the person is found not to be substantially retarded, the court shall impose sentence. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 771, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(g) (1) (A), 84 Stat. 568; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, § 2(a) (1), 84 Stat. 1087.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 2(a)(1) of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, amended section by striking out "feeble-minded" and inserting in lieu thereof "substantially retarded".

Section 150(g)(1)(A) of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, amended section by striking out "feeble-minded" and inserting in lieu "substantially retarded".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT BY PUB. L. 91-358

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-621 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 20, 43 Stat. 1139).

Since, in section 32-621 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., the first reference is to "person", only, it would seem that the section was intended to relate to adults, as well as children. Therefore, the term "person" is substituted, in the revised provisions, for a single reference in section 32-621 to "child"; the term "child", in other references in that section to "person or child", is omitted; and references to "jail" and "prison" are inserted before the reference to "reformatory", etc. The term "person" includes "child".

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 21-1116. Transfer to Saint Elizabeths Hospital when person becomes insane

When a person becomes insane while confined in Forest Haven and the Superintendent of the institution certifies in writing that the person is insane and is not a fit subject for care and maintenance at the institution, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall issue an order for his admission to Saint Elizabeths Hospital. The transfer does not affect the liability on a bond for private support, or an order for reimbursement for public support. All bonds and orders for reimbursement are liable and in force for the cost of maintenance at Saint Elizabeths Hospital. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 771, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(g)(8), 84 Stat. 569; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-490, § 2(a)(2), 84 Stat. 1087.)

Section 150(g)(8) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT BY PUB. L. 91-358

See note preceding section 11-101 and note to 21-301.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 32-622 (Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 460, § 21, 43 Stat. 1140; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

In two places, "mentally ill" is substituted for "insane", to conform with terms as used in chapter 5 of this title. For definitions of "mental illness" and "mentally ill person", see section 21-501, which is in that chapter.

Changes are made in phraseology.

A public or private patient in Forest Haven may not be allowed to execute a contract, deed, will, or other instrument unless the execution has first been allowed and approved by an order entered of record by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. A certified copy of the order shall be furnished to the Superintendent of the institution at the time of the execution of the instrument.

The order of the court is evidence only of the capacity of the patient to make the instrument. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 773, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. When a person residing in the District of Columbia, and owning an estate, real or personal, situate therein, is alleged to be unfit, from the habitual use of intoxicating liquors, opium, cocaine, or similar substance, or compound or derivative thereof, to manage or control his estate properly, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, on the petition of a creditor or relative of the person, or if there is not a creditor or relative, upon the petition of a person living in the District of Columbia, and upon summons being served upon the person alleged to be unfit, commanding him to appear and answer the petition, may order a jury to be summoned to ascertain whether the person is an alcoholic or addicted to the habitual use of opium, cocaine, or similar substance or compound derivative thereof and unfit from any of these causes to manage and control his property. If the jury finds that the person is an alcoholic or a habitual user of opium, cocaine, or similar substance or a compound or derivative thereof and unfit to manage or control his property, the finding, when confirmed by the court, shall be entered of record in the cause, and the court shall thereupon appoint a fit person to be committee of the person so declared unfit to manage or control his property. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Unfitness to manage property

Finding of unfitness to manage property in a proceeding under this section is conclusive of condition on date of rendition; "it is not so as of a date prior thereto, but at the same time it has the tendency to raise some inference that the helpless condition must have existed for some space of time." Knott v. Giles (1906, 27 App. D.C. 581).

§ 21-1302. Bond; powers and duties

The committee before entering upon the discharge of his duties shall execute a bond, with surety, to be approved by the court or a judge thereof, in a penalty equal to the amount of the personal property and the yearly rents to be derived from the real estate of the person, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as the committee. He shall have control of the estate, real and personal, with power to collect all debts due the alcoholic or drug addict, and to adjust and settle all accounts owing by him, and to sue and be sued in his representative capacity. He shall apply the annual income of the estate to the support of the person, and the maintenance of his family and education of his children; and shall in all other respects perform the same duties and have the same rights as pertain to committees of lunatics and idiots. When it appears by the verdict of a jury summoned therefor, or by affidavits, or other evidence to the satisfaction of the court, that the applicant is a fit person to have the care or control of his property, it shall enter an order restoring him to all the rights and privileges enjoyed before the committee was appointed. #### CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This chapter is referred to in sections 11-501, 11-921.

§ 21-1501. Appointment of conservators

When an adult residing in or having property in the District of Columbia is unable, by reason of advanced age, mental weakness not amounting to unsoundness of mind, mental illness, as the latter term is defined by section 21-501, or physical incapacity, properly to care for his property, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia may, upon his petition or the sworn petition of one or more of his relatives or any other person or persons, appoint a fit person to be conservator of his property. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150 (i) (1), 84 Stat. 569.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(i)(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20-351, 21-1502.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Capacity to make a will

Provision in section 21-1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservatorship does not render that person, per se. incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Congress in adopting provisions in section 18-102 that will was not valid unless person making it was of required age and at time of executing or acknowledging it was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing valid deed or contract did not intend to deprive mentally competent person of testamentary capacity merely because he was subject to conservatorship. Id.

Colorable jurisdiction

A determination that conservator was properly appointed was correct where the initial appointments of guardian ad litem, temporary conservator and permanent conservator of person and estate were based on colorable jurisdiction. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Control over property in other jurisdiction

Local statutes cannot by themselves give conservator power to assert control over property in other jurisdictions, and local conservator has authority and power to take control over property located in another state only so far as allowed by comity of that state. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Determination of benefits accruing to estate

Determination as to benefits accruing to estate and size of estate for purposes of compensation of former conservators and guardian ad litem required that record be supplemented to determine extent conservators actually assumed, or had power to assume, control over appellant's stock and specific findings of fact as to whether value of her stock may have increased regardless of efforts of conservators and whether services of guardian and conservators actually inured to her benefit. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Discretion of trial judge

In a case where there is any property within District of Columbia, appointment of conservator is within discretion of trial judge in view of lack of statutory specification of the minimum amount of property necessary for appointment of conservator. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Where the appellant had $850 worth of property in the District, appointment of a conservator pursuant to statute governing guardians of property of mentally incompetent persons was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Remand

Since this proceeding leading to the appointment of a conservator for the person and property of wife, the husband has returned to the United States and was residing in New Jersey, and since wife remained in her mother's home in New Jersey, the case would be remanded for determination as to whether District of Columbia conservatorship should be continued to protect parties' single asset in the District. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Residence requirement

The evidence in this case on issue whether federal district court for the District of Columbia had jurisdiction to appoint a conservator for wife was sufficient to authorize a finding that wife was a resident of the District, notwithstanding fact that the wife was being cared for by her mother in mother's home in New Jersey. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Redemption by conservator

Neither conservator nor his ward must wait for removal of legal disability to redeem property from tax sale, and conservator may not be denied right to redeem in proper case because he is conservator, under District of Columbia statutes. Shenandoah Corp. v. E. F. Jackson (1962, 298 F. 2d 324, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 410).

§ 21-1502. Filing of petition; requirements; time and place of hearing; appointment of guardian ad litem

(a) Pursuant to the filing of the petition under section 21-1501, the court shall fix a time and place for a hearing; and shall cause at least 14 days' notice thereof to be given to the person for whom a conservator is sought to be appointed, if he is not the petitioner, and to such other persons as the court directs. The petition shall include, among other things—

- (1) the reasons for the appointment of a conservator;
- (2) the name and address of the person for whom the conservator is sought;
- (3) the date and place of his birth, if known; and
- (4) the names and addresses of the nearest known heirs at law, or the next of kin, if any.

(b) The court may appoint a disinterested person to act as guardian ad litem in a proceeding under this section. Upon a finding that the person for whom the conservator is sought is incapable of caring for his property, the court shall appoint a conservator who shall have the charge and management of the property of the person subject to the direction of the court. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-502 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 2, 65 Stat. 608).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Court's duties in relation to conservator

Court appointing conservators should be willing to receive complaints and reports from any source concerning alleged misconduct or conflict of interest. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Joint services of guardian and conservator

Permitting services of guardian ad litem to continue after permanent conservators were appointed was not improper. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Liability of conservator

In a case where a bank honored checks drawn without authority by an incompetent upon account carried in the name of conservatorship estate, which had been created for the incompetent, and where the conservator recovered judgment against bank in the amount of the checks and the bank against the incompetent, who had been impleaded by bank, in same amount, refusal to require conservator to pay judgment recovered by bank against the incompetent was not error. In re Appointment of a Conservator for B. Justice, Jr.; et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Notice to husband

Under this section which requires that the district court shall cause at least 14 days' notice of hearing to be given to the person for whom a conservator is sought to be appointed, if he is not the petitioner, and to such other persons as the court directs, the husband of the person for whom a conservator was sought was not an indispensable party to the proceeding leading to the appointment of the conservator and failure to notify him of hearing did not vitiate that proceeding. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Remand

Since this proceeding leading to the appointment of a conservator for the person and property of wife, the husband has returned to the United States and was residing in New Jersey, and since wife remained in her mother's home in New Jersey, the case would be remanded for determination as to whether District of Columbia conservatorship should be continued to protect parties' single asset in the District. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Reversal on appeal

The Court of Appeals should not reverse lower court's decision regarding conservatorship matters unless a clear abuse of discretion is shown. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appointment of guardian

Under this section providing for appointment of a guardian ad litem in a proceeding to have a conservator appointed, selection and supervision of guardian ad litem are matters within sound discretion of trial court. Mazza v. Pechacek (1956, 233 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 175).

Selection of private counsel

Person for whose estate appointment of a conservator is sought may select private counsel of his own choice to advocate his position in opposition to appointment of a conservator. Mazza v. Pechacek (1956, 233 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 175).

§ 21-1503. Bond; powers and duties

The conservator before entering upon the discharge of his duties shall execute an undertaking with surety to be approved by the court in such amount as the court orders, conditioned on the faithful performance of his duties as conservator. He shall have control of the estate, real and personal, of the person for whom he has been appointed conservator, with power to collect all debts due the person, and upon authority of the court to adjust and settle all accounts owing by him, and to sue and be sued in his representative capacity. He shall apply such part of the annual income and of the principal of the estate as the court authorizes to the support of the person and the maintenance and education of his family and children; and shall in all other respects perform the same duties and have the same rights and powers with respect to the property of the person as have guardians of the estates of infants. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-503 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 3, 65 Stat. 608).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21-1505.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Accountable assets

Where the conservator of estate of incompetent ward collected rents from property owned by ward and her husband as tenants by the entirety, she is accountable to her ward for one-half of them from beginning of conservatorship until death of ward's husband. In re G. Kosmadakes (1971, 444 F. 2d 999, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Control over property in other jurisdiction

Local statutes cannot by themselves give conservator power to assert control over property in other jurisdictions, and local conservator has authority and power to take control over property located in another state only so far as allowed by comity of that state. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Determination of benefits accruing to estate

Determination as to benefits accruing to estate and size of estate for purposes of compensation of former conservators and guardian ad litem required that record be supplemented to determine extent conservators actually assumed, or had power to assume, control over appellant's stock and specific findings of fact as to whether value of her stock may have increased regardless of efforts of conservators and whether services of guardian and conservators actually inured to her benefit. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Liability of conservator

Prior to entry of money judgment against former conservator of estate of incompetent ward in favor of successor conservator as recommended in auditor's report, former conservator is entitled to be heard on her objection to report and since notice of hearing was not sent to her and she was not afforded requisite opportunity to be heard on her objection, district court should have granted former conservator's motion to vacate money judgment in favor of successor conservator and rescheduled hearing on her objection. In re G. Kosmadakes (1971, 444 F. 2d 999, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Where conservator of estate of incompetent ward was directed by the court to file a final account within 20 days thereafter and when she disregarded that direction court referred matter to auditor to state her account and time and expense were furthered in preparation of account because of conservator's refusal to meet reasonable requests of auditor for her assistance, and conservator did not challenge reasonableness of $570 charged in favor of court auditor, it was not an abuse of discretion to deny conservator's motion to vacate judgment for $570 in favor of the auditor. Id.

In a case where a bank honored checks drawn without authority by an incompetent upon an account carried in the name of conservatorship estate, which had been created for the incompetent, and where the conservator recovered judgment against bank in the amount of the checks and the bank against the incompetent, who had been impleaded by bank, in same amount, refusal to require conservator to pay judgment recovered by bank against the incompetent was not error. In re Appointment of a Conservator for B. Justice, Jr., et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Reasonable compensation

A figure of 5% as a flexible rule of thumb for fixing reasonable compensation, in ordinary case, to guardians ad litem and conservators appointed pursuant to statute governing guardians of property of mentally incompetent persons, is permissible. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Remand

Since this proceeding leading to the appointment of a conservator for the person and property of wife, the husband has returned to the United States and was residing in New Jersey, and since wife remained in her mother's home in New Jersey, the case would be remanded for determination as to whether District of Columbia conservatorship should be continued to protect parties' single asset in the District. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Settlement of accounts

Expense is involved in the proper care of an incompetent ward and her income-producing real estate but freedom of action in spending money of an incompetent ward is not given to court-appointed fiduciary, and conservator of estate of incompetent ward is required to make a reasonable showing that an expense that she alleged had, in fact, been incurred by her before she might receive therefor credit and allowance. In re G. Kosmadakes (1971, 444 F. 2d 999, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Auditor could not properly give conservator of estate of incompetent ward credit and allowance for unauthorized and unauthenticated expenditures and if conservator proffered required verification of her alleged expenditures the court, after hearing of her objection to auditor's report, might receive further evidence or might recommit the report with instructions. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Compensation

In view of facts that duties of conservator and guardian are basically the same, and that former chapter 5, providing for appointment of conservators was silent as to compensation of conservators and merely provided that conservators should have same rights and powers as guardians and that court should have the same powers with respect to property of any person for whom conservator had been appointed as it had with respect to property of infants under guardianships, compensation of conservator should be fixed under former § 21-126 limiting compensation of guardians to fixed percentage of amounts actually collected if and when disbursed. In re Searle (D.C.D.C. 1954, 118 F. Supp. 273).

Evidence as to personal liability

Because agreement between landlords and conservator of estate of tenant to pay increased rent for premises occupied by tenant was oral, evidence was admissible to show understanding of parties as to whether conservator was to be bound personally by agreement. W. E. Summerbell et ano. v. W. B. McDonnell, individually etc. (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 150).

Evidence supported trial court's finding that landlords and conservator of tenant's estate who had orally agreed to pay increased rent for premises occupied by tenant did not intend to bind conservator in his individual capacity. Id.

Redemption by conservator

Neither conservator nor his ward must wait for removal of legal disability to redeem property from tax sale, and conservator may not be denied right to redeem in proper case because he is conservator, under District of Columbia statutes. Shenandoah Corp. v. E. F. Jackson (1962, 298 F. 2d 324, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 410).

§ 21-1504. Discharge

When a person for whom a conservator has been appointed under this chapter becomes competent to manage his property, he may apply to the court to have the conservator discharged and to be restored to the care and control of his property. If the court finds him to be competent, it shall enter an order restoring the care and control of his property to him. The court has the same powers with respect to the property of a person for whom a conservator has been appointed as it has with the<sup>1</sup> respect to the property of infants under guardianships. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-504 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 4, 65 Stat. 608).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Reasonable compensation

Title to property

There is no restriction upon district court, sitting in probate, which limits its power to adjudicate right to possession of personalty. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

§ 21-1505. Appointment of temporary conservator

Upon the filing of a petition as provided by this chapter, the court may, with or without notice or hearing, appoint a temporary conservator of the estate of a person, if it deems the action necessary for the protection of the estate, subject to the provisions for an undertaking specified by section 21-1503. The temporary conservator shall serve only until a permanent conservator can be appointed or until sooner discharged. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-505 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 5, 65 Stat. 608).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Compensation of temporary conservator

Compensation of temporary conservator would not be determined under former § 21-126 fixing compensation of guardian but would be determined by considering the character of services rendered, the size of the estate, and the compensation awarded guardian ad litem and attorney for the guardian. In re Searle (D.C.D.C. 1954, 118 F. Supp. 273).

§ 21-1506. Personal welfare of person under conservatorship

The court may at any time order that the conservator or another person shall be responsible for the personal welfare of the person whose property is under conservatorship. In that event the conservator or other person, subject to the direction and control of the court, has the same powers and duties with respect to the personal welfare of the person whose property is under conservatorship as have the guardians of the persons or infants under guardianships. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 150(1)(2), 84 Stat. 569.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(1)(2) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out “of the Civil Division”.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-506 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 6, 65 Stat. 609).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 21-1507. Lis pendens

Upon the filing of a petition under this chapter, a certified copy of the petition may be filed for record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia. If a conservator is appointed on the petition, all contracts, except for necessities, and all transfers of real and personal property made by the ward after the filing and before the termination of the conservatorship are void. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 21-507 (Oct. 24, 1951, ch. 545, § 7, 65 Stat. 609).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Capacity to make a will Provision in section 21-1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservator-

ship, does not render that person, per se, incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Congress in adopting provisions in section 18-102 that will was not valid unless person making it was of required age and at time of executing or acknowledging it was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing valid deed or contract did not intend to deprive mentally competent person of testamentary capacity merely because he was subject to conservatorship. Id.

Purpose of lis pendens

Purpose of filing lis pendens is, at least in part, to give constructive notice of pending suit or petition. In re Appointment of a Conservator for B. Justice, Jr., et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Filing of lis pendens is not required against one who has actual notice of suit or petition. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

Considered in its entirety, it is manifest that the effect of the act (this subchapter) is to enlarge the ability of fiduciaries to avoid the limitations imposed by the common law, although the liabilities of the fiduciaries as such are not affected, but only those of persons dealing with them. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-1702. Application of payment made to fiduciaries

A person who in good faith pays or transfers to a fiduciary money or other property which the fiduciary as such is authorized to receive, is not responsible for the proper application thereof by the fiduciary; and any right or title acquired from the fiduciary in consideration of the payment or transfer is not invalid in consequence of a misapplication by the fiduciary. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 776, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Incompetent's committee

Where corporation lending money to incompetent made checks payable to members of incompetent's committee without adding word "committee" to checks and members of committee allegedly embezzled proceeds of checks, recovery against indorsees cashing checks for members of committee was not precluded merely by absence of word "committee" from checks, and corporation would not be responsible for loss on such theory, in absence of evidence that indorsees had knowledge that members of committee were breaching their fiduciary obligation or had knowledge of such facts rendering the taking of checks by indorsees bad faith. Espey v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. of Richmond, Va. (1954, 210 F. 2d 728, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Misappropriation

The word "misappropriation" means wrong appropriation, or the use of a fund for a different purpose than that for which it was created, but not necessarily a dishonest purpose. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-1703. Transfer of negotiable instruments by fiduciary

If a negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to a fiduciary as such is indorsed by the fiduciary, or if a negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to his principal is indorsed by a fiduciary empowered to indorse the instrument on behalf of his principal, the indorsee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in indorsing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of the breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, the instrument is transferred by the fiduciary in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is transferred in a transaction known by the transferee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other transferee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Knowledge of bad faith

Where plaintiff's check was presented at a bank by president of the payee personally who endorsed on the back of it the name of the company and his own name as president and in addition signed his own name as individual and the bank credited the amount of the check to the personal account of the president, maker was not entitled to recover the amount thereof from the bank where there was no suggestion of bad faith by the bank and no proof which would have put it on notice that the president was guilty of a breach of faith in negotiating the check and depositing the proceeds to his own credit. Evans v. Prentice et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A. 2d 396).

Liability of lender

Where court authorized members of incompetent's committee to negotiate loan on security of incompetent's realty, lender made checks payable to members of committee without adding word "committee" and such members thereafter allegedly embezzled proceeds of checks, omission of word "committee" was not cause of alleged embezzlement, making lender responsible therefor, in view of fact that presence of word would not have prevented members from cashing checks or from embezzling proceeds. Espey v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. of Richmond, Va. (1954, 210 F. 2d 728, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

§ 21-1704. Check drawn by fiduciary payable to third person

If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such, or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such an instrument in the name of his principal, the payee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of the breach or with knowledge of facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. Where, however, the instrument is payable to a personal creditor of the fiduciary and delivered to the creditor in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is drawn and delivered in a transaction known by the payee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other payee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 777, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

In general

A third person who knowingly participates in the breach of a fiduciary's obligation can be required to make good the resulting loss. Anacostia Bank v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1941, 119 F. 2d 455, 73 App. D.C. 388, 134 A.L.R. 995).

§ 21-1705. Check drawn by and payable to fiduciary

If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such an instrument in the name of his principal, payable to the fiduciary personally, or payable to a third person and by him transferred to the fiduciary, and is thereafter transferred by the fiduciary, whether in payment of a personal debt of the fiduciary or otherwise, the transferee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligations as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of the breach or with knowledge of facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. ##### Trust deposit transferred

Where trust deposit in the name of the individual trustees and trustee corporation was transferred by check to the account of the corporation, the result being to settle an overdraft of the corporation, the transaction was not covered by this section, but comes within the scope of § 28-2312 and must be decided under common-law principles. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-1706. Deposit in name of fiduciary as such

If a deposit is made in a bank to the credit of a fiduciary as such, the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the check of the fiduciary, signed with the name in which the deposit is entered, without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing the check or with knowledge of facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, the check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 777, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Knowledge of breach of trust

Notice from adverse claimant asserting by affidavit that depositor is trustee and that claimant believes such trustee is about to misappropriate the funds in account constitutes "actual knowledge" by the bank under the Uniform Fiduciary Act with respect to breach of obligation by the fiduciary. R. S. Goldstein v. The Riggs National Bank (1972, 459 F. 2d 1161, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

Evidence in mining workers' derivative action against welfare fund trustees, union, and bank controlled by union compelled conclusion that bank knowingly accepted and participated in continuing breach of trust that redounded substantially to its own benefit, i.e., leaving of large amounts of uninvested cash in demand deposits in bank; proof was sufficient despite statute requiring, for bank's liability for transactions with trustee, actual knowledge of breach of trust or knowledge of such facts that its action amounts to bad faith. W. R. Blankenship et al. v. W. A. Boyle et al. (1971, 329 F. Supp. 1089).

§ 21-1707. Deposit in name of principal; check drawn thereon by fiduciary; check payable to drawee bank

If a check is drawn upon a bank account of his principal by a fiduciary who is empowered to draw checks upon his principal's account, the bank is authorized to pay the checks without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing the check, or with knowledge of facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, the check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 777, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

§ 21-1708. Deposit in fiduciary personal account

When a fiduciary deposits in a bank to his personal credit checks:

- (1) drawn by him upon an account in his own name as fiduciary; or
- (2) payable to him as fiduciary; or
- (3) drawn by him upon an account in the name of his principal if he is empowered to draw checks thereon; or
- (4) payable to his principal and indorsed by him, if he is empowered to indorse such checks—or if he otherwise deposits funds held by him as fiduciary, the bank receiving the deposit is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing thereby a breach of his obligation as fiduciary, and may pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the personal check of the fiduciary without being liable to the principal, unless the bank receives the deposit or pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making the deposit or in drawing the check, or with knowledge of facts that its action in receiving the deposit or paying the check amounts to bad faith. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 778, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Knowledge of breach of trust

Notice from adverse claimant asserting by affidavit that depositor is trustee and that claimant believes such trustee is about to misappropriate the funds in account constitutes "actual knowledge" by the bank under the Uniform Fiduciary Act with respect to breach of obligation by the fiduciary. R. S. Goldstein v. The Riggs National Bank (1972, 459 F. 2d 1161, 148 App. D.C. 137).

Trust deposit transferred

Where trust deposit in the name of the individual trustees and the trustee corporation was transferred by check to the account of the corporation, the result being to settle an overdraft of the corporation, it was not the case of a transfer by the fiduciary in payment of a personal debt, but was a transfer by one set of fiduciaries to another, and the bank was not liable unless it had actual knowledge of misappropriation. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 67 App. D.C. 259, 92 F. 2d 183, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-1709. Deposit in names of two or more trustees

When a deposit is made in a bank in the name of two or more persons as trustees and a check is drawn upon the trust account by any trustee authorized by the others to draw checks upon the trust account, neither the payee nor other holder nor the bank is bound to inquire whether it is a breach of trust to authorize the trustee to draw checks upon the trust account, and is not liable unless the circumstances be such that the action of the payee or other holder or the bank amounts to bad faith. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 778, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966.)

Chapter 18.—CHARITABLE AND SPLIT-INTEREST TRUSTS

Sec.

21-1801. Charitable and split-interest trusts.

§ 21-1801. Charitable and split-interest trusts

(a) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the governing instrument or under any law applicable to the District of Columbia, except as provided in subsection (e) of this section, the governing instrument of any trust which is treated during a particular year as a private foundation described in section 509 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (including any nonexempt charitable trust described in section 4947(a)(1) of the Code which is treated as a private foundation) and the governing instrument of any nonexempt split-interest trust described in section 4947(a)(2) of the Code (but only to the extent that section 508(e) of the Code is applicable to such nonexempt split-interest trust) shall be deemed during such particular year to contain all of the following provisions:

(1) The trust shall not engage in any act of self-dealing which is taxable under section 4941 of the Code.

(2) The trust shall make distributions at such time and in such manner as not to subject it to tax under section 4942 of the Code.

(3) The trust shall not retain any excess business holdings which would subject it to tax under section 4943 of the Code.

(4) The trust shall not make any investments which would subject it to tax under section 4944 of the Code.

(5) The trust shall not make any taxable expenditures which would subject it to tax under section 4945 of the Code.

With respect to any such trust created prior to January 1, 1970, subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1972.

(b) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the governing instrument, the trustee or trustees of any trust described in subsection (a), other than a trust described in section 4947(a) (2) of the Code, may, without application to any court, amend the governing instrument expressly to include the provisions required by section 508(e) of the Code by executing a written amendment to the trust and delivering a copy thereof, by certified mail, to each named beneficiary, if any.

(c) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the governing instrument, the trustee or trustees of any trust described in section 4947(a) (2) of the Code to which subsection (a) is applicable may, after obtaining the written consent of the creator of such trust if then living and competent to give such consent, and without application to any court, amend the governing instrument expressly to include the provisions required by section 508(e) of the Code by executing a written amendment to the trust and delivering a copy thereof by certified mail, to each named beneficiary, if any.

(d) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the governing instrument, the trustee or trustees of any trust described in section 4947(a) (2) of the Code to which subsection (a) is applicable, with the consent of each beneficiary named in such governing instrument, may, without application to any court, amend the governing instrument to conform to the provisions of section 664 of the Code by executing a written amendment to the trust for such purpose. Consent shall not be required as to individual named beneficiaries not living at the time of the amendment. In the case of any individual beneficiary not competent to give consent, the consent of a guardian, appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction, shall be treated as consent of the beneficiary. In the case of any amendment to a trust created by will, such amendment may, if provided in the amendment, be deemed to apply as of the date of death of the testator.

(e) The provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to any trust to the extent that a court of competent jurisdiction shall determine that such application would be contrary to the terms of the governing instrument and that such instrument may not properly be amended to conform with subsection (a).

(f) For purposes of this section, the term "trust" includes (1) any trust created by will of a resident of the District of Columbia admitted to probate in the District of Columbia, (2) any trust created by a resident of the District of Columbia and executed in the District of Columbia, (3) any trust of which the trustee or a co-trustee is a bank or trust company doing business in the District of Columbia, (4) any trust of which a majority of the trustees are resident in the District of Columbia, (5) any trust of real property located in the District of Columbia, and (6) any trust the governing instrument of which provides that it is governed by the laws of the District of Columbia.

(g) For the purposes of this section, the term "Code" means the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. (Added Dec. 6, 1971, Pub. L. 92-177, § 1, 85 Stat. 494.)

Except where such a construction would be unreasonable, the words "writing" and "paper," wherever mentioned in this title, are to be taken to include instruments wholly in writing or wholly printed, or partly printed and partly in writing. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 904.)

§ 22-102. "Anything of value" defined.

The words "anything of value," wherever they occur in this title, shall be held to include not only things possessing intrinsic value, but bank notes and other forms of paper money, and commercial paper and other writings which represent value. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 905.)

§ 22-103. Attempts to commit crime.

Whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise made punishable by this title, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 906.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Mere preparation is not an attempt, but preparation may progress to the point of attempt, and question whether it has is one of degree which can be resolved only on basis of facts of each case. Sellers Jr. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 131 A. 2d 300).

The general attempt statute covers attempted petit larceny not expressly covered by any other statute. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

Assault

One who assaults a female under 16 years of age, with intent to carnally know her, is punishable under 1901 Code, § 803 (§ 22-501) and not 1901 Code, § 906 (§ 22-103). Sanselo v. United States (1916, 44 App. D.C. 508).

Attempted petit larceny

The fact that the fine was greater under general attempt statute than for completed offense of petit larceny did not mean that Congress intended to exclude attempted petit larceny from scope of the general attempt statute. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

Attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle

Attempted unauthorized use of a motor vehicle is a crime under statutes prohibiting the taking, use, operation, or removal of a vehicle without owner's consent and calling for punishment of whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise punishable. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Completed offense

If an information admits of conviction of attempt to commit a felony, an accused may be found guilty of the attempt, though the evidence shows a completed offense. United States v. Fleming (D.C. App. 1966, 215 A. 2d 839).

The government's proof at trial that a completed act of sodomy has taken place will not entitle defendant to an acquittal on the only charge against him, an attempt to commit sodomy. Id.

The general attempt statute permits one to be convicted of an attempt to commit sodomy. Id.

Continuance

The granting or refusal of a continuance is largely left to discretion of the trial judge, and his decision will not be disturbed without a clear showing of abuse in the exercise of that discretion. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 574).

Corroborating witness

Failure of prosecution to produce second officer who as a corroborating witness could only have testified to time and place of defendant's arrest for attempted procuring because he did not hear conversation between arresting officer and defendant was not error in view of prosecution's effort to secure a continuance because second officer was in another court and defendant's then counsel's willingness to proceed to trial in second officer's absence. R. Blakney v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 654).

Elements of offense

The elements of the crime of attempted false pretenses, like other attempts to commit a crime, are an intent to commit it, the doing of some act towards its commission, and the failure to consummate its commission. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

Evidence

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of automobile. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

— Admissibility

Screwdriver which was dropped by a defendant as police officer approached was abandoned property since the defendant subsequently denied ownership, and screwdriver was admissible in prosecution for petit larceny, destruction of property and attempted burglary. C. E. Campbell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 252).

— Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to support conviction for attempted burglary in the second degree of defendant who was found by police officers in building next to building which had been scene of prior attempted break-in and which had bricks contiguous to upstairs room on side of party wall having been removed and whose trousers had dust on them matching dust in broken wall which had additional bricks removed after the prior break-in. M. Valentino v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 173).

Evidence that the defendant was standing in front of a broken window of store that was being burglarized by two other men, one of whom had a casual acquaintance with the defendant, while perhaps raising a possibility or even strong suspicion of participation in criminal activity, is not sufficient to find defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of attempted burglary in the second degree and of attempted petit larceny. W. T. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 719).

Evidence that the defendant and his companion were the only people in hall near apartment when witness alighted from elevator after hearing suspicious noises, that door to witness' apartment had large hole in it, and that defendant's companion dropped screwdriver while being followed is sufficient to support conclusion of guilt beyond reasonable doubt of attempted burglary II and destruction of property. W. W. Hopkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 274 A. 2d 418).

Evidence, including testimony identifying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

The evidence sustained conviction for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of a credit card. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

In prosecution for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of credit card in connection with motel registration, the necessity of producing motel desk clerk was obviated by introduction of motel's records. Id.

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

In this case the evidence in prosecution of defendant for attempted burglary permitted inference of an intent to commit a crime to be made by the jury who was found in warehouse amongst scattered papers, opened desk drawers and office machinery which had been moved into hall. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Evidence that tenant of apartment heard what sounded like someone attempting to enter vacant apartment and that defendant and companion were seen leaving building and fled when pursued by officer was sufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking. T. H. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 640).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 F. 2d 63).

The record contains sufficient evidence from which the jury could have found or inferred that the car left by owner in the parking garage and the one driven onto the parking lot by appellant were one and the same. F. E. Wesley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 514).

Cigarettes found in defendants' possession, with same "wholesale numbers" as cigarettes left in store, but not otherwise identified as having come from store, had little, if any, probative value. S. C. Davis and C. L. Colbert v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

Evidence of defendants' physical and chronological proximity to scene of housebreaking, and their leaving at a trot, was insufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking and petit larceny. Id.

False pretenses

In prosecution for attempting by false pretenses to obtain money from an insurance company on a fraudulent claim for stolen furs evidence of defendants' guilt was sufficient for the jury. Cooper and Williams v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 918).

Inconsistent verdict

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglary and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglary, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction. Id.

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Instructions

In a prosecution for attempted procuring involving contents of conversation that concededly took place between defendant and officer at street corner, instruction that if witness testified falsely concerning any material fact, about which the witness could not be reasonably mistaken, all testimony of such witness could be disregarded, except such parts as were corroborated by other testimony, was not plain error requiring reversal in absence of objection. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 446).

In this case, instruction by trial court, in prosecution for attempted procuring, that jury must decide whether defendant had intent to procure female for immoral purposes, was proper when placed in context with entire charge as obviously referring to illegal sexual immoralities. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

In this case, since the jury had convicted defendant of more serious crime of attempted burglary, any error in instruction on lesser included offense of unlawful entry was not demonstrated to be prejudicial. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Lapse of time between theft and arrest

Lapse of five days between theft of automobile and arrest of defendant operating it did not insulate him from criminal liability for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Lesser included offense

Except for the requirement of intent to commit crime, unlawful entry is substantially identical to and hence lesser included offense of burglary in second degree. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Maximum penalty

The maximum penalty for attempted petit larceny can be no greater than the maximum penalty for the completed offense. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

Probable cause

Police officers, who observed defendant carrying a screwdriver and companion carrying a television set, who had not been expressly advised of commission of a particular crime and who then approached companion and defendant who dropped screwdriver and then denied ownership thereof, did not have probable cause to believe a crime had been committed and thus did not have probable cause to make arrest, and seizure of television set during that arrest was illegal and set could not have been properly admitted into evidence in prosecution for petit larceny, destruction of property, and attempted burglary II. O. E. Campbell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 252).

Procuring

In this case the evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted procuring. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

Proof of ownership

Any failure of prosecution to show who owned automobile involved in prosecution for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle did not preclude conviction where it was established that ownership was in some third party. D. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Prostitution

Showing that defendant and complaining witness bargained until they had agreed upon exchange of money, although uncertain in amount, for services of prostitute, and that immediately thereafter defendant led complaining witness a considerable distance to hotel unknown to witness where prostitute was supposedly waiting was sufficient evidence to sustain conviction for attempted procuring. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 187).

Where defendant, upon obtaining affirmative reply to his question whether police officers were looking for girls, inquired what type they wanted, priced the girls at $10 each, and revealed, in answer to question put by one officer, that defendant's fee was $2, fact that defendant's actions never progressed beyond stage of conversation and that no money was received was not fatal to a conviction for an attempt to receive money for arranging for a female to have sexual intercourse, and, had the money passed, the principal crime itself would have been consummated. Sellers Jr. v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 131 A. 2d 300).

Evidence sustained conviction for attempt to receive money for arranging for a female to have sexual intercourse. Id.

Review

Defendant could not be heard to complain on appeal of conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle in view of proof of completion of offense of unauthorized use of the vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Search and seizure

As an incident of arrest based on probable cause, police may seize items of evidence of the crime which are found on the arrestee. M. Valentino v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 173).

Seizure of defendant's trousers was not objectionable as being analogous to court-condemned forcible stomach pumping, blood sampling and the like. Id.

Sentences

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. J. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course of conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

In this case the court held that since the District of Columbia Code expressly limits maximum prison sentence for attempted burglary to one year and crimes of attempted second-degree burglary and malicious destruction of property are offenses against same societal interest and since there was nothing to show that offenses were animated by different criminal intents, defendant's convictions for attempted second-degree burglary and for malicious destruction of property with respective consecutive sentences of one year and six months are not appropriate case for cumulative punishment and case would be remanded for resentencing. M. A. Johnson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 780).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Store breaking

Evidence warranted conviction for attempted store breaking, where defendant's fingerprints were on top of paper bag which contained burglary tools and which was found beside broken skylight over store, that area was generally inaccessible to public, and that bag was dry although roof was damp. E. Patten v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 182).

Validity of statute

The general attempt statute is not invalid as applied to attempted petit larceny on theory that it authorizes greater penalty than authorized for completed offense. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

§ 22-104. Second conviction.

(a) If any person—

(1) is convicted of a criminal offense (other than a non-moving traffic offense) under a law applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia, and

(2) was previously convicted of a criminal offense under any law of the United States or of a State or territory of the United States which offense, at the time of the conviction referred to in paragraph (1), is the same as, constitutes, or necessarily includes, the offense referred to in that paragraph, such person may be sentenced to pay a fine in an amount not more than one and one-half times the maximum fine prescribed for the conviction referred to in paragraph (1) and sentenced to imprisonment for a term not more than one and one-half times the maximum term of imprisonment prescribed for that conviction. If such person was previously convicted more than once of an offense described in paragraph (2), he may be sentenced to pay a fine in an amount not more than three times the maximum fine prescribed for the conviction referred to in paragraph (1) and sentenced to imprisonment for a term not more than three times the maximum term of imprisonment prescribed for that conviction. No conviction with respect to which a person has been pardoned on the ground of innocence shall be taken into account in applying this section.

(b) This section shall not apply in the event of conflict with any other provision of law which provides an increased penalty for a specific offense by reason of a prior conviction of the same or any other offense. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 907; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 201(a), title II, 84 Stat. 598.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 201(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section generally. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

APPLICABILITY OF AMENDMENT

Section 901(b) (3) of Pub. L. 91-358, provided as follows: (3) The amendments made by sections 201 [sections 22-104 and 22-104a] and 205 [sections 22-3202 and 22-3213] of this Act shall apply with respect to any person who commits an offense after the effective date of this Act. [For effective date see note preceding § 11-101.]

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 33-423.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal after service of sentence

That defendant had served his sentence did not render case moot in view of effect of felony conviction on civil rights and punishment upon subsequent conviction. O. Dancy, Jr. v. United States (1966, 361 F. 2d 75, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

Defendant, who had served sentence, was entitled to have conviction for assault reversed and case remanded, where alleged assault was committed on witness who testified against defendant at preliminary hearing at which defendant had not been accorded right to counsel, and no preliminary hearing was granted on assault charge. Id.

Attack on former indictment

When defendant appeared and pleaded to an information for petit larceny, and was tried in the police court without objection, he admits the validity of the information, and, if convicted, can not afterwards, when indicted for petit larceny as a second offense, deny the legal sufficiency of the information as not being sworn to, or claim that his first arrest was illegal. Latney v. United States (1901, 18 App. D.C. 265).

Notice

Defendant has right to be given notice of government's intention to prosecute as second offender and ask for heavier penalties under second offender statute; the notice should be formal; and informal notice, originating with court, acquiesced in by prosecution, with burden on defendant's counsel to convey notice to defendant, is insufficient. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

Where defendant was not given timely notice that he would be prosecuted as a second offender and sentenced in accordance with the penalties of recidivist statute, he was subject only to the one-year maximum penalty that could be imposed upon a first offender, and additional six months' sentence on the petit larceny charge had to be set aside. E. P. Lawrence v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 224 A. 2d 306).

Where no notice was given to defendant that government intended to ask for greater penalties as second offender, defendant was only subject to penalty that could be imposed on first offender. A. Dobkin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 657).

In second offender cases, government must advise defendant of penalty to be demanded in time for him to demand jury trial. Id.

Practice with respect to second offender prosecutions

The practice of district attorney's office, when intending to prosecute as second offender, to file written notice to that effect, specifically referring to former conviction, its nature and date, and to deliver copy of such notice to defendant personally is approved. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

The practice of prosecuting defendant as second offender only on suggestion of trial court and not at suggestion of district attorney's office is disapproved. Id.

Proof of prior conviction

The admission of defendant's counsel, in answer to court's question, that defendant had prior conviction of either petit larceny or attempted petit larceny was not waiver of proof of prior conviction. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

Trial court's reference at bench conference to grand larceny in 1964, apparently based on information obtained from paper produced by prosecuting attorney, did not constitute proof of former conviction. Id.

Prosecution

In view of statutes proscribing the carrying of a dangerous weapon and possession of prohibited weapon, prosecution had no authority to charge the defendant under § 22-104 as a "general" repeat offender for carrying a dangerous weapon and possessing a prohibited weapon, and as the defendant received no proper and timely notice that he was subject to as much as ten years' imprisonment under the statutes specifically covering the offenses, the defendant in effect was merely tried as a first offender on a misdemeanor and the Court of General Sessions did not lack jurisdiction on theory that the defendant faced possibility of being sentenced to up to ten years in prison. W. P. Martin v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 448).

Sentence

Sentence of defendant as second offender was invalid where defendant had no proper notice that he would be prosecuted as second offender, prosecutor did not intend to prosecute defendant as second offender and did so only at suggestion of trial court, and there was no proof of former conviction. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

§ 22-104a. Punishment of persons convicted of a felony with a prior record of at least two felony convictions—Definitions—Effect of convictions pardoned on the ground of innocence.

(a) If—

(1) any person (A) is convicted in the District of Columbia of a felony, and (B) before the commission of such felony, was convicted of at least two felonies; and

(2) the court is of the opinion that the history and character of such person and the nature and circumstances of his criminal conduct indicate that extended incarceration or lifetime supervision, or both, will best serve the public interest, the court may, in lieu of any sentence otherwise authorized for the felony referred to in clause (A) of paragraph (1), impose such greater sentence as it deems necessary, including imprisonment for the natural life of such person.

(b) For purposes of paragraph (1) of subsection (a)—

(1) a person shall be considered as having been convicted of a felony if he was convicted (A) of a felony in a court of the District of Columbia or of the United States, or (B) in any other jurisdiction of a crime classified as a felony under the laws of that jurisdiction or punishable by imprisonment for more than two years; and

(2) a person shall be considered as having been convicted of two felonies if his initial sentencing under a conviction of one felony preceded the commission of the second felony for which he was convicted.

No conviction with respect to which a person has been pardoned on the ground of innocence shall be taken into account in applying this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 907A; as added July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 201(b), title II, 84 Stat. 599.)

APPLICABILITY

Section 901(b)(3) of Pub. L. 91-358, provided as follows: (3) The amendments made by sections 201 [sections 22-104 and 22-104a] and 205 [sections 22-3202 and 22-3213] of this Act shall apply with respect to any person who commits an offense after the effective date of this Act. [For effective date, see note preceding § 11-101.]

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 33-423.

§ 22-105. Persons advising, inciting, or conniving at criminal offense to be charged as principals.

In prosecutions for any criminal offense all persons advising, inciting, or conniving at the offense, or aiding or abetting the principal offender, shall be charged as principals and not as accessories, the intent of this section being that as to all accessories before the fact the law heretofore applicable in cases of misdemeanor only shall apply to all crimes, whatever the punishment may be. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 908.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accessory after fact

Defendant could be convicted as accessory after fact, even though he was present before, during and after crime. J. S. Smith v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 286, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 126).

Accessory before the fact

Under this section a person shown to be an accessory before the fact is chargeable and criminally responsible as a principal. Williams v. United States (1925, 4 F. 2d 432, 55 App. D.C. 239).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where there was sufficient evidence to justify the jury's conclusion that doctor was an accessory before the fact to the attempt at bribery by his wife, he was properly found guilty as a principal. Ladrey v. United States (1946, 155 F. 2d 417, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 127, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U.S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Accomplice

Defendant who participated in robbery of cab driver that resulted in killing was guilty of murder in first degree even though defendant was accomplice of codefendant who did the actual shooting. United States v. J. R. Carter (1971, 445 F. 2d 669, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 193; cert. denied 92 S.Ct. 988, 405 U.S. 932).

In cases of carnal knowledge, the prosecutrix is not an accomplice of the defendant. "An accomplice is one who is associated with another, or others, in the commission of a crime. Liability to indictment, under ordinary conditions, is a reasonable test of the legal relation of the party to the crime and its perpetrator." Yeager v. United States (1900, 16 App. D.C. 356, certiorari denied 20 S. Ct. 1031, 178 U.S. 615, 44 L. Ed. 1217).

Woman upon whom a miscarriage is produced in violation of 1901 Code, § 809 (§ 22-201), is not an accomplice of the person who produces it. Thompson v. United States (1908, 30 App. D.C. 352, 12 Ann. Cas. 1004).

"Persons engaged in wagering contests are not accomplices." Paylor v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 428, LRA 1915D, 682, certiorari denied 35 S. Ct. 209, 235 U.S. 704, 59 L. Ed. 434).

The giver of a bribe is an accomplice of the person bribed. Egan v. United States (1923, 287 F. 958, 52 App. D.C. 384).

"Anyone knowingly and voluntarily co-operating with, aiding, assisting, advising, or encouraging another in the commission of a crime is an accomplice; and this is true, regardless of the degree of his guilt." Egan v. United States (1923, 287 F. 958, 52 App. D.C. 384). See, also, Tomlinson v. United States (1935, 93 F. 2d 652, 68 App. D.C. 106, 114 ALR 1315, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 645, 303 U.S. 646, 82 L. Ed. 1102).

Aid and abet

To sustain conviction of an aider and abettor for commission of the crime, it is only necessary that the defendant was associated with the principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

One who aids in commission of crime is as responsible for that act as if he committed it directly. H. L. Williams and D. G. Reeves v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 190 A. 2d 269).

Evidence supported conviction of appealing defendants of assault and of attempted petit larceny, since court could conclude that defendants were associated with principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. Id.

Evidence supported conviction of defendant, who at no time struck or pushed assault victim during altercation between victim, defendant and two others, and who could not be said by victim to have joined the other two in searching victim's pockets, for assault either on theory that concert of action by defendant and the other two threatened or menaced the victim or that defendant aided and abetted the other two. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Aiding and abetting assault renders one guilty of crime even if he does not actively participate. Id.

One aiding and abetting unauthorized use of automobile stands in same shoes as principal offender. Allen v. United States (1958, 257 F. 2d 188, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Defendant who aided and abetted the taking of an automobile and other property within the District of Columbia was liable as a principal. Williams v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 35, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 219).

Without determining whether each of defendants was then displaying a placard in front of embassy, all are guilty under provisions of the local law making it an offense to aid and abet in a violation of a law. Frend v. United States (1939, 100 F. 2d 691, 69 App. D.C. 281, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 488, 306 U.S. 640, 83 L. Ed. 1040).

Public utilities commission (now public service commission) regulation, forbidding owner or operator of vehicle for hire to authorize any person to operate such vehicle unless such person possessed a valid character license, was directed only to owners and operators who permitted unlicensed persons to drive; and defendant, who had an arrangement with corporation to rent taxicabs or to provide drivers but did not himself operate taxicabs and had no proprietary interest in corporation or its vehicles, could not properly be convicted under statute, where he was not accused of aiding and abetting corporation, and evidence did not comport with that of a case tried on theory of aiding and abetting. Sellers v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 143 A. 2d 96).

Although an offense may be so defined by statute or regulation that it can only be committed by members of a certain class, one outside the class may, by aiding or abetting another who is within the scope of the definition, render himself criminally liable for the offense. Jack Berman Inc., et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 132 A. 2d 147).

Under statute, although one may not be the principal actor, he may be charged as a principal under the same information in conjunction with principal offender for acts of aiding and abetting. Id.

The District of Columbia vehicle title and registration regulations and the commissioners' order concerning automobile conditional sales contracts were applicable only to licensed automobile dealers, and unlicensed dealer, even though he aided and abetted a licensed dealer, could not be convicted for violations of regulations and order on the sole basis that he was a dealer under their purview. Id.

Charged as principal

Where defendants are charged as principals under aiding and abetting statute, act of one defendant is act of each. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

"One who procures, commands, advises, instigates, or incites the commission of an offense, though not personally present at its commission, is, by the common law, an accessory before the fact. * * * The section of the code above quoted (§ 22-105) makes all such persons principals. And it is not essential that any specific time or mode of committing the offense shall have been advised or commanded, or, if so, that it shall have been committed in the particular way instigated. * * * Nor is it necessary that there shall have been any direct communication between the actual perpetrator and the accessory, who, under the code, is now a principal." Maxey v. United States (1907, 30 App. D.C. 63).

Indictment charging that A, B, and C made an assault on X with a brick held in the hand of B is not defective as charging A and C with an impossible act. "The defendants were charged as principals. They were acting together and the act of one was the act of each. The question is set at rest by section 908 of the code (this section)." Polen v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 4).

In an indictment charging defendants with engaging in unlawful prize fight, for which appellant charged an admission fee, the appellant was rightly indicted as a principal. Dane v. United States (1927, 18 F. 2d 811, 57 App. D.C. 161, certiorari denied 48 S. Ct. 35, 275 U.S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413).

One who procures, commands, advises, instigates or incites the commission of an offense, though not personally present at its commission is by the common law an accessory before the fact, and by this section all such persons are made principals. Ladrey v. United States (1946, 155 F. 2d 417, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 127, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U.S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Where tenant of premises, wherein gaming tables were kept, was an incorporated club, but there was evidence that defendants took part in carrying on its gambling activities, defendants were responsible as principals. Warde v. United States (1947, 158 F. 2d 651, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Construction

Under District of Columbia law, the conviction of the principal perpetrator of the offense is not a prerequisite to conviction of the aider and abettor. United States v. J. E. McCall (1972, 460 F. 2d 952, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 444).

Design or plan

In prosecution of Puerto Rican defendant, whose companion shot and killed guard in front of dwelling of President of the United States, for first-degree murder, wherein defendant interposed defense that he and companion had no intent to kill anyone but merely wished to create an incident in order to bring to the attention of the American people conditions in Puerto Rico, jury, in determining whether the killing by defendant's companion was within design or plan of defendant and his companion, was entitled to consider whether it was a natural and probable result of the acts which defendant and his companion concerted to perform. Collazo v. United States (1952, 196 F. 2d 573, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 241, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1065, 343 U. S. 968, 96 L. Ed. 1364).

Elements of offense

In order to aid and abet another to commit a crime it is necessary, under District of Columbia law, that a defendant in some sort associate himself with the venture, that he participate in it as in something that he wishes to bring about, that he seek by his action to make it succeed. United States v. J. E. McCall (1972, 460 F. 2d 952, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 444).

In order to convict passenger as aider and abettor in unauthorized use of motor vehicle, government must establish that he had actual knowledge of criminal act being committed. In the Matter of D. M. L. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 277).

Mere presence at scene of the crime is not sufficient to convict one of aiding and abetting; what is required is evidence that the accused knowingly associated himself in some way with the criminal venture, that he participated in it as something that he wished to bring about, and that he sought by his action to make it succeed. United States v. W. D. Lumpkin (1971, 448 F. 2d 1085, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 162).

Evidence—Admissibility

Statements made by the defendant, who initially had claimed he was a victim of the robbery along with the complaining witness but who was subsequently charged with aiding and abetting the robber, were not made at a point in the investigation which brought defendant within the protection of Miranda, nor, furthermore, did the interview of defendant by the police amount to the "custodial interrogation" which is a prerequisite to the necessity of a Miranda warning. United States v. W. Thompson (1972, 463 F. 2d 1258, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 167).

— Sufficiency

Evidence that defendant was identified by owner of credit card as person who had previously robbed him at gunpoint of wallet which contained a credit card, plus evidence that robbery had occurred on morning of forgery that defendant was charged with aiding and abetting, and evidence that defendant accompanied admitted forger of sales slip to store and selected one of suits which were charged to owner of credit card was sufficient to support conviction on charges that defendant aided and abetted forgery and uttering offenses. United States v. J. A. Conner (1972, 462 F. 2d 296, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Evidence including testimony showing that defendant walked behind victims and tried to remove wallet from victim's pocket was sufficient to support the implicit finding of verdict that defendant aided and abetted the offense of assault with intent to commit robbery while armed with a dangerous weapon and the offense of assault with a dangerous weapon. United States v. J. Prater (1972, 462 F. 2d 292, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Uncontroverted testimony afforded ample basis for trier of fact to draw reasonable and permissible inference that the juvenile was involved as aider and abettor in the criminal conduct of robbing and assaulting another juvenile notwithstanding there was contradictory testimony by complaining witness. In the Matter of T.J.W. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 174).

Evidence, including evidence that automobile was "hot wired" in a manner visible to anyone in rear seat, sustained delinquency adjudication of juvenile who was found in rear seat and charged as aider and abettor in unauthorized use of vehicle. In the Matter of D. M. L. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 277).

Evidence that, inter alia, the defendant and two other men entered store together, that they conversed together until other customers left the store, that defendant did not lie on the floor when one of the codefendants, with a gun, announced a "stick-up" and said "To the floor.", and that defendant moved from near the door to near the cash register after a codefendant ordered store employee to open it is sufficient to support defendant's conviction for armed robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, and conflicting testimony of defendant and his codefendants whereby they all sought to establish that defendant and one of his codefendants were innocent bystanders did not destroy the permissible inference of defendant's guilt. United States v. W. D. Lumpkin (1971, 448 F. 2d 1085, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 162).

In this case, the evidence was sufficient to support juvenile court's finding that juvenile participated as an aider and abettor in assault with intent to commit robbery on a school teacher. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

Evidence was not sufficient to sustain a conviction for aiding and abetting petit larceny on a showing that at time officer observed suspected criminal activity defendant was standing near the right side of automobile at a point somewhere between automobile, which contained wine and beer allegedly stolen from store, and the store. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of petit larceny of wine and beer in violation of District Code. Id.

The evidence portrayed in a view most favorable to the Government, of defendant's presence at scene of crime, his slight association with actual perpetrator, and subsequent flight, did not sustain conviction for robbery. J. L. Bailey v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 1110, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

Guilty knowledge

To be an "aider and abettor" in unauthorized use of motor vehicle, a mere passenger must be shown to have had guilty knowledge, and this requires more than showing that he rode in automobile, pushed automobile, and repaired a punctured tire. Wm. H. Kemp, Jr. v. United States (1962, 311 F. 2d 774, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 88).

Evidence was insufficient to convict defendant as aider and abettor of another in unauthorized use of motor vehicle. Id.

Information—Validity

Evidence was sufficient to prove that defendant aided and abetted the principal offender in sales and deliveries of drugs, in violation of law, and was not prejudiced by informations charging him alone as principal where there was adequate evidence to establish that principal offender committed violations charged, since statute provided that all persons aiding or abetting principal were to be charged as principals and not as accessories. R. W. Mason v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 565).

Instructions

Where nowhere in the instructions was there to be found one setting forth essential elements constituting crime of attempted robbery, the underlying felony upon which defendant's conviction of felony-murder was predicated, omission was plain error. United States v. L. L. Williams (1972, 463 F. 2d 958, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 122).

Instruction, in prosecution for burglary and petty larceny, pursuant to request for clarification of aiding and abetting, that if B came out of bank and said "I have just robbed it, I have the sack full of money, let's go," and then B got into A's automobile and A took off and ran knowing that crime had been committed, and helped in the escape, he could be liable, is reversibly erroneous since the indictment did not charge defendant with being accessory after the fact and since the jury returned with guilty verdict less than fifteen minutes after being given such instruction. United States v. M. F. Irving (1970, 437 F. 2d 649, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 216).

Testimony of assault victim that defendant and two other men were "after" him authorized instruction to jury on theory of aiding and abetting even if defendant's actions did not assume proportions of assault. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

In action against two defendants for murder a requested instruction was properly refused which stated that "if no force of arms was contemplated, then defendant was not liable for the consequences of the shot by the codefendant," for the testimony and instruction must show that before the crime has been done he honestly and in good faith withdraws and tries to get away and does not take any part in the offense. Marcus v. United States (1937, 86 F. 2d 854, 66 App. D.C. 298).

Fact that there was evidence that one of the three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery threw away the gun and bullets after the murder did not require an instruction that jury could find such defendant guilty as accessory after the fact, where such defendant's testimony and other circumstances stamped him as an accessory before the fact and therefore guilty as a principal. Hall v. United States (1948, 168 F. 2d 161, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 166, 4 A.L.R. 2d 1193, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1509, 334 U.S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U.S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

Defendants were not entitled to complain that the trial court erroneously failed to tell the jury that a defendant was an accomplice rather than a principal where the trial judge gave instructions which were full and correct and reflected the statutory provision that all who aid or abet in the commission of a crime are charged as principals. Cooper and Williams v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 918).

Intent

In prosecution of Puerto Rican defendant, whose companion shot and killed guard in front of dwelling of President of the United States, for first-degree murder, wherein defendant interposed defense that he and companion had no intent to kill anyone but merely wished to create an incident in order to bring to the attention of the American people conditions in Puerto Rico, defendant was properly allowed to testify as to his own intent. Collazo v. United States (1952, 196 F. 2d 573, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 241, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1065, 343 U. S. 968, 96 L. Ed. 1364).

Lender of automobile

"If the owner of a dangerous instrumentality like an automobile knowingly puts that instrumentality in the immediate control of a careless and reckless driver, sits by his side, and permits him without protest so carelessly and negligently to operate the car as to cause the death of another, he is as much responsible as the man at the wheel." Story v. United States (1927, 16 F. 2d 342, 57 App. D.C. 3, 53 A.L.R. 246, certiorari denied 47 S. Ct. 576, 274 U.S. 739, 71 L. Ed. 1318).

Participation

Evidence was sufficient to establish defendant's guilty participation in crime of housebreaking and larceny. Lanham v. United States (1951, 185 F. 2d 435, 87 U. S. App. D. C. 357).

Presence at commission

When defendant was not present when the actual conversion took place, he was a mere artificial principal and not an actual one, that is, he was subject to the same punishment as though he actually had assisted in the final act of larceny; but that does not prevent his prosecution for the distinct offense of receiving stolen goods.

Weisberg v. United States (1919, 258 F. 284, 49 App. D.C. 28).

Prosecution of aider and abettor

In this jurisdiction, an aider and abettor is prosecuted as a principal, and conviction of principal offender is not prerequisite to conviction of the aider and abettor. J. L. Bailey v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 1110, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

Testimony of accomplice

There may be a conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, "provided the jury is admonished by the court that the testimony of an accomplice 'ought to be received with suspicion, and with the very greatest care and caution.'" Egan v. United States (1923, 287 F. 958, 52 App. D.C. 384).

§ 22-105a. Punishment of persons convicted of conspiracies to commit crimes—Proof—Conspiracies to commit crimes within or outside of the District.

(a) If two or more persons conspire either to commit a criminal offense or to defraud the District of Columbia or any court or agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, each shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both, except that if the object of the conspiracy is a criminal offense punishable by less than five years, the maximum penalty for the conspiracy shall not exceed the maximum penalty provided for that offense.

(b) No person may be convicted of conspiracy unless an overt act is alleged and proved to have been committed by one of the conspirators pursuant to the conspiracy and to effect its purpose.

(c) When the object of a conspiracy contrived within the District of Columbia is to engage in conduct in a jurisdiction outside the District of Columbia which would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia if performed therein, the conspiracy is a violation of this section if (1) such conduct would also constitute a crime under the laws of the other jurisdiction if performed therein, or (2) such conduct would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress exclusively applicable to the District of Columbia even if performed outside the District of Columbia.

(d) A conspiracy contrived in another jurisdiction to engage in conduct within the District of Columbia which would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress exclusively applicable to the District of Columbia if performed within the District of Columbia is a violation of this section when an overt act pursuant to the conspiracy is committed within the District of Columbia. Under such circumstances, it is immaterial and no defense to a prosecution for conspiracy that the conduct which is the object of the conspiracy would not constitute a crime under the laws of the other jurisdiction. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 908 A; as added July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 202, title II, 84 Stat. 599.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 11-101.

§ 22-106. Accessories after the fact.

Whoever shall be convicted of being an accessory after the fact to any crime punishable by death shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twenty years. Whoever shall be convicted of being accessory after the fact to any crime punishable by imprisonment shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment, or both, as the case may be, not more than one-half the maximum fine or imprisonment, or both, to which the principal offender may be subjected. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 909.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accessory after the fact

Where apartment dweller, who had fled scene of fatal shooting with defendant, attempted to impede police search of her apartment for defendant, her actions provided grounds for her arrest as an accessory after the fact. United States v. C. R. Honesty (1971, 459 F. 2d 1279, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

Defendant could be convicted as accessory after fact, even though he was present before, during and after crime. J. S. Smith v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 286, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 126).

Instructions

Instruction, in prosecution for burglary and petty larceny, pursuant to request for clarification of aiding and abetting, that if B came out of bank and said "I have just robbed it, I have the sack full of money, let's go," and then B got into A's automobile and A took off and ran knowing that crime had been committed, and helped in the escape, he could be liable, is reversibly erroneous since the indictment did not charge defendant with being accessory after the fact and since the jury returned with guilty verdict less than fifteen minutes after being given such instruction. United States v. M. F. Irving (1970, 437 F. 2d 649, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 216).

Miranda warning

Where police entry into apartment of female, who had left scene of fatal shooting with defendant, was in pursuit of defendant and when police arrived at apartment female was neither accused nor suspected of having committed any substantive crime and it was only after she attempted to impede search that she was arrested as an accessory after the fact, any failure to administer warning of right to counsel and right to remain silent immediately on entering did not make any of her statements or actions prior to arrest inadmissible. United States v. C. R. Honesty (1971, 459 F. 2d 1279, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

Severance

Female, charged with being an accessory after the fact to crime of assault with dangerous weapon, was not improperly denied trial separate from defendant, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a dangerous weapon, where trial judge diligently exercised his responsibility to keep the evidence and issues separated, both during trial and in his instructions. United States v. C. R. Honesty (1971, 459 F. 2d 1279, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

§ 22-107. Punishment for offenses not covered by provisions of code.

Whoever shall be convicted of any criminal offense not covered by the provisions of any section of this code, or of any general law of the United States not locally inapplicable in the District of Columbia, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 910.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

"This section obviously was enacted to cover offenses not embraced in any other section of the District Code or of any general law of the United States not locally inapplicable. It was enacted out of abundant caution, and to cover any offense for which no other provision had been made. * * * A prosecution under this section, when the facts show that the offense is covered by some specific statute, is clearly unauthorized. In other words, this section was intended to supplement, and not supersede or modify, specific statutory provisions." Fletcher v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 53, certiorari denied 35 S. Ct. 283, 235 U.S. 706, 59 L. Ed. 434).

Conspiracy

Defendant convicted of common-law conspiracy was properly sentenced under this section, for no overt act being charged, the indictment was not under § 37 of the federal penal code, 18 U.S.C. § 371, and the rule that there are no common-law offenses against the United States is not applicable in the District of Columbia. Harrison v. Moyer (D.C. Ga. 1915, 224 F. 224).

Disorderly house

Offense of keeping a disorderly house being punishable under this section of the Code by imprisonment, its prosecution is exclusively within jurisdiction of the District Court, and a conviction therefor in the police court is void. Palmer v. Lenovitz (1910, 35 App. D.C. 303).

Negligent escape

Under this section prescribing fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years or both as punishment for any offense not specifically covered by statute, conviction of negligent escape, punishment for which is not specifically prescribed, invokes the punishment of a felony, although it was apparently classified as a misdemeanor at common law. United States v. Davis (1948, 167 F. 2d 228, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 99, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1501, 334 U.S. 849, 92 L. Ed. 1772).

§ 22-108. Offenses committed beyond District of Columbia.

Any person who by the commission outside of the District of Columbia of any act which, if committed within the District of Columbia, would be a criminal offense under the laws of said District, thereby obtains any property or other thing of value, and is afterwards found with any such property or other such thing of value in his possession in said District, or who brings any such property or other such thing of value into said District, shall, upon conviction, be punished in the same manner as if said act had been committed wholly within said District. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 836a, as added Dec. 21, 1911, 37 Stat. 45, ch. 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Stolen goods

District Court for the District of Columbia has jurisdiction of case involving conspiracy to bring stolen stock into the District, as such court is a District Court of the United States. Arnstein v. United States (1924, 296 F. 946, 54 App. D.C. 199, certiorari denied 44 S. Ct. 454, 264 U.S. 595, 68 L. Ed. 867).

§ 22-109. Prosecutions.

All prosecutions for violations of section 22-1121 or any of the provisions of any of the laws or ordinances provided for by this Act shall be conducted in the name of and for the benefit of the District of Columbia, and in the same manner as provided by law for the prosecution of offenses against the laws and ordinances of the said District. Any person convicted of any violation of section 22-1121 or any of the provisions of this Act, and who shall fail to pay the fine or penalty imposed, or to give security where the same is required, shall be committed to the workhouse of the District of Columbia for a term not exceeding six months for each and every offense. The second sentence of this section shall not apply with respect to any violation of section 22-1112 (b). (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 18; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 93, 98, ch. 159, §§ 202 (a) (2), 211 (b).)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

This Act, referred to in the text, refers to act July 29, 1892. Existing provisions of act July 29, 1892, are classified to sections 4-120, 22-109, 22-1107 to 22-1110, 22-1112 to 22-1114, 22-1117, 22-1118 and 22-3110 to 22-3113. Provisions of section 7 of act July 29, 1892, were repealed by act Aug. 15, 1935, 49 Stat. 652, ch. 546, § 4, and are now covered by section 22-2701. Provisions of section 8 of act July 29, 1892, were repealed by act Dec. 17, 1941, 55 Stat. 810, ch. 589, § 5, and are now covered by sections 22-3302 and 22-3304. Provisions of section 12 of act July 29, 1892, prohibited the fast riding and driving of any animal of the horse kind and imposed a maximum penalty of twenty-five dollars for violation thereof and were superseded by act June 29, 1906, 34 Stat. 621, ch. 3615, § 1, which was repealed by act Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1125, ch. 443, § 16(a).

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, added the last sentence which excepted application of the section to a violation of section 22-1112 (b) and inserted references to section 22-1121 in two instances, respectively.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Information—Sufficiency

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Prosecution by Corporation Counsel

Office of Corporation Counsel did not lack jurisdiction to prosecute for violations of disorderly conduct statute on ground that prosecution of offenses punishable by fine and imprisonment must be conducted by the United States Attorney, since the statute relating to prosecutions by United States Attorney specifically excepts prosecutions under disorderly conduct statute from operation of such rule. D. Feeley, A. Uhrig, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

The disorderly conduct statute and statute providing that all prosecutions for a violation of disorderly conduct statute shall be conducted in name of and for benefit of District of Columbia and in same manner as provided by law for prosecution of offenses against laws and ordinances of the District must be read together. Id.

Informations charging disorderly conduct were properly prosecuted by the Corporation Counsel on behalf of the District of Columbia even though the informations charged an offense punishable by a fine or by imprisonment, or both. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Chapter 2.—ABORTION*Sec.

22-201 Definition and penalty.

§ 22-201. Definition and penalty.

Whoever, by means of any instrument, medicine, drug or other means whatever, procures or produces, or attempts to procure or produce an abortion or miscarriage on any woman, unless the same were done as necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health and under the direction of a competent licensed practitioner of medicine, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year or not more than ten years; or if the death of the mother results therefrom, the person procuring or producing, or attempting to procure or produce the abortion or miscarriage shall be guilty of second degree murder. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 809; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 93, ch. 159, § 203.)

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, provided for a penalty of imprisonment for from one to ten years in lieu of the previous provision of "not more than five years" and that in the event of death, the person procuring the abortion would be guilty of second degree murder whereas the previous provision was for imprisonment of from three to twenty years.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11-502.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempt

Crime as denounced by this section and charged by the indictment does not necessarily contemplate an actual miscarriage by the woman, but is complete when an attempt to procure a miscarriage by such means is made, regardless of whether it results in an actual miscarriage of the pregnant woman or not. Crichton v. United States (1937, 92 F. 2d 224, 67 App. D.C. 300, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 22, 302 U.S. 707, 82 L. Ed. 542).

Burden of proof

In a prosecution under this section, the burden is on the prosecution to plead and prove that abortion was not necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health. United States v. M. Vuitch (1971, 91 S. Ct. 1294, 402 U.S. 62).

In abortion prosecution brought under this section and containing exception in case abortion is performed to preserve life or health, the burden of proving that act was justified on therapeutic grounds was on defendants and the prosecution was not required as part of its case to negative application of the exception. Williams v. United States (1943, 138 F. 2d 81, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 147, 153 A.L.R. 1213).

Civil contempt

Civil contempt proceeding for alleged violation of preliminary injunction requiring D.C. General Hospital to comply with hospital's own regulations concerning grounds for performing abortions and to end practice of limiting abortions performed to protect woman's mental health to those patients who could establish history of mental illness predating pregnancy will be remanded to district court since that court presently has before it the merits of the litigation and a full evidentiary hearing would be necessary to fashion adequate safeguards to prevent recurrent violations of injunction. M. Doe et al. v. General Hospital of the District of Columbia et al. (1970, 434 F. 2d 427, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Congressional police power

Congress has the police power to outlaw abortions that are not performed under a qualified licensed practitioner of medicine. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032; rev'd and rem'd 91 S. Ct. 1249, 402 U.S. 62).

Constitutionality

Provisions in this section making the inducing of an abortion a felony unless it is done as necessary for preservation of mother's life or health, is invalid for failure to give that certainty which due process of law considers essential in criminal statute and for impinging to an appreciable extent on significant constitutional rights of individuals. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032; rev'd and rem'd 91 S. Ct. 1249, 402 U.S. 62).

Construction

Under this section prohibiting abortions unless "necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health," abortion is permitted for mental health reasons whether or not the patient has previous history of mental defects. United States v. M. Vuitch (1971, 91 S. Ct. 1294, 402 U.S. 62).

Within this section, "health" is the state of being sound in body or mind and includes psychological as well as physical well-being. Id.

This section, as properly construed, is not unconstitutionally vague. Id.

In the case, the court held that neither this section nor the rules and regulations governing therapeutic abortions at general hospital of district precludes D.C. General Hospital from making available its facilities for performance of therapeutic abortions for mental health reasons whether or not patient has had previous history of mental defects. M. Doe et al. v. General Hospital of the District of Columbia et al. (1970, 313 F. Supp. 1170).

Corroboration

Testimony of physician and detective as to statements which were made to them by prosecuting witness while in hospital after alleged attempted abortion and which were consistent with her trial testimony was relevant and proper to evaluation of credibility of prosecuting witness which had been attacked by defense counsel in cross-examination relating to prior inconsistent statements and to evaluation of her motive for making prior consistent statements, her motive having been put in issue by the defense. C. A. Copes v. United States (1964, 345 F. 2d 723, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

Criminal Contempt

Where trial judge in abortion prosecution permitted himself to become personally embroiled with defense counsel throughout trial and made statement to jury indicating his hostility toward counsel, trial judge, instead of finding counsel guilty of criminal contempt and imposing punishment, should have invited the Chief Judge of the District Court to assign another judge to sit in hearing of charge against counsel. Offutt v. United States (1954, 75 S. Ct. 11, 348 U.S. 11, 99 L. Ed. 11).

Direct appeal to Supreme Court

Appeal lay directly to the Supreme Court under the Criminal Appeals Act (18 U.S.C. 3731) from district court judgment dismissing indictment on ground that this section, on which the indictment was based, was unconstitutionally vague, though such section applies only to the District, as such section was duly enacted by both Houses of Congress and signed by the President, and thus is a "statute" within the meaning of such Act. United States v. M. Vuitch (1971, 91 S. Ct. 1294, 402 U.S. 62).

Equal protection of the laws

Principles of equal protection under our Constitution require that abortion policies in public hospitals be liberalized and it is legally proper that uniform medical abortion services be provided to all segments of the population, the poor as well as the rich. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032; rev'd and rem'd 91 S. Ct. 1249, 402 U.S. 62).

Evidence

In abortion prosecution of physician, wherein physician admitted treating complaining witness at time and place alleged by her and in manner described by her, but claimed that the treatment was not designed to cause an abortion, trial court properly permitted introduction of the testimony of two other women that physician agreed to and did perform an abortion on each in substantially the same manner as described by the complaining witness about the same time as the alleged abortion testified to by the complaining witness. Harper v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 945, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 324).

It was not error to admit evidence concerning three treatments by defendant when only one was charged in the indictment, as the three treatments, taken together, and their joint result, constituted the crime with which the defendant was charged. Harrod v. United States (1929, 29 F. 2d 454, 58 App. D.C. 254).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction. Harrod v. United States (1929, 29 F. 2d 454, 58 App. D.C. 254). See, also, Hart v. United States (1939, 105 F. 2d 792, 70 App. D.C. 269).

Evidence supported conviction of criminal abortion as against defendant's claim that there was no evidence that the crime had been committed in the District of Columbia. Miller v. United States (1948, 169 F. 2d 967, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 367).

Indictment

The preservation of life or health provisions in this section forbidding the prescribing or administering of medicine, drug or other substance or use of instrument to procure miscarriage unless when necessary to preserve woman's life or health and under direction of competent licensed medical practitioner are intended to furnish the defense an opportunity for justification and are not part of description of offense required to be alleged or proved by prosecution. Peckham v. United States (1954, 210 F. 2d 693, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 136).

Instructions

Failure to instruct jury that testimony of physician and detective as to statements which were made to them by prosecuting witness while in hospital after alleged attempted abortion and which were consistent with her trial testimony should be considered only as bearing on her credibility as witness and not as proof of defendant's guilt was not error, in view of instructions as whole and fact that point as to witness' credibility was extensively argued in summations. C. A. Copes v. United States (1964, 345 F. 2d 723, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

In prosecution for using instruments upon and administering drugs to named woman, then pregnant, with intent to procure her miscarriage, charge of court that it was immaterial whether or not woman was pregnant, if at time defendant believed she was pregnant, was not erroneous. Peckham v. United States (1955, 226 F. 2d 34, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 312, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 195, 350 U.S. 912, 100 L. Ed. 800, rehearing denied 76 S. Ct. 341, 350 U.S. 955, 100 L. Ed. 831).

Instruction on necessity of finding guilt beyond reasonable doubt and instruction requiring government to establish that defendant prescribed or administered a medicine, drug or other substance or used on the woman some instrument or means, that she was pregnant at the time and that defendant did the act with intent to procure a miscarriage adequately defined all essential elements of crime of abortion and adequately instructed jury as to necessity of proof beyond reasonable doubt that complaining witness was pregnant and that defendant did some act or administered some treatment or drug with intent to procure an abortion. Peckham v. United States (1954, 210 F. 2d 693, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 136).

In prosecution for abortion in May 1951, and in January 1952, instruction that witness who testified that he had assisted in arranging and furthering the first alleged abortion must be deemed an accomplice and that his testimony should be received with care and scrutinized with caution was not erroneous as carrying inference that defendant was guilty. Id.

Fact that disproportionate amount of charge was devoted to outlining Government's side of case in connection with second count of indictment alleging abortion as to which the defense won acquittal did not require reversal of conviction on first count alleging abortion on different date where defense of such first count consisted almost entirely of case as outlined in the charge. Id.

License, revocation of

District of Columbia Code provision authorizing revocation of license of person convicted in United States District Court for the District of Columbia of any felony, without further hearing or procedure, provides an additional remedy for revocation of license and did not preclude resort to action in equity by Commission on License to Practice the Healing Art for revocation of license under statute authorizing same in case of misconduct. Ladrey v. Commission on Licensure, etc. (1958, 261 F. 2d 68, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 239, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 288, 358 U.S. 920, 3 L. Ed. 2d 239, rehearing denied 79 S. Ct. 351, 358 U.S. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 353).

Under District of Columbia Code permitting revocation of license because of misconduct after institution of action in United States District Court for the District of Columbia sitting as a court of equity, where complaint charged in words of criminal statute that physician had performed an abortion physician could not contend that the word "misconduct" was too vague and indefinite to meet requirements of due process. Id.

Under statute authorizing District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia sitting as a court of equity to suspend license upon evidence showing that licentiate has been guilty of misconduct, licentiate has available to him full protection of rules and "misconduct" as a ground for suspension or revocation is not left as a matter of opinion but is susceptible to complete exposition under rules and requires proof as a matter of fact accordingly. Id.

Prejudicial error

In prosecution for abortion, excessive injection of trial judge into examination of witnesses and judge's numerous comments to defense counsel, indicating at times hostility, though under provocation, demonstrated a bias and lack of impartiality which may well have influenced the jury and required reversal of conviction. Peckham v. United States (1954, 210 F. 2d 693, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 136).

In prosecution for abortion on two counts, refusal to allow defense counsel to examine whole file of hospital records of doctor who examined prosecuting witness at hospital and who used a part of file to refresh his recollection and who expressed opinion as to induced abortion relating only to second count of which defendant was acquitted was not prejudicial error. Id.

Sentence

Where defendant was indicted on two charges and plead guilty to both, and the court inadvertently pronounced the sentences to run concurrently, the court had power to amend the sentences to run consecutively where defendant was still in the custody of the officers of the court. Rouley v. Welch (1940, 114 F. 2d 499, 72 App. D.C. 351).

Severability of statute

The valid provision of this section outlawing abortions except when performed under the direction of competent physician is severable from invalid provision prohibiting abortion unless it is done as necessary for preservation of mother's life or health and entire statute is not invalid. United States v. M. Vutch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032; rev'd and rem'd 91 S. Ct. 1249, 402 U.S. 62).

Woman not accomplice

"This section applies to the person or persons committing the act which produces the miscarriage, and not to the person upon whom it is committed, notwithstanding it may be done with her knowledge and consent. Not being liable to indictment thereunder, she is not an accomplice in the legal sense." Marey v. United States (1907, 30 App. D.C. 63). See, also, Thompson v. United States (1908, 30 App. D.C. 352), 12 Ann. Cas. 1004).

Chapter 3.—ADULTERY

Sec.

22-301. Definition and penalty.

§ 22-301. Definition and penalty.

Whoever commits adultery in the District shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both; and when the act is committed between a married woman and a man who is unmarried both parties to such act shall be deemed guilty of adultery; and when such act is committed between a married man and a woman who is unmarried, the man only shall be deemed guilty of adultery. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 874.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Credibility of testimony

Where two women who later became witnesses for prosecution first told police sergeant they knew nothing about the case and gave unsworn statements to that effect but later each gave a second statement in which full story was told, after which sergeant destroyed first statements in belief that they had become valueless, officer's act in destroying first statement did not afford basis for instruction that jury might disregard all or any portion of officer's testimony. Miller v. United States (1948, 169 F. 2d 967, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 367).

Where two women who testified as witnesses for prosecution did not admit having falsified as to any issue but merely stated that they had first refrained from giving any information because they did not want to become publicly involved in a scandalous situation, defendant was not entitled to an instruction requiring jury to give careful scrutiny to testimony of the two women on ground that they had admitted swearing falsely. Id.

Indictment

Two charges of adultery with the same person may be joined under R.S. § 1024, now covered by Fed. Rules Cr. Proc. rules 8, 13, 14, 18 U.S.C. App. Kleindienst v. United States (1918, 48 App. D.C. 190).

Law governing

One convicted of adultery should be sentenced under this section and not under section 316 of the Penal Code (18 U.S.C. § 516). Kleindienst v. United States (1918, 48 App. D.C. 190).

On an indictment for adultery which under the District Code is a misdemeanor and under the Federal Penal Code a felony, the accused on his conviction should be sentenced under the former and not the latter O'Brien v. United States (1938, 99 F. 2d 368, 69 App. D.C. 135, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 95, 305 U.S. 562, 83 L. Ed. 354).

Proof

When indictment charges two specific acts of adultery, and the proof shows "repeated offenses of adultery" extending over a period of more than a year, it is error to refuse to require the government to specify, at the close of its case, the specific acts for which the government asks a conviction. Kleindienst v. United States (1918, 48 App. D.C. 190).

Unmarried woman

If committed by her while unmarried, the act would not have been indictable; but such act would have been indictable if committed by her while married. O'Neil v. O'Neil (1924, 299 F. 914, 55 App. D.C. 40).

Chapter 4.—ARSON

Sec.

22-401. Definition and penalty.

22-402. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.

22-403. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

22-404. Malicious burning of fences, woods, crops.

§ 22-401. Definition and penalty.

Whoever shall maliciously burn or attempt to burn any dwelling, or house, barn, or stable adjoining thereto, or any store, barn, or outhouse, or any shop, office, stable, store, warehouse, or any other building, or any steamboat, vessel, canal boat, or other watercraft, or any railroad car, the property, in whole or in part, of another person, or any church, meetinghouse, schoolhouse, or any of the public buildings in the District, belonging to the United States or to the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 820.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-2401, 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for house-breaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Evidence

In arson and murder prosecution, evidence was sufficient to establish that victim's death had been caused by the fire in house in which her body was found. Green v. United States (1955, 218 F. 2d 856, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 45).

Evidence sustained conviction for arson committed by malicious burning of building of another. Lichtenwalter v. United States (1951, 190 F. 2d 36, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 187).

— Admissibility

Where officer responding to trouble call was met by defendant and third person who told officer that defendant had set fire and officer asked defendant whether it was true, defendant accepted blame and responded affirmatively to officer's question whether he had set fire, defendant's responses were admissible despite lack of Miranda warnings, defendant not having been in custody or suspected or arrested or otherwise deprived of his freedom of action in any significant way. United States v. B. E. Barnes (1972, 464 F. 2d 828, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 319; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1514, 410 U.S. 986).

Indictment

Counts are properly joined in the same indictment which charge defendant with setting fire to his own property and with attempt to burn another person's property. Posey v. United States (1905, 26 App. D. C. 302).

Part owner

One burning a dwelling-house occupied in part by him and in part by another, with intent to defraud an insurance company, is guilty of arson. Posey v. United States (1905, 26 App. D. C. 302).

Review

Errors in trial of charge of arson require reversal. Parlton v. United States (1896, 75 F. 2d 772, 64 App. D.C. 169).

Tenant

"It is not to be presumed that Congress intended to exempt from liability a tenant who should maliciously burn, or attempt to burn, a building belonging to another though temporarily occupied by him" Posey v. United States (1905, 26 App. D. C. 302).

§ 22-402. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.

Whoever maliciously burns or sets fire to any dwelling, shop, barn, stable, store, or warehouse or other building, or any steamboat, vessel, canal boat, or other watercraft, or any goods, wares, or merchandise, the same being his own property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud or injure any other person, shall be imprisoned for not more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 821.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-2401, 23-546.

§ 22-403. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

Whoever maliciously injures or breaks or destroys, or attempts to injure or break or destroy, by fire or otherwise, any public or private property, whether real or personal, not his own, of the value of $200 or more, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or shall be imprisoned for not more than ten years, or both, and if the value of the property be less than $200 shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 848; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599; Nov. 8, 1965, 79 Stat. 1307, Pub. L. 89-347, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1965—Section 1 of act Nov. 8, 1965, amended section. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment see 1961 edition of the code.

1937—Act Aug. 12, 1937, substituted $50 for $35 in two instances.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest without warrant

Police officer may arrest without a warrant for misdemeanor of destroying private property only when that crime is committed, or attempt is made to commit it, in his presence or view. S. Smith and W. Jeffries v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 293).

Officer had probable cause to arrest defendant who had been observed tearing up back seat of automobile which he admitted was not his on charge of destroying private property. Id.

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for house-breaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Evidence—Admissibility

In prosecution for malicious burning of another's property, record sustained trial court's ruling that defendant had failed to prove unnecessary delay in presentment to committing magistrate or that unnecessary delay had induced confession, and confession was properly admitted. Gladys M. Tillotson v. United States (1956, 231 F. 2d 736, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 402, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 1055, 351 U. S. 989, 100 L. Ed. 1502).

— Sufficiency

Evidence showing, among things, that the defendant, who had had an altercation with tavern owner, was found behind tavern with bottle full of gasoline and a book of matches with the cover torn off, is sufficient to present a jury issue as to whether the defendant was guilty of attempted destruction of property. R. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 212).

Evidence that the defendant and his companion were the only people in hall near apartment when witness alighted from elevator after hearing suspicious noises, that door to witness' apartment had large hole in it, and that defendant's companion dropped screwdriver while being followed is sufficient to support conclusion of guilt beyond reasonable doubt of attempted burglary II and destruction of property. W. W. Hopkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 274 A. 2d 418).

Evidence, including testimony identifying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

Possession by defendant of stolen television set, in alley at rear of store which was broken into and from which television set was taken, within a few minutes after the breaking of window and theft was sufficient evidence from which the trial court could infer breaking of the window, as predicate for conviction for destroying property. F. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 652).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 63).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for house-breaking, larceny and destroying movable property. Braddy v. United States (1955, 225 F. 2d 551, 96 U. S. App. D. C. 251).

Indictment

Quaere: Whether prosecution can be in the name of the District of Columbia, if value of property is more than $35, not decided by appellate court, but it did say, it is very doubtful under Code of 1929, title 6, § 351 (§ 23-101) which provides that prosecutions of "all penal regulations, where the maximum punishment is a fine only or imprisonment not exceeding one year, shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia, and by the city solicitor or his assistants." Nation v. District of Columbia (1910, 34 App. D.C. 453, 26 L.R.A., N.S., 996).

Indictment or information must allege value of property injured. Id.

Inference of malice

Malice in damaging of right front vent of automobile window could be inferred from intentional wrongdoing and value of property could be inferred from evidence respecting its useful, functional purpose. F. L. Paige v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 759).

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Prejudicial error

In prosecution for housebreaking, larceny and destruction of property, wherein one defendant was permitted to change his plea in open court and in presence of jury and was asked by trial judge whether he admitted committing offense and replied that he did admit being with "them," there was error which, in view of circumstantial and inconclusive nature of evidence, would require reversal of another defendant's conviction. Gaynor v. United States (1957, 247 F. 2d 583, 101 U. S. App. D. C. 177).

Sentences

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course of conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Action of trial court, taken while appeal was pending, in purportedly granting motion to correct sentence by making one-year sentence for petit larceny and six-month sentence for destroying property run concurrently rather than consecutively was beyond the court's power at that time and order purporting to reduce sentence would be vacated without prejudice to reentry if subsequently deemed appropriate. Id.

In this case the court held that since the District of Columbia Code expressly limits maximum prison sentence for attempted burglary to one year and crimes of attempted second-degree burglary and malicious destruction of property are offenses against same societal interest and since there was nothing to show that offenses were animated by different criminal intents, defendant's convictions for attempted second-degree burglary and for malicious destruction of property with respective consecutive sentences of one year and six months are not appropriate case for cumulative punishment and case would be remanded for resentencing. M. A. Johnson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 780).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Supersedeance

Insofar as § 22-3112 may have applied to movable property, it has been superseded by this section. Nation v. District of Columbia (1910, 34 App. D.C. 453, 26 L.R.A., N.S., 996).

§ 22-404. Malicious burning of fences, woods, crops.

Whoever shall maliciously burn or set fire to any fences, woods, stacks of hay, grain, or straw, or growing crops, the property, in whole or in part, of another, shall be imprisoned for not more than thirty days or be fined not more than five hundred dollars. or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 822.)

Chapter 5.—ASSAULT — MAYHEM — THREAT OF BODILY HARM

Sec.

- 22-501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.
- 22-502. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.
- 22-503. Assault with intent to commit any other offense.
- 22-504. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.
- 22-505. Assault on member of police force or fire department.
- 22-506. Mayhem or maliciously disfiguring.
- 22-507. Threats to do bodily harm.
- 22-508. Penalty for assaulting, beating, or fighting on account of money won by gaming.

§ 22-501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.

Every person convicted of any assault with intent to kill or to commit rape, or to commit robbery, or mingling poison with food, drink, or medicine with intent to kill, or wilfully poisoning any well, spring, or cistern of water, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not less than two years or more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 803; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 601, title VI, 81 Stat. 736.)

AMENDMENT

1967—Section 601, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, amended section by inserting after "for not" the words "less than two years or".

SENTENCE FOR OFFENSES COMMITTED PRIOR TO DEC. 27, 1967

Section 1101, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, provided: Whoever, prior to the date of enactment of this Act [Pub. L. 90-226] commits any act or engages in any conduct which constitutes an offense under provision of law amended by this Act, [Amendments of sections, 4-140, 15-714, 15-716, 22-501, 22-703, 22-1513, 22-1801, 22-2001, 22-2901, 22-3105, 22-3201, 22-3202, 23-610, 23-901, 23-903, 24-301 and enactments of sections 4-140a, 4-150a and 22-1122, and amendments of 18 U.S.C. 4122, 5024 and 5025] shall be sentenced in accordance with the law in effect on the date he commits such acts or engages in such conduct.

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, provided:

If any provision of or any amendment made by this Act [Pub. L. 90-226; for provisions and amendments made by this Act, see enumeration in note above under heading, "Sentence for offenses committed prior to Dec. 27, 1967."] or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the other provisions of or other amendments made by this Act and the application of such provisions and amendments to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of prior convictions

Permitting introduction of theft conviction and attempted larceny by trick conviction as to defendant who had been convicted on some 7 prior occasions and permitting introduction of evidence of narcotics conviction as to defendant who acknowledged some 17 earlier convictions was not error in prosecution in which both defendants elected not to testify. C. W. Payne and H. Blue v. United States (1968, 392 F. 2d 820, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Assistance of counsel

Where defendant charged with assault of an indecent character on young lady in theatre was arrested at 12:15 a.m., on May 27, his counsel was retained for him at 10:20 that morning, counsel had no opportunity to consult with defendant, investigate charge, or otherwise prepare for trial and case was called for trial at 10:30, defendant was deprived of his right to effective assistance of counsel. Creed v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A. 2d 676).

Construction

Section 22-2801 dispensing with element of "forcibly" in cases involving rape of child under 16 years of age would be read to apply in prosecution for assault with intent to rape where the victim although 27 years of age had mind of child of about 7 years old. United States v. A. S. Medley (1971, 452 F. 2d 1325, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Corroboration

In prosecution for assault with intent to rape, corroboration of accused's intent to achieve carnal knowledge with force and against the consent of the victim may be established by circumstantial evidence when victim is incompetent to testify. United States v. A. S. Medley (1971, 452 F. 2d 1325, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, complainant's dress with torn shoulder strap offered enough independent corroboration of complainant's account to avoid requirement that verdict be directed for defendant. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Without corroboration of testimony of eleven-year-old prosecutrix as to defendant's alleged attempts to kiss prosecutrix, his exposure of himself and his attempts to remove her clothing, corpus delicti of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge was not established. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Elements of assault

Assault with intent to rape is established by use of and intent to use some physical force for the purpose of achieving sexual gratification, but requires an intent to persist in such force even in the face of and for purpose of overcoming victim's resistance. United States v. E. L. Huff (1971, 442 F. 2d 885, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

The essential elements of an assault with intent to commit rape, each of which government must prove beyond reasonable doubt, are: (1) that defendant made an assault upon complainant; (2) that he did so with specific intent to have intercourse with the complainant; and (3) that he intended to achieve penetration of complainant's sexual organ against her will and by using such force or threat of force as might be necessary to overcome resistance or make further resistance useless. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Absent an element of intended force, an assault with intent to have sexual intercourse is not an assault with intent to commit rape. Id.

The material elements of an assault with intent to commit rape are an assault, an intent to have carnal knowledge of a female, and a purpose to carry into effect this intent with force and against consent of the female unless intended victim is child under age of 16, in which case intent to use force need not be alleged or proved. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Evidence—Admissibility

Spectrograms or voiceprints identifying one of the defendants as maker of telephone call to which police officer was responding when shot is admissible in evidence. United States v. A. Raymond et ano. (1972, 337 F. Supp. 641).

Case in which it is sought to introduce voiceprints presents a situation wherein due to scientific nature of evidence proffered expert testimony is necessarily admissible. Id.

Where defendant took stand and admitted his presence at scene of crime, but he denied participation, and prosecutor then cross-examined him as to certain admissions he purportedly had made to police officer at receiving home for juveniles, and defendant denied making any admissions, and government on rebuttal called police officer who testified as to alleged admissions, defense objections to those parts of officer's testimony involving indispensable elements of crime charged should have been sustained. R. R. Brown v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 543, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

In prosecution for assault on a girl three years and eight months of age, the mother's testimony repeating the child's story to mother more than three hours after the alleged occurrence was hearsay and was not within doctrine of spontaneous statements. Brown v. United States (1946, 152 F. 2d 138, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 270).

In prosecution for assault on a girl three years and eight months of age, testimony of police officers regarding what the child had said a day or two after the alleged assault and an officer's belief as to what defendant had done was inadmissible. Id.

—Sufficiency

Evidence in this case, including evidence of defendant's in-trial identification and testimonial references to pre-trial forerunners, sustained conviction for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon. United States v. T. McNair (1970, 433 F. 2d 1132, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 26).

Testimony that defendant carried a gun while walking over to victim, that he fired at victim and hit her while she was in front of her residence, and that he left without rendering any aid justified denial of motions for acquittal on charge of assault with intent to kill made at end of government's case and after all of the evidence; and this testimony together with testimony that defendant stated almost simultaneously with firing of the gun that he would kill victim was sufficient for jury to find beyond reasonable doubt that defendant was guilty of assault with intent to kill. United States v. W. Bridges (1970, 432 F. 2d 692, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

In a prosecution for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, the evidence sufficiently corroborated complainant's testimony that such offense had been committed. United States v. T. Terry (1970, 422 F. 2d 704, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

In a prosecution for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, the evidence sufficiently corroborated identification testimony of complainant. Id.

Testimony of complainant, in combination with other evidence, was sufficient to warrant submission of assault with intent to commit rape case to jury. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

In this case the court held that the identification testimony of victim and chief prosecution witness was sufficient to sustain conviction of assault with intent to kill and convictions of assault with a deadly weapon. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

In this case, the evidence was sufficient to support juvenile court's finding that juvenile participated as an aider and abettor in assault with intent to commit robbery on a school teacher. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

Evidence was sufficient to permit convictions under indictment charging robbery and assault with intent to commit robbery. J. Rogers and H. Waldon v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 223, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Evidence was sufficient to show requisite intent in prosecution for assault with intent to commit robbery. R. Oden v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 547, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit robbery, evidence on issue of defendant's sanity at time of commission of crime was sufficient to support conviction. Jordan v. United States (1955, 217 F. 2d 670, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

The evidence must show beyond reasonable doubt an assault, an intent to have carnal knowledge of a female, and a purpose to carry out the intent with force and against the will of the female, to make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape". Robinson v. United States (1943, 136 F. 2d 283, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 63).

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, evidence was sufficient for jury. Id.

To make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape," the evidence must show beyond a reasonable doubt an assault, and an intent to have carnal knowledge of the female and a purpose to carry into effect the intent with force and against the consent of the female. Hammond v. United States (1942, 127 F. 2d 752, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

Evidence that defendant went to the home of his mother-in-law, with whom his wife and baby were living, went to the bedroom of his 17-year-old sister-in-law, pulled off the covers and touched her private parts with his hand, that she awakened and screamed, and that defendant ran from the house was insufficient to sustain conviction for "assault with intent to commit rape." Id.

Former jeopardy protection

A jury which was specifically prohibited from considering a charge of taking indecent liberties with minor child if defendant were to be found guilty of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, and defendant was found guilty of the latter charge, its verdict of not guilty of the former charge was a nullity and did not clothe defendant with former jeopardy protection or preclude reviewing court from directing entry of judgment of guilty on indecent liberties charge upon finding that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Harmless error

In prosecution for assault with intent to kill while armed and carrying dangerous weapon, in view of overwhelming direct evidence timely placing the defendant at scene of crime and equivocal and unsupported nature of his own testimony concerning his whereabouts at time of offense, any emphasis by the court or his counsel on his more general defenses and any other claimed error were harmless beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. W. D. Craven (1972, 458 F. 2d 802, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 383).

Identification

In a prosecution under this section for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, trial court did not err in ruling that two impermissible identifications of defendant by complainant did not preclude complainant from making independent in-court identification based upon her observation of attacker at time of assault, since complainant was in close proximity to attacker for about 15 minutes on public street in broad daylight and in well-lighted room and since complainant gave police consistent description of attacker and had not wavered in her identification at any stage of proceeding. United States v. T. Terry (1970, 422 F. 2d 704, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

Identity of victim

It was not necessary to allege identity of person sought to be robbed where defendant was charged with assault to commit robbery, and such information, if desired by defendant, should have been sought by motion for a bill of particulars. S. E. Young v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 398, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 414).

Impartial jury

Presence on the jury, in prosecution of defendant for murder of his wife and assault of another man in connection with a love triangle situation, of a juror who, some 6 months before defendant's trial, apparently had had an affair with a woman who had been killed by her husband had such a strong tendency to deny defendant his constitutional right to a trial by 12 impartial jurors as to require new trial. J. R. Jackson v. United States (1968, 395 F. 2d 615, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Indictment

In an indictment for assault with intent to kill "it is not required that in the indictment it should be alleged and set forth with what means or instrument the killing was attempted to be perpetrated." Davis v. United States (1900, 16 App. D. C. 442). Otherwise, if attempt was by poisoning or drowning. Coratola v. United States (24 App. D. C. 229).

Insanity

A general verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity carried with it a finding that, except for the question as to his sanity, defendant was guilty as charged. Rucker v. United States (C.A.D.C. 1960, 280 F. 2d 623).

In prosecution for assault with intent to kill and possession of a rifle with intent to use it unlawfully against another, where the court found the defendant not guilty by reason of insanity and it did not appear that defendant actually understood and acquiesced that the question of his guilt was being tried in that it did not appear that he understood and acquiesced in what was being accomplished without witnesses or evidence and he protested promptly a few days after the verdict, the defendant was entitled to a new trial. Id.

Post-conviction change in standards with regard to defense of insanity did not entitle person tried and convicted under previous standard to reversal. Jordan v. United States (1955, 217 F. 2d 670, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 27).

Instructions

Where the defendant is not entitled to call witness to the stand because of intention of witness to claim privilege against self-incrimination, the defendant is entitled to request an instruction that the jury should draw no inference from the absence of the witness because he is not available to either side, this being appropriate as calculated to reduce danger that jury would, in fact, draw an inference from absence of witness who would corroborate the defendant's testimony. D. J. Bowles v. United States (1970, 439 F. 2d 536, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 26; cert. denied 91 S.Ct. 1240, 401 U.S. 995).

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, where independent corroboration evidence was minimal rather than strong, plain error in failing to instruct jury on its responsibility to determine whether there was corroborative evidence, which it credited, of all elements of the offense was prejudicial, and required reversal. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Where conviction for assault with intent to commit rape must be reversed for failure to instruct on need for corroboration of testimony of victim on elements of offense, trial court correctly instructed jury on elements of assault, and evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for assault, it was in interest of justice to avoid automatic requirement of new trial because of erroneous charge, and case would be remanded to district court with instructions either to grant new trial, or if prosecutor consented and court considered it in interest of justice, to enter judgment of assault. Id.

The phrase "specific intent to have sexual intercourse" in instruction on essential elements of assault with intent to commit rape was sufficiently meaningful to jury to avoid condemnation as plain error; the term without the word "specific" was clear enough, and addition of "specific" connoted a requirement of definiteness of intention which was the essence of the matter. Id.

Defendant was convicted of an assault on a female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge and with taking immoral, improper and indecent liberties with a female under age of 16, in violation of Miller Act, and the court should have given requested instruction that jury should consider count based on Miller Act only if they acquitted on the other count and, although failure to so instruct did not impair verdict under Miller Act, conviction for other offense must be set aside. H. C. Dozier v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 482, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Failure of court to instruct on simple assault as less offense under count charging taking immoral, improper, and indecent liberties with female under age of 16 furnished no basis for reversal, as jury was instructed on simple assault as less offense under count charging assault on female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge. Id.

Instruction on lesser included offense of simple assault was adequate in prosecution for assault with intent to commit robbery. R. Prather, D. Green and J. Green v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 551, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 211).

Considering instructions as a whole together with very strong evidence of guilt of defendant of housebreaking, assault with dangerous weapon, assault of police officer with dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to kill, and considering the fact that defendant was satisfied with instructions as given, errors in instructions did not affect substantial rights or otherwise require reversal. G. E. Nixon v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 316, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where defendant was charged with offense of assault upon female child with intent to commit carnal knowledge, trial court properly instructed jury that if it found defendant not guilty on count as charged, jury should then consider lesser included offense of taking improper and indecent liberties with a child. Younger Jr. v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 735, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Crimes of a revolting nature, especially where victim is a young child, arouse a strong feeling of disgust and hostility toward an accused, requiring court to exercise utmost care in giving its instructions to the end that justice may not miscarry. Brown v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 832).

Intent to rape

Physical facts may tend to establish essential corroboration of corpus delicti in prosecution for assault with intent to rape but in such a case there must be evidence, subject to such corroboration, that the accused sought to achieve carnal knowledge with force and against consent of the victim. United States v. A. S. Medley (1971, 452 F. 2d 1325, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

There is no intent to commit rape on the part of a defendant who intends to use the kind of "force" that is enough in his mind to test existence or persistence of complainant's true intentions, but not enough to achieve sexual intercourse if she "really" rejects him. There is no intent to commit rape. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

A defendant who handles a lady vigorously and with some force (against her will) is guilty of an indecent assault; but he does not have an intent to commit rape if his actions are taken in hope or expectation of thereby awakening desire, and with further intention of desisting if his approach does not arouse desire or lead to acquiescence, but rather encounters continued resistance. Id.

Where a defendant is charged with assault with intent to commit rape, intent may be inferred from his conduct. H. E. Higgins v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 396, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

To make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape", the evidence must show beyond a reasonable doubt (1) an assault, (2) an intent to have carnal knowledge of female, and (3) a purpose to carry into effect such intent with force and against consent of the female. W. A. Baber v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 390, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 358).

In prosecution for assault with intent to rape, defendant was entitled to directed verdict because of lack of evidence of purpose to carry into effect the intent to commit rape with force and against consent of victim. Id.

An assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge on a child is certainly the taking of indecent liberties with a child, but with intent of going beyond the liberties referred to in statute, and intent to commit carnal knowledge is to take indecent liberties plus an intent much more vicious, violent or aggravated. Younger Jr. v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 735, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Assault on a female under the age of 16 years, with intent to carnally know her, is punishable under this section as an assault with intent to rape. Sanselo v. United States (1916, 44 App. D. C. 508).

Judge's comments

Since defendant referred to the merits, on allocution, as a reason for clemency, judge's comment that prosecution witness testified he had seen defendant at scene of assault and comment, after defendant related that he had presented three witnesses, and that judge had a feeling some witnesses had been threatened, were at most a reference to the judge's view of credibility as an explanation of refusal to accord clemency and did not establish that the judge was referring to possibility of threats as additional offense heightening sentence. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

Jury trial—Waiver

In this case the court held that, on the record of appeal from conviction for assault with intent to kill and assault with dangerous weapon, the waiver of a jury trial was not shown to be involuntary. However, the passive nature of role played by trial court in inquiry as to defendant's understanding was subject to criticism on appeal. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

Lesser included offense

The crime of assault is a lesser included offense under assault with intent to commit rape. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

The crime of taking indecent liberties is a lesser included offense of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Motion for judgment of acquittal

To withstand a motion for judgment of acquittal of charge of assault with intent to have carnal knowledge, evidence need not exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than intent to have intercourse. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Plea of guilty

District judge did not abuse his discretion in refusing to permit withdrawal of guilty plea to count as to which defendant at hearing on motion to withdraw plea admitted his guilt since he had entered plea intelligently and voluntarily, with assistance of retained counsel, and candidly admitted all essential facts of crime in open court. C. D. Everett v. United States (1964, 336 F. 2d 979, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Presumptions

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape a legal presumption exists that defendant was innocent until proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Hammond v. United States (1942, 127 F. 2d 752, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

Question for jury

Whether defendant, who armed himself with a pistol following discovery of theft of tape deck from his automobile, who attempted to retrieve deck when companion discovered deck in service station and who shot and seriously wounded service station attendant following argument, had acted in self-defense was for jury. United States v. D. W. McCrae (1972, 459 F. 2d 1140, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Jury was justified in finding that assault with intent to commit robbery and robbery were not product of alleged mental disease of defendant, where psychiatrist testified that defendant was suffering from low grade mental illness predisposing to psychosis particularly when defendant was under influence of large amounts of alcohol, and evidence indicated that defendant was completely sober at time of alleged offenses. T. Hawkins v. United States (1962, 310 F. 2d 849, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

Review

Issues as to whether trial court erred in permitting prosecutor to impeach defendant with cross-examination respecting prior conviction of assault and in permitting prosecutor to impeach defense witness with cross-examination respecting her chastity would not be noticed for the first time on appeal from conviction for assault with intent to commit robbery. C. E. Green v. United States (1968, 397 F. 2d 643, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

The rule in criminal as in civil cases is that a basis for an assignment of error must be laid in the trial court, but the court will sometimes in the exercise of a sound discretion notice error in a criminal case where the question was not properly raised at the trial. Miller v. United States (1927, 19 F. 2d 702, 57 App. D.C. 228).

Reviewing court's authority

Where evidence does not sustain conviction of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge but was sufficient to establish all elements of taking indecent liberties with minor child, reviewing court in remanding with directions to enter judgment of guilty of taking indecent liberties would accord permission to trial judge to grant new trial if he should deem it to be in the best interest of justice. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Search and seizure

Where police had acted lawfully when they arrested the defendant in apartment of another and police had adequate grounds to fear that the defendant was armed and dangerous, police acted lawfully when they searched the defendant in the stairwell outside of the apartment and seized weapon from his person. D. J. Bowles v. United States (1970, 439 F. 2d 536, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 26; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1240, 401 U.S. 995).

Sentence

Facts of this case, in which defendant convicted of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with dangerous weapon received general sentence of 5 to 15 years, which was maximum permitted for assault with intent to kill, but more than maximum limits in respect to other two counts of indictment, presented especially appealing case for careful and precise sentencing, and, though conviction is affirmed, sentence will be vacated and case remanded for resentencing. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

It was improper to impose consecutive sentences for assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to kill, where there was but one transaction. Ingram v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 872, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 334).

Doubt whether consecutive sentences should be imposed is to be resolved not only in favor of lenity, but in favor of rational and reasonable probabilities of legislative intent where such intent is left unclear. Id.

Defendant's motion, filed before expiration of minimum time of indeterminate sentence imposed by District Court on his conviction of rape, to correct later indeterminate sentence on his subsequent unrelated conviction of assault with intent to rape, will not be dismissed by Court of Appeals as premature, thereby relegating defendant to refiling identical motion in District Court, in view of statute and criminal procedure rule authorizing motion attacking sentence and correction of illegal sentence at any time. Hollaway v. United States (1951, 191 F. 2d 504, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Speedy trial

Where according to government 323 days of total delay in bringing defendant to trial were attributable to government mental hospital, 56 days to courts, 55 to defendant and 23 days for diverse reasons to government while the reason for 99 days of delay was unclear, and according to defendant 499 days of delay were attributable to government and 60 days to defendant, and in three instances case had to be continued for lack of any report from hospital relating to defendant's mental competence and in each instance motion was made for dismissal but ruling was postponed, conviction was reversed on appeal for denial of speedy trial. United States v. L. L. Dunn (1972, 459 F. 2d 1115, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Submission or resistance

An assault may be committed with a child irrespective of whether there is submission or resistance thereto. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

§ 22-502. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.

Every person convicted of an assault with intent to commit mayhem, or of an assault with a dangerous weapon, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321. ch. 854, § 804.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Possession of firearm, additional penalty, see §§ 22-3201, 22-3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Where names of alleged alibi witnesses were known on day of trial and alibi testimony of witnesses, in light of complainant's positive identification of his assailant, would not have produced defendant's acquittal, refusal of defendant's motion for new trial on basis of newly discovered evidence consisting of alibi witnesses was not an abuse of discretion. J. Williams v. United States (1972, 295 A. 2d 503).

The decision of the trial court, rendered after hearing on admissibility, that 1959 conviction of one defendant for housebreaking and larceny and 1962 conviction of another defendant for attempted housebreaking could be brought out on cross-examination in robbery prosecution unless either defendant could satisfy court that since conviction he had led legally blameless life, was not an abuse of discretion. United States v. J. L. Bailey et ano. (1970, 426 F. 2d 1236, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 242).

In a case where a juvenile had killed his father, and several witnesses had testified to juvenile's fear of his father, exclusion of testimony of juvenile's probation officer, that the juvenile had come to the officer several days before the shooting in order to seek his advice concerning the violent outbreaks of the father and that the officer had told the juvenile to contact police whenever such outbreaks occurred, was not an abuse of discretion and was not prejudicial since proffered evidence was cumulative and more remote than the evidence already admitted which dealt with juvenile's state of mind on the day in question. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion when it concluded that alleged molesting of defendant's son one month prior to charged assault was too attenuated to warrant reception in evidence, in prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon. T. M. Harley v. United States (1967, 377 F. 2d 172, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

Denial of prisoner's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty to charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on ground that he was not informed at time he entered his plea, that he could subsequently be prosecuted for murder if his victim died within year and a day of the shooting or that his plea could be used against him in such a prosecution, did not amount to an abuse of discretion. Davenport v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 882, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Allen charge

The Court of Appeals, in the exercise of its supervisory power, declared that in the future, in both criminal and civil cases, the American Bar Association standard, eliminating element of "Allen" charge advising that the minority jurors owe deference to the majority, would be adopted as guideline which charges on duty of jurors to consult open-mindedly with disposition to hearken to fellow-jurors and to agree when no violation of conscience is involved must abide, and that American Bar Association approved instruction would be adopted as the vehicle for informing juries of their responsibilities in event of disagreement, when a trial court decides to do so. United States v. A. C. Thomas (1971, 449 F. 2d 1177, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 101).

Submission of "Allen" charge, with certain statements added thereto, in prosecution for robbery and assault, is not reversible error since the defendants did not object to the charge as given, either initially or as part of the supplementary instructions, and court's formulation did not in either instance constitute plain error. United States v. J. Wilson (1971, 449 F. 2d 1005, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Appeal and error

Though prosecutor had both good faith and reasonable basis for supposing shotgun would be admitted in evidence, display of shotgun and two pistols from start of prosecution of defendant on one count of assault with a dangerous weapon and three counts of assaulting a member of police force with a dangerous weapon was improper; however, since the pistols were admitted in evidence and shotgun was more cumulative than prejudicially different and proof of guilt was overwhelming, the incident was not prejudicial to point of reversible error. United States v. R. D. Lewis (1970, 435 F. 2d 417, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 345).

Argument of counsel

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, district attorney's argument to jury that "front the testimony of the doctor, the wound was a serious one and if it had been an inch lower the defendant might be here for murder" was permissible on question whether the weapon, a razor blade, was a dangerous one and whether it was likely to produce death or great bodily harm. Josey v. United States (1943, 135 F. 2d 809, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Arrest

Where it is only 20 minutes after fatal shooting that police presented themselves at door of apartment occupied by female present at shooting, another person present at scene identified female as having left scene with suspect and, even though female protested entry, there was no evidence that police entry into apartment was forcible, search for and arrest of defendant in apartment was legal. United States v. C. R. Honesty (1971, 459 F. 2d 1279, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

Assistance of counsel

Where record indicated that the trial court was aware of defendant's long term dissatisfaction with his retained counsel, that defendant had sought to discharge counsel, that defendant had asked chief judge of District Court for counsel from legal aid agency and that defendant was a pauper seeking court-appointed counsel, but record did not reflect specifically what action was taken by District Court, case would be remanded to District Court to determine what action, if any, was taken by District Court on motion to discharge counsel of record and request for appointed counsel and whether defendant was prejudiced thereby. United States v. T. R. Thomas (1971, 450 F. 2d 1355, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Bifurcated trial

Refusal of trial court to grant bifurcated trial, sought on ground that defendant would defend on ground of want of criminal responsibility, was not reversible error where defense assured trial court that there was no defense on merits, and evidence to prove that defendant was one who robbed filling station was very strong. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, 421 F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Consecutive sentences

Provision in sentence for assault that it was "consecutive" to any sentence now being served does not invalidate sentence even though defendant, at time of sentence, was not serving any state or federal court sentence, but the "consecutive" language in the sentence is mere surplusage and of no effect. United States v. B. I. Nichols (1971, 440 F. 2d 222, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 194).

Sentencing of defendant, who was adjudged guilty on five counts of assaulting five individuals with a dangerous weapon and on one count of robbery from the person, to consecutive terms of imprisonment for robbery and assault is not error since assaults on four individuals, excluding assault charge relating to robbery victim, are separate offenses from robbery and defendant had prior felony conviction. G. Sutton, Jr. v. United States (1970, 434 F. 2d 462, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 188; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1676, 402 U.S. 988).

If additional punishment is to be meted out in armed robbery prosecution for use of a dangerous weapon, consecutive sentences for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon may be an inappropriate means to accomplish that result and more impregnable sentence may result if the offense is charged and sentenced under statute providing that robbery as crime of violence may be punished more severely when committed with a dangerous weapon and statute authorizing indeterminate sentence up to life for crimes of violence when committed with a dangerous weapon. Id.

It is proper to increase punishment where there have been convictions under the conventional robbery statute and under statute prohibiting assaults with a dangerous weapon by imposing consecutive sentences. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Defendant, who allegedly committed crime of assault with a dangerous weapon in parking lot of store or near door to store, and who allegedly committed a robbery in office of store could be given consecutive sentences upon being convicted for both crimes. Id.

Constitutional rights

Stops as well as arrests must satisfy the Fourth Amendment requirement of reasonable cause commensurate with extent of official intrusion, and if defendant challenges evidence as fruit of illegal seizure the government must come forward with specific and articulable facts which, taken together with rational inferences from those facts, reasonably warrant that intrusion. T. R. Young v. United States (1970, 435 F. 2d 405, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Construction

Statute providing that every person convicted of an assault with a dangerous weapon shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than ten years should not be construed to require that the weapon be used with a conscious purpose to inflict injury. Parker v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 1009, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Dangerous weapon

Throwing of sulphuric acid in person's face constitutes assault with dangerous weapon, within statute. M. B. Bishop v. United States (1965, 349 F. 2d 220, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Lye is a "dangerous weapon" within meaning of this section. Tatum v. United States (1940, 110 F. 2d 555, 71 App. D.C. 393).

Defenses

Since a specific intent to inflict serious injury with a weapon is not necessary under statute relating to assault with a dangerous weapon, drunkenness is no defense to such a charge. Parker v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 1009, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Double jeopardy

Policies of double jeopardy clause do not preclude the defendant, summarily punished for contempt of court arising out of the throwing of a water pitcher at prosecutor during trial for robbery, from being later prosecuted for assault with a dangerous weapon and assault on a federal officer in performance of his official duties as a result of the same act. United States v. R. Rollerson (1971, 449 F. 2d 1000, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 338).

In this case the court held that the record established that defendant, whose counsel never thought of nor discussed with him the possibility of a plea of double jeopardy in connection with prosecution for assault after defendant had been sentenced for contempt for having thrown ice-filled water pitcher at prosecuting attorney, did not deliberately abandon known right or privilege. United States v. R. Rollerson (1970, 308 F. Supp. 1014).

Fact that defendant had been sentenced for contempt for having thrown ice-filled bucket at prosecuting attorney did not preclude subsequent prosecution on counts charging assault with a deadly weapon and assault on Assistant United States Attorney engaged in performance of his duties. Id.

Defendant who during his trial for robbery threw water pitcher filled with ice at assistant United States attorney and who was sentenced to one year for contempt and who was thereafter convicted and sentenced for assault could not assert double jeopardy on his motion to vacate, set aside or correct assault sentence, where every fact necessary to formulation of double jeopardy claim was known prior to trial for criminal assault. R. Rollerson v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1078, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 10; remanded 394 U.S. 575, 89 S. Ct. 1300, see also 308 F. Supp. 1014).

Due process

Exhibition, in presence of defense counsel, of photograph of formal counseled lineup to two eyewitnesses to robbery on day of robbery trial, 14 months after the robbery, did not constitute violation of due process. United States v. W. S. King (1972, 461 F. 2d 152, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 61).

Evidence

Government is not guilty of any impropriety in failing to produce photographs of defendants, made on day of arrest, before they were demanded by defense counsel. United States v. P. J. Trantham, Jr. (1971, 448 F. 2d 1036, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 113).

To determine whether defendant was aggressor and whether he could establish claim of self-defense to charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and murder, jury was required to consider all of circumstances leading up to fatal affray at victim's home, and it was not error to admit evidence that defendant had shortly before entered house of a former girl friend and attacked her and homicide victim. W. T. Harris v. United States (1966, 364 F. 2d 701, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Evidence of oral statements, one of which was of injurious character as to defendant's claim of self-defense with respect to charge of assault with dangerous weapon, was admissible, where statements had been made within a few minutes after defendant's arrest and promptly in response to routine inquiries as to what had happened. J. F. Ramey v. United States (1964, 336 F. 2d 743, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Evidence was sufficient to present question for jury as to whether defendant was guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon. R. Dean v. United States (1962, 314 F. 2d 250, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, permitting district attorney to cross-examine defendant as to why defendant didn't run into house to avoid trouble if she believed complaining witness was going to do defendant some harm was proper, since the cross-examination was calculated to search for nature of defendant's belief and was proper to determine whether defendant went further than she was justified in doing. Josey v. United States (1943, 135 F. 2d 809, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

— Admissibility

Admission of officer's testimony of identification of defendant, at time and place close to offense, by victim who was tendered for cross-examination was not error. United States v. J. E. Ruth (1972, 461 F. 2d 1213, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 127).

Where officer had testified on direct as to victim's identifying defendant shortly after crime occurred, permitting officer to give same testimony on rebuttal after victim had recanted identification testimony was not prejudicial. Id.

Spectrograms or voiceprints identifying one of the defendants as maker of telephone call to which police officer was responding when shot is admissible in evidence. United States v. A. Raymond et ano. (1972, 337 F. Supp. 641).

Case in which it is sought to introduce voiceprints presents a situation wherein due to scientific nature of evidence proffered expert testimony is necessarily admissible. Id.

Where, following arrest of apartment dweller as an accessory after the fact to fatal shooting, dweller had been informed of her right to counsel and right to remain silent, the search of her purse prior to taking her downstairs to squad car was clearly within scope of protective search and, gun found in purse, was properly admitted in trial of defendant convicted of second-degree murder, assault with a dangerous weapon, and carrying a dangerous weapon; fact that officers subsequently determined it to be wiser to release apartment dweller because of potential explosive situation in neighborhood and to issue a summons neither vitiated initial arrest nor invalidated search incident thereto. United States v. C. R. Honesty (1971, 459 F. 2d 1279, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

Evidence of the circumstances surrounding prior robbery investigation, involving defendant and the complainant in present prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon and for carrying a pistol without a license, is admissible since such evidence is clearly relevant to the identification question that the defendant raised by his defense of mistaken identity; moreover, since no evidence was introduced connecting defendant in any way with the earlier crime, the possibility of any prejudice to defendant in the instant case is remote. United States v. N. R. Mizell (1971, 452 F. 2d 1328, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 399).

Where testimony, in prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a concealed weapon, by complaining witness concerning alleged rape by the defendant was highly probative of defendant's intent and motive in pointing gun at her and in explaining circumstances surrounding defendant's use of the gun for purposes of frightening her into submission, and where jury was given immediate cautionary instruction concerning limited purpose of the testimony, and similar instruction was contained in final charge, admission of that testimony was not an abuse of discretion. R. D. Wooten v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 285 A. 2d 308).

In prosecution for armed robbery of bus passengers and assault with dangerous weapon, even if the defendant's statement, "I didn't mean to do it" made after he was arrested and brought back to the scene and confronted by outraged passengers was somehow attributable to hostile confrontation of passengers, it was not of character to justify finding that it undermined fairness of trial, considering evidence as whole. United States v. I. Porcha (1971, 450 F. 2d 697, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 236).

Evidence that, inter alia, the defendant and two other men entered store together, that they conversed together until other customers left the store, that defendant did not lie on the floor when one of the codefendants, with a gun, announced a "stick-up" and said "To the floor," and that defendant moved from near the door to near the cash register after a codefendant ordered store employee to open it is sufficient to support defendant's conviction for armed robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, and conflicting testimony of defendant and his codefendants whereby they all sought to establish that defendant and one of his codefendants were innocent bystanders did not destroy the permissible inference of defendant's guilt. United States v. W. D. Lumpkin (1971, 448 F. 2d 1085, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 162).

Evidence, including permissible inference jury was permitted to draw from fact that the defendant was found within an hour of larceny in exclusive possession of recently stolen truck, supported convictions of kidnapping of truck helper, armed robbery, and assault with a dangerous weapon. United States v. L. B. Wolford (1971, 444 F. 2d 876, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Evidence that the defendant was seen entering getaway car, carrying a gun, some ten minutes before robbery, accompanied by one of confessed active perpetrators, that someone drove getaway car, and that the defendant was seen with two of active robbers one day later is sufficient to take to jury aiding and abetting case against defendant for entering bank with intent to commit robbery therein, bank robbery, armed robbery, and assault with a dangerous weapon. United States v. T. Parker (1971, 442 F. 2d 779, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 57).

In determining whether evidence is sufficient to sustain conviction, the rule is not that inference, no matter how reasonable, is to be rejected if it in turn depends upon another reasonable inference; rather, the question is merely whether total evidence, including reasonable inferences, if put together is sufficient to warrant jury to conclude that defendant is guilty beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. T. D. Harris (1970, 435 F. 2d 74, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 270; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1675, 402 U.S. 986).

In a criminal case, standard, stated in terms of probability from individual juror's point of view, for determining whether evidence is sufficient to sustain conviction, is whether it is so probable that the defendant is guilty that it would be unreasonable to believe otherwise. Id.

Evidence, in prosecution arising out of armed robbery of a grocery supermarket, was sufficient to present question for jury as to guilt of the defendant, even though two employee witnesses of the supermarket, who actually saw handits depart, could not identify the defendant as either one of the armed robbers who came into the store or as driver of the automobile in which the getaway was accomplished. United States v. C. Johnson (1970, 432 F. 2d 626, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 193; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 257, 400 U.S. 949).

In this case there was adequate evidence to support convictions of assault and carrying a dangerous weapon. United States v. L. White (1970, 429 F. 2d 711, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

That the weapon allegedly used by defendant in holding up complaining witness was not recovered and put in evidence at trial did not raise a reasonable doubt as a matter of law as to defendant's guilt of assault with dangerous weapon. United States v. J. Curtis (1970, 427 F. 2d 630, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

From the visual evidence presented in this case, and particularly a demonstration in which the prosecutor assisted by standing on a courtroom table to simulate defendant's position on a ledge above assault victim, it was possible with great accuracy to determine trajectory of bullet and hence to furnish a basis from which court and jury could conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant fired bullet that hit victim, that defendant had a dangerous weapon in his possession at time victim was shot and that defendant fired shot from a pistol; thus, the court held that the evidence, though visual, was sufficient to sustain defendant's conviction of assault with a dangerous weapon. H. Skinner v. United States (1970, 425 F. 2d 552, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 121).

In this case the court held that the identification testimony of victim and chief prosecution witness was sufficient to sustain conviction of assault with intent to kill and convictions of assault with a deadly weapon. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

In this case in light of the evidence on issue of whether offense was product of mental illness, conviction for robbery of property belonging to United States, assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be affirmed. T. H. Adams v. United States (1969, 413 F. 2d 411, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

Testimony of circumstances surrounding defendant's arrest by officers pursuant to a warrant for his arrest, not for the robberies and murder for which he was being tried, but for armed assault on police officer, offered as indicating consciousness of guilt or resistance to arrest, was admissible in context in which case was tried. C. Gregory v. United States (1966, 369 F. 2d 185, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

— Sufficiency

Proper standard for determining whether evidence is sufficient to allow jury to decide case is whether a reasonable mind might fairly have reasonable doubt or might fairly not have one. United States v. P. E. Coombs (1972, 464 F. 2d 842, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Evidence including testimony of policeman and victims that there was a gun and that a voiced threat was made to shoot one victim was sufficient to justify jury in findings that gun was dangerous and that the offense of assault with intent to rob was committed while armed with a dangerous weapon as alleged in indictment. United States v. J. Prater (1972, 462 F. 2d 292, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Evidence on issue of joint criminal venture and possession of purse and shotgun found in speeding automobile, occupied by defendants as driver and passenger, a short time after a purse had been forcibly taken from a pedestrian by two men, one of whom was armed with pistol, was sufficient to support conviction of armed robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon and possession of unregistered firearm, notwithstanding that at least one of four or five original occupants of vehicle had fled and that identification of defendants was "inconclusive" at best. United States v. J. E. McCall (1972, 460 F. 2d 952, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 444).

Evidence in prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon and carrying a dangerous weapon after conviction of felony did not warrant grant of motion for acquittal on theory of self defense. United States v. R. B. James (1971, 452 F. 2d 1375, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

Where defendant picked up fully loaded and operable gun from front car seat and pointed gun at first police officer, second officer informed first officer that defendant had a gun pointed in his direction and first officer grabbed the defendant, pulled him from automobile, and caused him to drop the gun, first officer had well-grounded apprehension of personal injury that was accompanied by apparent attempt to commit violent personal injury which was only prevented by the acts of the officer himself and offense of "assault with a dangerous weapon" was made out. Id.

Evidence supported finding that defendant accused of manslaughter and assault with deadly weapon had not acted in self-defense. L. A. Rowe v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 240, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 218).

Harmless error

In view of clear evidence that the defendant aided and abetted his confederate who was armed with a gun, any error concerned with alleged prolixity of indictment that charged both armed robbery and robbery, or any other claim of defect in presentation of two theories of robbery to jury, is harmless. United States v. I. Porcha (1971, 450 F. 2d 697, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 236).

Identification

While lineup was not conducted under most ideal circumstances it was not so impermissibly suggestive to misidentification as to preclude identification testimony by eyewitnesses who had ample opportunity to view defendant during armed robbery. United States v. G. H. Neverson (1972, 463 F. 2d 1224, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 133).

Where circumstances of photographic identification of defendant by one of the eyewitnesses was fully explored at pretrial hearing and there was no suggestion that police had acted wilfully, recklessly or in bad faith in not producing the photographs which made up group from which witness selected defendant's picture at a time before the importance of recording photographs used in group was emphasized by any court, failure of police to produce photographs at trial, in which Government did not rely on photographic identification and made no reference to it, was not prejudicial to defendant who asserted that failure to produce pictures circumscribed his right to explore fairness of identification process. United States v. H. R. Thomas, Jr. (1972, 463 F. 2d 314, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 198, 409 U.S. 870).

Although absence of photographs used in making up group of pictures shown to eyewitness who picked defendant's picture was a factor to be considered in weighing evidence concerning identification of defendant by eyewitness, the absence of photographs did not create any presumption of impropriety in identification process. Id.

Case must be considered on its own facts, and convictions based on eyewitness identification at trial following pretrial identification by photograph will be set aside on that ground only if photographic identification procedure was so impermissibly suggestive as to give rise to very substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification. United States v. W. S. King (1972, 461 F. 2d 152, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 61).

Where witnesses to robbery had ample opportunity to observe defendant at time of robbery, prosecutor offered pretrial photographic identification procedure for protection of defendant, the viewing by the two witnesses of photographs of formal counseled, corporeal lineup was in presence of defense counsel and the procedure was conducted fairly, the photographic identification procedure was not so impermissibly suggestive as to give rise to very substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification. Id.

Fact that employee of robbed liquor store was unable to identify defendant as robber did not establish that in-court identification by part-owner of liquor store did not have source independent of photographic and lineup identifications where employee and part-owner observed robbers from different angles and under different stresses. United States v. L. T. Lee (1972, 459 F. 2d 1365, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 341).

Where victims of robbery reported that one robber had short hair and the other had "an African haircut," photographic identification from nine photographs of five men with bush haircuts and four with shorter hair was not impermissibly suggestive. Id.

Where police had probable cause for arrest of defendant following armed robbery, procedure in taking defendant to scene of crime less than 15 minutes after robbery for identification did not give rise to undue suggestability, and evidence of identification of defendant at scene was admissible in subsequent prosecution. United States v. J. Moore (1972, 459 F. 2d 1360, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 336).

Identification of the defendants who were charged with armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, by victim, after defendants were picked up near scene of the crime and brought back to a squad car did not violate the defendants' due process rights on theory identification was tainted by suggestive circumstances surrounding it, since the victim had given officer a detailed description of the robbers, had participated in the search for them and in fact had pointed out defendants to the arresting officer. United States v. J. Wilson (1971, 449 F. 2d 1005, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Where the validity of lineup is challenged by defendant on ground of asserted absence of counsel, burden is on the government, at least in the case of routine lineups, to establish that counsel was present. United States v. J. C. Garner and T. C. Parker (1970, 439 F. 2d 525, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 15; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1531, 402 U.S. 930).

Deficiency of lineup identification arising from absence of counsel is not cured by conducting second lineup, with counsel present, shortly after the initial lineup. Id.

Record, including sketch of robber made by witness, a commercial artist, supported finding that there was an independent source for courtroom identification by such witness, not withstanding deficiency as to intervening mally appointed to represent defendant. Id.

Since, in addition to two eyewitnesses who identified defendant at lineup, there was a third eyewitness who saw defendant before robbery and during robbery over period of two minutes from distance as close as two feet and who identified defendant at trial, admission at trial of evidence of two lineup identifications of defendant could not have been prejudicial. United States v. R. Queen (1970, 435 F. 2d 66, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 262).

Presence of attorney from legal aid agency on behalf of each suspect, including the defendant, placed in lineup, satisfied constitutional requirement of counsel at lineup even though the "substitute counsel" had not been formally appointed to represent defendant. Id.

Impeachment

Had defendant taken stand in prosecution for armed robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, and carrying dangerous weapon without license, evidence of prior conviction for impersonating owner of federal check would have been admissible for impeachment purposes. United States v. J. Moore (1972, 459 F. 2d 1360, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 336).

Cross-examination of defendant during which the prosecution was permitted to develop that for some time prior to date of offense defendant had been absent from his military post without leave was improper, and the prejudice was magnified by the erroneous admission of government's rebuttal evidence as to defendant's absence from military post. United States v. W. A. Shumate et ano. (1970, 429 F. 2d 777, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

In-court identification

Although victim of robbery and assault picked defendant out of group sitting in General Sessions courtroom at time when defendant was not accompanied by counsel, since such identification followed three photographic identifications based upon face-to-face encounter taking place only a few hours before first photographic identification, the General Sessions identification did not taint the later in-court identification by victim and the in-court identification was not improper. United States v. J. E. York (1970, 321 F. Supp. 539).

The Government has the burden of presenting clear and convincing evidence that in-court identification of defendant by victim of robbery and assault is based on other than an illegally obtained pretrial identification; but there is no presumption of invalidity. Id.

Indictment

Where respective penalties for mayhem and assault with a dangerous weapon were identical, contention that defendant who poured acid on girl should have been indicted for mayhem rather than assault with dangerous weapon was frivolous. M. B. Bishop v. United States (1965, 349 F. 2d 220, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Informants

Where record of prosecution arising out of armed robbery showed that the informant contacted police, some three weeks after crime, and told them of source and whereabouts of shotgun involved and of alleged conspiracy to murder government's principal witness, but record was otherwise silent as to participation by the informant in offense itself, disclosure of identity of the informant on pain of dismissal should not have been required. United States v. J. T. Skeens (1971, 449 F. 2d 1066, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 404).

Injury suffered

Threat or danger of physical suffering or injury in the ordinary sense is not necessary; the injury suffered by the innocent victim may be the fear, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish caused by the assault, neither is it necessary that such a victim should be aware of the nature of the act or of the danger. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Insanity defense

Where record unequivocally established that, after three years of representing defendant, defense counsel concurred with conclusions reached by psychiatrist and judge that defendant was a malingeringer and expressed opinion that it was tactically unwise to raise an insanity defense unless he felt he had a chance, defendant was not entitled to reversal of conviction of armed robbery assault with a deadly weapon and carrying a pistol without a license on ground of judicial interference with his defense counsel's attempt to pursue insanity issue. United States v. F. L. Simms (1972, 463 F. 2d 1273, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 182).

Trial judge's decision not to interpose an insanity defense sua sponte was not an abuse of discretion constituting reversible error, especially in view of finding that defendant was malingering. Id.

A decision of the trial court to sua sponte interpose an insanity defense, especially when taken against the wishes of the accused, necessitates the utmost care in judgment and requires consideration of many factors. United States v. P. Bradley (1972, 463 F. 2d 808, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in failing to further pursue insanity issue, allegedly with a view to raising insanity defense, sua sponte, where defendant indicated that he did not want to raise such defense, defense counsel expressed their views that defendant was competent to stand trial and trial judge received commitment report disclaiming any opinion on productivity and diagnosing defendant's illness as "Nonpsychotic Organic Brain Syndrome With Epilepsy (Alcoholic Factors)" and trial judge had a lengthy opportunity to observe defendant in court. Id.

Finding by the trial court that commission of robbery and assault with dangerous weapon was not causally connected with defendant's alleged mental illness and narcotic addiction was supported by substantial testimony. United States v. E. F. Carter (1970, 436 F. 2d 200, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 46).

Instructions

Where prosecution goes beyond offering identical hearsay testimony elicited by defense, court should give immediate limiting instruction. United States v. M. Thompson, Jr. (1972, 465 F. 2d 583, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

Where defendant eliciting hearsay testimony from prosecution witness for purpose of impeachment and did not request any limiting instruction, failure of trial court to sua sponte give limiting instruction following Government's examination of witness during which same hearsay testimony was offered in light favorable to Government was not reversible error. Id.

Where jury is properly instructed on standards for reasonable doubt, an additional instruction on circumstantial evidence, requiring that such evidence must be such as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than that of guilt, is confusing and incorrect. United States v. P. E. Coombs (1972, 464 F. 2d 842, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Court's "mistake in identity" instruction which included statement that jury should consider not only testimony of victim who recanted prior identification testimony but also other elements including testimony of police officer as to victim's having identified defendant and defendant's grand jury testimony was not erroneous. United States v. J. E. Ruth (1972, 461 F. 2d 1213, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 127).

Instruction on defendant as witness, including statement that jury might consider defendant's vital interest in outcome, was not improper. United States v. J. Jones (1972, 459 F. 2d 1225, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Although, in prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon and for carrying a pistol without a license, prosecution evidence was introduced to the effect that the defendant assaulted the complainant in retaliation for her telling the police she believed he had been involved in a robbery, the trial judge is not required to, sua sponte, give a limiting instruction concerning the evidence connecting defendant with the robbery, particularly since the evidence in question concerned not so much acts that had been engaged in by defendant, but rather the activities of the complainant, and since that evidence is relevant on the issues of identity and motive. United States v. N. R. Mizell (1971, 452 F. 2d 1328, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 399).

Since, in prosecution for robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, there was no evidence that gun used in commission of crime was loaded, giving of instruction that a loaded pistol is a dangerous weapon is error and probably prejudicial. United States v. H. L. Wyatt (1971, 442 F. 2d 858, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 136).

Viewing the trial court's charge in its entirety clearly showed that instruction on specific intent was not omitted in prosecution for armed robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon, and carrying a dangerous weapon. United States v. S. F. Gaither (1971, 440 F. 2d 262, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

Instruction that the Government has no affirmative duty to make a paraffin test of gun seized from defendant charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and with carrying a concealed weapon to determine if he had ever used it is not "plain error" warranting review in absence of objection. R. D. Wooten v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 285 A. 2d 308).

Refusal, in prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, to instruct on lesser included offense of simple assault was proper since there was neither evidence nor any theory advanced by the defense as to an unloaded gun being used, defense evidence throughout was that no gun existed and live cartridge found in one defendant's pocket made gun a dangerous weapon, even if there had been no cartridge in chamber, and gun police officers related had been in possession of both defendants could not be found on search following chase. United States v. J. D. Daniels (1970, 437 F. 2d 656, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 223).

Submission to the jury of a further "Allen" type instruction, after jury reported a deadlock, to the effect that absolute certainty could not be expected, and that jurors should give deference to opinions of each other, would not be considered a ground for reversal on theory of plain error since defense counsel did not object to the charge. United States v. C. Johnson (1970, 432 F. 2d 626, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 193; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 257, 400 U.S. 949).

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon court did not err in failing to instruct jury on lesser offense of simple assault where there was no foundation in evidence for giving of such an instruction. Parker v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 1009, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Court's summarizing certain testimony by stating during charge to jury "the court understands" and "as the court recalls" was not erroneous in light of entire charge, in which jury was instructed at the outset that it was exclusive judge of the facts. Id.

Instruction in prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon that case was a serious case from government's standpoint because serious felony had been committed did not have effect of negating defendant's plea of self-defense, where court gave full charge on self-defense. J. O. Scurry v. United States (1965, 347 F. 2d 468, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

In prosecution for robbery and assault, court's statement in instruction to jury, that "one of the persons charged here" had succeeded in getting pocketbook of one complaining witness went beyond permissible comment on evidence, where identification was issue for jury. D. Battle and M. F. Davis v. United States (1965, 345 F. 2d 438, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

A defendant accused of assault with a dangerous weapon is entitled to instruction on simple assault as a lesser included offense if a foundation for it is found in the evidence. G. D. Greenfield v. United States (1964, 341 F. 2d 411, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 278).

Defendant accused of assault with dangerous weapon was entitled to instruction on lesser included offense of simple assault, where jury question was raised as to whether soda pop bottle used by defendant was a dangerous weapon and jury was instructed that if it should find that assault was with a bottle and that bottle was a dangerous weapon this would come within statutory definition of assault with dangerous weapon. Id.

In prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon, trial court's instruction on self-defense should not assume that the assault was by use of dangerous weapon. Id.

Errors, if any, in instructions in prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon, on burden of proof to negate claim of defendant that discharge of the pistol was accidental, and with respect to credibility of chief witness for the prosecution, were not, under the circumstances, prejudicial. R. Dean v. United States (1962, 314 F. 2d 250, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

In trial for assault with dangerous weapon, District Court is not required by criminal procedure rule to instruct jury that they may find defendant guilty of lesser offense of simple assault and should not so instruct them, in absence of evidence justifying conviction of simple assault. MacIlrath v. United States (1951, 188 F. 2d 1009, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 270).

In prosecution for assaults on three persons with deadly weapon, evidence that defendant shot one of such persons with a pistol and then clubbed the others on their heads therewith, causing serious injuries, established assaults with dangerous weapon and did not justify instruction on simple assault. Id.

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, requested instruction that if defendant had reasonable grounds to believe that complaining witness was about to inflict violence on her and was coming at her with a knife in a menacing manner, defendant was justified in defending herself and didn't have to retreat was fatally defective and was properly refused. Josey v. United States (1943, 135 F. 2d 809, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Intent to commit other crime

There is no statutory requirement for either robbery or assault with a dangerous weapon, that there be a specific intent to commit the other. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Interrogation by court

Although there were many instances when the defendant's answers were less than direct and it was appropriate for the court to lend assistance to avoid confusion on part of jurors, under circumstances, court's extensive examination of defendant and his alibi witness, that included questions that opened new areas of inquiry or gave an undue eminence to matters otherwise irrelevant to offenses with which defendant was charged, constituted error, and when considered together with an incorrect instruction, required reversal of defendant's conviction. United States v. H. L. Wyatt (1971, 442 F. 2d 858, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 136).

Joinder

Since the offenses of robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, assault on member of police force, unauthorized use of vehicle, and carrying dangerous weapon were based on two or more connected acts constituting part of common scheme and plan, the defendants were alleged to have participated in same series of acts constituting offenses, and each of defendants aided and abetted offenses charged against other defendants, it was proper for grand jury to join defendants and offenses in the indictment. United States v. C. Wilson, Jr. et ano. (1970, 434 F. 2d 494, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 220).

Judge's comments

Since defendant referred to the merits, on allocution, as a reason for clemency, judge's comment that prosecution witness testified he had seen defendant at scene of assault and comment, after defendant related that he had presented three witnesses, and that judge had a feeling some witnesses had been threatened, were at most a reference to the judge's view of credibility as an explanation of refusal to accord clemency and did not establish that the judge was referring to possibility of threats as additional offense heightening sentence. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

Judgment inconsistent with verdict

Where the jury, under proper instructions, found defendant guilty of armed robbery and rendered no verdict on count charging robbery and since the judgment was to effect that defendant was convicted of armed robbery, robbery, and assault with dangerous weapon, judgment is inconsistent with verdict and remand for correction of such judgment is required. United States v. T. D. Harris (1970, 435 F. 2d 74, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 270; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1675, 402 U.S. 986).

Jurisdiction

Where Superior Court judge dismissed juvenile's petition for habeas corpus without prejudice to its being filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, the respondent was federal officer, petitioner was charged with federal offense as well as with violations of District of Columbia law and petitioner was challenging the conditions of his confinement, federal court had jurisdiction to consider the petition. J. Bland v. C. M. Rodgers (1971, 332 F. Supp. 989).

Jury trial—Waiver

In this case the court held that, on the record of appeal from conviction for assault with intent to kill and assault with dangerous weapon, the waiver of a jury trial was not shown to be involuntary. However, the passive nature of role played by trial court in inquiry as to defendant's understanding was subject to criticism on appeal. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

Legislative intent

Acquittal by defendant of assault with a dangerous weapon, did not require his acquittal on companion charge of carrying a pistol which he used to defend himself on ground that such acquittal demonstrated conclusively that defendant was carrying pistol for a lawful purpose notwithstanding defendant was exposed to a serious current threat by victim, that he did not have time to get a license and that he made a serious attempt to secure police protection, in light of the history of antiweapon legislation evidencing the clearest intent to drastically tighten ban on carrying dangerous weapons. Cooke v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 887, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 223).

One-man showup

Where an intruder broke into the apartment of two women, and shortly thereafter was arrested as a suspect, and about 30 minutes after the attack the women were asked to come down to the street in front of their apartment and view defendant who was the sole occupant of patrol wagon, use of "one-man showup" did not deny defendant due process of law. G. W. Bates v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1104, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Photographic identification

Record established that the victim's photographic identification of defendant as robber and assailant was not conducted under circumstances so impermissibly suggestive as to give rise to a very substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification. United States v. J. E. York (1970, 321 F. Supp. 539).

There is no presumption that photographic identification of defendant by the victim of robbery and assault is invalid. Id.

In a prosecution for robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, where robbery victim on morning after robbery was shown 15 photographs depicting males of various ages, including one photograph of defendant that was not highlighted so as to prompt its selection and victim identified defendant's photograph, which was sixth photograph shown to him, as that of robber and remained firm in such identification after examining remaining photographs, such identification did not deny due process and did not vitiate subsequent in-court identification. United States v. E. L. Hamilton (1969, 420 F. 2d 1292, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 89).

Prejudicial error

In this case, assuming that failure of the trial judge to inform defendant's counsel of larceny charge before he summed up constituted error, where defendant was indicted for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, however, that failure lacked the prejudice necessary to constitute reversible error where, inter alia, defendant's admission in open court established his intention and his attempt to trick complainants, so that damage was done when defendant took the stand and it was not likely that a variation in summation would have changed the verdict. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Presentence investigation

Under facts including showing that the defendant, convicted of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, had stated that "a probationary report would be more detrimental to me than anything else" and that "a probationary hearing wouldn't do anything for me", the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting defendant's explicit request to be sentenced without an investigation. United States v. M. J. Spadoni (1970, 435 F. 2d 448, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 376).

Presentence reports

Denial that arrest, referred to presentence report and allegedly relied on by trial judge in determining length of sentence, took place should be made in first instance to trial court; and where defendant had made no objection when trial judge made remark indicating that alleged inaccuracy was crucial to determination of defendant's sentence and record before reviewing court was therefore devoid of any denial of prior arrest, conviction would be affirmed, without prejudice to defendant's proceeding by means of motion for reduction in sentence. United States v. F. D. Sheppard, Jr. (1972, 462 F. 2d 279, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 175; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 335, 409 U.S. 985).

Discretion of trial judge to furnish to the defendant or his counsel presentence investigation report is to be exercised in individual cases and trial judge is not to adopt a uniform policy of nondisclosure in all cases irrespective of circumstances. United States v. R. Queen (1970, 435 F. 2d 66, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 262).

Where defendant's record of prior convictions was disclosed to the defendant and his counsel during trial so that they had opportunity to confirm or deny such record and to explain circumstances, failure of trial judge to furnish defendant or counsel with presentence investigation report did not deny due process to defendant. Id.

Pretrial mental examination

Decision of trial judge to proceed with trial on the merits without ordering a commitment of defendant for competency observation was not abuse of discretion in absence of any objection or motion from defense counsel and in view of simultaneous expression of willingness to try, through bifurcation, any insanity defense that might subsequently appear appropriate. United States v. P. Bradley (1972, 463 F. 2d 808, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

Probable cause

Since automobile stopped by police officers 45 minutes after offense was reliably identified as one used by suspect to leave scene of offense and search of defendant operator and his companion failed to produce any weapon, police had ample grounds for concluding that weapon used in assault was likely secreted in automobile, authorizing a warrantless search of automobile at scene of arrest, inasmuch as the only way in which a warrant could have been obtained would have been by temporarily seizing automobile and immobilizing it. United States v. D. Free (1970, 437 F. 2d 631, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 198).

Entry without warrant

Police officers, who knew that armed robbers had fled in a maroon automobile bearing license plates registered to another vehicle, that the defendant, whose employer was robbery victim, and who bore same last name as man to whom plates were registered, owned a maroon automobile, that vehicle answering description of getaway vehicle, with engine and exhaust still warm, and bearing no license plates was parked near defendant's address, and that part of money taken consisted of coins, and who, after knocking at door of defendant's apartment and identifying themselves, overheard movement of furniture and observed that person answering door filled description of one of robbers and that there were stacks of coins on dining room table, had probable cause to arrest occupants. United States v. T. D. Harris (1970, 435 F. 2d 74, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 270; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1675, 402 U.S. 986).

Prosecution

In a robbery case, the Government has the right to charge, as separate assaults, assaults against bystanders who are not robbed. G. Sutton, Jr. v. United States (1970, 434 F. 2d 462, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 188; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1676, 402 U.S. 988).

The Government may decline to charge armed robbery under § 22-3202 authorizing an indeterminate sentence up to life for crimes of violence when committed with a dangerous weapon, and may instead rely on prior formulation of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon. Id.

Publicity

In view of fact that newspaper clippings were accurate accounts of developments during trial and were not sensational in tone, and in view of scrupulous concern on part of trial court for elimination of extrajudicial influences from jury's deliberations, defendant was not denied a fair trial because of alleged extensive and adverse newspaper publicity surrounding his case. United States v. W. L. Parman (1971, 461 F. 2d 1203, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 117).

Question for jury

In prosecution for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon, whether the defendant was one of holdup men in robbery of shoe store was question for jury. United States v. J. E. York (1969, 426 F. 2d 1191, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Jury could convict defendant as aider and abettor in assault though the only person expressly identified in testimony as having committed actual assault was acquitted, where there was testimony authorizing conclusion that assault was committed by someone even if not by the particular person identified by policeman. Cross v. United States (1965, 354 F. 2d 512, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 380).

Release on personal recognizance

Appellant, who was convicted of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, and whose appeal presented a substantial claim that he was wrongfully identified, was ordered released on personal recognizance on certain enumerated conditions which were so structured as to allow for a maximum amount of supervision over appellant while still allowing for his freedom from incarceration. W. Banks v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1150, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Remand

Conviction of juvenile of first-degree felony-murder armed robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, assault upon police officer with dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be remanded to District Court to consider possibility of sentencing under the Youth Corrections Act. United States v. W. Howard (1971, 449 F. 2d 1086, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

Since counsel for defendant, convicted of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, was not appointed until almost one year after offense, counsel was appointed slightly more than one month before trial, although counsel's failure to appear on date case was first set was allegedly due to misunderstanding case was not removed from ready calendar, and it was alleged that counsel had inadequate time in which to obtain specified physical evidence and interview specified witnesses, reviewing court remanded case to trial court for determination whether new trial should be granted on ground of ineffective assistance of counsel. United States v. W. D. Weaver (1970, 422 F. 2d 711, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Where defense counsel had informed trial court that circumstances indicated appropriateness of insanity defense but defendant had forbidden him to raise it, and trial court did not consider such representations in erroneous belief that it did not have discretion to inject insanity issue over defendant's objections, reviewing court remanded case for reconsideration of such representations in exercise of discretion, rather than reversing for new trial. Cross v. United States (1965, 354 F. 2d 512, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 380).

Reversible error

Admission of hearsay declaration by apartment lessee to detective to effect that four men who were friends of his entered his apartment and three of them were carrying guns was not reversible error, since it was not developed by defendant's counsel that his client was not present during conversation between detective and lessee, no objection to admission of statement was made by defense at the time nor was any objection or motion made as to such testimony in subsequent conference and hearings out of presence of jury, and from context of subsequent discussions it appeared that the propriety of the testimony was recognized. United States v. G. L. Harris (1970, 437 F. 2d 686, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 253).

Trial court's comment concerning two defendants who entered pleas of guilty during trial of defendant for robbery allegedly involving four men was not plain error that could be considered in absence of objection, where, since jury knew of involvement of defendants who pleaded guilty at the start, court was required to make some explanation concerning their sudden absence from trial and it did so by telling jury that cases of those defendants had been disposed of and jury was not to speculate on what that disposition was. Id.

Review

An assignment of error in failing to instruct jury on simple assault in prosecution for assaults with dangerous weapon comes too late on appeal from district court's judgment, in absence of request during trial for such instruction. Mac Ilrath v. United States (1951, 188 F. 2d 1009, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 270).

Right to counsel

Defendant's constitutional right to counsel was not violated when after his arrest but in absence of counsel police showed eyewitnesses a group of photographs and an eyewitness, who had had a good opportunity for observation of defendant did pick defendant's photograph, where judge found that there was an independent source for the identification in court and there was no evidence of unfairness in exhibition of photographs. United States v. H. R. Thomas, Jr. (1972, 463 F. 2d 314, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 198, 409 U.S. 870).

Search and seizure

Where two police officers had been provided information by a reliable informant, indicating possible illegal narcotics activity and, after observing the defendant and another emerge from building as predicted, officers had right to stop the occupants of the taxicab long enough to ask to talk to them and to investigate, seizure of the pistol, that the defendant held in plain view of the officers, was proper and, once the defendant was lawfully under arrest, the seizure of the cartridges, in reasonable search of the vehicle incident to such arrest, was clearly appropriate. United States v. R. B. James (1971, 452 F. 2d 1375, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

Sentences

Defendant, who was convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon, was properly denied treatment under Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act since he was convicted of crime of violence. United States v. M. E. Fitzgerald (1972, 466 F. 2d 377, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Where bank robbery had been consummated, defendant could not be properly given a concurrent sentence for entering a bank with intent to commit robbery. United States v. J. M. Hopkins (1972, 464 F. 2d 816, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 307).

Where robbery constituted a unitary transaction, defendant could not properly be convicted and sentenced on two robbery counts. Id.

Where, though bank employees and a customer were put in fear at point of a pistol, joint conduct of robbers constituted a single continuous transaction, defendant could not properly be convicted and sentenced on four counts of assault with a dangerous weapon. Id.

Defendant's sentence was not to depend upon his refusal to express remorse. Id.

Sentence on conviction of carrying a pistol without a license and assault with a dangerous weapon could be cumulated, notwithstanding that both counts arose out of single transaction, since the evidence militated against conclusion that defendant carried pistol with particular purpose in mind of using it to inflict injury but rather portrayed a sudden flare-up and precipitous resort to the pistol during verbal affray. United States v. H. Lucas, Jr. (1971, 441 F. 2d 1056, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Since 19-year-old defendant found guilty of 3 counts of robbery and 3 counts of assault with dangerous weapon moved for presentence observation at youth center and after observation was sentenced to 4 to 12 years for robbery and 3 to 9 years for assault with sentence to run concurrently and thereafter defendant filed motion for reconsideration and requested that he be sentenced under Youth Corrections Act but was transferred to penitentiary despite recommendation for confinement in youth institution, and court thereafter denied motion, sentence will be vacated and case remanded to district court for resentencing under Youth Corrections Act. United States v. T. P. Waters (1970, 437 F. 2d 722, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 289).

Where defendant had been committed to hospital for mental observation before trial and had been reported competent to stand trial and during trial judge heard testimony of several witnesses as to the defendant's mental condition and some six weeks elapsed between finding of guilt and imposition of sentence during which probation office conducted investigation and submitted report which was before trial judge when sentence was imposed, sentence is not improper on theory that trial judge should have referred case to legal psychiatric service for the presentence evaluation. United States v. E. F. Carter (1970, 436 F. 2d 200, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 46).

Facts of this case, in which defendant convicted of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with dangerous weapon received general sentence of 5 to 15 years, which was maximum permitted for assault with intent to kill, but more than maximum limits in respect to other two counts of indictment, presented especially appealing case for careful and precise sentencing, and, though conviction is affirmed, sentence will be vacated and case remanded for resentencing. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

Consecutive penitentiary sentences on four counts, and concurrent sentence on fifth count do not violate the Indeterminate Sentence law. United States ex rel. Bracey v. Hill (C.C.A. 3, 1935, 77 F. 2d 970).

As maximum sentence imposed on each count was ten years and as none exceeded the maximum of ten years fixed by the statute, and as the minimum sentence on each count was two years and none exceeded one-fifth of the maximum of ten years fixed by the statute, the sentences are, therefore, in accord with the Indeterminate Sentence and Parole Act. Bracey v. Zerbst (C.C.A. 10, 1938, 93 F. 2d 8).

Severance

Refusal to grant a severance for trial purposes as to defendant tried for several crimes including first-degree murder arising out of two separate robberies was prejudicial to defendant because there was not only the danger that evidence with respect to two robberies would cumulate in jurors' minds and tend to prove defendant guilty of each, but also because the evidence as to one of the robberies was so weak that its primary usefulness was to support government's case as to robbery which resulted in the murder. C. Gregory v. United States (1966, 369 F. 2d 185, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Specific intent

Fact that statute relating to assault with a dangerous weapon is grouped with other crimes which all require particular intent does not mean that assault with a dangerous weapon, unlike simple assault, should be viewed as requiring a similar intent where the statute was silent as to any requirement of intent, although in all other offenses to which reference was made the requirement was explicit. Parker v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 1009, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Sufficiency of record on appeal

Record showed a preponderance of competent evidence to sustain conviction of juvenile of manslaughter and assault with a deadly weapon, and decision of juvenile court that juvenile was within its jurisdiction and should be committed to custody of Department of Public Welfare for indeterminate period was proper. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

Witnesses

Trial court properly rejected attempt by two witnesses who were unfamiliar with the defendant's reputation as to character traits in issue in robbery and assault case to testify as to his character. United States v. W. A. Hinkle (1971, 448 F. 2d 1157, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

§ 22-503. Assault with intent to commit any other offense.

Whoever assaults another with intent to commit any other offense which may be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary shall be imprisoned not more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 805.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Possession of firearm, additional penalty, see §§ 22-3201, 22-3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

In prosecution for unlawfully assaulting a 15-year-old girl, burden was on the government to prove not only the touching, but that such touching was unlawful, or, in other words that the touching was not accidental or innocent. Davenport v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 226).

Evidence

In prosecution for assault of an indecent nature on a ten-year-old boy, evidence of what occurred between boy and defendant in defendant's apartment on date preceding and day after date charged in the information was admissible as an exception to general rule. Posey v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 300).

In prosecution for assault of an indecent nature on a ten-year-old boy, where record showed that what transpired between defendant and the boy on three consecutive days in defendant's apartment was so closely connected as to constitute composite parts of a single picture, evidence of what occurred on day preceding and day after the date charged in the information was relevant even though it revealed separate offenses on those days. Id.

Force

Application of force, or threat of application thereof, in an assault may be made indirectly as well as directly. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Indictment

"It is not necessary to the charge of a joint assault by several persons that they be specifically charged as acting 'together and with each other.'" Polen v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 4).

Instructions

In prosecution for assaulting a 15-year-old girl, defendant was entitled to an instruction that, if jury had any reasonable doubt about any material point or question in the case, they must resolve such doubt in favor of defendant, and an instruction that, if jury had any reasonable doubt finally after considering evidence both for and against defendant as to defendant's guilt, jury must bring verdict of not guilty, was error. Davenport v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 226).

Sentences

When sentences imposed were ten years and eight years, respectively, on the first two indictments, and five years on the assault charge, the sentences to run consecutively in the order named, but since the first sentence of ten years had not expired, the application for habeas corpus was premature, as validity of other two sentences was not properly raised. Johnson v. Aderhold (C.C.A. 5 1934, 73 F. 2d 102).

Witnesses

With children of tender years, it is proper for a trial judge to conduct a preliminary voir dire on issue of testimonial maturity; questioning at such hearing should be handled in a way that is meaningful and not by inquiry that borders on the casual and uses leading questions. United States v. D. W. Schoefield (1972, 465 F. 2d 560, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 380; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 210, 409 U.S. 881).

Where 12-year-old complainant was student in sixth grade and transcript revealed intelligent comprehension in terms of answering questions, there was no basis for claim that trial judge, who was not requested to conduct preliminary voir dire as to testimonial maturity, was clearly erroneous either in proceedings without a preliminary voir dire or in accepting testimony of complainant and her 13-year-old brother. Id.

§ 22-504. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.

Whoever unlawfully assaults, or threatens another in a menacing manner, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 806.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Aid and abet

Evidence supported conviction of appealing defendants of assault and of attempted petit larceny, since court could conclude that defendants were associated with principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. H. L. Williams and D. G. Reeves v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 190 A. 2d 269).

Evidence supported conviction of defendant, who at no time struck or pushed assault victim during altercation between victim, defendant and two others, and who could not be said by victim to have joined the other two in searching victim's pockets, for assault either on theory that concert of action by defendant and the other two threatened or menaced the victim or that defendant aided and abetted the other two. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Aiding and abetting assault renders one guilty of crime even if he does not actively participate. Id.

Appeal and error

Where judge hearing case without jury had opportunity visually to inspect knife, that was included in record, and it appeared that blade exceeded requisite length by fraction of inch, denying defense the opportunity to demonstrate in court by measuring instrument that blade was not beyond requisite length was not error even if cutting edge of blade measured less than requisite length. S. McIntyre v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 814).

Where government witness, who was in witness room throughout the trial, was there to testify that the defendant had made threatening statements against victim prior to assault, testimony the government asserted in its opening statement would be forthcoming, proper procedure would have been for the government to have called witness to testify in its case in chief rather than as a rebuttal witness; however, procedure does not require reversal since the prosecutor did not act by design but rather inadvertently and any prejudice was rectified by court's allowing defendants to recall any witness they wished in surrebuttal. E. A. Marksman v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 241).

While testimony as to one defendant interfering with arrest of other defendant and being charged with disorderly conduct may have had no relevance to the alleged assault for which defendant was charged, error in its admission was harmless. B. Davis et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 106).

Court of Appeals, on appeal from conviction for disorderly conduct and simple assault, was reluctant to determine whether police department form containing information as to time, place and date of offense, name of complainant, names and addresses of witnesses, and description of details of offense was producible under Jencks Act but would give trial court opportunity in first instance to decide issue of producibility under established guidelines. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

If trial court, in determining issue of producibility of police report form under Jencks Act, found that statement should have been made available, error in failing to require production of statement would not be harmless and would require new trial on charges of disorderly conduct and simple assault. Id.

Applicability of Jencks rule

Jencks rule of evidence applies in District of Columbia Court of General Sessions whether case is prosecuted by District of Columbia or by United States. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

Arresting officer's liability

If the officer has reason to believe that the person he is about to arrest is a desperate character and acts accordingly, the officer is not to be convicted of assault because it subsequently develops that he was mistaken. Barrett v. United States (1933, 64 F. 2d 148, 62 App. D.C. 25).

Assistance of counsel

The court held that, record on appeal from a conviction for petit larceny and assault did not establish denial of effective assistance of counsel. J. Bell, Jr., v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 690).

In this case the record did not show that defendant's trial counsel who declined to cross-examine either complainant or arresting officer ineffectively assisted defendant who himself testified and denied assault. J. J. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 353; leave to appeal denied 427 F. 2d 609, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

The record did not sustain the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel who was a defense attorney with many years of experience and who presented all substantial defenses, made appropriate motions and objections, attempted to suppress the evidence on the charge of unlawful possession of a pistol after conviction of a felony, and was able to obtain acquittal on a charge of threats to do bodily harm and directed verdict in defendant's favor on a charge of assault by threatening in a menacing manner. I. Gressette v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 418).

Fact that new counsel was appointed not more than 60 minutes before trial did not amount to ineffective assistance of counsel of defendant charged with simple assault, unlawful entry and petit larceny where no continuance was requested and defendant announced he was ready for trial, factual situation was not so complex as to necessitate any extensive investigation and there were no witnesses for the defense who could have been called, new counsel was experienced and diligent and made no claim that he was hampered by appointment shortly before trial. S. A. Tuttle v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 590).

Cause for arrest

Where a police officer had a conversation with the victim of an assault and petit larceny and proceeded in patrol car in search of the assailants, and the stolen articles were in plain view of officer in defendant's hand and at his feet in the gutter, an arrest was authorized when the officer saw the stolen articles. R. L. Thompkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 636).

Where in making an initial stop of the defendant, the officer was engaged in routine on-the-street investigation in nearby area of a crime minutes after it occurred in an early hour of the morning in his effort to find perpetrator while the trail was still warm, and under these circumstances the initial stop of defendant was neither an arrest nor an arbitrary detention, but arrest occurred after officer saw the articles which fit description of stolen property, which gave sufficient cause to arrest, and seizure was not invalid. Id.

Collateral attack on judgment

Bringing of motion for trial court to exercise its inherent power to vacate a sentence and to resentence defendant, thereby restoring him to status of one upon whom sentence has just been passed and who is allowed ten days thereafter in which to note his appeals is the correct procedure for the initiation of a collateral attack upon a judgment or sentence. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Common law

The assault contemplated by this section providing that whoever unlawfully assaults or threatens another in a menacing manner shall be fined or imprisoned is common law assault. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

"Assault" at common law is an attempt with force or violence to do a corporal injury to another; and may consist of any act tending to such corporal injury, accompanied with such circumstances as denote at time an intention, coupled with present ability, of using actual violence against person. Id.

Consecutive sentences for two separate offenses

The distinctions that assault and petit larceny are separate and distinct offenses requiring different elements of proof, and that one is a crime of general intent against the person, and the other a crime of specific intent against property, are no longer conclusive in determining the legality of consecutive sentences for two crimes committed in a single course of conduct. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

The compelling reasons which call for the application of the rule of lenity are absent in this case, and there is no substantial doubt Congress would have intended, in the discretion of the court, that consecutive punishment be imposed for historically separate offenses, against different societal interests, for which it has provided separate deterrents. Id.

Consent

Unless there is consent, a sexual touching is sufficiently offensive to constitute an assault. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Even assuming that defendant might both deny offense of indecent assault on member of morals squad of police department and rely on apparent consent, evidence did not require finding as a matter of law that there had been apparent consent on part of police officer. Day v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 148 A. 2d 463).

A case of assault by a man touching another man's genital organ with invitation to homosexual act can be made out only by proof that complaining witness did not consent. McDermott v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 98 A. 2d 287).

A police officer, by his own insidious conduct in patiently and cleverly encouraging and setting stage for furtive homosexual gesture by another man, charged with assault, placed himself in position of consenting to touching of his genital organ by such man, with invitation to homosexual act, and should not be heard to say, as prosecuting witness, that he was assaulted by accused. Id.

Continuance

The granting or refusal of a continuance is largely left to discretion of the trial judge, and his decision will not be disturbed without a clear showing of abuse in the exercise of that discretion. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 574).

Counsel, right to

Though due process does not absolutely require appointment of counsel in all cases where person is deprived of his liberty because of unsound mind, where person charged with criminal offense of assault was subjected to lunacy inquisition prior to trial, due process required that defendant be represented by counsel in spite of ostensible waiver of that right or privilege. Evans v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

Where appellant was asked if he wished counsel and each time he stated he did not and was advised of the seriousness of the charge against him but steadfastly retained his position that counsel was not desired, he was not deprived of his constitutional right, since in the exercise of a free and intelligent choice and with the considered approval of the court, a defendant may competently and intelligently waive the right to counsel. Humphries v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 803).

Cross-examination

Although goal of counsel of defendants charged with assault was to show victim's real background by examining him concerning his employment history and experience, ordering discontinuance of such line of questioning after a recitation that victim had worked at last employment for 8 months, before that for 6 months at another employment and still earlier at a third employment was justified to avoid needless preoccupation with collateral matters. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

While cross-examination is basic right, it is subject to reasonable regulation by court in interest of orderly and expeditious trial. Id.

Cross-examination is an absolute right. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

In prosecution for assault, cross-examination of the prosecutrix respecting her past experiences, emotional history and background to shed light on her testimonial reliability was not unduly curtailed. Id.

Defense of property

In a prosecution for assault on neighbor who went upon defendant's parking lot to retrieve a pet cat which had escaped from the neighbor's house and had hidden in an air shaft in defendant's building, a charge that, if defendant acted in honest belief under the circumstances that there would be injury to his property by virtue of what took place and he used no more force than was necessary to prevent injury to his property, then he would have right to do what he did was erroneous but was beneficial to complaining defendant. R. R. Shehyn v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 404).

Defenses

Fact that police officer specifically denied being hurt, embarrassed or humiliated by alleged touching of his private parts did not negative assault. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

Even though defendant, who was charged with making threats in a menacing manner and with unlawfully possessing an automatic pistol, had been discharged from hospital as having recovered from a mental disorder less than two months before date of alleged crimes, usual presumption of defendant's sanity, under District of Columbia law, existed at the time of trial. Williams v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 828).

Where 13-year-old boy committed an indecent act upon a girl 4 years and 8 months old, act clearly constituted an assault, since child's acquiescence or submission was immaterial. In re Lewis (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 88 A. 2d 582).

Delay in prosecution

In this case the lapse of time which could be attributed to the government did not justify dismissal of assault informations, though defendant did take the stand to testify that he could not remember the circumstances of his arrest, since his lack of memory was not due to the passage of time but to the fact that he had been drinking prior to the alleged assault, and any delay charged the government could thus have no prejudicial effect on defendant's defense, and there were no other circumstances to support a finding of the trial court of vexatious, oppressive, chicanerous or harassing conduct on the government's part. United States v. E. L. Jefferson (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 225).

Double jeopardy

Judgments were required to be vacated and nolle prosequis entered in cases which had been pending before Court of General Sessions where government's action in entering the nolle prosequis could not be characterized as an abuse of its power, and to allow government to file new informations at a subsequent date would not violate double jeopardy clause of Fifth Amendment. United States v. B. H. Foster (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 164).

Elements of assault

Violence in its ordinary meaning is not a necessary element of assault, and attempt to do unlawfully to another any bodily injury however small constitutes an "assault". C. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 532).

Evidence that defendant jostled victim and fumbled with victim's trouser cuffs, and that there was impact at area of victim's hip pocket constituted sufficient evidence to send to jury on question of assault in case involving defendant who had allegedly taken wallet from victim's hip pocket. Id.

Elements of offense

Proof of threats in a menacing manner by words alone does not suffice, under statute proscribing assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner. In the Matter of D. W. J., Jr. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 268).

Evidence—Admissibility

Exclusion of testimony as to victim's prior specific acts of violence, communicated to but not personally observed, by defendant who was accused of assault and claimed self-defense, was error. J. M. King v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 177 A. 2d 912).

In prosecution for assault or homicide accused may show prior acts of violence by alleged victim to support claim of self-defense. Id.

Time alone is not controlling in determining the spontaneity of an exclamation, and of equal importance is whether the declaration was influenced by external circumstances of physical shock or stress of nervous excitement. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

Admitting testimony of witness as to her conversation with the assaulted complainant though more than an hour occurred between the assault and the report to the witness was not error as violating the hearsay rule. Id.

In assault prosecution of defendant, evidence of an offense of sexual nature was admissible and a proper basis for conviction. Guarro v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 408).

In assault prosecution of defendant who allegedly approached prosecution witness and placed his hand on witness' privates and squeezed them, the sexual nature of the alleged assault rendered admissible testimony by prosecution witness, who was an officer assigned to morals division of police department, that defendant had, after his arrest, admitted to officer the prior commission of acts of sodomy. Dyson v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 135).

In prosecution for assault, where government witness admitted on cross-examination that she had waited two weeks after the incident before reporting it to police, testimony on redirect examination that she had not intended to report the incident but later saw defendant commit a similar assault upon another woman and then reported her experience to the police was competent to rebut the issue of delay raised by defendant. Stitely v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

— Arresting officer, testimony of Great caution should be applied in considering testimony of arresting officer in cases where alleged assault is nonviolent sexual touching which by its nature left no traces and to which there were no other witnesses. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

— Burden or proof

In prosecution for assault of a homosexual nature upon a child, child's accusation against defendant must be treated with great caution and government's proof must be of the most convincing kind. Konvalinka v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 778).

In assault prosecution, it was incumbent upon Government to show that the act of the defendant was not accidental and that he had necessary criminal intent. Dyson v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 135).

— Corroboration

Testimony of complaining witness in prosecution for assault was sufficiently corroborated. D. Konvalinka v. United States (1961, 287 F. 2d 346, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 307; aff'g 162 A. 2d 778).

Testimony of complaining witness in prosecution for assault need not be corroborated. Ingram v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 110 A. 2d 693).

Where testimony of certain witnesses would have been merely cumulative if they had been produced, defendants were not entitled to an adverse witness charge. Id.

— Sufficiency

Evidence did not sustain holding that juvenile, who told 13-year-old complainant that juvenile and another would kill him or get someone else to "jump him" if he did not go through broken window and remove certain items from ground-floor apartment and who later received money which the complainant obtained after being made to sell the items, threatened complainant in a menacing manner within meaning of statute proscribing assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner. In the Matter of D. W. J., Jr. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 268).

Evidence, including eyewitness testimony by two police officers that the defendant bumped into complaining witness and stealthily removed wallet from her handbag, that he quickly passed wallet to an accomplice, who hurried from scene, and that victim of crime reacted in an emotional manner on discovering her loss, is sufficient to support convictions of petit larceny and of assault. M. A. Riley v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 291 A. 2d 190).

Evidence sustained conviction of assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Before use of assault statute to cover conduct that appears to fall within bounds of misdemeanor statutes can be countenanced court must be certain that elements of assault had been established. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

Evidence in support of claimed nonviolent sexual touching was not sufficient to support conviction under general assault statute. Id.

Evidence sustained conviction for assault. Hensley v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 77).

Evidence did not sustain conviction for indecent assault upon a police officer. Thomas v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 852).

Evidence sustained conviction for assault. Goodman v. United States of America (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 517).

Evidence of assault

Evidence that heavy bag of coins was taken from victim's hand supported a finding of an interference with person of another sufficient to constitute an assault. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

Fair and impartial trial

Record failed to establish that the tension which developed between court and counsel during course of trial was of such magnitude as to deny the defendant a fair and impartial trial. B. Davis et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 106).

Force

Application of force, or threat of application thereof, in an assault may be made indirectly as well as directly. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Homosexual overture

A prosecution for assault may be sustained under this section for homosexual overture. Alleyne Anderson v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A. 2d 456).

Assault conviction, predicated upon homosexual overture, was sustained. Id.

Identification

Where no suggestion was made to robbery and assault victim that defendant was believed to be one of the two robbers, but only that victim was asked to view two men because they seemed to fit descriptions victim had furnished the police and identification confrontation occurred within an hour to an hour and a half of robbery, the identification confrontation at victim's home shortly after robbery did not violate the defendant's right to due process. United States v. F. Perry (1971, 449 F. 2d 1026, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 364).

Question of identification was one of fact for jury in prosecution for assault and for carrying a deadly weapon. J. J. Durham v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 830).

Inconsistent verdict

In this case, the court held that since there was evidence that defendant not only struck officer with nightstick but also hit him and engaged in general scuffling, finding by jury that defendant was not guilty of charge involving possession of nightstick did not preclude conviction on charge of simple assault. C. T. Matthews v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 826; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 221, 404 U.S. 884).

Indictment

Where defendant was charged with committing "indecent assault" upon girl 4 years and 8 months old and laws in jurisdiction made an unlawful assault a misdemeanor and did not use term "indecent assault", addition of word "indecent" to charge could be treated as surplusage and neither added to nor detracted from the charge. In re Lewis (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 88 A. 2d 582).

Injury suffered

Threat or danger of physical suffering in the ordinary sense is not necessary; the injury suffered by the innocent victim may be the fear, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish caused by the assault. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Instructions

Where assault victim was cross-examined as to whether he had informed treating physician that he had been hit in face by a cane or stick, victim's testimony that he remembered telling doctor he had been stomped and kicked on but that he didn't remember telling doctor that he was beaten in face with a stick is not clearly inconsistent with medical history, which defense counsel introduced through testimony of treating physician, that victim was also hit by cane, or stick, of some sort in the face, and that might have been what victim told physician; thus, the refusal to give requested instruction on use of prior inconsistent statements for purpose of impeachment was not prejudicial. E. A. Marksman v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 241).

Defendant in robbery prosecution was entitled to instruction on assault, where he testified that there had been justifiable assault. J. R. Broughman v. United States (1966, 361 F. 2d 71, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Testimony of assault victim that defendant and two other men were "after" him authorized instruction to jury on theory of aiding and abetting even if defendant's actions did not assume proportions of assault. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Failure to instruct jury as to effect of five-hour delay in reporting alleged assault to the police was not error where no such instruction was requested. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

In prosecution for an assault committed upon a woman in a street car, where woman involved explained her delay in complaining to police by stating that she had not intended to complain until she saw defendant commit the same act upon another woman two weeks later, defendant was entitled, upon a timely request, to have jury instructed that testimony in explanation of delay was to be considered only in respect to delay in making complaint and not as evidence that offense charged was committed but where he failed to do so, no complaint could be made. Stitley v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

Issue of fact

Whether a defendant, who was charged with assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code, had mental disease which should have excused him from criminal responsibility was issue of ultimate fact for the trier thereof. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Motion of acquittal

In assault prosecution, defendant, by offering evidence subsequent to denial of motion of acquittal, waived his rights regarding that motion. Ernesto Guarro v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 408).

Official conduct

Where plainclothes police officer was member of inorals squad, conduct of officer just before alleged sexual assault was of crucial significance bearing on criminal responsibility of assailant. Guarro v. United States (1966, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Prior grand jury action

Where complaint was filed charging defendant with felony, but grand jury returned ignoramus bill and felony complaint was dismissed, federal rule providing that prosecution shall terminate upon filing of dismissal by prosecutor did not preclude trial on information charging misdemeanor. United States v. D. A. Kennedy (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 322).

Probation report

Where record clearly showed that court had inquired into defendant's record prior to imposing sentence following conviction for assault and learned that defendant had committed offense while on probation from previous conviction, trial court, which felt that it had all information that was needed for sentencing, did not abuse discretion in failing to order either a preliminary screening or probation report prior to imposing sentence. W. A. Thomas, W. B. Preston and E. C. Singleton v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 155).

Reversible error

In prosecution for simple assault where defendant, a policeman, testified concerning incidents of his patrol, and where government cross-examined and brought on rebuttal evidence of other assaults under the theory of impeachment, and where upon appeal that theory was abandoned and that of identification substituted and both theories were of tenuous application upon the facts, thus affording the trial court no opportunity to rule upon admissibility under the new theory nor to give proper limiting instruction under it, there was reversible error. Martin v. United States (1942, 127 F. 2d 865, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 399).

In simple assault prosecution, arresting officer's testimony, in response to question whether defendant had denied the assault, that denial took place in presence of defendant's parol officer constituted reversible error, and, when officer volunteered such information, court should have cautioned him and instructed jury to disregard the information or should have granted defendant's motion for mistrial. Yeldell v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 637).

Where in a prosecution for assault, defendant's counsel was deprived of the opportunity of examining defendant again on redirect examination and of the opportunity to call additional defense witnesses who had been sworn at the beginning of the trial, it constitutes reversible error, notwithstanding the absence of objection and exception taken at the trial court. Varrella v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 310).

Review

Defendant prosecuted for assault was not entitled to a continuance and trial before a new jury panel because members thereof were prejudiced in that on the day before defendant's trial his wife was convicted by a jury for carrying a dangerous weapon and the defendant's and wife's jury were selected from the same array, where the defendant's contention had no support in the record.

J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

Defendant convicted of indecent assault had a right of appeal notwithstanding that imposition of sentence was suspended and that defendant was required to give his personal recognizance or bond not to repeat the offense. Thomas v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 852).

Defendant who was convicted of indecent assault and whose sentence was suspended with requirement that defendant give his personal recognizance or bond not to repeat the offense could appeal as a matter of right rather than by application for appeal, notwithstanding statute providing that where penalty imposed is less than $50 review shall be by application. Id.

Party seeking review of alleged erroneous instructions cannot raise objection for the first time on appeal. James Hale v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 74).

In prosecution wherein defendant was convicted of assault, there was no plain error in court's instructions to the jury which would enable defendant to raise error on appeal for the first time. Id.

Sentence—Consecutive

Consecutive sentences were properly imposed on defendant convicted of simple assault and possession of prohibited weapon, notwithstanding that both offenses arose out of his attack on his wife, where government had to prove that defendant attempted to inflict bodily injury and did not have to prove possession of weapon in order to sustain assault charge, and the weapon charge, on the other hand, required proof of possession of weapon but did not require evidence of attempt to harm. E. Cooke v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 508).

Timely notice of appeal

Failure to file timely notice of appeal deprived the District of Columbia Court of Appeals of jurisdiction over a direct appeal. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Weight of evidence

Weight to be given testimony of witnesses who related that the conduct of the defendant at time of alleged assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct, in violation of District of Columbia Code, and shortly thereafter was bizarre and the weight to be given testimony of government witness who related that the defendant was intoxicated at the time of the alleged offenses and that assault was triggered by refusal to serve him beer was for the trier of fact. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

§ 22-505. Assault on member of police force or fire department.

(a) Whoever without justifiable and excusable cause, assaults, resists, opposes, impedes, intimidates, or interferes with any officer or member of any police force operating in the District of Columbia, or any officer or member of any fire department operating in the District of Columbia; or any officer or employee of any penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia, or any officer or employee of the government of the District of Columbia charged with the supervision of juveniles being confined pursuant to law in any facility of the District of Columbia, whether such institution or facility is located within the District of Columbia or elsewhere, while engaged in or on account of the performance of his official duties, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years or both. It is neither justifiable nor excusable cause for a person to use force to resist an arrest when such arrest is made by an individual he has reason to believe is a law enforcement officer, whether or not such arrest is lawful.

(b) Whoever in the commission of any such acts uses a deadly or dangerous weapon shall be imprisoned not more than ten years. (R.S., D.C., § 432; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 95, ch. 159, § 205; Oct. 20, 1965, 79 Stat. 1011, Pub. L. 89-277, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 206, title II, 84 Stat. 601; Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-92, 85 Stat. 316.)

AMENDMENTS

1971—Act Aug. 11, 1971, Pub. L. 92-92, amended subsec. (a) by inserting after "District of Columbia," where such phrase first appears, the following: "or any officer or member of any fire department operating in the District of Columbia,".

1970—Section 206 of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended subsection (a) by adding the following sentence at the end thereof: "It is neither justifiable nor excusable cause for a person to use force to resist an arrest when such arrest is made by an individual he has reason to believe is a law enforcement officer, whether or not such arrest is lawful."

1965—Act Oct. 20, 1965, amended subsection (a) by inserting the matter relating to officers and members of penal and correctional institutions and officers or employees in charge of juveniles.

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the penalty for violation of the section from a fine of $500 or imprisonment for 2 years to a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for 5 years or both, and a maximum of 10 years imprisonment if a dangerous weapon is used.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal after service of sentence

Defendant, who had served sentence, was entitled to have conviction for assault reversed and case remanded, where alleged assault was committed on witness who testified against defendant at preliminary hearing at which defendant had not been accorded right to counsel, and no preliminary hearing was granted on assault charge. O. Dancy, Jr. v. United States (1966, 361 F. 2d 75, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

That defendant had served his sentence did not render case moot in view of effect of felony conviction on civil rights and punishment upon subsequent conviction. Id.

Appeal and error

Though prosecutor had both good faith and reasonable basis for supposing shotgun would be admitted in evidence, display of shotgun and two pistols from start of prosecution of defendant on one count of assault with a dangerous weapon and three counts of assaulting a member of police force with a dangerous weapon was improper; however, since the pistols were admitted in evidence and shotgun was more cumulative than prejudicially different and proof of guilt was overwhelming, the incident was not prejudicial to point of reversible error. United States v. R. D. Lewis (1970, 435 F. 2d 417, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 345).

Arrest

Ultimate guilt of defendant of offense of assault of a police officer would be irrelevant to question of a valid arrest, where existence of probable cause to arrest for assault on the police officer was clear. J. Terrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 860; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1398, 410 U.S. 938).

Assistance of counsel

In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon upon a member of the police department, under the circumstances, failure of defendant's counsel in the trial court to pursue his attempt to impeach a government witness did not constitute ineffective assistance of counsel, nor, under the circumstances, did trial court err in permitting introduction of evidence on the doctrine of flight or in giving an erroneous instruction thereon. Tolliver v. United States (1959, 273 F. 2d 523, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 398).

Consecutive sentences

In considering the permissibility of consecutive sentences, courts look to the intent of Congress; fact that there are two crimes in sense that each contains a separate element is not controlling. United States v. R. D. Lewis (1970, 435 F. 2d 417, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 345).

Where defendant announced he was coming out of apartment and started down stairs and fired gun in direction of two officers as they were standing in first floor hallway and then ran back inside apartment, imposition of consecutive sentences on two counts charging assaults on the two officers with a dangerous weapon knowing them to be members of police department is invalid. Id.

Where defendant fired at two officers and was charged in connection therewith in two counts on which he was convicted and ran back inside apartment and subsequently a bullet fired from second floor window went through a third officer's police hat and hit brick wall behind him, shot from stairs at officers in hallway and shot from apartment at officers in street were distinct successive criminal episodes and consecutive punishment is permissible for count charging assault on third officer with dangerous weapon, knowing him to be member of police department. Id.

Defendant's absence during trial

Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure providing that the defendant shall be present at every stage of trial, including return of verdict, but that his voluntary absence after trial has been commenced in his presence shall not prevent continuing trial to and including return of verdict, is designed primarily to insure defendant's presence, not to permit trial to proceed in his absence. W. R. Wade v. United States (1971, 441 F. 2d 1046, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 356).

Since there was no showing of willful intention on part of the defendant to interfere with ordinary processes of court or of desire not to be present at times when he knew he should have been in court, trial judge was not authorized to proceed without him. Id.

Double jeopardy

Defendant's acquittal of driving with a suspended permit and running a stop sign does not establish that there was no probable cause for arrest for driving automobile without permit, and prosecution for assault on police officer at time of arrest does not place defendant twice in jeopardy for the same offense. United States v. L. O. Spencer (1971, 448 F. 2d 1093, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 170).

There was no double jeopardy when a defendant, after having been convicted of disorderly conduct, was prosecuted for assaulting a police officer, notwithstanding fact that both incidents occurred in relatively short span of time and at same place. H. Harris v. United States (1968, 402 F. 2d 205, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Escape as justified by improper conviction

Attempt to escape and assault on a prison guard was indefensible, and arguments that appellant was not guilty of attempted escape or assault on correctional officer because he had been improperly convicted of attempted burglary and wrongfully confined at workhouse instead of youth correction center were without merit. United States v. J. H. Haley (1969, 417 F. 2d 625).

Evidence

Evidence in this case established that assault on police officer at time of allegedly unlawful arrest was part of such excessive resistance to the arrest as would warrant conviction of assaulting a police officer. United States v. L. O. Spencer (1971, 448 F. 2d 1093, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 170).

Evidence sustained conviction for assault upon police officer. H. E. Lee v. United States (1965, 344 F. 2d 566, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

Evidence sustained conviction for assaulting and interfering with an officer of the metropolitan police department engaged in performance of his official duties. I. R. Lawson v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 520, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

— Admissibility

Spectrograms or voiceprints identifying one of the defendants as maker of telephone call to which police officer was responding when shot is admissible in evidence. United States v. A. Raymond et ano. (1972, 337 F. Supp. 641).

Case in which it is sought to introduce voiceprints presents a situation wherein due to scientific nature of evidence proffered expert testimony is necessarily admissible. Id.

Refusal to admit into evidence a docket entry indicating that victim of shooting had been convicted of assault on a police officer was not improper on basis that the entry had relevance as showing victim's propensity for violence and aggressive behavior thus bolstering defendant's claim of self-defense, where the docket entry disclosed only that victim had been convicted under this section making criminal nonviolent obstruction of police officer in performance of his duty as well as assault and physical interference; and the proffer was inadequate to apprise the court of the relevance of the evidence. A. Jones v. United States of America (1967, 385 F. 2d 296, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Impeachment

In the case, the court held that a prior conviction of attempted housebreaking was properly used for impeachment of defendant charged with unauthorized use of vehicle and assault on police officer. United States v. C. E. White (1970, 427 F. 2d 634, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 364).

Inconsistent verdict

That defendant was convicted for assault upon only one of three police officers involved in fracas, with acquittal of assault upon the other two, presented no basis for faulting the conviction on theory of inconsistent verdict. United States v. L. O. Spencer (1971, 448 F. 2d 1093, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 170).

Instructions

Considering instructions as a whole together with very strong evidence of guilt of defendant of housebreaking, assault with dangerous weapon, assault of police officer with dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to kill, and considering fact that defendant was satisfied with instructions as given, errors in instructions did not affect substantial rights or otherwise require reversal. G. E. Nixon v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 316, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

In prosecution for assaulting police officer, requested instruction as to defendant's right to resist unlawful arrest and use such force as was at his command and necessary to prevent such arrest was properly refused as being too broad and inapplicable to issues of case. Abrams v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 42, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 46, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 575, 352 U.S. 1018, 1 L. Ed. 2d 554).

Joinder

Since the offenses of robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, assault on member of police force, unauthorized use of vehicle, and carrying dangerous weapon were based on two or more connected acts constituting part of common scheme and plan, the defendants were alleged to have participated in same series of acts constituting offenses, and each of defendants aided and abetted offenses charged against other defendants, it was proper for grand jury to join defendants and offenses in the indictment. United States v. C. Wilson, Jr. et ano. (1970, 434 F. 2d 494, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 220).

Jurisdiction

United States District Court for Eastern District of Virginia had jurisdiction of an assault charge resulting from assault upon a correctional officer at District of Columbia Workhouse at Occoquan, Virginia. United States v. J. H. Haley (1969, 417 F. 2d 625).

Prior grand jury action

Where complaint was filed charging defendant with felony, but grand jury returned ignoramus bill and felony complaint was dismissed, federal rule providing that prosecution shall terminate upon filing of dismissal by prosecutor did not preclude trial on information charging misdemeanor. United States v. D. A. Kennedy (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 322).

Remand

Conviction of juvenile of first-degree felony-murder armed robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, assault upon police officer with dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be remanded to District Court to consider possibility of sentencing under the Youth Corrections Act. United States v. W. Howard (1971, 449 F. 2d 1086, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

Resisting arrest

Police officers, who, during course of immediate investigation of an alleged robbery, were informed by victim that defendant passerby was perpetrator of the crime, had probable cause to arrest defendant, and thus defendant, who, as result of efforts to resist arrest, was convicted of simple assault, is not entitled to relief on theory that he had right to use force to resist illegal arrest. L. U. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 274 A. 2d 683).

Sentence

In this case, the court held that the fact that had defendant, convicted before United States District Court for Eastern District of Virginia of assaulting a guard at District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, been sentenced under District of Columbia law rather than under general federal law he might have received benefit of more liberal treatment after sentencing did not constitute denial of equal protection or due process since there is no essential difference between sentencing alternatives. United States v. T. Horton (1970, 423 F. 2d 474).

In view of defendant's age and lack of prior criminal record, and especially apparent feeling of jury that punishment should be tempered with mercy, district court might wish to reconsider sentence imposed for assault upon police officer. H. E. Lee v. United States (1965, 344 F. 2d 566, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

§ 22-506. Mayhem or maliciously disfiguring.

Every person convicted of mayhem or of maliciously disfiguring another shall be imprisoned for not more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 807.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Possession of firearm, additional penalty, see §§ 22-3201, 22-3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

What originated as narrow common-law offense of mayhem is generally today statutory offense of larger dimensions, and transition has been accompanied, if not induced, by a shift in emphasis from military and combative effects of injury to preservation of human body in normal functioning. United States v. E. Cook (1972, 462 F. 2d 301, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Disfigure

To "disfigure" is to make less complete, perfect, or beautiful in appearance or character, and disfigurement, in law as in common acceptance, may well be something less than total and irreversible deterioration of bodily organ. United States v. E. Cook (1972, 462 F. 2d 301, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Cosmetic effects of scarring may be sufficiently severe to bring case within ambit of statute making it an offense to commit mayhem or to maliciously disfigure another. Id.

Elements of offense

Statute making it offense to commit mayhem or maliciously disfigure another requires permanence of injury or disfigurement in some appreciable form. United States v. E. Cook (1972, 462 F. 2d 301, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence in prosecution on charge of maliciously disfiguring another was sufficient to sustain conviction of defendant who threw lye at victim who sustained partial loss of vision and scars. United States v. E. Cook (1972, 462 F. 2d 301, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Intent

So long as an act of mayhem is done maliciously and willfully, a specific intent is not necessary to constitute the crime, since the common-law definition, which is applicable, does not include a specific intention. Brown v. United States (1949, 171 F. 2d 832, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 222).

If an assault be so malicious and willful as to result in the loss of an eye, leg, or arm, it is immaterial to the gravity of the offense of mayhem that the assailant had no specific intention of depriving his victim of the eye, leg, or arm. Id.

Indictment and proof were not insufficient in prosecution for mayhem because a specific intent to maim and disfigure the complainant was neither alleged nor proved, since specific intent was not necessary to constitute mayhem. Id.

§ 22-507. Threats to do bodily harm.

Whoever is convicted in the District of threats to do bodily harm shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, and, in addition thereto or in lieu thereof, may be required to give bond to keep the peace for a period not exceeding one year. (July 16, 1912, 37 Stat. 193, ch. 235, § 2; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 98, ch. 159, § 212; Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 618, Pub. L. 88-241, § 11(b).)

AMENDMENTS

1963—Act Dec. 23, 1963, eliminated from above cited § 2 of the 1912 act provisions relating to concurrent jurisdiction of municipal court and district court of threats to do bodily harm, which jurisdictional provision had been classified to § 11-755d of Part II of this Code, prior to the enactment of revised Part II by the same 1963 act. The eliminated provisions were covered by revised §§ 11-521 (a) (2) and 11-963 (a) (1). Title 11 was completely revised by Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, and the jurisdictional provision is now contained in § 11-923. The only changes made by the 1963 amendment, as far as the provisions of said § 2 of the 1912 act, as amended, classified to this section are concerned, were in matters of style.

1953—Act June 29, 1953, substituted provisions for imprisonment not exceeding six months or fine not exceeding $500 or both and requirement of a bond to keep the peace for one year for former requirement of a peace bond not to exceed six months or, in default of bond, for imprisonment not exceeding six months.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Dec. 23, 1963, was made effective on Jan. 1, 1964.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assistance of counsel

The record did not sustain the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel who was a defense attorney with many years of experience and who presented all substantial defenses, made appropriate motions and objections, attempted to suppress the evidence on the charge of unlawful possession of a pistol after conviction of a felony, and was able to obtain acquittal on a charge of threats to do bodily harm and directed verdict in defendant's favor on a charge of assault by threatening in a menacing manner. I. Gressette v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 418).

Collateral attack on judgment

Bringing of motion for trial court to exercise its inherent power to vacate a sentence and to resentence defendant, thereby restoring him to status of one upon whom sentence has just been passed and who is allowed ten days thereafter in which to note his appeals is the correct procedure for the initiation of a collateral attack upon a judgment or sentence. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Construction

In view of phrasing of statute proscribing threats to do bodily harm, a single threat directed to more than one person constitutes but a single unit of prosecution. L. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 295 A. 2d 60).

Defendant who was convicted of one count of petit larceny and two counts of threats to do bodily harm, but who, with respect to the latter offenses, merely uttered one threat on one occasion to two people could be found guilty of only one of the counts of threats to do bodily harm. Id.

To sustain a conviction for a threat to do bodily harm, it is necessary only that the threats impart expectation of bodily harm thereby inducing fear and apprehension in person threatened. G. Postell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 282 A. 2d 551).

Threat on a condition that victim believes will never occur cannot be actionable under this section prohibiting threats to do bodily harm; however, mere fact that infliction of harm is threatened upon condition does not preclude it from being a "threat" within this section. Id.

Fact that the defendant's threats to inflict bodily harm upon police officers were conditioned upon officers' continuing to arrest his "girls" did not preclude conviction of threatening to do bodily harm in violation of this section. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

The trial court properly refused to allow defendant to testify to events occurring after date of the offense, since defendant made no proffer of excluded testimony other than that he wished "to cast disparity on the elements of the offense," and testimony concerning wife's conduct at a later time would not shed light on whether or not offense was committed and testimony concerning defendant's conduct after offense would have been merely self-serving. P. F. Wilson v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 513).

Admission of testimony that defendant charged with threatening to do bodily harm to complainant had made prior threats to do bodily harm and to shoot her was admissible to show state of mind of defendant and complainant. C. B. McDonald v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 396).

Generally, evidence of offense wholly independent of crime charged is inadmissible, but such evidence is admissible where acts are so blended or connected with the one on trial that proof of one incidentally involves the other, they explain the circumstances of offense charged, or they tend to logically prove any element of the offense. Id.

Evidence of conduct prior to commission of alleged crime is admissible if so related or connected with crime as to establish common scheme of purpose, the pursuance of a single object, or defendant's guilty knowledge, intent, or motive. Id.

Prejudicial error

In prosecution for threats to inflict bodily harm upon police officers if they continued to arrest defendant's "girls", officer's testimony that defendant was a "pimp" was not prejudicial since the descriptive words used by defendant in his threats made his relationship with girls patently clear and officer's characterization of relationship was not in conflict with defendant's own description. G. Postell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 282 A. 2d 551).

Prosecution

Prosecution of juvenile, who told 13-year-old complainant that juvenile and another would kill him or get someone else to "jump him" if he did not go through broken window and remove certain items from ground-floor apartment, should be had, under statute proscribing threats to do bodily harm, for a threat by words conveying a menace or fear of bodily harm. In the Matter of D. W. J., Jr. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 268).

Timely notice of appeal

Failure to file timely notice of appeal deprived the District of Columbia Court of Appeals of jurisdiction over a direct appeal. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

§ 22-508. Penalty for assaulting, beating, or fighting on account of money won by gaming.

[Transferred from former section 16-705]

In case any person or persons whatsoever, shall assault and beat, or shall challenge or provoke to fight any other person or persons whatsoever, upon account of any money won by gaming, playing or betting at any of the games aforesaid, such person or persons assaulting and beating, or challenging or provoking to fight such other person or persons upon the account aforesaid, being thereof convicted upon an indictment or information to be exhibited against him or them for that purpose, shall suffer imprisonment during the term of two years. (9 Ann. ch. 14, § 8, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 692; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 245, § 17.)

CODIFICATION

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1.

Chapter 6.—BIGAMY

Sec.

22-601. Definition and penalty.

§ 22-601. Definition and penalty.

Whoever, having a husband or wife living, marries another shall be deemed guilty of bigamy, and on conviction thereof shall suffer imprisonment for not less than two nor more than seven years: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any person whose husband or wife has been continually absent for five successive years next before such marriage without being known to such person to be living within that time, or whose marriage to said living husband or wife shall have been dissolved by a valid decree of a competent court, or shall have been pronounced void by a valid decree of a competent court on the ground of the nullity of the marriage contract. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 870.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Conclusions of defendant

There must be some honest and effective effort made to ascertain truth before it can be claimed that conclusion of defendant, charged with bigamy, that first wife had obtained divorce had been reached in good faith. Alexander v. United States (1943, 136 F. 2d 783, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 34).

Evidence

Testimony of police officer in bigamy prosecution concerning admissions made to him by defendant was admissible although defendant was not advised that anything he said might be used against him and that he need not make a statement. Matz v. United States (1947, 158 F. 2d 190, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

In prosecution for bigamy, court did not err in compelling the second wife to testify where the certificate of the prior marriage was in evidence, together with testimony as to defendant's admissions directed toward that certificate, and other testimony that defendant and first wife had lived together as husband and wife. Id.

Instructions

Where defendant, charged with bigamy, testified that he received letter stating that first wife had obtained divorce, but defendant made no effort to ascertain true facts, refusing instruction that defendant must be acquitted if he believed at time of second marriage that his first wife had procured a divorce and giving instruction that if jury believed beyond reasonable doubt that at time of second marriage first wife was living and that marriage had not been dissolved by valid decree jury should find defendant guilty was not prejudicial error. Alexander v. United States (1943, 136 F. 2d 783, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 34).

Plea of guilty

The fact that defendant entered a plea of guilty to charge of bigamy without advice of counsel and that not until some time later in the day was counsel, at his request, appointed for him, was not fatal under circumstances. Alexander v. United States (1943, 136 F. 2d 783, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 34).

Chapter 7.—BRIBERY—OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE

Sec.

22-701. Definition and penalty.

22-702. Offering or receiving money, property, or valuable consideration to procure office or promotion from District of Columbia Commissioners.

22-703. Obstructing justice.

§ 22-701. Definition and penalty.

Whoever promises, offers, or gives, or causes or procures to be promised, offered, or given, any money or other thing of value, or makes or tenders any contract, undertaking, obligation, credit, or security for the payment of money, or for the delivery or conveyance of anything of value, to any executive, judicial, or other officer, or to any person acting in any official function, or to any juror or witness, with intent to influence the decision, action, verdict, or evidence of any such person on any question, matter, cause, or proceeding or with intent to influence him to commit or aid in committing, or to collude in or allow any fraud, or make any opportunity for the commission of any fraud, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 861.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accessory before the fact

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where there was sufficient evidence to justify the jury's conclusion that doctor was an accessory before the fact to the attempt at bribery by his wife, he was properly found guilty as a principal. Ladrey v. United States (1946, 155 F. 2d 417, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 127, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U.S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Admissibility of evidence

In prosecution for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case, admission of evidence tending to show that witness was a material witness in the abortion case, consisting of her testimony that she was the person upon whom the operation had been performed, and statement showing the nature of the operation was proper. Ladrey v. United States (1946, 155 F. 2d 417, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 127, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U.S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where facts, other than the statements and acts of wife, were shown from which it could be concluded that a conspiracy between doctor and his wife in fact existed, the evidence of witness and police sergeant concerning the declarations of wife, including the offer of the bribe, was admissible against the doctor, though the declarations were made out of the doctor's presence. Id.

Counsel, right to

Under Constitution's prohibition against unreasonable searches, and its guaranties of due process of law and effective representation by counsel, government agent's intrusion upon conferences between accused and his counsel invalidated conviction under federal "obstruction of justice" statute and District of Columbia bribery statute. Caldwell v. United States (1953, 205 F. 2d 879, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Indictment

Although the act of asking, accepting, or receiving, in violation of § 117 of the Criminal Code (18 U.S.C. § 202) may each constitute a separate offense, it is not duplicitous to charge them all in a single count. Egan v. United States (1923, 287 F. 958, 52 App. D.C. 384).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, evidence that doctor took his wife to a point near the scene of her attempt at bribery, that after her arrest he was found with his automobile parked at a nearby corner, that he made a statement so incredible as to be prima facie false, as well as conflicting statements, together with fact that doctor had a strong motive to eliminate the witness, tended to show a secret combination or conspiracy between doctor and his wife, notwithstanding that indictment did not specifically charge that they had conspired. Ladrey v. United States (1946, 155 F. 2d 417, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 127, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U.S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Jail guard

Affirmance of conviction of bribery of jail guard to falsify records to establish alibi. Siegal v. United States (1933, 61 F. 2d 923, 61 App. D.C. 282, certiorari denied 53 S. Ct. 386, 288 U.S. 602, 77 L. Ed. 978).

Defendant was a person acting in an official function, exercising by delegation a part of the official authority possessed by the superintendent of the jail and if he had corruptly accepted the money, he would have been guilty of accepting a bribe to influence his official conduct. Id.

Official act

"There can be no bribery of any official to do a particular act, unless the law requires or imposes upon him the duty of acting." Thomson v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 461). See, also, Benson v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 331).

§ 22-702. Offering or receiving money, property, or valuable consideration to procure office or promotion from District of Columbia Commissioners.

Every person who directly or indirectly takes, receives, or agrees to receive any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever from any person for giving, procuring, or aiding to give or procure any office, place, or promotion in office from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or from any officer under him, and every person who, directly or indirectly, offers to give, or gives any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever for the procuring or aiding to procure any such office, place, or promotion in office shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the jail for not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 591, ch. 1352; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

CODIFICATION

For technical reasons, the codifiers have not changed the wording of this section to reflect the abolition of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by section 503 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, and the establishment by sections 201 and 301 of the Plan of a single Commissioner and nine-member Council form of government. See, also, the case of United States v. T. W. Bishton, cited in the Notes to Decisions hereunder.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court" was substituted for "police court" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act of July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court." Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Since under reorganization of government of District of Columbia, a single commissioner was assigned executive functions while council was assigned quasi-legislative functions and, under former law, both functions had been exercised by three-member board of commissioners, 1 U.S.C. 1 providing that, in determining meaning of act, words imparting plural include singular is not applicable to permit prosecution under section 22-702 prohibiting receiving money for procuring any office or promotion from the commissioners of District of Columbia. United States v. T. W. Bishton (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 139).

Since there was not a single commissioner of District of Columbia as provided by government reorganization when section 22-702 was drafted prohibiting receiving money for procuring any office or promotion from commissioners of District of Columbia, defendant cannot be prosecuted under section 22-702 which had not been amended to conform to change to single commissioner by the reorganization. Id.

Speedy trial

Where flaw in bribery indictment under D.C. Code § 22-702 was highly technical, Government's decision to prosecute under such Code rather than under Federal statute, and its decision to appeal dismissal of the original indictment rather than immediately seek a Federal indictment did not, in relation to denial of claim of speedy trial, reflect arbitrary, negligent or purposefully oppressive behavior on the part of the Government. United States v. T. W. Bishton (1972, 463 F. 2d 887, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

§ 22-703. Obstructing justice.

(a) Whoever corruptly, by threats or force, endeavors to influence, intimidate, or impede any juror, witness, or officer in any court in the District in the discharge of his duties, or, by threats or force, in any other way obstructs or impedes or endeavors to obstruct or impede the due administration of justice therein, or whoever willfully endeavors by means of bribery, misrepresentation, intimidation, or force or threats of force, to obstruct, delay, or prevent the communication to an investigator of the District of Columbia government by any person of information relating to a violation of any criminal statute in effect in the District of Columbia, or injures any person or his property on account of the giving by such person or by any other person of such information to any such investigator in the course of the conduct of any criminal investigation, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

(b) As used in this section, the term "criminal investigation" means an investigation relating to a violation of any criminal statute in effect in the District of Columbia, and the term "investigator" means an individual duly authorized by the Commissioner or his designated agent to conduct or engage in such an investigation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 862; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 401, title IV, 81 Stat. 736.)

See §§ 1101 and 1102 of Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, set out as notes to § 22-501.

§ 22-704. Corrupt influence—Officials.

Whosoever corruptly, directly or indirectly, gives any money, or other bribe, present, reward, promise, contract, obligation, or security for the payment of any money, present, reward, or thing of value to any ministerial, administrative, executive, or judicial officer of the District of Columbia or any employee or other person acting in any capacity for the District of Columbia, or any agency thereof, either before or after he is qualified, with intent to influence his action on any matter which is then pending, or may by law come or be brought before him in his official capacity, or to cause him to execute any of the powers in him vested, or to perform any duties of him required, with partiality or favor, or otherwise than is required by law, or in consideration that such officer being authorized in the line of his duty to contract for any advertising or for the furnishing of any labor or material, shall directly or indirectly arrange to receive or shall receive, or shall withhold from the parties so contracted with, any portion of the contract price, whether that price be fixed by law or by agreement, or in consideration that such officer has nominated or appointed any person to any office or exercised any power in him vested, or performed any duty of him required, with partiality or favor, or otherwise contrary to law; and whosoever, being such an officer, shall receive any such money, bribe, present, or reward, promise, contract, obligation, or security, with intent or for the purpose or consideration aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of bribery and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not less than six months nor more than five years.

Whosoever corrupts or attempts, directly or indirectly, to corrupt any special master, auditor, juror arbitrator, umpire, or referee, by giving, offering, or promising any gift or gratuity whatever, with intent to bias the opinion, or influence the decision of such officer, in relation to any matter pending in the court, or before an inquest, or for the decision of which such arbitrator, umpire, or referee has been chosen or appointed, and every official who receives, or offers or agrees to receive, a bribe in any of the cases above mentioned shall be guilty of bribery and upon conviction thereof shall be punished as hereinbefore provided. (Feb. 26, 1936, 49 Stat. 1143, ch. 87.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Confessions

Where no criminal charge was pending against policeman at time he made confession which ultimately resulted in indictment charging bribery, at time of confession he had not been arrested, and purpose of investigation was principally to obtain his resignation rather than to lead to a criminal charge, confession was not inadmissible on ground that it was made when defendant was without counsel or advice of counsel. Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 748, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

On the whole record, including policeman's age, experience and position, issue of voluntariness of his confession which ultimately led to indictment for bribery which confession was made after superior read statutes regarding forfeiture of office or employment by District of Columbia employee who refuses to testify to matters relating to his office or employment was a factual one which, had it been decided in proper manner, would not necessarily have resulted in exclusion of the confession as evidence. Id.

Where trial court, in admitting confession against claim of involuntariness, was influenced by inquiry into its truth, and trial judge failed to instruct jury on their responsibility in the matter, conviction would be set aside and case remanded to district court for new trial, preceded by a determination of issue of voluntariness in a manner which met the standards laid down by the Supreme Court. Id.

That substantial evidence other than confession improperly admitted supports guilty verdict does not suffice to remedy the error in admitting such confession. Id.

Arrest

Under circumstances including showing that policeman had been escorted to headquarters by another officer for purpose of questioning regarding alleged conduct which subsequently led to indictment charging bribery, that when investigation was concluded and confession placed in writing and signed policeman resigned from force and left building without being arrested, and that he was not indicted until about a month after investigatory session, conduct of policeman's superiors in pursuing inquiries fell short of an "arrest". Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 748, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Evidence

In prosecution for conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery itself to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, even if recordings of conversations between police officer who was subject of bribery, and defendants, were intercepted and recorded, and were introduced in evidence in violation of Federal Communications Act section, such question would not be reached in instant prosecution as instant use made of recordings was for refreshing recollection of police officer before giving his own testimony of the recorded conversations. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U.S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U.S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U.S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U.S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

In prosecution for conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery itself to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, recordings of conversations between police officer and defendants were admissible in evidence, where police officer testified as to operation of recording device, his method of operating such device, accuracy of the recordings, and identities of persons speaking. Id.

In prosecution for conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery itself, to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, contention that recordings of conversations between police officer, who was subject of the conspiracy and bribery, and defendants were illegally intercepted and used in preparation of Government's trial was without merit where police officer himself made the recordings and transmitted the same information legally to other police officers to be utilized in preparation for trial of defendants. Id.

— Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to show a mutual knowledge of a common criminal enterprise. L. Wallace et al. v. United States (1969, 412 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 50; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1613, 402 U.S. 950).

Indictment

Where defendants made motion before trial attacking indictment charging them with conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery itself on ground of alleged misjoinder of substantive charges, such motion went to validity of indictment and not to question of advisability of separate trials. Monroe et al. v. United States

(1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U.S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Where offenses of conspiracy to bribe and bribery charged in indictment were of the same or similar character, and defendants charged with such crimes were alleged to have participated in same conspiracy, joinder of offenses and defendants in the indictment was permissible under Federal Criminal Procedure Rule. Id.

Joint trial of separate charges

In prosecution for conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, defendants, who were convicted on only part of the substantive counts, and who were not involved in the conspiracy, were not prejudiced by trial of the conspiracy charge and bribery charges together, in view of the different number of convictions entered against the different defendants indicating that the jury was selective and was returning verdicts only upon basis of evidence relevant to each count and each defendant and also where court charged in considerable detail as to the separate substantive counts. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U. S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Pre-trial inspection

Under Federal Criminal Procedure Rule providing for pre-trial inspection of books, papers, documents or other objects designated in a subpoena, trial court was well within its discretion in declining to order inspection of original recordings of conversations between police officer and defendants, who were charged with conspiracy to bribe and bribery of police officer, where original recordings were too fragile to be used for discovery playing and where an affidavit was filed in which the accuracy of reproduction from the originals were certified and truth of affidavit was not brought into question. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U. S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Recorded evidence—Admissibility

Defendant who was charged with conspiracy to violate bribery statute was not in a position to challenge manner in which recordings, which contained admissions by codefendants through use of informer, were obtained. L. Wallace et al. v. United States (1969, 412 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 50; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1613, 402 U.S. 950).

Reversible error

In prosecution for conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery itself to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, refusal of trial court to grant defendants' request to make stenographic transcripts of recordings between police officers and defendants or to be furnished copies of transcripts by Government was not reversible error, where defendants were given opportunity to hear recordings and where parts of recordings admitted in evidence were played out of presence of jury with defendant's counsel present. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U.S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U.S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U.S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Sentence

Where defendant was convicted on count of conspiracy to bribe police officer, and also was convicted on intimately related bribery counts, and sentence under conspiracy count was for longer time than his concurrent sentence for bribery, conspiracy and bribery charges would be affirmed if no reversible error impaired conspiracy conviction. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S.

Ct. 219, 352 U. S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Separate trial

If defendants, who were charged with conspiracy to bribe police officer and also for bribery to influence officer in enforcement of gambling laws, wished to be tried separately on those charges, request for separate trial on such charges should have been made in the trial court by motion under Federal Criminal Procedure Rule providing for such relief. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U.S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Under Federal Criminal Procedure Rule providing for severance of offenses or defendants in event of prejudice as result of such joinder, defendants, who were only ones convicted in prosecution for conspiracy with other defendants, if they had requested separation of the substantive counts from the conspiracy count, would not have been prejudiced by refusal of trial court to grant motion, where evidence of their participation in conspiracy was complete and included other defendants on trial for substantive counts. Id.

Variance

If alleged variance existed between count of indictment which charged one conspiracy of all the defendants to bribe police officer, and evidence which allegedly showed several conspiracies, such variance was not reversible error in regard to convictions of two of the defendants on the conspiracy count, where conspiracy of the two convicted embraced the other defendants in the plan, thus preventing surprise, and also in view of fact that the defendants would not be prejudiced by the variance in defending on ground of present conviction in event of attempted second prosecution for same offense, as resort could be had by defendants to record of evidence or even to parole evidence if necessary. Monroe v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 49, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 228, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 94, 352 U. S. 873, 1 L. Ed. 2d 76, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 219, 352 U. S. 937, 1 L. Ed. 2d 170, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 114, 355 U. S. 875, 2 L. Ed. 2d 79).

Whoever overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates, or cruelly kills, or causes or procures to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, mutilated, or cruelly killed any animal, and whoever, having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, or unnecessarily fails to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from the weather, shall for every such offense be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-802, 22-806, 22-807, 22-809, 22-811 to 22-813.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case the court held the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for failing to provide full grown German shepherd dog, which was tied by three-foot chain on open concrete back porch of defendant's home during temperatures ranging from 23 degrees to 27 degrees Fahrenheit, with proper shelter or protection from weather, in absence of testimony by someone experienced in care of dog of this type, not necessarily a veterinarian, that shelter or protection from weather supplied this dog on this occasion would tend to cause dog to suffer. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848).

Expert testimony

In a prosecution under this section for failing to provide dog with proper shelter or protection from weather, stipulation that the physician who observed the dog was a qualified physician did not have effect of qualifying the physician as expert on care and handling of dogs. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848).

Findings

A defendant can be convicted of unnecessarily failing to provide a dog with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from weather without a finding that he inflicted unnecessary cruelty upon the dog. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848).

§ 22-802. Other cruelties to animals.

Every owner, possessor, or person having the charge or custody of any animal, who cruelly drives or works the same when unfit for labor, or cruelly abandons the same, or who carries the same, or causes the same to be carried, in or upon any vehicle, or otherwise, in an unnecessarily cruel or inhuman manner, or knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the same to be subjected to unnecessary torture, suffering, or cruelty of any kind, shall be punished for every such offense in the manner provided in section 22-801. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 135, ch. 106, § 2.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-806, 22-812, 22-813.

§ 22-803. Transportation of animals by railroad companies—Rest—Water—Feeding by railroad company—Cost—Penalty.

No railroad company, in the carrying or transportation of animals, shall permit the same to be confined in cars for a longer period than twenty-four hours, without unloading the same, for rest, water, and feeding, for a period of at least five consecutive hours, unless prevented from so unloading by storm or other accidental causes. In estimating such confinement the time during which such animals have been confined without such rest on connecting roads from which they are received shall be included; it being the intent of this section to prohibit their continuous confinement beyond the period of twenty-four hours, except upon contingencies hereinbefore stated. Animals so unloaded shall be properly fed, watered, and sheltered during such rest by the owner or person having the custody thereof, or in case of his default in so doing, then by the railroad company transporting the same, at the expense of said owner or persons in custody thereof. And said company shall, in such case, have a lien upon such animals for food, care, and custody furnished, and shall not be liable for any detention of such animals authorized by this section. Any company, owner, or custodian of such animals who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall, for each and every such offense, be liable for and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one or more than five hundred dollars: Provided, however, That when animals shall be carried in cars in which they can and do have proper food, water, space, and opportunity for rest, the foregoing provisions in regard to their being unloaded shall not apply. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 135, ch. 106, § 3.)

CODIFICATION

This section is probably superseded in part by 45 U.S.C. §§ 71—74.

And the person making such arrest shall have a lien on said animals for the expense of such care and provisions. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 136, ch. 106, § 4.)

for such belief, shall issue a search warrant, authorizing any marshal, deputy marshal, police officer, or any member of the Washington Humane Society to search such building or place. (Leg. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 138, ch. 106, § 10; June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 60, ch. 135, § 4.)

§ 22-812. Abandonment of maimed or diseased animal—Destruction of diseased animals—Disposition of animal or vehicle on arrest of driver—Scientific experiments.

A person being the owner or possessor or having charge or custody of a maimed, diseased, disabled, or infirm animal who abandons such animal, or leaves it to lie in the street or road, or public place, more than three hours after he receives notice that it is left disabled, is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in jail not more than one year, or both. Any agent or officer of the Washington Humane Society may lawfully destroy, or cause to be destroyed, any animal found abandoned and not properly cared for, appearing, in the judgment of two reputable citizens called by him to view the same in his presence, to be glandered, injured, or diseased past recovery for any useful purpose. When any person arrested is, at the time of such arrest, in charge of any animal, or of any vehicle drawn by any animal, or containing any animal, any agent of said society may take charge of such animal and such vehicle and its contents and deposit the same in a place of safe custody or deliver the same into the possession of the police authorities, who shall assume the custody thereof; and all necessary expenses incurred in taking charge of such property shall be a lien thereon.

Nothing contained in sections 22-801 to 22-809, inclusive, and sections 22-811, 22-1109 shall be construed to prohibit or interfere with any properly conducted scientific experiments or investigations, which experiments shall be performed only under the authority of the faculty of some regularly incorporated medical college, university, or scientific society. ### Chapter 9.—DOMESTIC RELATIONS

Sec.

22-901. Cruelty to children.

22-902. Refusal or neglect of guardian to provide for child under 14 years of age.

22-903 to 22-906. Repealed.

§ 22-901. Cruelty to children.

Any person who shall torture, cruelly beat, abuse, or otherwise wilfully maltreat any child under the age of eighteen years; or any person, having the custody and possession of a child under the age of fourteen years, who shall expose, or aid and abet in exposing, such child in any highway, street, field, house, outhouse, or other place, with intent to abandon it; or any person, having in his custody or control a child under the age of fourteen years, who shall in any way dispose of it with a view to its being employed as an acrobat, or a gymnast, or a contortionist, or a circus rider, or a rope-walker, or in any exhibition of like dangerous character, or as a beggar, or mendicant, or pauper, or street singer, or street musician; or any person who shall take, receive, hire, employ, use, exhibit, or have in custody any child of the age last named for any of the purposes last enumerated, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, when convicted thereof, shall be subject to punishment by a fine of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both. (Feb. 13, 1885, 23 Stat. 303, ch. 58, § 3; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 814.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section making it a crime to torture, cruelly beat, abuse, or otherwise wilfully maltreat a child calls for something worse than good intentions coupled with bad judgment. Mullen v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 275, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 25).

Acrobatics

This section is limited to dangerous acrobatics, and, to support conviction thereunder, government must prove acts of recklessness which endanger life or limb. R. Nesbitt v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 205 A. 2d 505).

Defendant who arranged performances in tumbling, body-supporting and pyramids and included two children under 14 years of age was not guilty of attempting to use children under 14 years of age in acrobatics, in absence of evidence that there were any acts of recklessness which might endanger life or limb. Id.

Child as agency for commission of crime

One may be guilty of a crime where the prohibited act is committed through the agency of mechanical or chemical means, as by instruments, poison or powder, or by an animal, a child, or other innocent agent acting under the direction and compulsion of the accused. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Common law

Offense prescribed while not expressed in terms of assault, comes within the common-law concept of that offense. Beausoliel v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 292, 71 App. D.C. 111).

Instructions

Even though, in prosecution for cruelty to children, "willfulness" was mentioned in indictment and in statute as read to jury, and was generally defined, failure to include instruction on "willfulness" in its evil mind connotation as an essential element of the offense was plain error. United States v. E. Thomas (1972, 459 F. 2d 1172, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

Failure in prosecution charging act of cruelty to child as having occurred "on or about October 11, 1968" to instruct that all elements comprising cruelty offense must have occurred on October 11, 1968, as distinguished from those occurring on previous occasions was plain error. Id.

Failure to instruct that jury was required to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was under a legal duty to supply food and necessities to infant before they could find her guilty of manslaughter in failing to provide such items was plain error. M. L. Jones v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 307, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Finding of legal duty was critical element of crime of involuntary manslaughter based on breach of legal obligation to provide food and necessities to an infant, with such failure resulting in his death. Id.

In prosecution of mother, who left her children chained in her home while she was absent, under this section making it a crime to torture, cruelly beat, abuse, or otherwise wilfully maltreat a child, instruction that jury should decide whether mother was acting reasonably under the circumstances or whether her action was unreasonable and dangerous was reversibly erroneous because of omission of requirement of an evil state of mind. Mullen v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 275, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 25).

Merger of offenses

Charge of cruelty to child did not merge into manslaughter conviction, in that count charging cruelty had societal purposes as well as essential elements differing from those in count which charged second-degree murder and under which defendant was convicted of manslaughter. United States v. E. Thomas (1972, 459 F. 2d 1172, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

Privileged communication

Admission of defendant to Lutheran minister that she had chained her children after he had urged her to confess her sins, was a "privileged communication" and testimony thereof by minister was inadmissible in prosecution under this section making it a crime to torture, cruelly beat, abuse, or otherwise willfully maltreat a child. Mullen v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 275, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 25).

§ 22-902. Refusal or neglect of guardian to provide for child under 14 years of age.

Any person within the District of Columbia, of sufficient financial ability, who shall refuse or neglect to provide for any child under the age of fourteen years, of which he or she shall be the parent or guardian, such food, clothing, and shelter as will prevent the suffering and secure the safety of such child, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to punishment by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the workhouse of the District of Columbia for not more than three months, or both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1095, ch. 847, § 4.)

CROSS REFERENCE

§§ 22-903 to 22-906. Repealed. July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 165(a)(b), title I, 84 Stat. 586.

Sections 22-903 to 22-905, being sections 1 to 3 of Act of Mar. 23, 1906, 34 Stat. 86 and 87, ch. 1131, dealt with punishment for wilful failure to support wife or child, evidence required to prove marriage and parenthood and the payment by the superintendent of the workhouse of money to the wife earned by prisoner.

Section 22-906, being a part of the Act of May 18, 1910, 36 Stat. 403, ch. 248, dealt with deposit of moneys collected by the clerk of juvenile court, pursuant to sections 22-903 to 22-905.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF REPEAL

See note preceding section 11-101.

CROSS REFERENCE

For provisions relating to support, see chapters 9 and 23 of title 16 and chapter 3 of title 30.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR § 22-903

Abuse of discretion

No abuse of discretion appeared in denial of motion to withdraw guilty plea to nonsupport charge against defendant who, though he had previously pleaded guilty to similar charge, contended that he did not recognize significance of charge and that failure to support was due to financial inability. W. Campbell Jr. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 168 A. 2d 532).

Constitutionality

The provisions for punishment under the act not being severable, the act is unconstitutional. United States v. Moreland (1922, 42 S. Ct. 368, 258 U.S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 24 A.L.R. 992).

— Counsel, right to

Where petitioner was convicted in the juvenile court upon a plea of guilty of refusing to provide for the support of his minor child, and at the time of his arraignment he was not told that he was waiving his right to counsel and was not represented by counsel and was not advised of his "right to counsel," he did not under these circumstances "waive" his right to counsel; therefore his constitutional rights to the assistance of counsel were violated with consequent loss of jurisdiction in the juvenile court to convict and sentence him, and he was entitled to discharge on writ of habeas corpus. Evans v. Rives (1942, 126 F. 2d 633, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 242).

— Double jeopardy

Prisoner sentenced on defective information charging nonsupport was placed in jeopardy and subsequent filing of new information, based on alleged nonsupport during same period, and sentence thereunder was barred. Burke v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 103 A. 2d 348).

Domicile

Under this statute a husband domiciled in another state is not chargeable under this act with refusal to support child. United States ex rel. Smith v. Mathues (D.C. Pa. 1923, 284 F. 368).

In proceeding against person indicted under this statute, and who is found in another district, technical objections to indictment are for the court where the indictment is lodged. In re Parker (D.C. Cal. 1924, 299 F. 1006, affirmed 3 F. 2d 903, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 513, 268 U.S. 694, 69 L. Ed. 1161).

Person indicted under this statute may be removed from another district, since a violation of the act is in fact a crime against the United States. Parker v. United States (C.C.A. 9, 1925, 3 F. 2d 903, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 513, 268 U.S. 694, 69 L. Ed. 1161).

Where husband was not in the District of Columbia at time he allegedly failed to support his children, as charged in indictment, he did not violate this section, and court would deny petition for husband's removal to the District. United States v. Johnson (D.C. Or. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 615).

A resident of the District of Columbia who had not failed to provide support for wife while within the District, and who left the District for Oregon where he was employed for about two years until he first failed to furnish support, did not violate this section. Id.

Information

Information charging husband with nonsupport of wife and minor children but omitting word "wilfully" was fatally defective. Burke v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 103 A. 2d 347).

Information charging defendant with nonsupport of wife and minor children but omitting word "wilfully" was defective, but not void, and hence could not have served as basis for application for writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Information charging that parent had neglected to provide for support and maintenance of child was fatally defective to charge statutory crime of wilful neglect of children because it failed to charge that neglect was wilful. Seidenberg v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 463).

Jurisdiction

Since the jurisdiction conferred upon the juvenile court for the District of Columbia relates only to cases involving children arising under § 11-902 et seq. [now § 16-2316] the juvenile court exceeded its jurisdiction in attempting to hold defendant for nonsupport of his wife only; the welfare of no children being involved. Ex parte Wilson (D.C.D.C. 1940, 79 F. Supp. 816).

In cases involving nonsupport of wife and minor children, the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia is concurrent with that of the District Court. Burke v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 103 A. 2d 347).

Nonresident

Where indictment did not describe the accused as a "person in the District of Columbia," and evidence showed he was not a resident of District of Columbia, denial of a motion for warrant of removal to District of Columbia was proper. United States ex rel. Smith v. Mathues (D.C. Pa. 1923, 284 F. 368).

Presentation or indictment

Fact that prisoner receives maximum sentence under this statute, without having been presented or indicted by grand jury, does not of itself render said sentences void. United States v. Moreland (1922, 42 S. Ct. 368, 258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 24 A. L. R. 992).

Sentence

The test of infamy is not the sentence imposed but rather that which may be imposed under the statute. United States v. Moreland (1922, 42 S. Ct. 368, 258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 24 A. L. R. 992).

Court has no jurisdiction to impose a sentence involving hard labor where there has been no indictment or presentment by a grand jury. Moreland v. United States (1922, 276 F. 640, 51 App. D. C. 118, affirmed 42 S. Ct. 368, 258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 24 A. L. R. 992).

Separate offenses

This section making it misdemeanor for husband to wilfully neglect or refuse to provide for destitute wife or for any person to desert and wilfully neglect to support minor children under sixteen years of age, by use of disjunctive "or" makes two crimes, one by husband against his wife and the other by any person against his or her minor child, and one may be convicted for both nonsupport of wife and minor children thereunder as separate crimes. Burke v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 50, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 230).

Support payments

Where defendant, found guilty of failing to support his minor child, had agreed with his separated wife to submit their contentions as to amount to be paid for child support to the Juvenile Court for determination, order, made upon the basis of evidence of defendant's salary and expenses, that he pay $10 a week out of a $192 net monthly income for child support, did not appear unreasonable and was not an abuse of discretion. Mack v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 567).

Witness

Wife is competent witness in proceedings for removal under R.S. § 1014. Parker v. United States (C.C.A. 9, 1925, 3 F. 2d 903, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 513, 268 U. S. 694, 69 L. Ed. 1161).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR § 22-904

Witness

State rule as to competency of witnesses does not apply in view of this section. In re Parker (D.C. Cal. 1924, 299 F. 1006, affirmed 3 F. 2d 903, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 513, 268 U. S. 694, 69 L. Ed. 1161).

Chapter 10.—FORNICATION

Sec.

- 22-1001. Repealed.
- 22-1002. Fornication.

§ 22-1001. Repealed. June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 864, ch. 645, § 21, eff. Sept. 1, 1948.

Section, act Mar. 3, 1887, 24 Stat. 636, ch. 397, § 5, was made applicable to the District of Columbia by act Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1149, ch. 321, § 318, and was repealed by the revision of U. S. Code, title 18.

§ 22-1002. Fornication.

If any unmarried man or woman commits fornication in the District, each shall be fined not more than $300 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 214.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Definition of District, see note under § 1-319.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Jurisdiction

The offense here denounced does not fall within the category of those offenses defined as within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States, and a single act committed between an unmarried man and an unmarried woman, aboard a ship en route to a foreign country, does not bring such act within the punishment of the courts of the United States. Ex parte Isojoki (D.C. Cal. 1915, 222 F. 151).

Nature of offense

Government employee's alleged taking of a hotel room with a prostitute did not constitute "criminal conduct" which would support dismissal of the government employee where the conduct charged was not a crime under applicable laws even though employee had admitted his act to police and had forfeited collateral following a purported arrest therefor. A. Pelicone v. L. H. Hodges, Secretary etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 754, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

§ 22-1101. Affrays.

Whoever is convicted of an affray in the District shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (July 16, 1912, 37 Stat. 192., ch. 235, § 1; Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 617, Pub. L. 88-241, § 11(a).)

CODIFICATION

The provisions of § 1 of act July 16, 1912, cited to text of this section, insofar as they relate to the keeping of a bawdy or disorderly house, are classified to § 22-2722.

AMENDMENT

1963—Act Dec. 23, 1963, eliminated from above cited § 1 of the 1912 act provisions relating to concurrent jurisdiction of municipal court and district court of offenses of affrays and the keeping of bawdy and disorderly houses, which jurisdictional provisions had been classified to § 11-755c of Part II of this Code, prior to the enactment by the same 1963 act of revised Part II. The eliminated provisions were covered by §§ 11-521(a) (2) and 11-963(a) (1). Title 11 was completely revised by Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, and the jurisdictional provision is now contained in § 11-923. The only changes made by the 1963 amendment, as far as the provisions of said § 1 of the 1912 Act, as amended, classified to this section are concerned, were in matters of style.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Dec. 23, 1963, was made effective on Jan. 1, 1964.

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1328, ch. 854, § 853.)

§ 22-1104. Leaving the District to give or receive challenge.

If any person, for the purpose of evading the provisions aforesaid, shall leave the District, by previous arrangement or concert within the same, with intent to give or receive any such challenge without the District, and shall give or receive the same accordingly, the person or persons so offending shall be punished in the same manner as if said challenge had been given and received within the District. Former sections 22-1105 and 22-1106 were applicable to the District of Columbia. Dane v. United States (1927, 18 F. 2d 811, 57 App. D. C. 161, certiorari denied 48 S. Ct. 35, 275 U. S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413).

Indictment

Indictment charging promoter of fight between other with "engaging" in fight was not insufficient. Dane v. United States (1927, 18 F. 2d 811, 57 App. D. C. 161, certiorari denied 48 S. Ct. 35, 275 U. S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413).

Acquittal of fighters was not inconsistent with conviction of promoter. Id.

§ 22-1107. Unlawful assembly—Profane and indecent language.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the District of Columbia to congregate and assemble in any street, avenue, alley, road, or highway, or in or around any public building or inclosure, or any park or reservation, or at the entrance of any private building or inclosure, and engage in loud and boisterous talking or other disorderly conduct, or to insult or make rude or obscene gestures or comments or observations on persons passing by, or in their hearing, or to crowd, obstruct, or incommode, the free use of any such street, avenue, alley, road, highway, or any of the foot pavements thereof, or the free entrance into any public or private building or inclosure; it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to curse, swear, or make use of any profane language or indecent or obscene words, or engage in any disorderly conduct in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, public park or inclosure, public building, church, or assembly room, or in any other public place, or in any place wherefrom the same may be heard in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, public park or inclosure, or other building, or in any premises other than those where the offense was committed, under a penalty of not more than $250 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or both for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 323, ch. 320, § 6; July 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 723, ch. 638; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 97, ch. 159, § 210.)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Act June 29, 1953, substituted "$250 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or both" for "twenty-five dollars."

1898—Act July 8, 1898, amended section generally. Prior to the amendment the section read: "It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the District of Columbia to congregate and assemble at the corners of any of the streets or avenues, or in any street, avenue, or alley, road, or highway, or on the foot pavements or flag footways of any street or avenue, or at the entrance or on the steps, cellar doors, porches, or porticos of any public or private building or office, or at the entrance of any public or private building or office, or at the entrance, or in, on, or around any of the inclosures of the Capitol, Executive Mansion, public squares, District buildings, Judiciary Square, or at the entrance of any church, schoolhouse, theater, or any assembly room, or in or around the same, or any other public or private inclosure within the said District, and be engaged in loud or boisterous talking, or to insult or make rude or obscene comments or remarks or observations on persons passing by the same, or in their hearing, or to so crowd, obstruct, or incommode the said foot pavement or flag footway, or the entrance into or out of any such church, public or private dwelling, city hall, Executive Mansion, Capitol, or such public inclosure, square or alley, highway or road, as to prevent the free and uninterrupted passage thereof, under a penalty of not more than twenty-five dollars for each and every such offense."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Generally

Generally, disorderly conduct embraces those actions or words which tend to corrupt public morals or outrage sense of public decency and is not limited to those acts which tend to breach peace or cause actual disturbance. Duncan v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 110).

Even if disorderly conduct statute required as an element or proof circumstances which may tend to incite breach of peace, obscene words spoken by defendant in fairly loud voice, about five feet away from police officer, were meant for his ears even if not spoken directly to him and as such they were insulting, degrading, abusive and fighting words and an invitation to trouble and breach of peace. Id.

Abuse of discretion

Finding that defendant had, as charged in the information, engaged in loud and boisterous talking and other disorderly conduct was an independent basis of defendant's conviction, distinct from his alleged use of profane, indecent and obscene words, and court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendant's application for allowance of an appeal. Stone v. District of Columbia (1966, 359 F. 2d 275, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 291).

Advisory opinions on appeal

Where Court of General Sessions of the District of Columbia granted motion to dismiss disorderly conduct charge on several grounds but subsequently vacated dismissal with respect to jurisdictional ground only and question of prosecutorial authority was certified to Court of Appeals, any action Court of Appeals might take on certified question could not alter dismissal of charges and hence certificate was dismissed. District of Columbia v. M. S. Barry et al. (1967, 387 F. 2d 860, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Appeal and error

Court of Appeals, on appeal from conviction for disorderly conduct and simple assault, was reluctant to determine whether police department form containing information as to time, place and date of offense, name of complainant, names and addresses of witnesses, and description of details of offense was produceable under Jencks Act but would give trial court opportunity in first instance to decide issue of produceability under established guidelines. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

If trial court, in determining issue of produceability of police report form under Jencks Act, found that statement should have been made available, error in failing to require production of statement would not be harmless and would require new trial on charges of disorderly conduct and simple assault. Id.

Record on appeal from conviction for carrying concealed pistol without license failed to establish plain error warranting reversal, notwithstanding failure to raise issue below, on ground that defendant's arrest for disorderly conduct was sham employed by police as gamble for detecting larger crime. H. Johnson v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 489, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Applicability of Jencks rule

Jencks rule of evidence applies in District of Columbia Court of General Sessions whether case is prosecuted by District of Columbia or by United States. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

Arrest

Where defendant, charged with disorderly conduct and simple assault, subsequent to order of police officer to clear street corner walked away reluctantly and when about five feet from officer spoke obscene words in fairly loud voice, defendant's arrest was legal. Duncan v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 110).

— Validity

Arrest of defendant for use toward officer of abusive, insulting, obscene language in protest against direction that he and a group of others on sidewalk move on was valid. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Congregating and assembling

Defendant could not have been convicted of engaging in loud and boisterous talking and other disorderly conduct since requisite element of congregating and assembling was neither charged nor proved. W. R. Franklin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 677).

Defendant could not have been convicted of fighting in street since proof was that incident occurred inside police station. Id.

The "Congregate and assemble" provision of this section requires presence of three or more persons acting in concert for an unlawful purpose. A. Kinoy v. District of Columbia (1968, 400 F. 2d 761, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Under this section making it illegal for person or persons to congregate and assemble and to engage in loud and boisterous talking or disorderly conduct, a "congregation" requires at least three persons. Id.

Under this section there can be no "unlawful assembly" where only two persons at the most are assembled. Id.

At common law the mere act of assembling was not unlawful, unless it was for an unlawful purpose. Neither is a peaceful assembly unlawful under this section. It does not condemn the mere act of assembling on the street, but prohibits assembling and congregating, coupled with the doing of the forbidden acts. In other words, at common law the assembly must be for an unlawful purpose, and when three or more persons so assembled the offense was complete without the commission of any additional overt criminal act; but here it requires both the assembly and the commission of one of the acts forbidden by the statute to constitute unlawful assembly. Both the assembling and the overt act are essential to make the offense. G. S. Hunter et al. v. District of Columbia (1918, 47 App. D.C. 406).

Construction

This section prohibiting use of profane or obscene language in public would be valid if interpreted to require that language be spoken in circumstances which threaten a breach of the peace. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (1969, 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56; rev'g 227 A. 2d 60).

Words "other disorderly conduct" within statute had to be read with preceding words "loud and boisterous talking" and was intended to mean other like disorderly actions while assembled in Capitol grounds, such as screaming, loud singing, clapping and similar noisy outbursts of sound, and merely "going limp", without active physical resistance and absent loud and boisterous vocal disturbance, could not be reasonably equated with "other disorderly conduct" within statute. G. E. Jalbert et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 94).

Corporation Counsel's authority to prosecute

Under statute restricting corporation counsel's authority to cases in which punishment is fine only or imprisonment not to exceed one year, corporation counsel lacked authority to initiate prosecution for disorderly conduct which was punishable by fine of not more than $250 or imprisonment of not more than 90 days, or both. District of Columbia v. Mark Grimes (1968, 404 F. 2d 1337, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

Double jeopardy

There was no double jeopardy when a defendant, after having been convicted of disorderly conduct, was prosecuted for assaulting a police officer, notwithstanding fact that both incidents occurred in relatively short span of time and at same place. H. Harris v. United States (1968, 402 F. 2d 205, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Elements of offense

The opinion in a prior case suggested that it was not necessary to a conviction for disorderly conduct that the words used have tended to provoke a breach of the peace, but even assuming that such requirements existed, it was satisfied by showing that defendant had stated to police officers "You m---r f---s keep out of this" since words uttered were indecent, obscene and patently offensive "fighting words" whose very use not only inflicted injury but tended to provoke an immediate breach of peace. W. R. Franklin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 677).

Consequential or probable breach of the peace is not an element of offense under statute making it unlawful to curse, swear, or use profane language or indecent or obscene words in any public way. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Dismissal of charge under general disorderly conduct statute removed need for finding that breach of the peace was threatened by offensive language of defendant, who was also charged with use of profane language or indecent or obscene words on public sidewalk. Id.

Defendant's conduct and not crowd's reaction to it must be starting point for determining whether defendant's message was of such nature as to come within ambit of free speech guarantee of First Amendment, and audience reaction and immediacy of disorder become significant elements of proof of disorderly conduct only after speaker passes bounds of argument or persuasion and undertakes incitement to riot. C. R. Allen v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 888).

Defendant's activities in counterpicketing another organization by carrying a sign demanding more police brutality for "Reds" and dragging what purported to be flag of a foreign government on ground in front of crowd, which gave no open displays of anger or threats of violence, was within protection of First Amendment and did not constitute disorderly conduct. Id.

Evidence

Evidence sustained defendant's conviction for disorderly conduct and simple assault. Duncan v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 110).

Admission, in prosecution for using profane, indecent and obscene language, disorderly conduct, and making rude and obscene gestures, of witnesses' conclusions that language was profane, obscene and indecent was reversible error, even though proof of actions may have been sufficient to sustain conviction. C. P. Heilman, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 141).

Evidence that taxicab driver made certain suggestions to female passenger and repeated the suggestions both en route and on reaching their destination justified finding that such remarks were "indecent" and "obscene" within this section. Morris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

— Admissibility

Where evidence had been admitted that a telephone line identifier had been connected to defendant's telephone, testimony of a security officer of telephone company that the records of the company showed that the number from which harassing calls to complainant originated was private listing registered to the defendant was merely cumulative and its admission, if error, was harmless, on a charge of disorderly conduct consisting of making harassing telephone calls to the home of complainant. J. Coleman v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 555).

— Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Evidence supported conviction of defendant for using profane language, indecent and obscene words, on public sidewalk. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

— Suppression

Record in support of order granting pre-trial motion to suppress pistol seized from beneath seat of defendant's automobile near scene of his arrest for disorderly conduct was insufficient since there were no findings upon which Court of Appeals could base judgment as to whether pistol was product of search and seizure incident to lawful arrest, whether, if so, seizure was so far beyond the area within defendant's immediate control as to be constitutionally impermissible, and whether, if pistol was not product of search and seizure in Fourth Amendment sense (officer testified that he reached under seat in search of seat adjustment lever with intent of driving automobile to precinct station) the intrusion into automobile was reasonable and warranted under the circumstances. United States v. H. R. Jones (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 541).

In this case, the court held that the trial judge did not err in denying motion to suppress heroin properly seized from defendant, one judge being of the opinion that the defendant was properly "seized" in rapidly moving on-street investigation and discarding of narcotics was not product of illegal police action, and second judge being of the opinion that the officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for disorderly conduct and seizure of heroin was therefore lawful. W. Von Sleichter v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 336).

Impeachment

Prosecution was not entitled to attempt to impeach testimony of defendant indicted for second-degree murder by referring to thirteen prior convictions of petty offenses of vagrancy, disorderly conduct and soliciting prostitution, inasmuch as, although such offenses were District of Columbia Code offenses, as distinguished from municipal ordinances, none of them was triable by jury. Y. Pinkney v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 696, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

Information—Sufficiency

Information that stated in effect that the defendant, under circumstances likely to cause breach of peace, did congregate and assemble with others in designated public place and crowd, obstruct and incommode free use of street, in violation of this section pertaining to unlawful assembly, and that did not set forth any particulars as to acts by which offense was committed failed to allege essential facts constituting an offense. B. A. Horowitz v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 291 A. 2d 202).

The information in this case charging that defendant used profane language and indecent and obscene words was defective for failure to allege that such conduct threatened breach of peace. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (1969, 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56, rev'g 227 A. 2d 60).

In a case where the information charged a violation of a statute forbidding persons to congregate and assemble on public street and crowd, obstruct, or incommode the free use of the street failed to charge that the act was done under circumstances threatening a breach of peace, it did not charge an offense and conviction on it could not stand. J. P. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 563).

Information charging defendant during peace demonstration with disorderly conduct in that she did with intent to provoke breach of peace congregate with others on public street and on grounds of United States Capitol, and did refuse to move, which failed to specify which of several potentially applicable statutes was basis of prosecution, was insufficient. D. Feeley v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 216, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

An information charging defendants with congregating and assembling on a certain avenue, and then and there crowding, obstructing, and incommoding the free use of the sidewalk thereof, contrary to and in violation of this section, is insufficient, though drawn in the language of the statute, because it fails to set out the facts constituting the offense with sufficient clearness to apprise defendants of the charge they are to meet, or to inform the court of their sufficiency to sustain a conviction. G. S. Hunter et al. v. District of Columbia (1918, 47 App. D.C. 406).

Issues of fact

The accuracy of telephone company's procedure in registering harassing telephone calls made to complainant's home was for the trial court, on a charge of disorderly conduct consisting of making harassing telephone calls. J. Coleman v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 555).

Whether a defendant, who was charged with assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code, had mental disease which should have excused him from criminal responsibility was issue of ultimate fact for the trier thereof. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Whether defendant's arrest for disorderly conduct was sham, employed by police as gamble for detecting larger crime, was one for inference to be drawn by fact-finder based upon credibility and demeanor. H. Johnson v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 489, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions extended to prosecution under unlawful assembly statute, setting penalty of not more than $250 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days, or both, notwithstanding contention that criminal jurisdiction of that Court did not extend to case where maximum penalty may be both fine and imprisonment. L. Lang v. United States (1971, 443 F. 2d 720, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Lawful arrest

Arrest of defendant, who was observed by officers running across street from church doorway at midnight, and who, when stopped, used obscene language toward officers, on charges of disorderly conduct was lawful, and thus incriminating statement made by defendant and pistol found near scene of arrest were not inadmissible on the grounds asserted. H. Johnson v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 489, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Matters considered

In determining whether defendant's remarks were within prohibition of this section, the trial judge was entitled to consider all surrounding circumstances, time of occurrence and manner in which it occurred, repetition of the remarks, as well as lack of previous acquaintance. Morris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

Obstructing arrest

Evidence that a group of demonstrators of which defendant was part approached to within two or three feet of another group, that was being arrested, but did not intermingle physically with the arrested group would not support conviction for obstructing arrest, under disorderly conduct provision of unlawful assembly statute. L. Lang v. United States (1971, 443 F. 2d 720, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Obstructing free use

Evidence that half of 50-foot-wide divided stairway leading to the Capitol was already closed to the public by the police in connection with arrest of another group at the time when a group of demonstrators of which the defendant was part assembled at the bottom thereof, and that the other half of such stairway was clear, did not support conviction, under unlawful assembly statute, for obstructing free use of public building. L. Lang v. United States (1971, 443 F. 2d 720, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Conviction under information charging obstruction of free use of public building could not be sustained on theory that the defendant was really engaged in obstructing arrest, where defendant was not charged with the latter offense. Id.

Presence of other persons

Under this section making it unlawful for any person to use indecent or obscene language in any public place, the presence of others than offender and person addressed is not necessary to complete the offense. Morris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

Preservation of community moral standards

The prohibition of and, if required, prosecution for use of obscene and profane language in public may be upheld upon interest of state in preserving community moral standards. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Probable cause for arrest

Existence of disorderly conduct statute was factor properly to be considered by arresting police officer in determining whether probable cause existed to arrest defendant for conduct in officer's presence and defined in that statute as crime. H. Johnson v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 489, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 243).

Public place

A public vehicle, such as a taxicab, plying its business on a public street, is a "public place" within this section making it unlawful for any person to use indecent or obscene words in any public place. Morris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

Unlawful assembly, defined

An attorney representing a client who had been subpoenaed to appear before the House Un-American Activities Committee could not be convicted of a violation of this section for conduct which led to his forceful removal from committee room by order of subcommittee chairman acting alone in violation of committee rules, where attorney could not have been properly charged with assembling and congregating, an essential element of offense, and an attorney representing a client could not come within the definition of unlawful assembly. A. Kinoy v. District of Columbia (1968, 400 F. 2d 761, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Weight of evidence

Weight to be given testimony of witnesses who related that the conduct of the defendant at time of alleged assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct, in violation of District of Columbia Code, and shortly thereafter was bizarre and the weight to be given testimony of government witness who related that the defendant was intoxicated at the time of alleged offenses and that assault was triggered by refusal to serve him beer was for the trier of fact. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

§ 22-1108. Playing games in streets.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to play the game of football, or any other game with a ball, in any of the streets, avenues, or alleys in the city of Washington; nor shall it be lawful for any person or persons to play the game of bandy, shindy, or any other game by which a ball, stone, or other substance is struck or propelled by any stick, cane, or other substance in any street, avenue, or alley in the city of Washington, under a penalty of not more than five dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 17; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79.)

AMENDMENT

1895—Act Feb. 11, 1895, substituted "city of Washington" for "cities of Washington and Georgetown" in two instances.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Civil liability of parent

In absence of evidence that either of two minor boys had previously played with a football on sidewalk in violation of this section or that their conduct had been such that their parents, with closer supervision, would have been aware that boys were engaging in conduct which was unlawful or which might inflict injury upon others, parents of boys were not chargeable with liability for injuries sustained by pedestrian with whom one of the boys collided while attempting to catch football. Bateman v. Crim (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 257).

§ 22-1109. Throwing stones or other missiles forbidden.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the District of Columbia to throw any stone or other missile in any street, avenue, alley, road, or highway, or open space, or public square, or inclosure, or to throw any stone or other missile from any place into any street, avenue, road, or highway, alley, open space, public square, or inclosure, under a penalty of not more than five dollars for every such offense. § 22-1110. Urging dogs to fight—Create disorder.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to entice, induce, urge, or cause any dogs to engage in a fight in any street, alley, road, or highway, open space, or public square in the District of Columbia, or to urge, entice, or cause such dogs to continue or prolong such fight, under a penalty of not more than five dollars for each and every offense; and any person or persons who shall induce or cause any animal of the dog kind to run after, bark at, frighten, or bite any person, horse, or horses, cows, cattle of any kind, or other animals lawfully passing along or standing in or on any street, avenue, road, or highway, or alley in the District of Columbia, shall forfeit and pay for such offense a sum not exceeding five dollars. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 324, ch. 320, § 10.)

§ 22-1111. Penalty for allowing fierce and dangerous dogs to go at large.

If any owner or possessor of a fierce or dangerous dog shall permit the same to go at large, knowing said dog to be fierce or dangerous, to the danger or annoyance of the inhabitants, he shall upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars; and if such animal shall attack or bite any person, the owner or possessor thereof shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, and in addition to such punishment the court shall adjudge and order that such animal be forthwith delivered to the poundmaster, and said poundmaster is hereby authorized and directed to kill such animal so delivered to him.

If any owner or possessor of a female dog shall permit her to go at large in the District of Columbia while in heat he shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. (June 19, 1878, 20 Stat. 174, ch. 323, § 9; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 547, ch. 1332.)

AMENDMENT

1902—Act June 30, 1902, amended section generally. Prior to the amendment the section read as follows: "If any owner or possessor of a fierce or dangerous dog permit the same to go at large in the District of Columbia, to the danger or annoyance of the inhabitants, he shall forfeit and pay, for the first offense, ten dollars; for the second, a sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and upon a third conviction for the same offense, the commissioners shall immediately cause the dog, upon account of which the condition takes place, to be slain and buried."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Knowledge of owner

Amendment of 1902 did not modify judicial interpretation of earlier act that owner was not liable for conduct of dog unless he had or was charged with knowledge of its vicious propensities. Bardwell v. Petty (1923, 286 F. 772, 52 App. D. C. 310).

§ 22-1112. Lewd, indecent, or obscene acts.

(a) It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to make any obscene or indecent exposure of his or her person, or to make any lewd, obscene, or indecent sexual proposal, or to commit any other lewd, obscene, or indecent act in the District of Columbia, under penalty of not more than $300 fine, or imprisonment of not more than ninety days, or both, for each and every such offense.

(b) Any person or persons who shall commit an offense described in subsection (a), knowing he or she or they are in the presence of a child under the age of sixteen years, shall be punished by imprisonment of not more than one year, or fined in an amount not to exceed $1,000, or both, for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 324, ch. 320, § 9; July 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 724, ch. 638; Sept. 26, 1942, 56 Stat. 760, ch. 565; June 9, 1948, 62 Stat.

346, ch. 428, title I, § 101; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 92, ch. 159, § 202(a) (1).)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Subsec. (a) amended by act June 29, 1953, to eliminate "or their persons in any street, avenue, alley, road or highway, open space, public square, or other public place or inclosure, in the District of Columbia, or to make any such obscene or indecent exposure of person in any dwelling or other building or other place wherefrom the same may be seen in any street, avenue, alley, road or highway, open space, public square, or public or private building or inclosure" following "exposure of his or her person", to insert "or to make any lewd, obscene, or indecent sexual proposal, or to commit any other lewd, obscene, or indecent act in the District of Columbia", and to increase the fine from $250 to $300.

Subsec. (b) amended by act June 29, 1953, to increase the punishment by imprisonment for six months to one year and the fine from $500 to $1,000 and to provide for punishment by both fine and imprisonment.

1948—Act June 9, 1948, designated existing provisions as subsec. (a) and added subsec. (b).

1942—Act Sept. 26, 1942, added the penalty of imprisonment for not more than ninety days.

1898—Act July 8, 1898, inserted references to "or other public place" and "or public or private building."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Denial of defendant's motion to vacate a judgment of conviction on a plea of guilty on the ground that manifest injustice occurred because court appointed same counsel to represent both defendants was not an abuse of discretion under the record. M. E. Lord Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 322.)

Acts committed in privacy

Ordinary acts involving exposure as result of carelessness or thoughtlessness, particularly when such acts take place within privacy of one's home, do not in themselves establish offense of indecent exposure. G. B. Selph v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 188 A. 2d 344).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for indecent exposure. Id.

Nudity is not per se "obscene", and it is not illegal for a man to be completely unclothed in his room; it becomes so only if he intentionally exposes himself to other persons. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

Under this section making it unlawful for any person to make any lewd, obscene or indecent sexual proposal, or to commit any other lewd, obscene or indecent act in the District of Columbia, an open or public act in common-law sense is no longer required, but this section is not designed or intended to apply to an act committed in privacy or presence of a single, consenting person. Rittenour v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 558).

Admission by defendant

Admission by defendant that he was present in washroom when officer entered eliminated necessity for corroboration of presence of officer and defendant at the time and place of alleged lewd, obscene, and indecent act in the washroom, in case wherein there was testimony of only one witness to the act, namely, the officer. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Assumption by reviewing court

In view of citation to court of general sessions of decision laying down rule that testimony of a single witness to verbal invitation to sodomy should be received and considered with great caution, in case wherein there was testimony of only one witness to the charged lewd, obscene, and indecent act, reviewing court was required to assume that Court of General Sessions was fully aware of the rules announced in that decision and that the testimony of the witness had been received and considered with great caution. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Burden of proof

The evidence adduced at habeas corpus proceeding did not support the trial court's finding that petitioner, who had originally been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, was likely to inflict injury, loss, pain or other evil on others by his sexual misconduct if he were released. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Habeas corpus petitioner who had been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act had the burden to show that his past behavior, examined under the illumination provided by psychiatric evaluation of those actions, did not justify conclusion that he fell within statutory definition of one who was likely to inflict injury on others. Id.

Whether habeas corpus petitioner who was committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act should be released on habeas corpus would be determined on likelihood that he would, if released, be dangerous to others because of sexual misconduct. Id.

Petitioner who was confined in hospital pursuant to proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act had the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that his continued confinement as sexual psychopath was not justified. Id.

Character evidence

Trial court, which expressly commented on evidence of good character of defendant convicted of committing lewd, obscene, and indecent act in department store restroom, had given due consideration to the character evidence. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Conditions justifying commitment

Predictions of dangerousness which would justify commitment under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act requires determination of type of conduct of which individual may engage; likelihood or probability that he will indulge in that conduct; and effect that such conduct if engaged in will have on others. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

In determining what acts may be considered in applying District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, court must add "sexual" in common meaning of that term. Id.

Corroboration

In cases wherein testimony of only one witness to verbal invitation to sodomy is introduced, the trial court should require corroboration of the circumstances surrounding the parties at the time, such as presence at the alleged time and place and similar provable circumstances. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

In cases wherein testimony of only one witness to verbal invitation to sodomy is introduced, evidence of good character is particularly applicable. Id.

Testimony of a single witness to a verbal invitation to sodomy should be received and considered with great caution. Id.

Corroboration of arresting officer's testimony was not required to establish corpus delicti and to sustain conviction for indecent exposure. Nassif v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 495).

Due Process

Since a proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act is closely related to behavior of person rather than to his mental condition considered apart from his behavior, constitutional guarantees implicit in due process of law must come into play. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Elements of assault

Before use of assault statute to cover conduct that appears to fall within bounds of misdemeanor statutes can be countenanced court must be certain that elements of assault had been established. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Entrapment

Evidence did not support contention made for first time on appeal from conviction for committing lewd, obscene, and indecent act that defendant had been entrapped. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Where police officer made phone call to defendant and went to defendant's house in order to investigate a suspected homosexual and in order to confirm the suspicion led suspect to believe officer would not resist homosexual advances and then arrested him, defendant was entrapped. Rittenour v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 558).

Evidence

Failure of the trial court in habeas corpus proceeding to distinguish between petitioner's sexual and nonsexual misconduct as a reason for his commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act and trial court's failure to evaluate the likelihood, as opposed to mere possibility, that petitioner would engage in sexual misconduct if released constituted reversible error. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Evidence in habeas corpus proceeding established that if released, the petitioner, who had been committed under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, would be unlikely to engage in sexual misconduct other than exhibitionism. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that likelihood of serious injury to a child who might see the petitioner expose himself in public was too remote to justify commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that future sexual misconduct of petitioner, if any, was not sufficiently likely to cause kind of harm required by District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act to justify further commitment. Id.

Evidence supported conviction for indecent exposure. Nassif v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 495).

Evidence sufficiently demonstrated "course of repeated misconduct in sexual matters" within statutory definition of sexual psychopath on part of defendant accused of indecent exposure. C. H. Lomax v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 211 A. 2d 772).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for indecent exposure. E. Haynes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 204 A. 2d 574).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for indecent exposure and making an indecent sexual proposal. E. Haynes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 919).

Evidence of government which presented two women complainants, who testified they saw defendant exposing himself, positively identifying him as maintenance man in their apartment development, was sufficient to sustain finding of his guilt of obscene and indecent exposure notwithstanding his production of five alibi witnesses. R. Campbell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 557).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain convictions for committing a lewd, obscene, or indecent act. Caul and Coggins v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 164 A. 2d 350).

Evidence sustained conviction of committing a lewd, obscene, or indecent act. McGhee v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 137 A. 2d 721).

— Corroboration

Testimony of complaining witness' companion that defendant stopped his automobile near them, her identification of defendant, and her description of automobile which had same license number as that of defendant, amply satisfied requirements of corroboration of testimony of complaining witness. E. Haynes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 204 A. 2d 574).

There must be corroboration in sex offenses, especially where offense is purely verbal and proof disappears as soon as words are spoken, but government is not required to produce witness who actually heard words spoken and corroboration may consist of circumstantial evidence supporting prosecutrix story. A. Goodsaid v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 486).

Reluctance of woman, who contended that taxicab driver made indecent sexual proposals to her, to make complaint, driver's offer to apologize for what he might have said, his failure to make immediate denial of charges, and fact that, after period of over two weeks, he recognized complainant as former passenger, recalled engaging in conversation with her, and remembered his remark to her as she left taxicab sufficiently corroborated complainant's story. Id.

Testimony of police officers who had observed commission of indecent act constituted valid corroboration of alleged act. L. R. Herland v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 362).

Testimony of complaining witness in prosecution for committing a lewd, obscene or indecent act, which was corroborated by her companion except for the actual identification of defendant, was sufficiently corroborated to secure conviction. McGhee v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 137 A. 2d 721).

Evidence showed sufficient corroboration of the circumstances to sustain conviction for making an indecent sexual proposal. Howard v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 132 A. 2d 150).

—Testimony of arresting officer

Great caution should be applied in considering testimony of arresting officer in cases where alleged assault is nonviolent sexual touching which by its nature left no traces and to which there were no other witnesses. Guarro v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 578, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Homosexuality

Homosexuality is not a crime. Rittenour v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 558).

Impeachment

Prosecution was not entitled to attempt to impeach testimony of defendant indicted for second-degree murder by referring to thirteen prior convictions of petty offenses of vagrancy, disorderly conduct and soliciting prostitution, inasmuch as, although such offenses were District of Columbia Code offenses, as distinguished from municipal ordinances, none of them was triable by jury. Y. Pinkney v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 696, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

Intent

Before conviction for indecent exposure can be upheld, it must be shown that exposure was intentional, not accidental. G. B. Selph v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 188 A. 2d 344).

Evidence disclosed that defendant, who appeared without clothes in early morning hours at second floor window of his hot and oppressive room at rear of hotel overlooking seemingly uninhabited alley area and who was observed by several police officers and room clerk, did not deliberately and intentionally expose himself, so that he was not guilty of obscene or indecent exposure. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

An exposure becomes indecent when it occurs at such a time and place where reasonable man knows or should know his act will be open to observation of others; the required criminal intent is usually established by some action by which defendant draws attention to his exposed condition or by display in place so public that it must be presumed it was intended to be seen by others. Id.

A criminal intent must be shown in prosecution for indecent exposure before conviction can be upheld, and though exposure must be intentional and not accidental, the intent required is only a general one and need not be directed toward any specific person or persons. Peyton v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 100 A. 2d 36).

An exposure becomes indecent when defendant exposes himself at such a time and place where as a reasonable man he knows or should know his act will be open to observation by others. Id.

Nonproduction of possible witness

That an unidentified man left washroom immediately prior to arrest of defendant for committing lewd, indecent, and obscene act there and that arresting officer did not detain the man or obtain his name and address did not give rise to presumption that the unidentified man's testimony would not have supported officer's testimony, in absence of solid foundation indicating that unidentified man had witnessed the acts and conduct of defendant. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

"Not insane" construed

The words "not insane" as used in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act means "not mentally ill." M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

When words "not insane" in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath law is read to mean "not mentally ill" the sole justification for commitment under the act is the patient's dangerousness. Id.

Public place

Unlocked wash room in hotel in which indecent act occurred was a public place, and fact that other participant willingly engaged did not relieve defendant from guilt in committing such act in public. L. R. Herland v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 362).

Resentencing

Where prosecution was under one subsection of statute, the wording of which was followed by the information, but upon conviction sentence was imposed under another subsection of statute which provided for stiffer penalties, and evidence sustained conviction, case would be remanded with instructions to vacate existing sentence and to resentence defendant in accordance with subsection of statute under which he was prosecuted. Howard v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957 132 A. 2d 150).

Res judicata

The acquittal of defendant of charge of committing an indecent act precluded the government, as a matter of law, from relying on the evidence relating to this alleged indecent act to support its charge of an alleged indecent exposure on the same night. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

§ 22-1113. Kindling bonfires.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the limits of the District of Columbia to kindle or set on fire, or be present, aiding, consenting, or causing it to be done, in any street, avenue, road, or highway, alley, open ground, or lot, any box, barrel, straw, shavings, or other combustible, between the setting and rising of the sun; and, any person offending against the provisions of this section shall on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 14.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, see § 22-109.

§ 22-1114. Disturbing religious congregation.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to molest or disturb any congregation engaged in any religious exercise or proceedings in any church or place of worship in the District of Columbia; and it shall be lawful for any of the authorities of said churches to arrest or cause to be arrested any person or persons so offending, and take him, her, or them to the nearest police station, to be there held for trial; and any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 324, ch. 320, § 11.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, see § 22-109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section is not unconstitutionally vague for failure to specify kinds of conduct prohibited at a religious service or to set out standards as to type of conduct that would amount to an illegal disturbance. P. J. Riley v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 819; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1499, 405 U.S. 1066).

This section does not impinge upon First Amendment freedoms. Id.

Construction

This section is a guarantee of free exercise of religion to all persons. P. J. Riley v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 819; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1499, 405 U.S. 1066).

A legitimate governmental interest in protecting freedom of worship as well as maintenance of peace and good order in the community underlies this section prohibiting disturbances of religious meetings. Id.

Elements of offense

Not every interruption of a religious service would constitute a violation of this section. P. J. Riley v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 819; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1499, 405 U.S. 1066).

To justify imposition of criminal sanctions for disturbing a religious meeting a person must have intentionally committed an act or acts that are found to have substantially disrupted the service; a conviction cannot be had for conduct that is orderly and within known customs and usages governing religious exercise or proceedings in the church; on the other hand, violence of conduct is not a prerequisite for conviction of disturbing a religious meeting. Id.

A trivial incident, even if explicitly forbidden, could not be basis of a conviction under this section. Id.

Defendants' convictions of disturbing a religious congregation did not result from an impermissible intrusion into a dispute among members of a church congregation over a purely religious matter. Id.

Evidence—Sufficiency

Finding, in prosecution under this section, that there was a substantial disturbance of a religious meeting had support in evidence sufficient to preclude a holding that it was erroneous as a matter of law. P. J. Riley v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 819; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1499, 405 U.S. 1066).

Forfeiture of collateral

Forfeitures of collateral security could not be vacated on application made more than 30 days after forfeiture, despite claim that defendants had misunderstood or were misinformed as to date set for trial or were under impression that cases were further continued, where there was no testimony by defendants to this effect and counsel were fully aware of situation. District of Columbia v. H. Evans et al. (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 309).

§ 22-1115. Interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

It shall be unlawful to display any flag, banner, placard, or device designed or adapted to intimidate, coerce, or bring into public odium any foreign government, party, or organization, or any officer or officers thereof, or to bring into public disrepute political, social, or economic acts, views, or purposes of any foreign government, party, or organization, or to intimidate, coerce, harass, or bring into public disrepute any officer or officers or diplomatic or consular representatives of any foreign government, or to interfere with the free and safe pursuit of the duties of any diplomatic or consular representatives of any foreign government, within five hundred feet of any building or premises within the District of Columbia used or occupied by any foreign government or its representative or representatives as an embassy, legation, consulate, or for other official purposes, except by, and in accordance with, a permit issued by the superintendent of police of the said District; or to congregate within five hundred feet of any such building or premises, and refuse to disperse after having been ordered so to do by the police authorities of the said District (Feb. 15, 1938 52 Stat. 30, ch. 29, § 1.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Chief of Police as successor to Major and Superintendent of Police, see note under section 4-103.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-1116.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

District of Columbia statute precluding street demonstrations within 500 feet of foreign embassy, but specifically excluding therefrom picketing in a construction dispute, does not violate the free speech or equal protection provisions of Constitution and is enacted pursuant to constitutional power granted to Congress to define and punish offenses against laws of nations. Jewish Defense League, Inc., et al. v. W. Washington et al. (1972, 347 F. Supp. 1300).

Since this section prohibiting protest demonstration nearer to embassy than 500 feet when protest is directed against foreign government operating embassy had once been held constitutional, and since failure to grant temporary restraining order against enforcement of the section would preclude plaintiffs from protesting in front of embassy but not 500 feet away and that such order would have effect of striking down statute as unconstitutional, the court will not grant such order. Jews for Urban Justice, et al. v. J. W. Wilson (1970, 311 F. Supp. 1158).

The contention that this section making it unlawful to bring into public disrepute any officer of any foreign government within 500 feet of any building used or occupied by foreign government or its representatives for official purposes is unconstitutional is without merit. S. Zaimi v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 233).

Congress, in executing power to define and punish offenses against foreign nations, was authorized to prohibit the display, within 500 feet of an embassy, legation, or consulate in District of Columbia, of any flag, banner, placard, or device designed to bring any foreign government into public odium, or to harass any diplomatic or consular representatives. Frend v. United States (1939, 100 F. 2d 691, 69 App. D. C. 281, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 488, 306 U.S. 640, 83 L. Ed. 1040).

The power of Congress to define and punish offenses against law of nations and to exercise police power of a state in District of Columbia authorized it, in seeking to protect foreign embassies from disturbances, to determine how and to whom it would distribute authority to make detailed regulations, and to delegate that power to superintendent of police of District. Id.

This section did not violate due process clause of Constitution. Id.

This section did not constitute an invalid delegation of authority to superintendent of police to grant permit without establishment of any standard or guide to govern granting of permit. Id.

This section did not violate constitutional provision relating to free speech and free assemblage since no restriction was placed upon speech or assembly except to extent that they might constitute offensive public demonstrations immediately adjacent to buildings used for official purposes by foreign government. Id.

Evidence—Sufficiency

Appellants contention that the evidence was insufficient to make out prima facie case of bringing into public disrepute any officer of any foreign government, merely because there was no warning to desist before arrest, and because there was no showing that statements were untrue or made with actual malice or that there was threat of breach of peace is not valid, since section under which defendant was convicted does not include those elements. S. Zaimi v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 233).

Defendant, who shouted that Shah of Iran had come to Washington to purchase bombs to suppress people of Iran, brought Shah into public disrepute as proscribed by this section. Id.

Injunctions

Parties seeking preliminary injunction against enforcement of District of Columbia statute prohibiting demonstrations within 500 feet of foreign embassy failed to show necessary irreparable injury if their actions calling attention to plight of Soviet Jews must take place more than 500 feet from the Soviet embassy. Jewish Defense League, Inc., et al. v. W. Washington et al. (1972, 347 F. Supp. 1300).

Offenses

Where defendants were part of a congregation of people who paraded in streets in front of Austrian or German embassy with banners or placards pursuant to plan to bring German government into contempt, defendants, under provisions of local law making it an offense to aid and abet in violation of the law, were guilty of violation of this section, regardless of whether each of defendants was then displaying one of placards. Frend v. United States (1939, 100 F. 2d 691, 69 App. D. C. 281, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 488, 306 U. S. 640, 83 L. Ed. 1040).

§ 22-1116. Penalties for interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

The Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction of offenses committed in violation of section 22-1115, and any person convicted of violating any of the provisions of said section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, or both: Provided, however, That nothing contained in said section shall be construed to prohibit picketing, as a result of bona fide labor disputes regarding the alteration, repair, or construction of either buildings or premises occupied, for business purposes, wholly or in part, by representatives of foreign governments. (Feb. 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 30, ch. 29, § 2; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

District of Columbia statute precluding street demonstrations within 500 feet of foreign embassy, but specifically excluding therefrom picketing in a construction dispute, does not violate the free speech or equal protection provisions of Constitution and is enacted pursuant to constitutional power granted to Congress to define and punish offenses against laws of nations. Jewish Defense League, Inc., et al. v. W. Washington et al. (1972, 347 F. Supp. 1300).

§ 22-1117. Flying fire balloons or parachutes forbidden.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to set up or fly any fire balloon or parachute in or upon or over any street, avenue, alley, open space, public enclosure, or square within the limits of the city of Washington, under a penalty of not more than ten dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 322, ch. 320, § 4; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 802, title VIII, 84 Stat. 667.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 802 of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "set up or fly any kite, or".

1895—Act Feb. 11, 1895, substituted "city of Washington" for "cities of Washington and Georgetown."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

Section 901(b) (2) of Pub. L. 91-358, provided in part: "Title VIII [amending secs. 1-820 and 22-1117] shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act [July 29, 1970]."

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, see § 22-109.

§ 22-1118. Driving or riding on footways in public grounds.

If any person shall drive or lead any horse, mule, or other animal, or any cart, wagon, or other carriage whatever on any of the paved or graveled footways in and on any of the public grounds belonging to the United States within the District of Columbia, or shall ride thereon, except at the intersection of streets, alleys, and avenues, each and every such offender shall forfeit and pay for each offense a sum not less than one nor more than five dollars (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 16.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, see § 22-109.

§ 22-1119. False alarm of fire—Prosecution.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to wilfully or knowingly give a false alarm of fire within the District of Columbia, and any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Prosecutions for violation of the provisions of this section shall be on information filed in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or by any of his assistants. (June 8, 1906, 34 Stat. 220, ch. 3055, §§ 1, 2; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 3 of Act June 8, 1906, provided: "That this Act (enacting this section) shall be in effect from and after its passage."

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court" was substituted for "police court" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

§ 22-1120. Sale of tobacco to minors under 16 years of age.

No person shall sell, give, or furnish any cigar, cigarette, or tobacco in any of its forms to any minor under sixteen years of age; and for each and every violation of this section the offender shall, on conviction, be fined not less than two dollars nor more than ten dollars or be imprisoned for not less than five days nor more than twenty days. (Feb. 7, 1891, 26 Stat. 736, ch. 117.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Reversal

Where a majority of the court did not agree on a specific ground for reversing judgment, conviction of storekeeper for selling cigarettes to minor under 16 years of age was reversed. Campbell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 394).

§ 22-1121. Disorderly conduct—Generally.

Whoever, with intent to provoke a breach of the peace, or under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby—

(1) acts in such a manner as to annoy, disturb, interfere with, obstruct, or be offensive to others;

(2) congregates with others on a public street and refuses to move on when ordered by the police;

(3) shouts or makes a noise either outside or inside a building during the nighttime to the annoyance or disturbance of any considerable number of persons;

(4) interferes with any person in any place by jostling against such person or unnecessarily crowding him or by placing a hand in the proximity of such person's pocketbook, or handbag; or

(5) causes a disturbance in any streetcar, railroad car, omnibus, or other public conveyance, by running through it, climbing through windows or upon the seats, or otherwise annoying passengers or employees, shall be fined not more than $250 or imprisoned not more than ninety days, or both. (June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 98, ch. 159, § 211a.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Breach of peace

Proof of breach of peace is not required for conviction of disorderly conduct. M. L. Stovall v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 390).

Bus passengers

Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Regulation Compact does not have authority to promulgate order regulating conduct of bus passengers. District of Columbia v. A. T. Jones et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 287 A. 2d 816).

Constitutionality

This section, providing for punishment for any person who, with intent to provoke breach of peace, or under circumstances such that breach of peace might be occasioned thereby, acts in such manner as to annoy, disturb, interfere with, obstruct or be offensive to others, is not constitutionally impermissible prohibition of activity protected by First Amendment. W. L. Rodgers v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 395).

As constitutional attack on the face of this section was not made in the trial court, the Court of Appeals is free to refuse review on that issue; however, even were defendant permitted to be heard on the point, Court would be bound by decision holding the portion of the section in question to be constitutional. S. T. Foster v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 176).

Statute providing punishment for whoever with intent to provoke breach of peace, or under circumstances such that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby, congregates with others on public street and refuses to move on when ordered by police is not unconstitutionally vague. G. E. Jalbert, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 94).

Disorderly conduct statute as applied to defendants who exceeded the authorization of their parade permit, disregarded cautions of police and willfully violated Capitol Grounds statute by blocking a public walkway and refusing to move on when validly ordered to do so by the police is not unconstitutional. D. Feeley, A. Uhrie, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

Construction

Intent of Congress in enacting statute could best be determined by looking to act of Congress which such statute was enacted to supplement. W. L. Rodgers v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 395).

The qualifying language of the general disorderly conduct statute—"under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby"—need not be read into statute making it unlawful to curse, swear, or make use of profane language or indecent or obscene words in any public way. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Enactments like statute prohibiting cursing, swearing, or using profane language or indecent or obscene words in public ways must contain qualifying language, and the qualifications must be applied within the framework of the clear and present danger test; otherwise they violate First Amendment. Id.

Disorderly conduct statute is violated when there is noisy, riotous, or inflammatory behavior provoking breach of peace, but there can be violation of such statute without such extreme conduct. Scott, Ewald, Carpenter and Young v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 849).

Defendant in ordering followers into hostile audience to stop heckling of speech and assault of one spectator as direct result of defendant's command to his followers, authorized conviction of disorderly conduct. G. L. Rockwell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 549).

This section penalizing acts intended to provoke or likely to occasion breach of peace is penal and must be strictly construed. Carey v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 314).

Peeping in window of occupied, lighted apartment at 1:30 in the morning constituted "disorderly conduct" within breach of peace statute penalizing action tending to "disturb" or be "offensive" to others. Id.

Due process

Actions of United States attorney in entering nolle prosequi of informations charging the more serious offense of unlawful entry and, thereafter, filing new informations regarding the less serious offense of disorderly conduct were not a violation of due process. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Disorderly conduct statute does not violate due process clause of Fifth Amendment although it does not require proof of breach of peace element; such statute does no more than give police the right within reasonable limitations to keep public sidewalks free of unnecessary obstructions and prevent groups from congregating in way that breach of peace might result. Scott, Ewald, Carpenter and Young v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 849).

Government, which was prosecuting defendants who had stationed themselves just west of northwest gate of White House and wore arm bands reading "Bomb Tests Kill People" for disorderly conduct, was not required to prove actual or impending breach of peace. Id.

Elements of offense

Neither an actual breach of the peace nor intent to provoke breach of peace is an essential element in proof of disorderly conduct; it is sufficient that the alleged conduct be under circumstances such that breach of the peace might be occasioned thereby. W. L. Rodgers v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 395).

While one of the elements of offense of disorderly conduct under statute is that the conduct must occur with intent to provoke a breach of the peace or occur under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby, it is not necessary in every case for the information to follow the precise language of the statute. District of Columbia v. T. Jordan (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 298).

Defendant's conduct and not crowd's reaction to it must be starting point for determining whether defendant's message was of such nature as to come within ambit of free speech guarantee of First Amendment, and audience reaction and immediacy of disorder become significant elements of proof of disorderly conduct only after speaker passes bounds of argument or persuasion and undertakes incitement to riot. C. R. Allen v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 888).

Defendant's activities in counterpicketing another organization by carrying a sign demanding more police brutality for "Reds" and dragging what purported to be flag of a foreign government on ground in front of crowd, which gave no open displays of anger or threats of violence, was within protection of First Amendment and did not constitute disorderly conduct. Id.

Enforcement

Police are not obliged to stand by and await occurrence of act of violence before stepping in to control situation and maintain peace and order. W. L. Rodgers v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 395).

Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to support defendants' convictions of disorderly conduct. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Testimony of police officer that accused had hit, shoved and kicked his wife on a public street showed a series of assaults and justified conviction of disorderly conduct. M. L. Stovall v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 390).

Admission, in prosecution for using profane, indecent and obscene language, disorderly conduct, and making rude and obscene gestures, of witnesses' conclusions that language was profane, obscene and indecent was reversible error, even though proof of actions may have been sufficient to sustain conviction. C. P. Heilman, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 141).

— Sufficiency

Where the defendant's actions, in course of his efforts to gain entry into auditorium without ticket, appeared to bring him within scope of statute providing penalty for incitement to riot, evidence supported finding of guilt of disorderly conduct. W. L. Rodgers v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 395).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of disorderly conduct. K. M. Sams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 479).

Fines

Although other persons arrested at same time as defendants and charged with same offense, upon their election to forfeit posted collateral of $10.00, were required to pay only that amount, defendants, who were given fines of $50 each or 10 days in jail, could not complain, where they elected to stand trial and, after conviction, trial judge, as he has a right to do, imposed fines larger than amount posted for collateral. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Impeachment

Prosecution was not entitled to attempt to impeach testimony of defendant indicted for second-degree murder by referring to thirteen prior convictions of petty offenses of vagrancy, disorderly conduct and soliciting prostitution, inasmuch as, although such offenses were District of Columbia Code offenses, as distinguished from municipal ordinances, none of them was triable by jury. Y. Pinkney v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 696, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

Indictment

Allegation of information charging that defendant was then and there a peeping Tom sufficiently charged that defendant's conduct was under circumstances such that a breach of the peace might be occasioned thereby, and information was not defective on grounds that it did not charge that defendant acted with an intent to provoke a breach of the peace or under circumstances such that a breach of the peace might be occasioned thereby. District of Columbia v. T. Jordan (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 298).

Informations which charged that defendants "in a public place did engage in loud and boisterous talking and other disorderly conduct, to wit: under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby, acted in such manner as to annoy, disturb, and interfere with and obstruct and be offensive to others" disclosed only one substantive offense and were not fatally defective because of duplicity. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

An information alleging that defendant "did then and there engage in disorderly conduct, to wit: was then and there a peeping Tom" was sufficient. Carey v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 314).

Information—Amendment

Amendment of information charging that defendant did interfere with person by jostling against such person and by placing hand in proximity of such person's pocket book and handbag by addition of statutory language of intent to provoke breach of peace or under circumstances that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby was not prejudicial to defendant's defense and was properly allowed. K. M. Sams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 479).

— Sufficiency

Informations charging defendants with jostling which failed to set forth names of the alleged victims was not a fatal omission. K. M. Sams et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 230).

Informations which charged defendants with jostling and failed to allege that jostling was with intent to provoke a breach of peace or under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby did not require reversal where no objection to informations on this ground was made, and no showing of prejudice to either defendant was made. Id.

Information charging defendant arrested during peace demonstration with disorderly conduct in that she did with intent to provoke breach of peace congregate with others on public street and on grounds of United States Capitol, and did refuse to move, which failed to specify which of several potentially applicable statutes was basis of prosecution, was insufficient. D. Feeley v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 216, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Intent

Under statute, one lacking intent to be disorderly may nevertheless be guilty if conduct is such that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby. G. L. Rockwell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 549).

Prosecuting attorney

Prosecuting attorney has power to enter a nolle prosequi in a criminal charge at any time after filing of an information and before trial without approval of trial judge or consent of accused. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Prosecution by Corporation Counsel

District of Columbia Court of General Sessions has concurrent jurisdiction over all misdemeanors, and Corporation Counsel is proper official to conduct prosecution of offenses under statute providing that whoever with intent to provoke breach of peace, or under circumstances such that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby, congregates with others on public street and refuses to move on when ordered by police shall be fined not more than $250 or imprisoned not more than 90 days, or both. G. E. Jalbert, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 94).

Office of Corporation Counsel did not lack jurisdiction to prosecute for violations of disorderly conduct statute on ground that prosecution of offenses punishable by fine and imprisonment must be conducted by the United States Attorney, since the statute relating to prosecutions by United States Attorney specifically excepts prosecutions under disorderly conduct statute from operation of such rule. D. Feeley, A. Uhrle, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

The disorderly conduct statute and statute providing that all prosecutions for a violation of disorderly conduct statute shall be conducted in name of and for benefit of District of Columbia and in same manner as provided by law for prosecution of offenses against laws and ordinances of the District must be read together. Id.

Informations charging disorderly conduct were properly prosecuted by the Corporation Counsel on behalf of the District of Columbia even though the informations charged an offense punishable by a fine or by imprisonment, or both. Smith v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 842).

Sentence

Since prosecutions were brought under general disorderly conduct sections rather than the Capitol Grounds statute, defendants should have been sentenced under statute providing that any person guilty of disorderly conduct in or about public buildings and public grounds shall upon conviction thereof be fined not more than $50 so that sentences of 91 days in jail were improper notwithstanding that government might have had a choice as to which statute it would proceed under. D. Feeley, A. Uhrle, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence including showing that a group of 250 demonstrators exceeded authorization of their parade permit, disregarded cautions of police, willfully violated Capitol Grounds statute, blocked a public walkway, refused to move on when validly ordered to do so by police, and engaged in loud and boisterous conduct sustained conviction of violating disorderly conduct statute. D. Feeley, A. Uhrle, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

Violation of civil liberties

Disorderly conduct statute does not impinge upon exercise of free speech, free assembly, and right to petition the government for redress of grievances; the statute does no more than give police the right within reasonable limitations to keep public sidewalks free of unnecessary obstructions and prevent groups from congregating in way that breach of peace may result. D. Feeley, A. Uhrle, B. Dunlap v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 220 A. 2d 325).

§ 22-1122. Rioting or inciting to riot—Penalties.

(a) A riot in the District of Columbia is a public disturbance involving an assemblage of five or more persons which by tumultuous and violent conduct or the threat thereof creates grave danger of damage or injury to property or persons.

(b) Whoever willfully engages in a riot in the District of Columbia shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.

(c) Whoever willfully incites or urges other persons to engage in a riot shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.

(d) If in the course and as a result of a riot a person suffers serious bodily harm or there is property damage in excess of $5,000, every person who willfully incited or urged others to engage in the riot shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than ten years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or both. (Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 901, title IX, 81 Stat. 742.)

CODIFICATION

It appears that section 601 of title VI of Pub. L. 91-358, would have repealed title IX (classified as § 22-1122) of Pub. L. 90-226. Apparently it was the intent to repeal title X of Pub. L. 90-226. To correct this error, Congress enacted section 2(b) of Pub. L. 91-530. The applicable sections read as follows:

PUBLIC LAW 91-358, JULY 29, 1970*TITLE VI—ABOLITION OF COMMISSION ON REVISION OF THE CRIMINAL LAWS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA*ABOLITION OF COMMISSION

SEC. 601. Title IX of the Act entitled "An Act relating to crime and criminal procedure in the District of Columbia", approved December 27, 1967 (Public Law 90-226), is repealed.

PUBLIC LAW 91-530, DEC. 7, 1970*Sec. 2(a) * * ***

(b) (1) Section 601 of the Act of July 29, 1970 (84 Stat. 667), is amended by striking out "IX" and inserting in lieu thereof "X".

(2) It is the intent of Congress that the amendment made by paragraph (1) of this subsection shall (A) revive title IX of the Act of December 27, 1967 (81 Stat. 742), as of the date of enactment of this Act, and (B) repeal title X of such Act of December 27, 1967 (81 Stat. 742), as of the date of enactment of this Act.

SENTENCE FOR OFFENSES COMMITTED PRIOR TO DEC. 27, 1967, AND SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

See §§ 1101 and 1102 of Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, set out as notes to § 22-501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Constitutionality

This section is not unconstitutional as being unduly vague in its employment of words such as "public disturbance," "tumultuous and violent conduct," and "grave danger of damage or injury." United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

The word "engages" as used in statute prohibiting willfully engaging in a riot was not so vague as to make statute unconstitutional. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Where indictments uniformly accused the defendants in other counts with burglary and often larceny as well, which took place at same time and same place, riot statute that was basically concerned with conduct rather than free expression did not unconstitutionally intrude on defendants' First Amendment rights. Id.

A riot statute may limit speech under certain circumstances. Id.

Construction

The court concluded that any person who, on encountering a riot, openly seizes goods he knows to have been looted or accessible to him only by virtue of disturbance will be deemed to have aided, encouraged and furthered the riot and, by so doing, to have engaged in it within meaning of this section. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

The public disturbance with which this section deals is undoubtedly compounded of unlawful conduct variously deriving from purposeful destructiveness and foolish greed, and the fact that latter does not offer as ugly a face does not mean that the two do not interact upon each other and make a common, albeit perhaps unequal, contribution to the evil against which the statute is aimed. Id.

Evidence

The defendants need not have been acting in concert in order to be convicted of engaging in a riot and proof as to conduct of each defendant was proof as to other two. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 119).

Since evidence of a riot includes proof of assemblage, proof of acts of other two defendants would be admissible with respect to acts of any one defendant. Id.

Indictment

A failure to allege an unlawful entry in count charging second-degree burglary amounted to no more than harmless error. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Since no indictment for a violation of riot statute had been returned charging engaging in riot alone but rather always that count was coupled with counts charging burglary and grand or petty larceny, the grand jury considered engaging in a riot in violation of statute in conjunction with separate but immediately related criminal conduct and there was no loose, unguided approach to indictments returned by grand jury under riot statute that would deprive defendants of their constitutional rights. Id.

Instructions

The court's refusal to give defendant's requested instruction that jury must acquit him of riot if they believed his testimony that he was not within store being burglarized in riot district was not error, inasmuch as one who knowingly participates in looting phase of a riot can, without constitutional transgression, be comprehended by Congress within those identified by this section as engaging in the proscribed "violent and tumultuous conduct." United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

Joint trial

By participating in a mob-like action, defendants had made themselves liable to a joint trial on count charging engaging in a riot. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 119).

Partial acquittal

Although the defendant was acquitted on charge of burglarizing a liquor store in a riot district did not of itself establish that jury accepted defendant's testimony that he did not enter store, thereby making it erroneous for trial court to interpret anti-riot statute as permitting jury to find defendant guilty of engaging in a riot, since, absent an instruction to the effect that jury should acquit defendant of riot count if it accepted his testimony as true, it was impossible to make any assumption as to precisely how jury viewed facts. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

§ 22-1201. Embezzlement of property of District of Columbia.

Whoever, being charged with the collection, receipt, safe-keeping, transfer, or disbursement of public money or other property or effects belonging or payable to the District of Columbia or in the custody of the same, fraudulently converts to his own use, or to the use of any other person, body corporate, or association whatever, or uses, by way of investment, in any kind of security, stock, loan, property, or in any other manner or form loans, with or without interest, to any company, corporation, association, or individual, excepting by depositing in bank to said party's own credit, in the usual course of business, any public money, funds, property, bonds, securities, assets, or effects received, controlled, or held by him for safe-keeping or for any other purpose, shall forfeit all right, by way of commissions or compensation, to any part of the said money or other property and shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement of the whole of the money or other property thus converted, used, invested, loaned, deposited, or paid out, and shall be imprisoned for not more than twenty years and fined in a sum not exceeding double the value of the money or property embezzled. (Mar. 3. 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 833.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impeachment

In this case, the court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. W. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 663, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 186).

§ 22-1202. Embezzlement by agent, attorney, clerk, servant, or agent of a corporation.

If any agent, attorney, clerk, or servant of a private person or copartnership, or any officer, attorney, agent, clerk, or servant of any association or incorporated company, shall wrongfully convert to his own use, or fraudulently take, make way with, or secrete, with intent to convert to his own use, anything of value which shall come into his possession or under his care by virtue of his employment or office, whether the thing so converted be the property of his master or employer or that of any other person, copartnership, association, or corporation, he shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than ten years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 834.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Agency

An agent who converts funds delivered to him on the false representation that they are needed in the principal's business is guilty of embezzlement. Woodward v. United States (1912, 38 App. D. C. 323).

"It is immaterial whether he receives possession of the property from a third person or from his master; for in either case the property is under his care, and if he converts it he is guilty of embezzlement." Henry v. United States (1921, 273 F. 330, 50 App. D.C. 366, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 51, 257 U.S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411).

Preexisting agency was not necessary. "If the agency came into existence contemporaneously with the delivery of the certificates, that would be enough." Id.

Attorney

Assignment of claim to an attorney for the purpose of collection, and to cover his fee for collection does not create the relation of debtor and creditor, so as to defeat a charge of embezzlement. Patterson v. United States (1912, 39 App. D.C. 84, certiorari denied 33 S. Ct. 114, 226 U.S. 609, 57 L. Ed. 380).

Broker

Broker who converts stock certificates delivered to him for sale is guilty of embezzlement. Henry v. United States (1921, 273 F. 330, 50 App. D.C. 366, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 51, 257 U.S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411).

Classes of acts

This section "describes two classes of acts, either one of which constitutes embezzlement: The first being the wrongful conversion to his own use, by the accused, of property which has come into his possession by virtue of his employment, and the second being the fraudulent taking, making way with, or secreting with intent to convert, such property to his own use." Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D. C. 432).

Offense of embezzlement is single, which the statute says may be committed by either of two methods or ways, count which charges that the embezzlement was committed by means of both methods is not bad for duplicity and proof of either means in the commission of the offense will sustain a conviction. O'Brien v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 263).

Definition

"Generally speaking, it (embezzlement) may be defined as the fraudulent conversion of another's property by one to whom it has been intrusted, with the intent of depriving the owner thereof." Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 112).

Demand as necessary

In embezzlement prosecution, the test as to necessity for demand is not whether the funds were acquired voluntarily, but rather, whether there is either a fixed time for accounting, at which time accused defaulted, or some other convincing proof to uphold the charge of wrongful conversion. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where funds are voluntarily turned over to accused, a demand and refusal to pay over may be strong evidence going to make out crime of embezzlement, but such a showing is not fundamentally necessary where there is other convincing proof to support conviction for embezzlement. Id.

Directed verdict

Where indictment sufficiently charged embezzlement and opening statement on behalf of Government set out in considerable detail nature of evidence on which prosecution would rely, prosecutor's failure to state that Government would prove a "wrongful conversion" or "fraudulent taking" did not entitle defendant to a directed verdict at close of Government's opening statement. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Election of offenses

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Defendant's reputation for honesty and integrity is admissible. Masters v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 350, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 1243).

It is competent for the government to prove the financial condition of the guardian at or immediately prior to an alleged offense, but evidence of other similar offenses is inadmissible unless there is some connection between the acts shown and one which accused is charged. Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D. C. 112).

The fact that defendant hypothecated stock and received $4,000 therefor is not proof that the stock was worth more than $35. Henry v. United States (1920, 263 F. 459, 49 App. D.C. 207).

Actual value of stock may be proved by the testimony of persons familiar with the affairs of the company, its assets, and the dividend-earning capacity of the stock, and by individual sales of stock at or near the date when the conversion occurred and actual value thus established furnishes a proper basis upon which the jury may make a finding. Id.

"Evidence of an intent at the time of the conversion to restore the embezzled money is not admissible. Henry v. United States (1921, 273 F. 330, 50 App. D.C. 366, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 51, 257 U.S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411).

In prosecution for embezzlement, evidence that unpaid bills were found in defendant's possession 38 days after alleged commission of offense was admissible, and its weight regarding defendant's financial condition at time of the offense was for jury. Lee v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 250).

—Parole evidence

In embezzlement prosecution against building contractor who received a $3,500 down payment from prosecuting witness who desired to have a house built on a vacant lot which the prosecuting witness did not own, parole evidence was admissible to show that, despite terms of written contract reciting that contractor was to construct the house for prosecuting witness and that prosecuting witness had made an advance payment of $3,500, the contractor had orally agreed to purchase the lot for prosecuting witness and that pursuant to such agreement the prosecuting witness had made a $3,500 down payment on lot and that prosecuting witness mistakenly believed that the written contract embodied the purchase of the lot as well as the construction of the house and that the $3,500 was delivered to contractor as agent to purchase lot for prosecuting witness and that contractor knew that prosecuting witness entertained such mistaken belief. Gibson v. United States (1959, 268 F. 2d 586, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

— Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for embezzlement. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of secretary-treasurer of firemen's relief association for embezzlement of death benefits due fireman's widow. United States v. Daigle (D.C.D.C. 1957, 149 F. Supp. 409, affirmed 248 F. 2d 608, 101 U. S. App. D. C. 286, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 344, 355 U. S. 913, 2 L. Ed. 2d 274).

False pretenses

Indictment charging that accused had procured a check from woman to invest money with him upon false representation that he had contract with third party, and when such relationship was that of borrower and lender and not principal and agent it sufficiently charged the crime of obtaining value by false pretenses and not embezzlement. Davis v. United States (1911, 37 App. D. C. 126).

Financial condition

In embezzlement prosecution, the prosecution may show defendant's straitened financial condition only at or immediately prior to the commission of the offense. Lee v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 250).

Admission of testimony regarding defendant's financial condition reasonably related to dates charged in embezzlement indictment was not error. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Evidence by defendant of his financial standing is incompetent. Masters v. United States (1914, App. D.C. 350, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 1243).

Forgery

An employee, who, without authority, indorses his employer's name on a check payable to the latter's order, and cashes it, is guilty of forgery and not embezzlement. Dowling v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 11).

When defendant acted as bookkeeper, salesman, and collector and was authorized to indorse the name of the company on the checks, he was guilty of forgery and not embezzlement when he indorsed his own name and appropriated the money. Yeager v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 402, 59 App. D.C. 11).

Indictment

It is not necessary to allege the "particular way or means by which the conversion was effected." Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 432).

A general verdict of guilty on an indictment charging embezzlement and false pretenses will be set aside as inconsistent. Davis v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 126).

In an indictment for wrongful conversion it is not necessary to allege an intent to defraud. Patterson v. United States (1912, 39 App. D.C. 84, certiorari denied 33 S. Ct. 114, 226 U.S. 609, 57 L. Ed. 380).

"The stealing or conversion of property belonging to different persons at the same time and place constitutes but a single offense and should be prosecuted as such." Henry v. United States (1920, 263 F. 459, 49 App. D.C. 207).

Under this section which describes two classes of acts, either one of which constitutes embezzlement, an indictment charging the commission of both of such acts is not bad for duplicity, and a conviction is warranted upon proof of the commission of either of the acts. Turner v. United States (1927, 16 F. 2d 535, 57 App. D.C. 39).

Instruction

Where, in prosecution for embezzlement, grand larceny, forgery, and uttering in connection with payment of death benefits to firemen's widows by defendant as officer of firemen's relief association, there was no question as to what specific sum of money was involved, defendant had sufficient information to make his defense, and there was not chance of double jeopardy, and, therefore, any variance in proof of ownership under instruction that, although money was alleged to be association's, it would not be fatal to conviction if money was found to be payee's, was not prejudicial. United States v. Daigle (D.C.D.C. 1957, 149 F. Supp. 409, affirmed 248 F. 2d 608, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 286, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 344, 355 U.S. 913, 2 L. Ed. 2d 274).

Intent

Hotel cashier clerk's conversion of $649 of employer's $1,000 placed in clerk's custody was not accompanied by criminal intent essential to embezzlement by employee wrongfully converting employer's funds to employee's use, where clerk had carelessly left hotel with the $649 at end of his tour of duty, instead of leaving it there, and thereafter clerk lost or somebody stole the money. C. E. Anzoategui v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 1000, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 337).

To wrongfully convert money is an act in its nature evil, and the statement of the act itself imports the evil intent. O'Brien v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 263).

An agent converting funds of his principal delivered to him in the District of Columbia cannot be convicted of embezzlement if he formed the intent to convert outside of the District. Woodward v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 323).

"The principle is that where a statute prohibits an act under certain circumstances, and a person commits the act not under a mistake of fact, a criminal intention is conclusively presumed." Patterson v. United States (1912, 39 App. D.C. 84, certiorari denied 33 S. Ct. 114, 226 U.S. 609, 57 L. Ed. 380).

"Before there can be a conversion of the property of another there must be an intent on the part of the doer of the act to convert the property to his own use without the consent of the owner. But a wrongful conversion implies a conversion by the doer of the act without color of right, and with the evil intent of converting the property to his own use. The intent to wrongfully convert the property of another implies more than the intent to merely convert. It implies a mind at fault, an evil mind, capable of intentionally committing the offense here defined by the statute." Fulton v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 27). See, also, Masters v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 350, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 1243).

Larceny

Principal difference between larceny and embezzlement lines in the manner in which possession of the property is acquired; in larceny there is a trespass, accompanied by an intent to steal while in embezzlement there is a fraudulent conversion of property the possession of which was lawfully acquired; in either case, except under special statutes, evil intent must be shown. Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 112).

To sustain a conviction of grand larceny "it must be alleged and proved that the value of the property embezzled is over $35.00." Henry v. United States (1920, 263 F. 459, 49 App. D.C. 207).

Bookkeeper of hotel is mere employee and when he absconded with envelopes it constituted larceny and not embezzlement. Chanock v. United States (1920, 267 F. 612, 50 App. D.C. 54, 11 A.L.R. 799).

Production of statements and reports

Reports, which were made by agent of Federal Bureau of Investigation on basis of notes of interviews with another witness, who had also testified for prosecution, and which were prepared from 10 days to a month and a half after interviews and were summaries and not verbatim notes of interviews, were not statements required to be produced under statute concerning production of statements and reports of witnesses, and refusal of court to order their production for use of defense in a prosecution for alleged mishandling of funds of Federal Credit Union at Naval Air Station was not error. Borges v. United States (1959, 270 F. 2d 332, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 139).

Promissory note

A promissory note may be the subject of embezzlement. Reeves v. United States (1927, 15 F. 2d 734, 56 App. D.C. 376).

Railroad conductor

A railroad conductor who collects and subsequently sells tickets is guilty of embezzlement. Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 432).

Repayment

Where there has been wrongful conversion, repayment will not serve to clear defendant of charge of embezzlement. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Review

Where defendant was convicted under two counts of two consolidated indictments charging embezzlement and two counts charging obtaining money by false pretenses and sentences on false pretenses counts were each less than sentences imposed on embezzlement counts and were concurrent therewith and the convictions on the embezzlement counts were sustained, defendant's contentions regarding the convictions on the false pretenses counts would not be examined by Court of Appeals. Gibson v. United States (1959, 268 F. 2d 586, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

"Under his care"

Phrase "Under his care" will cover property merely in his custody, and therefore, under such a statute, it is immaterial whether he receives possession of the property from a third person or from his master; for in either case the property is under his care, and if he converts it he is guilty of embezzlement. Henry v. United States (1921, 273 F. 330, 50 App. D.C. 366, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 51, 257 U.S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411).

Verdict

Where court instructed jury that if it should find defendant guilty of embezzlement as to either transaction, it would have to return a verdict of not guilty as to the companion larceny count, but jury found defendant guilty of both embezzlement and larceny as to the same transaction, District Court had right to direct verdict of acquittal on larceny count, and defendant was not prejudiced by any alleged "choice of verdicts" since penalty for embezzlement was less than that for larceny. United States v. Daigle (D.C.D.C. 1957, 149 F. Supp. 409, affirmed 248 F. 2d 608, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 286, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 344, 355 U.S. 913, 2 L. Ed. 2d 274).

Wrongful conversion

Prosecution must demonstrate beyond reasonable doubt that there was a wrongful conversion by defendant to establish crime of embezzlement, and a mere conversion will not suffice. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

§ 22-1203. Embezzlement of note not delivered.

Every embezzlement of any evidence of debt negotiable by delivery only, actually executed by the master or employer of any such clerk, attorney, agent, officer, or servant, but not delivered or issued as a valid instrument, shall be deemed an offense within the meaning of section 22-1202. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 835.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

There was no error in overruling the motion in arrest of judgment which contended that the indictment did not allege that the railroad tickets therein described or any one of them was embezzled in any manner described in this section. Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 432).

§ 22-1204. Receiving embezzled property.

Every person who shall buy or in any way receive anything of value, knowing the same to have been embezzled, taken, or secreted contrary to the provisions of sections 22-1201 to 22-1203, shall be punished in the same manner and to the same extent as prescribed in said sections, respectively. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 836.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Property embezzled

Quaere. Whether this section embraces "the receipt of property that may have been embezzled in another jurisdiction, as embezzlement is defined in our Code, or is limited to that which may have been embezzled in the District of Columbia." Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 432).

Sufficiency of proof

"To convict the defendant, it was necessary to prove first, that the property had been embezzled by Barnes in the District of Columbia * * * and second that the defendant had bought, or in any way received, it from Barnes, 'knowing the same to have been embezzled, etc.,' as provided in section 836" (this section) Gassenheimer v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 432).

§ 22-1205. Embezzlement by carriers and innkeepers.

Any person intrusted with anything of value, to be carried for hire, or being an innkeeper and intrusted by his guest with anything of value for safe-keeping, who fraudulently converts the same to his own use, shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement and punished as provided in section 22-1202. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 837.)

Bookkeeper and clerk in hotel is not an "innkeeper" as defined in this section. Chanock v. United States (1920, 267 F. 612, 50 App. D.C. 54, 11 A.L.R. 799).

Innkeeper and guest

One who is merely a customer at a bar, restaurant, barbershop, or newsstand operated by hotel does not thereby establish relationship of "innkeeper and guest". Wallace v. Shoreham Hotel Corp. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 81).

§ 22-1206. Embezzlement by warehouseman, factor, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant.

Any warehouseman, factor, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant, or his clerk, agent, or employee, who, with intent to defraud the owner thereof, sells, disposes of, or applies or converts to his own use any property intrusted or consigned to him, or the proceeds or profits of any sale of such property shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement, and shall suffer imprisonment for not more than ten years. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

Factor or commission merchant

One who receives and takes possession of produce as the agent of the owner to sell for them is a factor or commission merchant within the meaning of this section, and this is so, although defendant had no store and was engaged in the brokerage business. Green v. United States (1905, 25 App. D.C. 549).

§ 22-1207. Punishment for violations of sections 22-1202 to 22-1206.

Whoever shall be guilty of any offense defined in sections 22-1202 to 22-1206, shall, where the thing, evidence of debt, property, proceeds, or profits be of the value of less than $100, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $200 or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 851a, as added Mar. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 727, ch. 107, and amended Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(f).)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the valuation of the subject matter of embezzlement from $50 to $100.

1937—Act Aug. 12, 1937, increased the valuation of the subject matter of embezzlement by substituting "value of less than $50" for "value of not more than thirty-five dollars," and decreased the fine by substituting "$200" for "five hundred dollars,".

This section is referred to in section 22-1409.

§ 22-1208. Conversion by commission merchant, consignee, person selling goods on commission, and auctioneers.

If any factor, commission merchant, consignee, or any person selling goods on commission, or the agent clerk, or servant of such person, shall convert to his own use in the District of Columbia any provisions, fruits, flour, meat, butter, cheese, or any other goods, merchandise, or property, or the proceeds of the same, and shall fail to pay over the avails or proceeds less his proper charges, within five days after receiving the money or its equivalent from the purchaser or purchasers of said goods or produce, and after demand made therefor by the person entitled to receive the same, or his or her duly-authorized agent, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon information and conviction in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. The provisions of this section shall be applicable to all licensed auctioneers, their agents and employees. (Mar. 21, 1892, 27 Stat. 10, ch. 19; July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 623, ch. 1352, § 7, par. 8; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

1902—Act July 1, 1902, provided that section should be applicable to licensed auctioneers, their agents and employees.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

§ 22-1209. Embezzlement by mortgagor of personal property in possession.

(a) A person or any legal successor in interest of such person, having executed a security agreement creating a security interest in personal property securing a monetary obligation owed to a secured party and having under the security agreement:

(1) both the right of sale or other disposition of the property and the duty to account to the secured party for the proceeds of the disposition, sells or otherwise disposes of the property but willfully and wrongfully fails to account to the secured party for proceeds of disposition; or

(2) no right of sale or other disposition of the property, willfully and wrongfully secretes, withholds, sells, or disposes of the property, or converts it to his own use, or, without the consent of the secured party, removes it out of the District, or maliciously injures or destroys it, in violation of the security agreement—

if the lesser of the value of the proceeds not so accounted for or of the property so secreted, withheld, sold, disposed of, converted, removed, or injured or destroyed, or, in either case, of the unpaid balance of the monetary obligation so secured, is more than $100, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both; or, if the lesser of any of the values as herein described is $100 or less, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year or both.

(b) In a case in which a debtor in possession of personal property subject to a security interest, who would be guilty of an offense under this section, is a corporation or a partnership, an officer, director, partner, or agent of the debtor who aids or abets in the commission of the offense shall be punished as provided by subsection (a) of this section.

(c) As used in this section, "security agreement", "security interest", and "secured party" have the same meanings as those given to the terms by sections 28:9-105(h), 28:1-201(38), and 28:9-105(i), respectively, of the District of Columbia Code. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 839; Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88-243, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

1963—Act Dec. 30, 1963, subdivided section into subsections, and amended section generally to conform the provisions with the Uniform Commercial Code, Subtitle I of Title 28. Prior to such amendment, section read as follows: "Any mortgagor of personal property in possession of the same, who, with intent to defraud the owner of the claim secured by the mortgage, removes any of the mortgage property out of the District, or secretes or sells the same, or converts the same to his own use shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Dec. 30, 1963, was made effective on Jan. 1, 1965. See note preceding Article I of subtitle I of title 28.

§ 22-1210. Embezzlement by executors and other fiduciaries.

Any executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, receiver, collector, or other officer into whose possession money, securities, or other property of the property or estate of any other person may come by virtue of his office or employment, who shall fraudulently convert or appropriate the same to his own use, shall forfeit all right or claim to any commissions, costs, and charges thereon, and shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement of the entire amount or value of the money or other property so coming into his possession and converted or appropriated to his own use, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding ten years, or both (Mar. 3. 1901. 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 841.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Commingling

More commingling of trust funds with personal funds "affords no sufficient basis for a presumption of evil intent." Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 112).

Evidence

In proving intent "it is competent for the government to prove the financial condition of the accused at or immediately prior to the alleged offense." Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 112).

Evidence of similar offenses is admissible to show a course of conduct or a general scheme, but there must be some possible connection between the acts shown and the one on account of which the defendant is being tried. Id.

Indictment

Indictment is sufficient which charges with precision and certainty that the defendant was appointed a receiver by order of court; that by virtue of said appointment he came into possession of a certain sum of money, alleged to be the property of the association and that on a certain date, he unlawfully and fraudulently converted and appropriated the same to his own use, and did then and there embezzle the same. Fields v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 433, certiorari denied 27 S. Ct. 543, 205 U.S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807).

Intent to defraud

"Intent to defraud is an essential element of the crime denounced by section 841 (this section)." Ambrose v. United States (1916, 45 App. D.C. 112).

Receivers

This section "comprehends property that may have passed into the defendant's possession as receiver before the time that it went into effect when embezzled thereafter." Fields v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 433, certiorari denied 27 S. Ct. 543, 205 U.S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807).

Sentence

A sentence under this section containing the words "at labor" will be modified by striking out such words as surplusage. Fields v. United States (1906, 27 App. D.C. 433, certiorari denied 27 S. Ct. 543, 205 U.S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807).

§ 22-1211. Taking property without right.

The taking and carrying away of the property of another in the District of Columbia without right to do so shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a term not to exceed six months, or both. (July

8, 1893, 30 Stat. 724, ch. 638; Apr. 21, 1906, 34 Stat. 127, ch. 1647.)

AMENDMENT

1906—Act Apr. 21, 1906, increased the limit for imposition of fines from forty to one hundred dollars and provided for punishment by imprisonment or both fine and imprisonment.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amendments

In prosecution for taking property without right, amendment of petition, at prosecution's request, to conform to proof that taking occurred at 11:30 p. m., instead of 11:30 a. m., as originally charged, was not error. In re Davis (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 590).

Construction

Statute relating to taking and carrying away of another's property without right to do so describes a misdemeanor and can be violated without specific intent, and provides a deterrent to self-help by a winning gambler without rejecting principle that specific intent turns on actor's state of mind, not upon an objective fact. J. W. Richardson v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 574, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Counsel, conduct of

In prosecution from taking property without right, denial of defendant's motion for mistrial on ground of prejudice to him by government counsel's request in jury's presence for short recess because articles taken were in complaining witness' automobile outside court-house and defendant's counsel had refused to waive their physical presence in court room, was not error. In re Davis (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 590).

Evidence

While juvenile courts are not bound by technical rules of evidence, police officer's testimony, on trial of minor for taking property without right, that defendant told witness that articles taken were on porch of defendant's home, and that witness then dispatched thereto another officer, who returned with articles, was insufficient, aside from defendant's confession, to establish his guilt. In re Davis (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 590).

Lesser included offense rule

Lesser included offense rule was properly applied when court instructed jury that the offense of larceny from interstate commerce, for which offense appellant was charged, included the lesser offense of taking property without right, an offense for which appellant was not charged, and, since sentence for taking property without right ran concurrently with sentence for unlawful entry, court need not consider claim of error predicated on the instruction. W. E. Humphrey v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 438).

Thief

The word "thief" as used in the vagrancy statute (§ 22-3302) does not cover a person who has been guilty only of unauthorized borrowing under this section. E. R. Harris v. District of Columbia (1958, 251 F. 2d 913, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 202; rev'g 132 A. 2d 152).

Chapter 13.—FALSE PRETENSES—FALSE PERSONATION

Sec.

- 22-1301. False pretenses.
- 22-1302. Recordation of deed, contract, or conveyance with intent to extort money.
- 22-1303. False personation before court, officers, notaries.
- 22-1304. Falsely impersonating public officer or minister.
- 22-1305. False personation of inspector of departments of District of Columbia.
- 22-1306. False personation of police officer.
- 22-1307. Wearing or using insignia of certain organizations.
- 22-1308. False certificate of acknowledgment.

§ 22-1301. False pretenses.

(a) Whoever, by any false pretense, with intent to defraud, obtains from any person any service or anything of value, or procures the execution and delivery of any instrument of writing or conveyance of real or personal property, or the signature of any person, as maker, indorser, or guarantor, to or upon any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, and whoever fraudulently sells, barter, or disposes of any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or other evidence of indebtedness, for value, knowing the same to be worthless, or knowing the signature of the maker, indorser, or guarantor thereof to have been obtained by any false pretense, shall, if the value of the property or the sum or value of the money, property, or service so obtained, procured, sold, bartered, or disposed of is $100 or upward, be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years; or, if less than that sum, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

(b) (1) Whoever obtains, at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests—

(A) lodging, food, or any other item of value, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager of such establishment, or

(B) credit by the use of false pretenses, shall, if the unpaid amount of such lodging, food, or other item of value is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if such unpaid amount is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

(2) Proof that a person—

(A) obtained lodging, food, any other item of value, or credit, at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests and failed to pay in full upon demand any amount then due for such credit or item of value, or

(B) departed or removed his baggage from a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests without the express consent of the proprietor or manager of such establishment and without first paying in full any amount due for food, lodging, any other item of value, or credit, shall be prima facie evidence that the acts specified in clause (A) of paragraph (1) were committed with fraudulent intent.

(c) Whoever, in the District of Columbia, registers at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests, under any name or address other than his actual name or address, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager of such establishment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (Mar 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 842; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(e); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-497, § 1, 84 Stat. 1093.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 1 of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-497, amended section—

(1) by inserting "(a)" immediately before "Whoever";

(2) by inserting "any service or" immediately before "anything of value";

(3) by striking out "value of the money or property" and inserting in lieu thereof "value of the money, property, or service";

(4) by striking out "$200" and inserting in lieu thereof "$1,000";

(5) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof new subsecs. (b) and (c) to read as above set out. For provisions of section before this amendment, see 1967 edition of the Code.

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the valuation from $50 to $100.

1937—Act Aug. 12, 1937, increased the valuation from $35 to $50.

1902—Act June 30, 1902, increased the penalty from six months to one year when the value of the subject matter obtained by false pretenses was less than thirty-five dollars.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

"The elements of the offense are a false pretense or false representation by the defendant or some one acting for and instigated by him, knowledge by the defendant as to the falsity, reliance on the pretense or representation by the person defrauded, intent to defraud, and an actual defrauding." Robinson v. United States (1914, 42 App. D. C. 186).

Abuse of discretion

Examination of record failed to disclose any abuse of discretion with respect to limitations placed on cross-examination of prosecution witnesses by defense counsel who claimed that he was prevented from testing the explanation given by the witnesses of general lending procedures by eliciting from them procedure followed with respect to the 17 transactions listed in indictment charging false pretenses and forgery since nothing in record showed that defense was intimidated from further inquiry into the specific loan transactions. United States v. R. M. Stamp (1971, 458 F. 2d 759, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 340; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 2424, 406 U.S. 975, 93 S. Ct. 104, 409 U.S. 842).

Admissible testimony

Testimony of police officer in prosecution for false pretenses was admissible where noncoercive questioning of defendant was carried on in course of a routine police investigation prior to arrest, or the establishment of probable cause for an arrest, and police had not moved from investigation into possible existence of a crime to purposeful investigation of defendant. Pennewell v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 870, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Admission of fingerprint card

Admission of defendant's police fingerprint card was not reversible error as being equivalent to admitting evidence of previous arrests or convictions where in stating his objection counsel did not make clear basis of objection or ask that jury be told that card related to defendant's arrest in instant case and where transactions involved in case occurred late in 1962 and early 1963 and jury was told that card was dated April 1963. Cupo v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 990, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

Amendment

This section was intended to repeal those provisions of existing acts requiring the imposition of a definite, as distinguished from an indeterminate, sentence, and possibility also to effect pro tanto repeal of the minimum penalty provisions of such existing acts as themselves stipulate a minimum penalty in excess of one-fifth of a stipulated maximum penalty. Anderson v. Rives (1936, 85 F. 2d 673, 66 App. D.C. 174).

Anything of value

A promissory note is a thing of value within the meaning of the statute; it is not necessary that false pretense should be the sole inducement for parting with the property; it is sufficient "if it had a preponderating influence sufficient to turn the scale, although other considerations operated upon the mind of the party." Partridge v. United States (1913, 39 App. D. C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

This section made the obtaining of anything of value by means of false pretenses a crime. Biddle v. United States (1908, 156 F. 759, 84 C.C.A. 415).

Appeal and error

Since neither at trial nor on appeal did the defendant indicate kind of evidence he would offer to establish illegality of arrest, alleged constitutional error in admission of evidence seized pursuant to purportedly invalid arrest would not be considered on appeal; defendant is relegated to relief by way of collateral attack on motion to vacate judgment of conviction on sentence. United States v. W. F. Moore (1970, 435 F. 2d 113, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 309; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1376, 402 U.S. 906).

Constitutional error in the admission of evidence may be raised at any time, including collaterally. Id.

Burden of proof

Part of the Government's burden in establishing elements of the offense of false pretenses is proving that facts represented were untrue. I. L. White v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 464).

Chattel mortgage

In determining whether, under District of Columbia law, defendants had committed an offense by violating code provision that whoever by any false pretense, with intent to defraud, obtains from any person anything of value is guilty, fact, if true, that chattel mortgage to two television sets, which were purchased after defendant made misrepresentation as to indebtedness on automobile given as security for the purchase, would have to be construed as conditional sales contract, which would preclude defendant from having received title to them, was irrelevant. Nelson v. United States (1956, 227 F. 2d 21, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 6, 53 A.L.R. 2d 1206, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 700, 351 U.S. 910, 100 L. Ed. 1445).

Comment on failure to call witness

No legitimate basis existed for government's comment on defendant's failure to call missing witness where, in prosecution involving false pretenses, it could not reasonably be supposed or inferred that missing witness would have supported defendant's account, even if true, since defendant's contention was that the fraud was committed by missing witness rather than by himself. Pennewell v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 870, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Continuance

In prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses through cashing of checks which issuer had no reason to suppose would be honored, where at time of entry of plea of not guilty New York attorney filed affidavit that he would represent defendant, but on date of trial local counsel for defendant requested a continuance for reasonable time on ground New York attorney was engaged in another trial, it could not be said that under circumstances trial judge had abused his discretion in refusing continuance and requiring local attorney to go to trial on short notice. Gilmore v. United States (1959, 273 F. 2d 79, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Crime against United States

False pretense is a crime against the United States, and persons conspiring to commit it may be punished under U.S.R.S. § 5440 (18 U.S.C. § 371). Geist v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 594).

Direct evidence

Direct evidence by a victim is not necessary to prove the elements of obtaining and reliance as required by this section. D. T. Hymes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 679).

In this case the introduction into evidence of seven purchase receipts for gasoline sales would support inference that gasoline was provided with reliance on validity of the credit card and authorized use thereof and the judgment of conviction was affirmed. Id.

Double jeopardy

The offense of obtaining motor vehicle by means of false pretenses in violation of District of Columbia Code and offense of transporting motor vehicle in interstate commerce knowing it to have been stolen in violation of Criminal Code of United States involve different elements and require different proof and are separate and distinct offenses even though same vehicle is subject of both acts, and prosecution and punishment of defendant for both offenses does not constitute double jeopardy. United States v. J. W. Oates (1963, 314 F. 2d 593, U.S. App. 4th Ct.).

Election of offenses

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 90 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Elements of crime

The elements of the crime of false pretenses are a false representation, knowledge of its falsity, an intent to defraud, reliance on the misrepresentation by the defrauded party, and the obtaining of something of value. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

Elements of false pretenses are false representation, knowledge of falsity, intent to defraud, reliance by defrauded party, and obtaining something of value. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

Five elements of crime of false pretenses are: false representation, knowledge of falsity, intent to defraud, reliance by the defrauded party, and obtaining something of value. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Under false pretenses statute, it must be shown that alleged fraud would not have been accomplished but for misrepresentations made. Id.

Embezzlement

"Verdict under embezzlement counts negatives one essential fact in the crime of procuring money by false pretenses, namely, the divesting of the title originally." Davis v. United States (1911, 37 App. D. C. 126).

Evidence

Where specific terms of check (with which defendant purchased some $79 worth of groceries at local supermarket while knowing he had no current account in bank upon which check was drawn) were not material in prosecution for obtaining property under false pretenses, since false representation alleged was that the defendant had an account at the bank and such representation was obviously implied and not part of the instrument itself, best evidence rule was not applicable, and oral testimony concerning check lost by government prior to trial was properly considered in arriving at verdict. L. J. Henson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 287 A. 2d 106).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of obtaining hotel lodging under false pretenses, notwithstanding defendant's failure to pay within one week after checking out, in view of showing of defendant's efforts to pay. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

Evidence, which showed that defendants knowingly obtained from complaining witness a check for $150 drawn against insufficient funds, that defendants falsely represented that check had been cashed with warning that witness would be prosecuted if check was not honored and store manager had later said police would be notified if check were not immediately covered, and that witness therefore cashed certain bonds and turned $150 over to defendants, showed that the representations related to past events and supported convictions of false pretenses. C. I. Williamson v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 224 A. 2d 309).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction on charge of false pretenses in connection with a stock and worthless check transaction. H. N. Kelly, Jr. v. United States (1961, 297 F. 2d 437, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

In prosecution of one who presented a bad check as good and got hotel to cash it, for obtaining money by false pretenses, court properly admitted in evidence some 13 other bad checks which defendant had represented as good, and for which he got cash at about the same time, for purpose of showing fraudulent intent. Green v. United States (1951, 188 F. 2d 48, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 249, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 1008, 341 U.S. 955, 95 L. Ed. 1376, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 24, 342 U.S. 842, 96 L. Ed. 636).

In prosecution for attempting by false pretenses to obtain money from an insurance company on a fraudulent claim for stolen furs evidence of defendant's guilt was sufficient for the jury. Cooper and Williams v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 918).

Where the question is one of guilty knowledge, or fraudulent intent "it has always been deemed allowable, as well in criminal as in civil cases, to introduce evidence of other acts and doings of the party, of a kindred character, in order to illustrate or establish his intent or motive in the particular act directly in judgment." Partridge v. United States (1913, 39 App. D.C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

In prosecution for false pretenses involving sales to two complaining witnesses by means of fraudulent representation of warehouse receipts and for embezzlement involving conversion by defendant of money which one complaining witness turned over to defendant in connection with such sales, error in permitting introduction of testimony of another witness that about two years before acts charged defendant had sold witness similar warehouse receipts and had made to her similar representations was not cured by instruction directing jury to disregard such testimony. Boyer v. United States (1943, 132 F. 2d 12, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

—Sufficiency

In the absence of explanation and authentication by bank making notation on a dishonored check "Refer to Maker", testimony that check had been dishonored by bank and returned to store to which it was tendered in payment for certain goods is insufficient to support conviction for false pretenses. I. L. White v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 464).

Evidence in this case is insufficient to sustain conviction for false pretenses arising out of tendering of a check to a store in payment for certain goods, followed by bank's dishonor of the check with the notation thereon "Refer to Maker". Id.

The evidence sustained conviction for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of a credit card. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

In prosecution for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of credit card in connection with motel registration, the necessity of producing motel desk clerk was obviated by introduction of motel's records. Id.

Expectation of belief

No one can be permitted to say, in regard to his own statements upon a material fact, that he did not expect to be believed, and, if such statements are knowingly false and wilfully made, fact that they are material is proof of an attempted fraud, since materiality, in eye of law, consists in their tendency to influence conduct of party who has interest in them and to whom they are

Fact represented falsely

In order to constitute the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses, the alleged false representation must be of some past or existing fact. Biddle v. United States (1908, 156 F. 759, 84 C.C.A. 415).

Inconsistent offenses

Under District of Columbia law, grand larceny and false pretenses are not inconsistent offenses. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

In-court identification

In-court identification by supermarket employees of defendant as the individual who purchased some $79 worth of groceries by drawing check subsequently dishonored was not inherently incredible because their testimony was not consistent regarding the number of times each had observed defendant prior to date of alleged obtaining of property under false pretenses. L. J. Henson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 287 A. 2d 106).

Indictment

Abusive words conveying the meaning that plaintiff had, by trick or artifice, obtained entrance into a theater, do not charge the indictable offense of false pretenses. Friedlander v. Rapley (1912, 38 App. D.C. 208).

An indictment charging defendant in one count with forgery and in second count with uttering same forged letter was not demurrable on ground that it was "repugnant". United States v. Briggs (D.C.D.C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

Instructions

Since reasonable doubt instruction did not call jury's attention to their particular prior experiences, although there was a general reference to certainty such as "you would not hesitate to act upon the more weighty and important matters relating to yourself", focus on jurors' personal lives was not sufficiently misleading to constitute plain error; however, far better would have been instruction in terms of what would cause an ordinary and prudent person to hesitate and pause. United States v. W. F. Moore (1970, 435 F. 2d 113, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 309; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1376, 402 U.S. 906).

There was no plain error requiring reversal of convictions of false pretenses and grand larceny on theory that court failed in its instructions to define specific intent when both crimes required such a finding since the defendant failed to except to charge given and such charge was adequate, although instruction set forth in criminal jury instructions would have eliminated specific intent from case if given. Id.

Instruction that it may be inferred that one intends natural and probable consequences of his act but that jury was not required to so infer does not constitute plain error requiring reversal of conviction of false pretenses and grand larceny since no exception was taken to charge notwithstanding that charge should have contained crucial words "knowingly done or knowingly omitted." Id.

Charge that intoxication could negate specific intent essential to a finding of guilt, when such intent is required, is necessary in a proper case even without a request where sufficient evidence of intoxication is adduced. Id.

Instruction that intoxication could negate specific intent essential to finding of guilt of false pretenses and grand larceny was properly refused since the only evidence of intoxication related to evening before the offense. Id.

Instruction, to which counsel did not object, that proof beyond reasonable doubt was such proof as would result in abiding conviction of defendant's guilt on jury's part, such conviction as jury would be willing to act upon in more weighty and important matters relating to their own affairs, was not prejudicially erroneous. Cupo v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 990, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

In prosecution for obtaining goods by false pretenses, instruction, which enumerated elements of the crime which were to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt, was, under District of Columbia law, correct and adequate for jury's guidance and in prosecution for obtaining goods by false pretenses, court was not bound to adopt defendant's theory of the case. Nelson v. United States (1956, 227 F. 2d 21, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 6, 53 A.L.R. 2d 1206, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 700, 351 U.S. 910, 100 L. Ed. 1445).

In prosecution for obtaining money from complaining witness by falsely representing to him that certain repairs had been made and certain parts replaced in his automobile, instruction that jury could find that defendants had guilty knowledge if they found that they made false representations as to repairs recklessly and not caring whether the representations were true or false, was improper, in view of fact subjective knowledge is necessary for criminal responsibility for a false representation, rather than a mere reckless disregard of the facts. Avant and Hughlett v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 354).

Instructions to counsel

In prosecution for false pretenses, trial court did not err when, prior to opening statement of Assistant United States Attorney, and at his request, trial court instructed counsel of defendant to refrain from mentioning that facts of transaction involved in false pretenses trial had previously been presented to grand jury as a charge of forgery and that the grand jury had ignored the charge. Brommer v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 157 A. 2d 292).

Intent

Wrongful acts, which are knowingly or intentionally committed, cannot be justified or excused on ground of innocent intent, since color of act determines complexion of intent. Nelson v. United States (1956, 227 F. 2d 21, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 6, 53 A.L.R. 2d 1206, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 700, 351 U.S. 910, 100 L. Ed. 1445).

Jury may impute an intent to defraud, where the evidence shows that one has obtained something of value from another by means of false representations, knowingly made with intent to induce the action taken by the other, by introducing evidence tending to show that he believed the other was receiving something of substantial value. Robinson v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 186).

When indictment plainly describes numerous false representations of present and past facts, and it charges that their falsity was known to defendant, that they were made with the intention of defrauding and that one believed them and acted upon them by paying money, is adequately charged a public offense. Randle v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 945, 72 App. D.C. 368, certiorari denied 61 S. Ct. 64, 311 U.S. 683, 85 L. Ed. 440).

Jurisdiction

On appeal from conviction for obtaining money by false pretenses, Court of Appeals was not required to consider defendant's criticism of warrant on which he was arrested, since jurisdiction in a criminal case is not impaired by fact that defendant was brought before court in an unlawful manner. Green v. United States (1951, 188 F. 2d 48, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 249, certiorari denied, 71 S. Ct. 1008, 341 U.S. 955, 95 L. Ed. 1376, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 24, 342 U.S. 842, 96 L. Ed. 636).

Knowledge of falsity

Finding of knowledge of falsity may be based on reasonable inferences from concrete facts in evidence, including conduct of parties to transaction, their utterances, the position occupied by accused, and all circumstances surrounding the transaction. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

Larceny

Where one gives up possession of chattel to another who converts it to his own use, wrongdoer commits a trespass, and taking is by "larceny", but where one, though induced by fraud or trick, actually intends that title shall pass to wrongdoer, crime is that of "false pretenses". Great American Indemnity Co. v. Yoder (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 131 A. 2d 401).

Where insured entered into agreement to sell insured automobile to third person for certain sum, and insured accepted a check, and third person departed with possession and title to automobile, and thereafter insured discovered that check was fraudulent, taking of automobile by third person was by "false pretenses" and not by

"theft" within meaning of policy insuring against "theft" of automobile. Id.

Limitations

Statute of limitations did not run during absence from the District of Columbia of defendant charged with obtaining money by false pretenses in the District of Columbia even if he did not leave the District of Columbia to avoid prosecution. Green v. United States (1951, 188 F. 2d 48, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 249, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 1008, 341 U.S. 955, 95 L. Ed. 1376, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 24, 342 U.S. 842, 96 L. Ed. 636).

Mere opinion or expectation

"False pretense or representation * * * must relate to some subsisting fact, past or present. A statement as to the future by way of opinion or expectation as to what can be accomplished does not constitute false pretense." Engle v. United States (1919, 48 App. D.C. 466).

Prejudicial error

Failure of court to clearly charge jury that false pretenses and conspiracy statutes provided more severe penalty when value of property involved exceeded $100 was not prejudicial error where all defendants were charged with getting or conspiring to get property worth more than $100 and were sentenced on that basis, where government's proof of value was adequate and not contested and where there was no real issue as to value and no request for more specific instruction. Cupo v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 990, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

Present or past facts

That false representations of present or past facts become effective only by being coupled with a false promise does not take a case out of the operation of the statute. Randle v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 945, 72 App. D.C. 368, certiorari denied 61 S. Ct. 64, 311 U.S. 683, 85 L. Ed. 440).

In indictment for obtaining money by false pretenses, the misrepresentations must relate to present or past facts, as distinguished from something to take place in the future. Id.

A false pretense, under this section, must relate to a past event or existing fact, and any representation with regard to a future transaction is excluded. Chaplin v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 697, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 80, 168 A.L.R. 828).

A liquor dealer who borrowed money on representations that he would use it to purchase liquor tax stamps, and that he would repay the money, but who used only a small portion to purchase stamps and failed to return the money so advanced, was not guilty under this section of obtaining money by "false pretenses", since the representations did not relate to a present or past existing fact. Id.

Presumption

No presumption arises from failure of defendant to call a witness if the witness is equally available to the government and is in legal sense a stranger to the accused. Pennewell v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 870, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Previous convictions

In prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses, where government brought out on cross-examination that defendant had been previously convicted of bad check charges and of embezzlement, and defendant was permitted to explain all bad check convictions, refusal to permit defendant to explain the conviction of embezzlement, although technically wrong, did not justify a reversal. United States v. Boyer (1945, 150 F. 2d 595, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 202, 166 A.L.R. 209).

Proceeds of check

Embassy employee who, with intent to steal, represented to superiors that money was needed for embassy's cash account and thus procured their signatures to checks, the proceeds of which he kept for himself, falsifying entries in cash journal to cloak transaction, was guilty of false pretenses and grand larceny, under District of Columbia law. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Questions for jury

"It is for the jury to determine whether each of those elements has been established by the evidence, and the court is not authorized to invade the province of the jury by telling them that if certain facts are proved the intent to defraud is made out." Robinson v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 186).

Reimbursement

Although hotels cashing checks for defendant who had insufficient funds did not suffer eventual loss because they were reimbursed by issuer of credit card presented by defendant, defendant was still guilty of crime of obtaining money by false pretenses in cashing checks which issuer had no reason to suppose would be honored, since offense was not purged by subsequent restoration or repayment. Gilmore v. United States (1959, 273 F. 2d 79, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Reliance on pretense

In prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses in cashing checks which issuer had no reason to suppose would be honored, where defendant claimed that hotels cashing checks for defendant were induced to part with their money not on belief that checks were good but in reliance on fact that issuer of credit card would make good whatever loss hotel might suffer, evidence sustained jury's finding that hotels cashed checks in belief that checks were good. Gilmore v. United States (1959, 273 F. 2d 79, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

In order to sustain a conviction for obtaining money by false pretenses in cashing checks which issuer had no reason to suppose would be honored, law merely demands that the belief that checks were good be a contributing influence sufficient to turn the scale, or that the alleged fraud would not have been accomplished except for misrepresentations made. Id.

Statement by defendant that prosecuting witness should not rely on representations but should satisfy himself by observation and inquiry, is not sufficient to relieve of criminal liability for false representation theretofore made unless it appears that prosecuting witness accepted withdrawal of representations and assumed to act entirely on his own judgment. Partridge v. United States (1913, 39 App. D.C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

Representation

False representation must be made to the person defrauded. Foster v. Goldsoll (1919, 48 App. D.C. 505, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 495, 250 U.S. 647, 63 L. Ed. 1188).

Review

Conviction of obtaining money by false pretenses affirmed. Moffatt v. United States (1931, 46 F. 2d 616, 60 App. D.C. 35). See, also, Howe v. United States (1932, 56 F. 2d 305, 61 App. D.C. 8).

Schemes to defraud

In prosecution for obtaining money under false pretenses, when evidence plainly shows a planned fraud, there was no error in the use of the phrase "schemes to defraud." Randle v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 945, 72 App. D.C. 368, certiorari denied 61 S. Ct. 64, 311 U.S. 683, 85 L. Ed. 440).

While the word scheme does not itself occur in the statute, the language of the statute is broad enough to cover a scheme to defraud. Id.

Search and seizure

Examination of record in prosecution for conspiracy, obtaining property by false pretenses and forgery showed that information obtained by Internal Revenue agents, who were conducting valid civil tax audits of the principals prior to those persons being advised of the rights of criminal suspects was obtained properly with respect to the defendants who were persons well versed in finance, taxation and the law. United States v. R. M. Stamp (1971, 458 F. 2d 759, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 340; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 2424, 406 U.S. 975, 93 S. Ct. 104, 409 U.S. 842).

Severance

Court's failure to order severance was not abuse of discretion as to defendants who did not raise joinder issue in that defendants were not seriously prejudiced. Cupo v. United States (1966, 359 F. 2d 990, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

Judge's refusal to sever on ground that co-defendants' counsel had been convicted of felony, or to inquire, per defendant's request, whether jury was familiar with any facts that might be derogatory to counsel, was not abuse of discretion. Id.

Speedy trial

Where defendant was tried and convicted about 16 months subsequent to indictment and in the interim he was detained in Maryland House of Correction in Maryland until released a month prior to trial, delay in trial did not violate defendant's rights to a speedy trial, notwithstanding the United States Attorney had not sought a writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum nor applied to Governor of Maryland for such a writ where extent of delay under all the circumstances was not so great as to amount to a denial of constitutional right. Stevenson v. United States (1960, 278 F. 2d 278, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 398).

Transfer of cause

The rule of criminal procedure authorizing case to be transferred to district in which defendant was arrested to receive plea of guilty to the charge could be applied to a violation of District of Columbia Code. United States v. Batton (D.C.D.C. 1958, 160 F. Supp. 172).

Unauthorized use of credit card

The unauthorized use of a credit card could be a violation of this section provided all elements of false pretenses are proven. D. T. Hymes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 679).

Waiver of trial by jury

In this prosecution for false pretenses where defendant had a right to trial by jury, but neither defendant nor his counsel objected to proceeding to trial without jury, and there was discussion in open court at prior hearing in case concerning a jury trial for defendant and official court entry on information stated "Jury Trial Demand Withdrawn," absence from transcript of any express waiver of defendant's right to jury trial was cured. C. Banks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 110).

The court held that, in criminal prosecution, where trial is had without jury, trial court is responsible for seeing to it by inquiry of defendant himself that he understands and knowingly and voluntarily waives his right to trial by jury and trial judge must also assure that such waiver is contained in the record as it occurred rather than merely as a rubber stamp entry on back of information. Id.

Worthless check

It is no defense in fraudulent check cases that defendant subsequently reimbursed the prosecuting witness, nor that defendant at time of transaction intended to repay the money. Clagett v. United States (1923, 289 F. 532, 53 App. D.C. 134).

It is a violation of the statute and no defense for the defendant to obtain money from the prosecuting witness upon the faith of the worthless check, whether the check was to serve as security for a concurrent loan or was to be presented to the bank for payment in ordinary course. Id.

§ 22-1302. Recordation of deed, contract, or conveyance with intent to extort money.

Whoever having no title or color of title to the land affected shall maliciously cause to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia any deed, contract, or other instrument purporting to convey or to relate to any land in said District with intent to extort money or anything of value from any person owning such land, or having any interest therein, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than two years, or both. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329, § 845a.)

§ 22-1303. False personation before court, officers, notaries.

Whoever falsely personates another person before any court of record or judge thereof, or clerk of court, or any officer in the District authorized to administer oaths or take the acknowledgment of deeds or other instruments or to grant marriage licenses, with intent to defraud, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 859; Feb. 17, 1909, 35 Stat. 623, ch. 134.)

CODIFICATION

Reference to municipal court of the District of Columbia following clerk of court was omitted from the Code as the phrase "court of record" included such court in view of act Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 2, 41 Stat. 1310 (formerly set out as § 11-702), and act Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 1, 56 Stat. 190 (formerly set out as § 11-752). The successor Superior Court of the District of Columbia is a court of record, see § 11-901.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act Feb. 17, 1909, changed the court known as "justice of the peace" to "the municipal court of the District of Columbia". Act Apr. 1, 1942, consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court into "The Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Acts Oct. 23, 1962, and July 8, 1963, redesignated the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia as the "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions". Act July 29, 1970, consolidated the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, and the District of Columbia Tax Court in the "Superior Court of the District of Columbia".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Requiring defendant to be sworn as witness

By requiring defendant, prior to trial judge's ruling on extent to which trial judge would permit defendant to be impeached by his past record, to take witness stand and be sworn as a witness before jury, trial judge pre-empted defendant's discretion regarding his decision whether to testify in his own behalf and, therefore, committed prejudicial error. J. H. Jones v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A.2d 674).

§ 22-1304. Falsely impersonating public officer or minister.

Whoever falsely represents himself to be a judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, notary public, police officer, or other public officer, or a minister qualified to celebrate marriage, and attempts to perform the duty or exercise the authority pertaining to any such office or character, or having been duly appointed to any of such offices shall knowingly attempt to act as any such officers after his appointment or commission has expired or he has been dismissed from such office, shall suffer imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 860; Feb. 17, 1909, 35 Stat. 623, ch. 134; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act Feb. 17, 1909, changed "justice of the peace" to "judge of the municipal court."

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

In prosecution for falsely impersonating a police officer of the United States, burden is upon government to prove crime charged beyond a reasonable doubt though where defendant is charged with falsely pretending to be an officer and fails to produce evidence showing he was such officer, presumption arises that evidence if produced would have been unfavorable to defendant. Taylor v. United States (1948, 167 F.2d 752, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Evidence

In prosecution for falsely impersonating a police officer of the United States, while it must in some manner appear that accused is not a federal officer, proposition is fairly inferable from character of proof much less direct and formal than might be required to affirmatively establish official capacity, and any facts which to average mind would fairly tend to indicate that accused was not a federal officer would be sufficient to warrant the jury in reaching such conclusion. Taylor v. United States (1948, 167 F.2d 752, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Evidence that accused was not a federal officer was sufficient to sustain conviction for false impersonation of a police officer of the United States notwithstanding government failed to offer direct proof that defendant was not such officer by reference to official police rolls. Id.

Instructions

In prosecution for falsely representing self to be a police officer, refusal of requested instruction on the factual defense theory, raised by defendant's testimony, that he merely stated truthfully that he was an attorney and "officer of the court," was reversible error. Levine v. United States (1958, 261 F.2d 747, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 281).

Intent

False personation is in the nature of positive aggressions or invasions, such as constitute common-law offenses, and hence proof of criminal intent is required and refusal of requested instruction requiring criminal or felonious intent was reversible error. Levine v. United States (1958, 261 F.2d 747, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 281).

Protection of citizenry

This section penalizing false representation of a person as police officer of District of Columbia is a protection of the citizenry against exercise of excess jurisdiction by an impostor as well as impersonation in the genuine jurisdiction which might have been exercised by a legitimate officer. Taylor v. United States (1948, 167 F.2d 752, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Reliance on representation

Reliance is not an element of statutory offense of false personation, and prosecution need not establish that parties to whom the alleged false representation was made relied upon it. Levine v. United States (1958, 261 F.2d 747, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 281).

Reversal on grounds of inadequate defense

Conviction for impersonating an officer was reversed and new trial ordered in view of defense's failure to call defendant to stand to rebut government's evidence that badge displayed by defendant who contended that he had exhibited a special police officer badge was not of the type officially issued to special police officers, failure to subpoena an allegedly material witness, presence of hearsay testimony and closeness of case. E. E. Dyer v. United States (1967, 379 F.2d 89, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 312).

Review

Record on appeal from conviction for defendant's falsely representing himself as a notary public and attempting to exercise authority of a notary public disclosed no error affecting substantial rights. Fentress v. United States (1956, 228 F.2d 646, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 132).

Variance

In prosecution for falsely pretending to be a member of District of Columbia Metropolitan Police, fact that scene of impersonation was in park subject to jurisdiction of United States Park Police did not establish a fatal variance under sections 4-120, 4-201, granting Metropolitan Police and Park Police concurrent jurisdiction over United States Parks within District of Columbia. Taylor v. United States (1948, 167 F. 2d 752, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

§ 22-1305. False personation of inspector of departments of District of Columbia.

It shall be unlawful for any person in the District of Columbia to falsely represent himself or herself as being an inspector of the health department of said District, or an inspector of any department of the District government; and any person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and for each subsequent offense by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the jail of the District not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Mar. 2, 1897, 29 Stat. 619, ch. 364; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia"

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court" was substituted for "police court" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

§ 22-1306. False personation of police officer.

It shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment in the District jail or penitentiary not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, for any person, not a member of the police force, to falsely represent himself as being such member, with a fraudulent design. (R. S., D. C., § 433.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Instructions

In prosecution for impersonating police officer, trial court's reading of this section defining crime as part of instructions to jury sufficiently charged elements of the crime. Wheeler v. United States (1951, 190 F. 2d 663, 89 U.S. App. D. C. 143).

In prosecution on count charging impersonation of officer and count charging grand larceny, error, if any, in charge instructing that jury could convict on second count even if they acquitted on first was harmless in view of fact that jury found defendant guilty of both offenses. Id.

§ 22-1307. Wearing or using insignia of certain organizations.

Whoever, in the District of Columbia, not being a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, or the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Sons of Veterans, of the Woman's Relief Corps, of the Union Veteran's Union, of the Union Veteran Legion, of the United Spanish War Veterans, of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and not entitled under the rules of the order to wear the same, wilfully wears or uses the insignia, distinctive ribbon, or badge of membership, rosette, or button thereof, or who uses or wears the same to obtain aid or assistance thereby, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 15, 1906, 34 Stat. 62, ch. 949.)

§ 22-1308. False certificate of acknowledgment.

Any officer authorized to take the proof or acknowledgment of an instrument which, by law, may be recorded, who wilfully certifies falsely that the instrument was acknowledged by any party thereto, or who wilfully certifies falsely as to any other material matter in such acknowledgment, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 845.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Examination of record failed to disclose any abuse of discretion with respect to limitations placed on cross-examination of prosecution witnesses by defense counsel who claimed that he was prevented from testing the explanation given by the witnesses of general lending procedures by eliciting from them procedure followed with respect to the 17 transactions listed in indictment charging false pretenses and forgery since nothing in record showed that defense was intimidated from further inquiry into the specific loan transactions. United States v. R. M. Stamp (1971, 458 F. 2d 759, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 340; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 2424, 406 U.S. 975, 93 S. Ct. 104, 409 U.S. 842).

Agent

The use by an agent of the signature of his principal for an unauthorized purpose constitutes forgery. Yeager v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 402, 59 App. D.C. 11).

Alteration

Question for the jury is not merely whether defendant honestly believed he had authority to alter notes, but whether he had reasonable grounds for so believing. Towles v. United States (1902, 19 App. D.C. 471).

Appeal and error

In prosecution for forging and uttering department store charge slips, although the trial court charged that falsity was an element of the offense, it erred in refusing to advise jury that proof of lack of authority to sign for another was required to establish falsity; in view of overwhelming evidence, however, the error was harmless. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Burden of proof

The Government has the burden of proving all elements of offense of forging and uttering department store charge slips, and there is no obligation on defendant to offer proof of authority to sign name of another. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

In forgery prosecution, testimony of two psychiatrists and a lay witness to effect that defendant was, in their opinion, suffering from mental illness when he committed the crimes charged satisfied requirement that defendant produce some evidence, and shifted burden of proving sanity to government. United States v. Amburgey (D.C.D.C. 1960, 189 F. Supp. 687).

Common law

Forgery, at common law, is the false making or materially altering with intent to defraud, of any writing which, if genuine, might apparently be of legal efficacy or the foundation of a legal liability. Milton v. United States (1940, 110 F. 2d 556, 71 App. D.C. 394). See, also, United States v. Briggs (D.C.D.C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

At common law, forgery and uttering were different substantive crimes. Reid v. Aderhold (C.C.A. Ga. 1933, 65 F. 2d 110, certiorari denied 54 S. Ct. 104, 290 U.S. 676, 78 L. Ed. 584).

Defenses

Post-conviction change in standards with regard to defense of insanity did not entitle defendant, tried and convicted under previous standard, to reversal, because court did not charge jury on issue of insanity in accordance with post-conviction change. Stogner v. United States (1956, 229 F. 2d 513, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 172).

Elements of offense

Forgery by false making has been committed where the accused, with intent to defraud, proffers a blank note to a customer and then induces the customer, who is reasonably justified in believing the representation, to sign it on the false representation that the paper is something other than a note, and the accused then fills in blanks and negotiates note. Lieberman v. United States (1958, 253 F. 2d 46, 102 U. S. App. D. C. 310).

Where contractor deceived customers into signing blank promissory notes and deeds of trust and later filled in instruments and passed them, he was guilty of forgery. Id.

To constitute "forgery" under this section, there must be a false making or other alteration of some instrument in writing, there must be fraudulent intent, and instrument must be apparently capable of effecting a fraud. United States v. Briggs (D.C.D.C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

Embezzlement

Where one employed as bookkeeper, salesman, and collector of an electric company, with authority to indorse checks in the name of the company and deposit them in the bank, cashed the checks instead and appropriated the money to his own use, the offense of which he was guilty was forgery, and conviction for embezzlement must be reversed. Yeager v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 402, 59 App. D.C. 11).

Evidence

Testimony and manner in which it was given, with defendant's acquiescence, in forgery prosecution, supported inference that signatures had not been authorized by person whose signatures they purported to be. W. E. Hough v. United States (1968, 397 F. 2d 708, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 147).

Any error in forgery prosecution in permitting store manager to testify to policy store had adopted in effort to catch people who had been stealing money orders and checks was harmless in light of all evidence. Id.

Reception, in forgery prosecution, of exhibit consisting of card completed voluntarily by defendant while in custody on which he had listed prior arrests, received to permit comparison of handwriting with that on checks, was prejudicially erroneous and required new trial notwithstanding that it was not clear that jury saw card and that there was other evidence of his guilt. R. E. Leigh v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 345, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 390).

— Sufficiency

Evidence, in prosecution for uttering forged check was sufficient for jury to draw inference that the defendant had knowledge that the checks in question were forged. United States v. G. J. Abston (1971, 448 F. 2d 1189, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

Guilty plea, withdrawal of Evidence on motion to vacate sentence and withdraw guilty plea did not support defendant's contentions that his guilty plea had been coerced and that his appointed counsel had been incompetent. R. K. McDonnell v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1964, 234 F. Supp. 1017).

Habeas corpus

Habeas corpus for release of one convicted of forgery denied. Reid v. Aderhold (C.C.A. Ga., 1933, 65 F. 2d 110, certiorari denied 54 S. Ct. 104, 290 U.S. 676, 78 L. Ed. 584).

Indictment

"It matters not that at common law the charge of falsely making an instrument was held to include the offense of falsely altering it, since they are disjunctively named in the statute as distinct ways in which the crime of forging may be committed. Forgery is a statutory, not a common-law crime in this District, and the offense must be charged as defined in the statute, irrespective of common-law rules of pleading." Frisby v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 22, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 96).

"The offense thus denounced is complete even though the instrument never is uttered. When it is uttered, another and distinct offense is committed, and a second uttering, of course, constitutes still another offense. In Frisby v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 22, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 96) the question was not directly involved and the Burton case (202 U.S. 344, 50 L. Ed. 1057, 26 Sup. Ct. 688) was not brought to our attention." Read v. United States (1924, 299 F. 918, 55 App. D.C. 43, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 596, 69 L. Ed. 805).

"The statute defines two distinct criminal acts, either of which constitutes the crime of forgery. The making of a false instrument with intent to defraud is forgery. The uttering of a forged instrument with intent to defraud is forgery. But where the instrument is both forged and uttered by the same person, * * * there is only the single crime of forgery committed." Frisby v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 22, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 96). See, also, Frisby v. United States (1910, 35 App. D.C. 513). Both acts may be charged in the indictment, or the pleader may elect to charge but one. Simon v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 280).

Indictment for uttering need not set forth the particular acts claimed to constitute such uttering. Fuller v. United States (1923, 288 F. 442, 53 App. D.C. 88).

Indictment charging defendant with possession and knowingly uttering and publishing a forged security, states a single offense. Price v. United States (1923, 289 F. 562, 53 App. D.C. 164).

Indictment need not allege the persons or corporations intended to be defrauded, but requires nothing more than a general intent to defraud. Read v. United States (1924, 299 F. 918, 55 App. D.C. 43, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 596, 69 L. Ed. 805).

An indictment charging defendant with having forged name of another individual to a letter and procuring of money for such letter from still another party with intent to defraud was sufficient to charge crimes of forgery and uttering, as against contention that instrument was not capable of effecting a fraud. United States v. Briggs (D.C.D.C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

An indictment charging defendant in one count with forgery and in second count with uttering same forged letter was not demurrable on ground that it was "repugnant". Id.

Counts in indictment charging defendant with uttering forged documents in interference proceeding in United States Patent Office "with intent to defraud and injure" were not required to name persons whom defendant intended to defraud and injure. Mas v. United States (1945, 151 F. 2d 32, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 223, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 267, 326 U.S. 776, 90 L. Ed. 469).

Instructions

Whether lack of authority to sign name of another is considered separate element of offense of forgery and uttering department store charge slips or part of element of falsity, the jury must be advised that without proof of lack of authority, the prosecution may not succeed. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Instrument

It is enough if the forged instrument be apparently sufficient to support a legal claim and thus to effect a fraud. Milton v. United States (1940, 110 F. 2d 556, 71 App. D.C. 394).

Intent

"There must be a false making or other alteration of some instrument in writing; there must be a fraudulent intent; and the instrument must be apparently capable of effecting a fraud * * *. Intent in forgery will not be presumed from the mere making of a false instrument. It must be gathered from some affirmative act, or from the existence of circumstances from which criminal intent may be inferred." Dowling v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 11). See, also, Frisby v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 22, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 96).

It is not essential that "anyone shall be actually defrauded, or that the accused shall have the intent to defraud any particular person. All that is required in that respect is that there be an intent to defraud someone." Easterday v. United States (1923, 292 F. 664, 53 App. D.C. 387, certiorari denied 44 S. Ct. 181, 263 U.S. 719, 68 L. Ed. 523). See, also, Read v. United States (1924, 299 F. 918, 55 App. D.C. 43, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 596, 69 L. Ed. 805); Milton v. United States (1940, 110 F. 2d 556, 71 App. D.C. 394).

Interstate transportation

Uttering forged checks in the District of Columbia, followed by their rejection by Maryland drawee, brought home to the defendant the interstate transportation which occurred. United States v. G. J. Abston (1971, 448 F. 2d 1189, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

Joinder

Joinder of burglary charges to charges of forgery and uttering by use of credit card stolen in a burglary is not prejudicial, since uttering of credit card stolen in the burglary would have been admissible in evidence in trial for burglary. United States v. B. J. Leonard (1971, 445 F. 2d 234, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

Jury question

In prosecution for forging and uttering bank checks and transporting forged securities in interstate commerce, evidence on insanity defense presented a jury question. United States v. D. M. Eichberg (1971, 439 F. 2d 620, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Plea of guilty

Where the accused entered a plea of guilty at the time of arraignment without assistance of counsel, and before sentence was imposed court-appointed counsel indicated that there might be a question of the accused's mental capacity because of a prior skull fracture, District Judge should have permitted a change of plea at time of sentencing. W. L. Poole v. United States (1957, 250 F. 2d 396, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

Presentence investigation report

Since at no time throughout sentencing proceedings following forgery conviction did defendant or his counsel challenge either court's expressed initial "belief" or its ultimate finding on record in defendant's presence that he was "addict" within statute defining same for sentencing purposes, denial of subsequent motion in district court to obtain access to presentence investigation report and to Danbury report in order that any basis for considering defendant to be addict might be disclosed was not abuse of discretion. United States v. K. R. Carroll (1970, 436 F. 2d 272, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

Reviewable matters

Appeal from conviction for forgery and uttering was not proper occasion for consideration of sentencing and credit question which had in no way been presented to district court. C. E. McCoy v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 224, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 202).

Search and seizure

Examination of record in prosecution for conspiracy, obtaining property by false pretenses and forgery showed that information obtained by Internal Revenue agents, who were conducting valid civil tax audits of the principals prior to those persons being advised of the rights of criminal suspects was obtained properly with respect to the defendants who were persons well versed in finance, taxation and the law. United States v. R. M. Stamp (1971, 458 F. 2d 759, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 340; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 2424, 406 U.S. 975, 93 S. Ct. 104, 409 U.S. 842).

Where police officer, who saw defendant walking along street about 2:00 in the morning, and who thought defendant had narcotics, without a warrant stopped defendant, who admitted that he had not worked for over a year, and had maintained himself by gambling, and officer then informed defendant that he was arresting him for vagrancy and required him to disrobe, search, which led to discovery of stolen money orders, was an unreasonable and unlawful violation of defendant's rights as a citizen, rendering stolen money orders inadmissible in prosecution for forgery, housebreaking, grand larceny, and interstate transportation of falsely made securities. White etc. v. United States (1960, 271 F. 2d 829, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Sentence

Where the defendant was sentenced to concurrent terms of imprisonment of one to three years on each of two counts of uttering forged checks and five years on each count of interstate transportation of the checks, the trial court properly specified that defendant would be eligible for parole under the latter sentence from any time after the first year. United States v. G. J. Abston (1971, 448 F. 2d 1189, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

Writings included

Statutes proscribing forgery of any writing and any writing of public or private nature which might operate to prejudice another included defendant's forging of name of attorney on praecipes by which defendant entered appearances in cases, and forging of a registration card. Morgan v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 234, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

§ 22-1402. Forging or imitating brands or packaging of goods.

Whoever wilfully forges or counterfeits or makes use of any imitation calculated to deceive the public, though with colorable difference or deviation therefrom, of the private brand, wrapper, label, trademark, bottle, or package usually affixed or used by any person to or with the goods, wares, merchandise, preparation, or mixture of such person, with intent to pass off any work, goods, manufacture, compound, preparation, or mixture as the manufacture or production of such person which is not really such, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1333, ch. 854, § 879.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Copies of former wills

The court held that it is the clear import of existing statutes, that copies of former wills, whether executed or unexecuted, must be made available to the court under threat of criminal penalty. C. H. Doherty, Sr., et al. v. V. Fairall, et al. (1969, 413 F. 2d 381, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 107).

Indictment

Averments of indictment were sufficient when they clearly set forth the defendant's relation to the building association; that certain books of record were required to be kept, and that six carefully described books of record were kept; and that the defendant, on a day named, "unlawfully, wilfully, and with an intent to defraud and injure the said association, and the said stockholders and members thereof, did take away and conceal said books hereinbefore in this indictment particularly described, said books then and there being the writing, records, and property of said association, stockholders, and members." Miller v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 52, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 323, 231 U.S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468).

Writing

The words "whereby the estate, etc.," do not modify the word "writing," but the section is to be read as though there were a comma after the latter word. Miller v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 52, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 323, 231 U.S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468).

§ 22-1407. Fraud by operation of coin-controlled mechanism by use of slugs.

Any person who shall operate or cause to be operated, or who shall attempt to operate or attempt to cause to be operated, in the District of Columbia any automatic merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle, designed to receive or be operated by lawful coin of the United States of America or a token provided by the person entitled to the coin contents of such receptacle, in furtherance of or in connection with the sale, use, or enjoyment of property or service, by means of a slug or any false token, counterfeited, mutilated, sweated, or foreign coin, or by any means, method, trick, or device whatsoever not authorized by the person entitled to the coin contents of such merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle; or any person who shall take, obtain, or receive from or in connection with any such merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle described in this section any goods, wares, merchandise, gas, electric current, or other article of value, or the use or enjoyment of any transportation or any telephone or telegraph facilities or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph, or other property, in the District of Columbia, without depositing in and surrendering to such merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle described in this section lawful coin of the United States of America to the amount required therefor by the person entitled to the coin contents of any such merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle, or tokens provided and to the amount required by the person entitled to the coin contents of such legal receptacle, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed six months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (Aug. 16, 1937, 50 Stat. 662, ch. 660, § 1.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-1409.

§ 22-1408. Manufacture, sale, offer for sale, possession of slugs or device to operate coin-controlled mechanism.

Any person who, with intent to cheat or defraud the owner, lessee, licensee, or other person entitled to the coin contents of any automatic merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle, designed to receive or be operated by lawful coin of the United States of America or a token provided by the person entitled to the coin contents of such legal receptacle, in furtherance of or in connection with the sale, use, or enjoyment of property or service, or any person who, knowing or having cause to believe that the same is intended for fraudulent or unlawful use on the part of the purchaser, donee, or user thereof, shall manufacture, sell, offer to sell, advertise for sale, give away, or possess, in the District of Columbia, any token, slug, false or counterfeit coin, or any device or substance whatsoever intended or calculated to be placed, deposited, or used in the operation of any such merchandise vending machine, turnstile, coin-box telephone, or other legal receptacle shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed six months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (Aug. 16, 1937, 50 Stat. 663, ch. 660, § 2.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-1409.

§ 22-1409. "Person" defined.

The word "person," where used in sections 22-1407 to 22-1409, shall be construed to include any individual, individuals, copartnerships, associations, groups, and corporations. (Aug. 16, 1937, 50 Stat. 663, ch. 660, § 3.)

§ 22-1410. Making, drawing, or uttering check, draft, or order with intent to defraud—Proof of intent—"Credit" defined.

Any person within the District of Columbia who, with intent to defraud, shall make, draw, utter, or deliver any check, draft, order, or other instrument for the payment of money upon any bank or other depository, knowing at the time of such making, drawing, uttering, or delivering that the maker or drawer has not sufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, order, or other instrument in full upon its presentation, shall, if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. As against the maker or drawer thereof the making, drawing, uttering, or delivering by such maker or drawer of a check, draft, order, or other instrument, payment of which is refused by the drawee because of insufficient funds of the maker or drawer in its possession or control, shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to defraud and of knowledge of insufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository, provided such maker or drawer shall not have paid the holder thereof the amount due thereon, together with the amount of protest fees, if any, within five days after receiving notice in person, or writing, that such check, draft, order, or other instrument has not been paid. The word "credit," as used herein, shall be construed to mean arrangement or understanding, express or implied, with the bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, order, or other instrument. (July 1, 1922, 42 Stat. 820, ch. 273; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91-497, § 3, 84 Stat. 1094.)

AMENDMENT

(1) by striking out "or order" in each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "order, or other instrument";

(2) by striking out "shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year or fined not more than $1,000, or both." and inserting in lieu thereof "shall, if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.";

(3) by inserting, in the second sentence, after "notice in person, or writing, that such" the following: "check,".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of crime

False representation, knowledge of falsity, and intent to defraud are sufficient to violate bad check statute when representation involves worthless check. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Evidence

In prosecutions for passing bad checks payable to United States Treasurer and delivered to agent for Federal War Assets Administration, proof of fact, not alleged in informations, that checks covered purchases of war surplus articles under veterans' preference, was unnecessary for conviction. McGuinness v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 77 A. 2d 22).

Instructions

Refusal to charge, in prosecution for false pretenses, on lesser included offense of passing bad check was not error where defense testimony disclosed something had been obtained for value and that defrauded party had placed reliance on defendant's check. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Issuance for antecedent debt

Under "worthless" check statute, fact that checks were given in payment of antecedent debt did not destroy presumption of fraudulent intent, and evidence as to issuance of two checks which were dishonored for lack of sufficient funds established prima facie case authorizing submission of case to jury in absence of any evidence by defendant on the point. Clarke v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 181).

Fact that a check is issued for a past-due obligation does not preclude a conviction under the "worthless" statute. Id.

Limitations

The Wartime Suspension of Limitations Act was inapplicable to charges of violating District of Columbia statute by passing bad checks payable to United States Treasurer and delivered to agent for Federal War Assets Administration, though giving of such checks may have resulted in offenses within all categories of extension statute, as none of such offenses was essential ingredient of violation of local statute, so that prosecutions begun over three years after commission of offenses were barred by general statute of limitations for non-capital offenses. McGuinness v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 77 A. 2d 22).

Questions for jury

In prosecution for violation of this section making it a crime for any person, with intent to deceive, to deliver any check while knowing that there are insufficient funds to his credit with bank for payment of such check, question of whether or not defendant had an intent to defraud in issuance of check for past consideration, presented a question of fact for the jury. Clarke v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 269, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

Recovery on bond

The word "trading" in clause excluding trading loss from coverage of brokers' bond meant buying and selling of securities on customer's account, and loss occurring when brokers' employee accepted order to purchase substantial amount of stock for customer who gave bad check was such a loss. L. Sade et al. v. National Surety Corp. (D.C.D.C. 1962, 203 F. Supp. 680).

§ 22-1411. Fraudulent advertising.

It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person, firm, association, corporation, or advertising agency, either directly or indirectly, to display or exhibit to the public in any manner whatever, whether by handbill, placard, poster, picture, film, or otherwise; or to insert or cause to be inserted in any newspaper, magazine, or other publication printed in the District of Columbia; or to issue, exhibit, or in any way distribute or disseminate to the public; or to deliver, exhibit, mail, or send to any person, firm, association, or corporation any false, untrue, or misleading statement, representation, or advertisement with intent to sell, barter, or exchange any goods, wares, or merchandise or anything of value or to deceive, mislead, or induce any person, firm, association, or corporation to purchase, discount, or in any way invest in or accept as collateral security any bonds, bill, share of stock, note, warehouse receipt, or any security; or with the purpose to deceive, mislead, or induce any person, firm, association, or corporation to purchase, make any loan upon or invest in any property of any kind; or use any of the aforesaid methods with the intent or purpose to deceive, mislead, or induce any other person, firm, or corporation for a valuable consideration to employ the services of any person, firm, association, or corporation so advertising such services. (May 29, 1916, 39 Stat. 165, ch. 130, § 1.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 10—124a, 22—1412, 22—1413.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amendments

In prosecution upon two informations charging in effect that accused inserted advertising calculated to induce readers for a valuable consideration to employ the advertiser's service, "knowing the same to be false and containing certain false, untrue and misleading statements," action of trial court in permitting amendments whereby words "for a valuable consideration" were deleted and words "with intent to barter, sell, or exchange any goods, wares, or merchandise, or anything of value" were added, was not, so far as appeared from record, prejudicial, and was not abuse of discretion. Robles v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 115 A. 2d 303).

§ 22-1412. Prosecution under section 22-1411.

Prosecution under section 22—1411 shall be in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia upon information filed by the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, or one of his assistants. (May 29, 1916, 39 Stat. 165, ch. 130, § 2; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, ch. 646, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88—60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91—358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91—358 amended section by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11—101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, substituted "United States Attorney" for "United States District Attorney." See 28 U.S.C. § 501.

"Municipal court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the police court and the municipal court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act

Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87—873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

§ 22-1413. Penalty under section 22-1411.

Any person, firm, or association violating any of the provisions of section 22—1411 shall upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment of not more than sixty days, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. A corporation convicted of an offense under the provisions of section 22—1411 shall be fined not more than $500, and its president or such other officials as may be responsible for the conduct and management thereof shall be imprisoned not more than sixty days, in the discretion of the court. (May 29, 1916, 39 Stat. 165, ch. 130, § 3.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

If any person shall fraudulently tamper with any box or wheel used or intended by the jury commission for the names of prospective jurors, or of prospective condemnation jurors or commissioners, or shall fraudulently tamper with the contents of any such box or wheel, or with any jury list, or be guilty of any fraud or collusion with respect to the drawing of jurors or condemnation jurors or commissioners, or if any jury commissioner shall put in or leave out of any such box or wheel the name of any person at the request of such person, or at the request of any other person, or if any jury commissioner shall wilfully draw from any such box or wheel a greater number of names than is required by the court, any such person or jury commissioner so offending shall for each offense be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment in the District jail or workhouse for not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1223, ch. 854, § 213; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 560, ch. 153, § 213; Mar. 27, 1968, Pub. L. 90—274, § 103(f), 82 Stat. 63.)

If any person shall within the District keep, set up, or promote, or be concerned as owner, agent, or clerk, or in any other manner, in managing, carrying on, promoting, or advertising, directly or indirectly, any policy lottery, policy shop, or any lottery, or shall sell or transfer any chance, right, or interest, tangible or intangible, in any policy lottery, or any lottery or shall sell or transfer any ticket, certificate, bill, token, or other device, purporting or intended to guarantee or assure to any person or entitle him to a chance of drawing or obtaining a prize to be drawn in any lottery, or in a game or device commonly known as policy lottery or policy or shall, for himself or another person, sell or transfer, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale or transfer, a chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in any lottery or any such bill, certificate, token, or other device, he shall be fined upon conviction of each said offense not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both. The possession of any copy or record of any such chance, right, or interest, or of any such ticket, certificate, bill, token, or other device shall be prima-facie evidence that the possessor of such copy or record did, at the time and place of such possession, keep, set up, or promote, or was at such time and place concerned as owner, agent, or clerk, or otherwise in managing, carrying on, promoting, or advertising a policy lottery, policy shop, or lottery. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-1502, 22-1505, 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of evidence—In general

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, admission of one defendant's accusatory statement against the other three defendants was not error in view of later instructions that jury should disregard such statement. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

In prosecution for operation of lottery and for possession of numbers slips, slips used as evidence to prove possession charge could also be used to prove charge of operation of lottery. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 347).

— Arrest, search and seizure

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game, in violation of this section, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. McDonald v. United States (1948, 69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U.S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 153).

Where, over period of two and a half months, officers had placed numbers bets on fifteen separate occasions at one location, and, on ten separate occasions, had observed a suspect depart from that location with bulging pockets and enter other premises, from which he subsequently departed "without the bulge," officers had reasonable grounds to believe that latter premises were being used in lottery operations, and that defendant, who at time such premises were searched, pursuant to a search warrant was the only male present and was leaving "hastily," was participating therein, justifying arrest of defendant without an arrest warrant and seizure and use of incriminating evidence found in course of search of defendant made in connection with such arrest. Stephens v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 832, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

In prosecution of numerous defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate those laws, where evidence obtained at one of several places raided was inadmissible because it had been obtained as a result of illegal entry into premises, but mass of other evidence legally seized sustained convictions, error in admitting such illegally obtained evidence was not, except as to one defendant who was found guilty of possessing lottery slips seized at such address, prejudicial. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U. S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

Whether lottery slips seized under search warrant were dead or alive they could be introduced in support of charge of operating a lottery. Shaw v. United States (1953, 209 F. 2d 298, 93 U. S. App. D. C., 90, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 430, 347 U. S. 905, 98 L. Ed. 1063).

Where suspected gambler appeared, without counsel, before Senate Crime Investigating Committee, under compulsion of subpoena, and committee, without advising him of his rights to counsel and against self-incrimination, threatened prosecution for contempt if he refused to answer, for perjury if he lied, and for gambling activities if he told truth, and, with warning that he was still under subpoena, directed him to lead policeman to his home and there turn over a book, and where policeman, upon entering the home and learning that the book was not available examined and took without process other papers and documents, such papers and documents were obtained by unreasonable search and seizure, and such evidence was inadmissible. Nelson v. United States (1954, 208 F. 2d 505, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 14).

Where Court of Appeals could not determine from record of more than 2,000 pages that jury would have convicted defendant had not evidence obtained through unreasonable search and seizure been adduced, conviction would be reversed and case remanded for new trial. Id.

In prosecution for operation of lottery known as numbers game, admission of numbers slips, numbers books, and other physical evidence seized at time of defendant's arrest, was proper, notwithstanding that it was not shown that numbers slips related to an existing lottery rather than to one already completed. Harvey v. United States (1952, 197 F. 2d 594, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 36).

In prosecution for operating numbers game and knowingly possessing numbers slips, found in defendant's automobile at time of his arrest without warrant, evidence of circumstances leading to arrest was sufficient to show probable cause therefor, so as to render search of automobile and seizure of slips reasonable and valid and authorize admission of slips in evidence against defendant. Mills v. United States (1952, 196 F. 2d 600, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 365, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 27, 344 U. S. 826, 97 L. Ed. 643).

Where police officers legally obtained search warrant for certain premises which they believed was being used in numbers lottery and entered and found extensive evidence of numbers activities and arrested all persons present, they could legally search the persons arrested, and evidence thereby obtained was admissible in prosecution for carrying on and promoting a numbers game and for possession of numbers slips. Wyche v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 703, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 67, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 556, 342 U. S. 943, 96 L. Ed. 702, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 675, 343 U. S. 921, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

Where there is no claim in the case that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, presence of arresting officers was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed, and a new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (1950, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 395).

— Conspiracy

That alleged coconspirator had been seen talking to defendant on day before that on which such alleged coconspirator allegedly informed government agent that he had turned his numbers work over to defendant did not establish that conspiracy was in existence on that date; and in absence of evidence that conspiracy was then in existence, agent's testimony with regard to alleged conversation was inadmissible against defendant, in prosecution for conspiracy to commit lottery offenses. Taylor v. United States (1958, 260 F. 2d 737, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

Erroneous admission of evidence that alleged coconspirator had told government agent that he had turned his numbers work over to defendant would require reversal of conviction under indictment count charging conspiracy to commit lottery offenses; and since it was probable that such evidence had also been considered by jury in connection with related count charging defendant with operation of a lottery, conviction on that count would also be reversed. Id.

In prosecution under this section a page from a notebook found on the person of the accused was properly admitted in evidence, over the objection of the accused that it was a memorandum of a bet on a horse race, although it may tend, incidentally, to prove another distinct offense. Shettel v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 34, 72 App. D.C. 250).

Intercepted interstate and local messages pertaining to gambling are not admissible when received by person not authorized by the sender. United States v. Plisco (D.C.D.C. 1938, 22 F. Supp. 242).

— Discrimination

Even if documents which the defendant, charged with violation of lottery laws, sought to introduce into evidence showed that others were engaging in activities which the defendant considered to be lotteries uncondemned by law, the offer was insufficient to show statutory discrimination in violation of statute and court properly refused to admit same. J. S. Washington v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 915, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

Arrest, search and seizure

Whether there was probable cause for arrest of defendant for operating a lottery and whether subsequent search of his person was lawful were questions for trier of fact, in prosecution for violation of statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling, wherein defendant moved to suppress "cut cards" found in his possession. R. P. Bailey v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 223 A. 2d 190).

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where defendants although present at time when premises were searched pursuant to warrant, made no claim to property when inquiry was made in that respect by searching officers, and defendants disavowed any interest in premises, they were without right to have been served with a copy of search warrant, and could not claim that copy left on premises was defective. Shaw v. United States (1954, 209 F. 2d 298, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 90, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 430, 347 U. S. 905, 98 L. Ed. 1063).

Where officers, while standing in place open to public, saw through open door into back room and observed activities and paraphernalia which were familiar indicia of numbers lottery operation, they had "probable cause" and duty to make arrest, and arrest and seizure of paraphernalia were "legal arrest and seizure", though made without search or arrest warrant. Fisher v. United States (1953, 205 F. 2d 702, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 247, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 122, 346 U. S. 872, 98 L. Ed. 381).

Circumstances revealed in police officer's affidavit provided sufficient probable cause to sustain issuance to officer of warrant for search of premises where it was believed defendants were operating a numbers game by telephone. Washington v. United States (1953, 202 F. 2d 214, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 31, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 938, 245 U. S. 956, 97 L. Ed. 1377, rehearing denied 73 S. Ct. 1130, 345 U. S. 1003, 97 L. Ed. 1408).

The arrest without warrant of defendant accused of carrying on a lottery and possessing tickets and certificates designed for purpose of conducting a lottery was legal where the facts and circumstances within the arresting officers' knowledge and of which they had reasonably trustworthy information were sufficient to warrant man of reasonable caution in belief that defendant was taking numbers bets in corridor of building. De Bruhl v. United States (1952, 199 F. 2d 175, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 125, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 111, 344 U. S. 868, 97 L. Ed. 673).

In prosecution for violation of District of Columbia gambling statutes by engaging in the numbers business and for violation of federal statute requiring payment of tax as prerequisite to engaging in business of accepting wagers, evidence relating to police investigation extending over a ten week period disclosed probable cause for issuance of search warrant. United States v. Long (D.C.D.C. 1959, 169 F. Supp. 730).

Where police investigation extending over a 10-week period established probable cause for issuance of search warrant for gambling activities in violation of District of Columbia statutes, the fact that eleven day period elapsed between last police observation of premises and issuance of such warrant did not require suppression of evidence seized from the premises searched on any theory of lack of probable cause. Id.

Where District of Columbia Metropolitan Police received information linking telephone number to numbers game and the source stated that bets were placed by named person using designated code number and Metropolitan Police received additional information from Arlington County police that very heavy number bets were called into the telephone number and policeman made series of telephone calls to that number and identified himself as such person and gave such code number and received numbers information, there was probable cause for issuance of search warrant which led to seizure of numbers slips and other numbers paraphernalia. United States v. Haje (D.C.D.C. 1958, 159 F. Supp. 870).

Where police had rejected convenient present opportunity to make lawful arrest in public street, search of apartment, which defendant had entered before arrest was attempted, could not be supported as incidental to arrest. United States v. Johnson (D.C.D.C. 1953, 113 F. Supp. 359).

Conspiracy

In prosecution of defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate laws, crime of conspiracy was not so merged in or indistinguishable from the lottery statute as to prevent conviction of defendants on both charges. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U. S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

The crime of conspiracy to violate lottery laws and lottery statute violations are not so closely connected as to render applicable a proposition that where a concert of action between two or more persons is logically necessary to a crime's completion, a charge of conspiracy will not lie against such persons. Id.

Constitutionality

The Gamblers' Occupational Tax Act, as applied to persons in District of Columbia, constitutes a valid exercise of the taxing power and is not a penalty under the guise of a tax, even though wagering is by federal law a crime in the District of Columbia. Lewis v. United States (1955, 75 S. Ct. 415, 348 U. S. 419, 99 L. Ed. 475, rehearing denied 75 S. Ct. 602, 349 U. S. 917, 99 L. Ed. 1250).

Gamblers' Occupational Tax Act is not unconstitutional as applied to person in District of Columbia on ground that it violates privilege against self-incrimination notwithstanding fact that wagering is by federal law a crime in the District of Columbia. Id.

Construction

Intention of statutes proscribing knowing possession of certain items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling was to ban not only knowing possession of lottery tickets and similar writings but also knowing possession of any records used or to be used in violating provisions of the law relating to lotteries and other forms of gambling. R. P. Bailey v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 223 A. 2d 190).

Words "record, notation, and receipt" added to list of contraband in statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling were not intended merely to be synonymous with "numbers slips", and cut cards, which are listings of number combinations which "hit" more frequently than others and on which reduced odds are to be paid, were included in the contraband. Id.

Defendants in possession of "cut cards" which were listings of number combinations which "hit" more frequently than others and on which odds are somewhat reduced from normal, violated statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling. Id.

Counsel, conduct of

In prosecution for carrying on and promoting a numbers game and for possession of numbers slips, wherein defendants' former counsel of their own choice disclaimed any desire to enter a motion to suppress evidence and also gave specific reasons for disclaimer, contention of defendants' present counsel on appeal that trial court erred in refusing to suppress evidence would be rejected as asking Court of Appeals to substitute its judgment of proper trial tactics for that of the lawyer of the forum. Wyche v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 703, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 67, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 556, 342 U. S. 943, 96 L. Ed. 702, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 675, 343 U. S. 921, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

Discovery and inspection

Defendants are entitled to inspection before trial of documents and statements which are or may become evidence. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1955, 126 F. Supp. 612, motion denied 17 F.R.D. 13).

Distribution of prizes

One of the essential elements of a lottery is the awarding of a prize by chance, but the exact method adopted for the application of chance to the distribution of prizes is immaterial. Forte v. United States (1936, 83 F. 2d 612, 65 App. D.C. 355, 105 A.L.R. 300).

Double conviction for same offense

Even if defendant was twice convicted for same offense, any error was cured by concurrent sentences imposed. Lewis v. United States (1959, 263 F. 2d 265, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

Gaming table

The statute penalizing anyone setting up in the District of Columbia any "gaming table", etc., or who permits any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or device, etc., indicates a physical device of some sort and does not mean the mere taking of a bet on a race. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 244).

Harmless or prejudicial error

Where papers and documents obtained from one of several defendants in joint prosecution for violation of lottery laws, were obtained as result of unreasonable search and seizure, the use of evidence so obtained infected the cases of other defendants, and denial of motion to suppress such evidence, made by defendant from whom the papers and documents were illegally seized, was error prejudicial to other defendants as well. Nelson v. United States (1954, 208 F. 2d 505, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 14).

Indictment

Under this section making it unlawful to keep, set up, or promote a lottery, the charge may contemplate an act already complete when officer arrives, and possession of numbers slips, whether expired or not, may be relevant and material evidence that possessor has been conducting a lottery, and possessor need not be caught in the act, but may be caught with damaging evidence of a completed offense. Harvy v. United States (1952, 197 F. 2d 594, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Where an indictment under this section contains two counts, one for misdemeanor and one for felony, defendant's objection that the conviction on the misdemeanor count was invalid is immaterial in view of the fact that the sentences for each were to be served concurrently and the longer sentence was based on a valid count. Coupe v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 145, 72 App. D.C. 86, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1105, 310 U.S. 651, 84 L. Ed. 1417).

Instructions

Provision of this section that possession of numbers slips shall be prima facie evidence that possessor was concerned in carrying on lottery, when quoted in instruction to jury, did not constitute instruction that it had become duty of lottery prosecution defendant, who had had possession of numbers slips, to establish his innocence to obtain acquittal. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 347).

In prosecution for operating lottery and for possession of numbers slips, wherein jury had been fully instructed as to the government's burden of proof, trial judge's answer to jury's question, whether possession of slips constituted prima facie evidence of operation of lottery, given in words of this section providing that such possession did constitute prima facie evidence, without explaining meaning of prima facie evidence, was appropriate and understandable within framework of entire charge. Id.

In prosecution under six count indictment charging violation of laws against lotteries, instruction to effect that every circumstance relied upon by prosecution as part of circumstantial evidence tending to convict, must be established beyond reasonable doubt was properly refused in view of other instructions. Shaw v. United States (1954, 209 F. 2d 93 U. S. App. D. C. 90, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 430, 347 U. S. 905, 98 L. Ed. 1063).

The trial court instructions to the jury, "Do I believe from the evidence I have heard in this trial that the defendants have committed this crime? If you answer the question yes, you must find the defendants guilty. If your answer is no, then you must find them not guilty," is erroneous, as this statement is not the law, for the law is that if the jury believes beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant has committed the alleged offense, it should find a verdict of guilty, but if there be a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors, they must acquit. Billeci v. United States (1950, 184 F. 2d 394, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 274, 24 A.L.R. 2d 881).

If the intonations and gestures of a trial judge, when instructing the jury, are erroneously detrimental to a defendant in a criminal case, it is the duty of counsel to report fully and accurately, at the time and on the record, although not in the hearing of the jury, what has transpired. Id.

When a federal judge comments upon evidence by expressing his opinion upon phases of it, he is treading close to the line which divides proper judicial action from the field which is exclusively the jury's; therefore, he must make it unequivocally clear to the jury that conclusions upon such matters are theirs, not his, to make, and he must do so in such manner and in such time that the jury will not be left in doubt. Id.

License upon payment of tax

Provision of Gamblers' Occupational Tax Act requiring person engaged in business of wagering to pay a special tax of $50 before engaging in such business does not give a person, upon payment of the fee, a license to engage in wagering in District of Columbia, where wagering is, by federal law, a crime as the federal government may tax what it also forbids. Lewis v. United States (1955, 75 S. Ct. 415, 348 U. S. 419, 99 L. Ed. 475, rehearing denied 75 S. Ct. 602, 349 U. S. 917, 99 L. Ed. 1250).

Fact that provision of Gamblers' Occupational Tax Act requiring person engaged in business of wagering to pay special tax of $50 and exhibit stamp in his place of business might furnish probable cause for issuance of search warrant could not be urged as defense by person who was arrested for engaging in business of wagering without paying special tax. Id.

Motion to dismiss

Where count one charged in effect that the defendant, among others, violated this section relating to sale of lottery tickets, and counts two through seven charged that such defendant sold named persons a chance in a lottery on six different dates, defendant's motion for dismissal of counts two through seven would not be granted even though the defendant could not be found guilty of count one if the government proved that defendant violated this section by proving only the six sales that gave rise to counts two through seven; the determination of that matter must await the trial on the facts. United States v. Long (D.C.D.C. 1959, 169 F. Supp. 730).

Motion to suppress

In proceedings on defendant's motion to suppress and for return of property seized from his custody, possession and person under a warrant for the search of an apartment, evidence required finding that there had been a lack of probable cause to believe that grounds existed to support issuance of search warrant. United States v. Johnson (D.C.D.C. 1953, 113 F. Supp. 359).

Multiple violations

Six sales of lottery tickets on different dates to the same person are six violations of this section relating to gambling. United States v. Long (D.C.D.C. 1959, 169 F. Supp. 730).

New trial

In prosecution for violating lottery laws, District Court did not abuse discretion in denying motion for new trial on ground that defendant's trial counsel refused to permit her to testify and failed to introduce certain other testimony. Ingram v. United States (1954, 209 F. 2d 818, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 307).

Numbers game

"Numbers game" is lottery when the player merely guesses that the result of mathematical calculations, based upon the prices paid at a certain track, will be a certain number. Forte v. United States (1936, 83 F. 2d 612, 65 App. D.C. 355, 105 A.L.R. 300).

Conviction of violating and of conspiracy to violate the lottery law was sustained where evidence showed that defendants had been engaged in operation of the "numbers" game. Smith v. United States (1940, 112 F. 2d 217 72 App. D.C. 187, certiorari denied 61 S. Ct. 20, 311 U. S. 663, 85 L. Ed. 425).

Possession of tickets

Possession of number slips is prima facie evidence of possessor's involvement in an illegal lottery. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

The statutory presumption of promoting a lottery which arises from evidence of possession of lottery tickets may be properly invoked upon circumstantial evidence of possession of such tickets provided such circumstantial evidence is strong. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U. S. App. D. C. 76).

Proof of possession of numbers slips is not essential to conviction for operating lottery. United States v. Lewis (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 71, affirmed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U. S. App. D.C.

76, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1241, 363 U. S. 806, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1149).

Prima facie evidence

The appellant's possession of numbers paraphernalia on premises was prima facie evidence of her participation in illegal lottery. $3,265.28 in United States Currency, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 516).

Questions for court

In prosecution under this section, the credibility of the testimony of officers as to evidence of guilt found in defendant's automobile, is for the judge and the trial court's finding in disputed evidence will be upheld. Coupe v. United States (1940, 113 F. 2d 145, 72 App. D.C. 86, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1105, 310 U. S. 651, 84 L. Ed. 1417).

Questions for jury

Where defendant in prosecution for promotion of numbers game renewed, during trial, motion to suppress evidence obtained incident to arrest of defendant without a warrant, on ground that there was no probable cause for defendant's arrest, and court, instead of determining issue of probable cause, improperly submitted issue of probable cause to jury, admission of testimony of police officers that they were experienced in the investigation of the numbers game and that because of such experience, officers knew from conduct of defendant that he was participating in operation of a lottery, was reversible error, because testimony trenched on jury's duty to determine ultimate question whether defendant was guilty. Simmons v. United States (1953, 206 F. 2d 427, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 122).

Review

An order granting suppression of evidence seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest, entered before trial in criminal case, is not appealable as a "final decision", regardless of whether, in the particular case, effect of suppressing the evidence would be to force dismissal of indictment for lack of evidence. Carroll v. United States (1957, 77 S. Ct. 1332, 354 U. S. 394, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1442).

In prosecution for violation of District of Columbia gambling laws, it was unfortunate that, during course of trial, it was brought to attention of jury that a codefendant had pleaded guilty to felony count of indictment, which jointly charged all of defendants; but in view of overwhelming evidence of guilt, any prejudice which might have remained despite judge's admonition to jury could be said to be harmless, and district court would not be put in error for refusing to grant motion for mistrial. Carter v. United States (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 640).

Conviction for operating lottery in violation of District of Columbia statutes was affirmed on appeal, notwithstanding defendant's contentions (1) that numbers slips and other gambling paraphernalia were seized under warrants which were not supported by showing of adequate probable cause and (2) that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction. Ellis v. United States (1959, 270 F. 2d 448, 106 U. S. App. D.C. 145).

Where defendants, each of whom was convicted of substantive offense of operating lottery, and jointly of conspiracy to operate lottery, did not request trial court to compel election of counts on ground that substantive and conspiracy counts were duplicitous, in view of identity of proof under each count, and constituted double jeopardy, defendants did not save question for review on appeal and Court of Appeals would not consider merits of contention. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 66).

Revocation of operator's permit

Revocation of petitioner's operator's permit for operating motor vehicle in conducting lottery and while possessing numbers slips was an abuse of discretion, where there was no evidence of any threat or danger to the safety of persons or property through petitioner's use of an automobile. H. R. Stoneburner v. G. A. England, Director etc. (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 652).

Search warrant

Failure of search warrant affidavit to set forth factual circumstances from which magistrate could appraise in-formant's credibility and to state circumstances upon which informant based his conclusion was not fatal where, according to affidavits, information triggered investigation by officers who set out details and results of their investigation of gambling and lottery law violations. United States v. S. A. Berry (1972, 463 F. 2d 1278, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 187).

Search warrant affidavit reciting uncorroborated tip that that first person was picking up numbers and taking them to address of second person, a well-known gambler, together with investigative officers' observations of comings and goings and delivery of "small package," all in accordance with officers' knowledge as to operation of numbers game, was sufficient to support warrant for search, leading to lottery and gambling charges, where affidavit recited that participants had gambling law convictions and that premises had been established by police records to have recently housed gambling operation, although it would have been helpful had officers elaborated on modus operandi of numbers operation. Id.

Severance

In prosecution for operation of lottery and for possession of numbers slips, trial court's denial of defendants' motions for severance did not constitute abuse of discretion. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 347).

Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence, including possession of lottery tickets, was sufficient to sustain conviction of one defendant for promoting a lottery but was insufficient to sustain conviction as to another defendant. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

Evidence, as to all defendants but one, was sufficient to support convictions on all counts, in prosecution for operating and conspiracy to operate lottery, and for possession of lottery tickets, and maintenance of gambling premises. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 66).

Evidence that search of previously occupied apartment of defendant uncovered numbers slips and notebook, in absence of evidence of possession of lottery tickets by defendant, was insufficient to support conviction for possession of lottery tickets, operation of lottery, or for maintaining gambling premises. Id.

Evidence was insufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant set up or kept a gaming table for the purpose of gaming. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

Evidence justified submitting to jury prosecution for operating a lottery and possessing materials therefor. Kenney v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 442, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

— Arrest, search and seizure

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, evidence sustained trial judge's finding that police gave sufficient notice of their purpose and authority before breaking in door of one defendant's premises in executing search warrant. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

Evidence sustained conclusion of existence of sufficient cause to believe that the offense of conducting a "number game" had been committed and that defendant had participated therein to justify arrest and search without warrant. Newyahr v. United States (1950, 177 F. 2d 658, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 384, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 350, 338 U.S. 936, 94 L. Ed. 577).

In numbers game prosecution, wherein defendants moved to suppress evidence and for return of property, evidence established that police officers, who had submitted affidavits upon which warrants had issued, had had probable cause to believe, through personal contact, knowledge, observation and information, that the premises searched were being used for operation of a numbers lottery and that evidence of crime was there concealed. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1955, 126 F. Supp. 612, motion denied 17 F.R.D. 13).

— Prima facie evidence

Defendant's possession of used numbers slips, known in the game as "dead" slips, constituted prima facie evidence of carrying on of a lottery. Clement v. United States (1954, 208 F. 2d 46, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 154).

Even possession of "dead" or "hit" lottery tickets falls within language of this section raising presumption of violation of this section proscribing operation of lottery. United States v. Lewis (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 71, affirmed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1241, 363 U.S. 806, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1149).

§ 22-1502. Possession of lottery or policy tickets.

If any person shall, within the District of Columbia, knowingly have in his possession or under his control, any record, notation, receipt, ticket, certificate, bill, slip, token, paper, or writing, current or not current used or to be used in violating the provisions of section 22-1501, 22-1504, or 22-1508, he shall, upon conviction of each such offense, be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. For the purpose of this section, possession of any record, notation, receipt, ticket, certificate, bill, slip, token, paper, or writing shall be presumed to be knowing possession thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 863a as added Apr. 5, 1938, 52 Stat. 198, ch. 72, § 2, and amended June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 95, ch. 159 § 206(a).)

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section generally and among other changes so referred to violations under section 22-1501, 22-1504, or 22-1508, created a presumption that possession of prohibited records is knowing possession, and increased the maximum penalty for violation of the section from a $500 fine or six months imprisonment or both to a $1,000 fine or one year imprisonment, or both.

CROSS REFERENCE

Search warrants, see § 23-521 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of evidence—In general

Since the police officers had what they believed was credible information that defendant who fit description given officers had a gun in his pocket, since the defendant was reluctant to remove his hand from his pocket, and since there was obvious large bulge in pocket when he did remove his hand, officers were justified in conducting a limited protective search for weapons, and removal of currency and numbers slips by officer who claimed to have found gun was reasonable and fact numbers slips and money rather than gun were removed from pocket did not render those items inadmissible. United States v. M. Dowling (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 406).

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, admission of one defendant's accusatory statement against the other three defendants was not error in view of later instructions that jury should disregard such statement. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

In prosecution for operation of lottery and for possession of numbers slips, slips used as evidence to prove possession charge could also be used to prove charge of operation of lottery. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 347).

— Arrest, search and seizure

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game, in violation of the District Code, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. McDonald v. United States (1948, 69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U.S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 153).

In prosecution of numerous defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate those laws, where evidence obtained at one of several places raided was inadmissible because it had been obtained as a result of illegal entry into premises, but mass of other evidence legally seized sustained convictions, error in admitting such illegally obtained evidence was not, except as to one defendant who was found guilty of possessing lottery slips seized at such address, prejudicial. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U. S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

In prosecution for operating numbers game and knowingly possessing numbers slips, found in defendant's automobile at time of his arrest without warrant, evidence of circumstances leading to arrest was sufficient to show probable cause therefor, so as to render search of automobile and seizure of slips reasonable and valid and authorize admission of slips in evidence against defendant. Mills v. United States (1952, 196 F. 2d 600, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 365, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 27, 344 U. S. 826, 97 L. Ed. 643).

Where police officers legally obtained search warrant for certain premises which they believed was being used in numbers lottery and entered and found extensive evidence of numbers activities and arrested all persons present, they could legally search the persons arrested, and evidence thereby obtained was admissible in prosecution for carrying on and promoting a numbers game and for possession of numbers slips. Wyche v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 703, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 67, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 556, 342 U. S. 943, 96 L. Ed. 702, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 675, 343 U. S. 921, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

Where there is no claim in the case involved that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed and a new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (1950, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 395).

— Conspiracy

That alleged coconspirator had been seen talking to defendant on day before that on which such alleged coconspirator allegedly informed government agent that he had turned his numbers work over to defendant did not establish that conspiracy was in existence on that date; and in absence of evidence that conspiracy was then in existence, agent's testimony with regard to alleged conversation was inadmissible against defendant, in prosecution for conspiracy to commit lottery offenses. Taylor v. United States (1958, 260 F. 2d 737, 104 U. S. App. D. C. 219).

Erroneous admission of evidence that alleged coconspirator had told government agent that he had turned his numbers work over to defendant would require reversal of conviction under indictment count charging conspiracy to commit lottery offenses; and since it was probable that such evidence had also been considered by jury in connection with related count charging defendant with operation of a lottery, conviction on that count would also be reversed. Id.

Arrest, search and seizure

Whether there was probable cause for arrest of defendant for operating a lottery and whether subsequent search of his person was lawful were questions for trier of fact, in prosecution for violation of statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling, wherein defendant moved to suppress "cut cards" found in his possession. R. P. Bailey v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 223 A. 2d 190).

Table drawer from which secretaries and other employees would take paper clips or pencils and which was located in messenger room where defendant, a messenger charged with violating statute prohibiting possession of numbers slips, had been temporarily assigned on daily basis and where he spent only 20 to 25 minutes of each hour was in effect open for common use by other employees of agency, and search of drawer did not violate defendant's right of privacy under the Fourth Amendment. H. H. Freeman v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 22).

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U. S. App. D. C. 21).

Action of officers who, with permission of owners, entered vacant row house adjoining that in which they suspected defendants were maintaining unlawful betting office, in inserting antenna spike under baseboard and into party wall and connecting ear phones so that they were then able to overhear defendants conduct their betting business by telephone, did not constitute such an unlawful "search and seizure" as is proscribed by the Fourth Amendment to the federal Constitution and such action did not constitute an interference with any communications system in violation of the Communications Act of 1934. Silverman et al. v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U. S. App. D. C. 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U. S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

Affidavits before Commissioner were sufficient to satisfy requisite of probable cause for issuance both of arrest warrants of persons who were subsequently convicted of illegal gambling on evidence showing that they maintained betting office and issuance of search warrants for search of premises which contained such office. Id.

Where, over period of two and a half months, officers had placed numbers bets on fifteen separate occasions at one location, and, on ten separate occasions, had observed a suspect depart from that location with bulging pockets and enter other premises, from which he subsequently departed "without the bulge," officers had reasonable grounds to believe that latter premises were being used in lottery operations, and that defendant, who at time such premises were searched pursuant to a search warrant was the only male present and was leaving "hastily," was participating therein, justifying arrest of defendant without an arrest warrant and seizure and use of incriminating evidence found in course of search of defendant made in connection with such arrest. Stephens v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 832, 106 U. S. App. D. C. 249).

Where officers, while standing in place open to public, saw through open door into back room and observed activities and paraphernalia which were familiar indicia of numbers lottery operation, they had "probable cause" and duty to make arrest, and arrest and seizure of paraphernalia were "legal arrest and seizure", though made without search or arrest warrant. Fisher v. United States (1953, 205 F. 2d 702, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 247, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 122, 346 U. S. 872, 98 L. Ed. 381).

Circumstances revealed in police officer's affidavit provided sufficient probable cause to sustain issuance to officer of warrant for search of premises where it was believed defendants were operating a numbers game by telephone. Washington v. United States (1953, 202 F. 2d 214, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 31, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 938, 245 U. S. 956, 97 L. Ed. 1377, rehearing denied 73 S. Ct. 1130, 345 U. S. 1003, 97 L. Ed. 1408).

The arrest without warrant of defendant accused of carrying on a lottery and possessing tickets and certificates designed for purpose of conducting a lottery was legal where the facts and circumstances within the arresting officers knowledge and of which they had reasonably trustworthy information were sufficient to warrant man of reasonable caution in belief that defendant was taking numbers bets in corridor of building. De Bruhl v. United States (1952, 199 F. 2d 175, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 125, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 111, 344 U. S. 868, 97 L. Ed. 673).

In prosecution for violation of District of Columbia gambling statutes by engaging in the numbers business and violation of federal statute requiring payment of tax as prerequisite to engaging in business of accepting wagers, evidence relating to police investigation extending over a 10-week period disclosed probable cause for issuance of search warrant. United States v. Long (D.C. D.C. 1959, 169 F. Supp. 730).

Where police investigation extended over a 10-week period established probable cause for issuance of search warrant for gambling activities in violation of District of Columbia statutes, the fact that 11-day period elapsed between last police observation of premises and issuance of such warrant did not require suppression of evidence seized from the premises searched on any theory of lack of probable cause. Id.

Where District of Columbia Metropolitan Police received information linking telephone number to numbers game and the source stated that bets were placed by named person using designated code number and Metropolitan Police received additional information from Arlington County police that very heavy number bets were called into the telephone number and policeman made series of telephone calls to that number and identified himself as such person and gave such code number and received numbers information, there was probable cause for issuance of search warrant which led to seizure of numbers slips and other numbers paraphernalia. United States v. Haje (D.C.D.C. 1958, 159 F. Supp. 870).

Where police had rejected convenient present opportunity to make lawful arrest in public street, search of apartment, which defendant had entered before arrest was attempted, could not be supported as incidental to arrest. United States v. Johnson (D.C.D.C. 1953, 113 F. Supp. 359).

Arrest of defendant, a cafeteria employee, after manager voiced suspicions to officer that defendant was stealing food, was without probable cause, and incidental search that turned up lottery tickets and other paraphernalia for use in lottery was illegal. Mathis v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 178).

Condemnation and forfeiture

Condemnation and forfeiture of moneys seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest was warranted by evidence, including evidence that defendant attempted to conceal the money from the arresting officers and that, although he claimed that moneys seized represented savings which he intended to use to purchase a business, he was admittedly unfamiliar with business which he claimed to be planning to purchase, the person from whom he expected to make the purchase and the terms of the purchase. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Confrontation of informer

Defendant, accused of receiving stolen goods and of possession of lottery tickets, was not entitled to confront and cross-examine informer, upon whose information search warrant was in part based, where warrant was issued upon an ample showing of probable cause. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

Conscious possession

Where conscious possession of papers to be used in violating statute making it unlawful to "purchase, possess, own or acquire any chance, right, or interest * * * in any policy lottery or any lottery * * *" was clearly proved, accused was properly convicted under statute prohibiting any person from knowingly having in his possession any paper used or to be used in violating the statute. Ferguson v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 952, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 331, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 1287, 353 U. S. 985, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1144).

Conspiracy

In prosecution of defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate laws, crime of conspiracy was not so merged in or indistinguishable from the lottery statute as to prevent conviction of defendants on both charges. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U. S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

The crime of conspiracy to violate lottery laws and lottery statute violations are not so closely connected as to render applicable a proposition that where a concert of action between two or more persons is logically necessary to a crime's completion, a charge of conspiracy will not lie against such persons. Id.

Constitutionality

This section making possession of numbers slips a crime is constitutional. Ferguson v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 615).

Construction

Defendants in possession of "cut cards" which were listings of number combinations which "hit" more frequently than others and on which odds are somewhat reduced from normal, violated statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling. R. P. Bailey v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 223 A. 2d 190).

Words "record, notation, and receipt" added to list of contraband in statute proscribing knowing possession of items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling were not intended merely to be synonymous with "numbers slips", and cut cards, which are listings of number combinations which "hit" more frequently than others and on which reduced odds are to be paid, were included in the contraband. Id.

Intention of statutes proscribing knowing possession of certain items used or to be used in lotteries and other forms of gambling was to ban not only knowing possession of lottery tickets and similar writings but also knowing possession of any records used or to be used in violating provisions of the law relating to lotteries and other forms of gambling. Id.

Conviction of having possession of numbers slips in violation of lottery laws was warranted as against contention that there was not any evidence to indicate that such slips were "live" slips, that is, were tickets in an existing lottery. Ledbetter v. United States (1954, 211 F. 2d 628, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 155, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 789, 347 U. S. 977, 98 L. Ed. 1116).

Defendant's possession of used numbers slips, known in the game as "dead" slips, constituted an offense under this section penalizing possession of slips "used, or to be used" for carrying on a lottery even though amendment adding the words "current or not current" had not yet been enacted. Clement v. United States (1954, 208 F. 2d 46, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 154).

Counsel, conduct of

In prosecution for carrying on and promoting a numbers game and for possession of numbers slips, wherein defendants' former counsel of their own choice disclaimed any desire to enter a motion to suppress evidence and also gave specific reasons for disclaimer, contention of defendants' present counsel on appeal that trial court erred in refusing to suppress evidence would be rejected as asking Court of Appeals to substitute its judgment of proper trial tactics for that of the lawyer of the forum. Wyche v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 703, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 67, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 556, 342 U. S. 943, 96 L. Ed. 702, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 675, 343 U. S. 921, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

Court's failure to rule on admissibility of evidence

In a case where there was considerable oral testimony from arresting officers that number slips were found in the front bedroom occupied by defendant, trial court's failure to rule on government's exhibits consisting of seized number slips and other documents in bedrooms and hallway of house occupied by defendant prior to beginning of defendant's case, although constituting error, was not prejudicial because of defendant's failure to bring the matter to court's attention and obtain a ruling. L. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 726).

To prove defendant's possession of number slips it is not essential that the slips be received in evidence. Id.

Elements of lottery

Though consideration together with chance and prize is one of three elements necessary to constitute a lottery, it is unnecessary, in prosecution for possession of numbers slips, to prove that consideration has passed for them or that they have entered the play of the numbers game. Ferguson v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 615).

Harmless or prejudicial error

In prosecution of defendant for possessing lottery slips which were seized by police after illegally entering premises at which they arrested defendant, admission of slips constituted prejudicial error. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U. S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

Instructions

Provision of lottery statute that possession of numbers slips shall be prima facie evidence that possessor was concerned in carrying on lottery, when quoted in instruction to jury, did not constitute instruction that it had become duty of lottery prosecution defendant, who had had possession of numbers slips, to establish his innocence to obtain acquittal. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 347).

In prosecution for operating lottery and for possession of numbers slips, wherein jury had been fully instructed as to the government's burden of proof, trial judge's answer to jury's question, whether possession of slips constituted prima facie evidence of operation of lottery, given in words of statute providing that such possession did, constitute prima facie evidence, without explaining meaning of prima facie evidence, was appropriate and understandable within framework of entire charge. Id.

Motion to suppress

Where numbers slips taken from defendant were admitted without objection on trial which commenced three days after his arrest, motion to suppress made for first time when trial resumed following a continuance was not timely, and denial of the motion was not error. Harris v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 101, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 161, 335 U.S. 873, 93 L. Ed. 417).

New trial

In prosecution for violating lottery laws, District Court did not abuse discretion in denying motion for new trial on ground that defendant's trial counsel refused to permit her to testify and failed to introduce certain other testimony. Ingram v. United States (1954, 209 F. 2d 818, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 307).

Review

An order granting suppression of evidence seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest, entered before trial in criminal case, is not appealable as "final decision", regardless of whether, in the particular case, effect of suppressing the evidence would be to force dismissal of indictment for lack of evidence. Carroll v. United States (1957, 77 S. Ct. 1332, 354 U. S. 394, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1442).

Convictions of defendants who were jointly indicted on four counts charging violations of District of Columbia Code sections proscribing gambling and on a fifth count charging that they had engaged in business of accepting wagers without having paid special tax required by Internal Revenue Code and who were acquitted on charges in fourth and fifth counts, were not subject to reversal because of claimed inconsistencies of verdict. Silverman et al. v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U. S. App. D. C. 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U. S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

Conviction for operating lottery in violation of District of Columbia statutes was affirmed on appeal, notwithstanding defendant's contentions (1) that number slips and other gambling paraphernalia were seized under warrants which were not supported by showing of adequate probable cause and (2) that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction. Ellis v. United States, (1959, 270 F. 2d 448, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Where defendants, each of whom was convicted of substantive offense of operating lottery, and jointly of conspiracy to operate lottery, did not request trial court to compel election of counts on ground that substantive and conspiracy counts were duplicative, in view of identity of proof under each count, and constituted double jeopardy, defendants did not save question for review on appeal, and Court of Appeals would not consider merits of contention. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 66).

Where there was conflicting evidence as to means by which defendant's notebook, upon which conviction for illegal possession of numbers slips was based, was acquired, Municipal Court of Appeals was not authorized to resolve questions under such circumstances and could not disturb finding of trial court adverse to defendant. Moody v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 337).

Evidence sustained conviction for illegal possession of numbers slips. Id.

Ruling of district court as binding on Court of General Sessions

United States district court decision, in prosecution for narcotics violation, which suppressed certain evidence as products of illegal search and seizure was not binding on District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, where defendant was charged with possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, and which had held previously to United States District Court ruling that certain evidence, which was seized under same circumstances as evidence in federal prosecution, was admissible. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Search and seizure

A defendant, who was lawfully arrested for operating automobile without valid permit, was taken to police station in his own automobile, and charged with driving without a valid permit, possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, but did not protest or withhold his consent to use by police of his automobile to drive him to police station and was not coerced in any way, there was no seizure of defendant's automobile by police prior to arrival at police station. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Search warrant

Failure of search warrant affidavit to set forth factual circumstances from which magistrate could appraise informant's credibility and to state circumstances upon which informant based his conclusion was not fatal where, according to affidavits, information triggered investigation by officers who set out details and results of their investigation of gambling and lottery law violations. United States v. S. A. Berry (1972, 463 F. 2d 1278, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 187).

Search warrant affidavit reciting uncorroborated tip that first person was picking up numbers and taking them to address of second person, a well-known gambler, together with investigative officers' observations of comings and goings and delivery of "small package," all in accordance with officers' knowledge as to operation of numbers game, was sufficient to support warrant for search, leading to lottery and gambling charges, where affidavit recited that participants had gambling law convictions and that premises had been established by police records to have recently housed gambling operation, although it would have been helpful had officers elaborated on modus operandi of numbers operation. Id.

Information in affidavit for warrant to search defendant's room on lottery charge on information received from informant, stating that the informant had overheard sounds from defendant's room, that informant had previously given information leading to lottery convictions, and that police officer had himself overheard sounds from room and had watched defendant elsewhere and checked his record, sufficiently set forth factual basis for informant's belief, basis for judging informant's credibility, record of defendant's prior involvement in lottery, and personal observations by officer corroborative of informant. C. Ray, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 288 A. 2d 239).

Severance

In prosecution for operation of lottery and for possession of numbers slips, trial court's denial of defendants' motions for severance did not constitute abuse of discretion. Maynard v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 336, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for possession of numbers slips. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Evidence sustained conviction of receiving stolen goods. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, evidence sustained trial judge's finding that police gave sufficient notice of their purpose and authority before breaking in door of one defendant's premises in executing search warrant. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

Evidence, as to all defendants but one, was sufficient to support convictions on all counts, in prosecution for operating and conspiracy to operate lottery, and for possession of lottery tickets, and maintenance of gambling premises. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 66).

Evidence that search of previously occupied apartment of defendant uncovered numbers slips and notebook, in absence of evidence of possession of lottery tickets by defendant, was insufficient to support conviction for possession of lottery tickets, operation of lottery, or for maintaining gambling premises. Id.

Evidence justified submitting to jury prosecution for operating a lottery and possessing materials therefor. Kenney v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 442, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Evidence that defendant admitted ownership of billfold containing quantity of undated numbers slips was prima facie indicative that possession of such tickets was violative of statute forbidding possession of lottery slips and shifted burden of going forward with the evidence to defendant to prove that numbers slips were not lottery slips within meaning of statute. Roseborough v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 920).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction of defendant for knowingly having in his possession "numbers slips" in violation of this section. Fletcher v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 88).

§ 22-1503. Permitting sale of lottery tickets on premises.

If any person shall knowingly permit, on any premises under his control in the District, the sale of any chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in any lottery or policy lottery, or shall knowingly permit any lottery or policy lottery, or policy shop on such premises, he shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 864.)

§ 22-1504. Gaming—Setting up gaming table—Inducing play.

Whoever shall in the District set up or keep any gaming table, or any house, vessel, or place, on land or water, for the purpose of gaming, or gambling device commonly called A B C, faro bank, E O, roulette, equality, keno, thimbles, or little joker, or any kind of gaming table or gambling device adapted, devised, and designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property, or shall induce, entice, and permit any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or gambling device, or on the side of or against the keeper thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 865.)

This section is referred to in sections 22-1502, 22-1505, 22-1507.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section penalizing anyone setting up in the District of Columbia any "gaming table", etc., or who permits any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or device, etc., indicates a physical device of some sort and does not mean the mere taking of a bet on a race. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 244).

"Any games, devices, or contrivances set up or kept for the purpose of gaming, or any gambling device, so set up and kept, adapted, devised, and designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property, and to which the public may resort to bid or wager money, is a gaming table within the meaning of the statute. The definition of a gaming table under the statute does not involve the ordinary mechanical definition of a table, but depends for its statutory meaning upon the means or contrivances adopted for playing the game." Miller v. United States (1895, 6 App. D.C. 6). See, also, Nelson v. United States (1906, 28 App. D.C. 32); Swan v. United States (1924, 295 F. 921, 54 App. D.C. 100).

"Two offenses are created by section 865 (this section). One is the setting up or keeping of a gaming table or device; the other is the keeping of a house, vessel, or place for the purpose of gaming." Wade v. United States (1909, 33 App. D.C. 29, 20 L.R.A., N.S., 347, 17 Ann. Cas. 707).

Claw machine

"Claw machine" used for the purpose of obtaining articles, by mere chance, was a "gambling device." Boosalis v. Crawford (1938, 99 F. 2d 374, 69 App. D.C. 141).

Elements of offense

This section defining as a felony setting up of gaming table and keeping of any house or place for purpose of gaming reaches any operator who would permit any person to bet on side of or against the keeper of house, and persons who operated betting office where they received wagers and maintained records of wins and losses, were guilty of violating this section, notwithstanding fact that they conducted their operations by telephone and that they did not invite public to their offices. Silverman v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U.S. App. D.C., 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U.S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

The gravamen of offense of setting up and keeping a gaming place is furnishing the facilities for gaming activities and it is immaterial that betting actually took place or that money actually passed. Sesso v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 381, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Evidence

Evidence was insufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant set up or kept a gaming table for the purpose of gaming. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 244).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place, evidence necessary to show a gaming place need not be direct, and the intent with which the act was done may be gathered from all the circumstances shown in evidence. Cesso v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 381, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting on result of horse races, where prima facie evidence of corpus delicti was made out, damaging admissions made by defendant were admissible in evidence. Id.

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting on result of horse races, evidence authorized inference that defendant was in control and possession of the premises when the offense occurred. Id.

Evidence sustained conviction of setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races. Id.

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, evidence sustained finding that a gaming place was illegally set up and maintained. Id.

In prosecution for keeping gambling tables, testimony of a defendant at a previous trial, together with a bank statement to which it related, were properly admitted, where the testimony had some tendency to establish such defendant's guilt. Warde v. United States (1947, 158 F. 2d 651, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Evidence of gambling on one occasion is sufficient to sustain conviction for keeping gambling tables. Id.

Intercepted interstate and local messages pertaining to gambling are not admissible when received by person not authorized by the sender. United States v. Plisco (D.C. D.C. 1938, 22 F. Supp. 242).

Gambling device

Where player of pinball amusement machine achieving certain minimum score would receive a "free play" or another "try" without an additional coin but nothing more, the machine was not a "gambling device" designed for purpose of playing game of chance for "property" within this section. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan (1944, 142 F. 2d 97, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

To "gamble" is to risk one's money or other property on an event, chance, or contingency in the hope of the realization of gain, and the test as to whether a particular machine combination constitutes a "gambling device" is whether it is adapted, devised, and designed for purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property. Id.

Gaming table

Section 865 of the code (this section) made it a crime to set up or keep any gaming table, or any house, vessel, or place, on land or water, for the purpose of gaming or gambling, under the penalty of imprisonment for a term of not more than five years. Kelleher v. United States (1930, 35 F. 2d 877, 59 App. D.C. 107).

Indictment

Indictments charging that appellants set up and kept a gambling table for the purpose of betting and wagering on the results of horse races, contrary to this section. Charge an offense against the laws of the United States. Nuckols v. United States (1938, 99 F. 2d 353, 69 App. D.C. 120, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 89, 305 U.S. 626; 83 L. Ed. 401).

Indictment in either case of maintaining table or place in which gaming was done need not allege proof of passing money; but if it is drawn in almost the language of the statute, and charges both the place and table defendants were conducting, that is sufficient. Beard v. United States (1936, 82 F. 2d 837, 65 App. D.C. 231, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 675, 298 U.S. 566, 80 L. Ed. 1382).

Offense a felony

This section, by prescribing a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment, made the offense a felony and no warrant for arrest was necessary where defendant was apprehended in the act of violating the statute. Zerega v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 963, 59 App. D.C. 67).

Place for gaming

It is not necessary that one charged with the crime of maintaining a gambling place should have been in permanent possession of the place or a lessee or keeper, but that it is sufficient if he is in charge of the place at the time the offense occurs. Donald v. United States (1939, 102 F. 2d 618, 70 App. D.C. 14).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, it is not necessary that defendant should have been in permanent possession of the premises or that he should have been a lessee or even a keeper. Sesso v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 381, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, it was only incumbent upon the Government to show that defendant was in charge, possession or control of the place when the offense occurred. Id.

Property

The term "property" as used in this section includes goods, chattels, effects, evidences of rights in action, and all written instruments by which any pecuniary obligation, or money or right or title to property, real or personal, is created or transferred but none of such terms should be expanded to include a free amusement feature such as privilege of playing an additional free game if certain score is made. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan (1944, 142 F. 2d 97, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

Purpose

The purpose of Congress in enacting this section was to make criminal the use of all contrivances by which money or property is bet or wagered or risked on the chance of some material reward. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan (1944, 142 F. 2d 97, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

Review

Conviction on five counts of keeping gaming table and a place for gambling on horse races was affirmed. Brown v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 953, 59 App. D.C. 57).

When one was convicted for operating gaming table he could not afterwards dispute the verdict, for a question of fact or of law distinctly put in issue and directly determined by a court of competent jurisdiction cannot afterwards be disputed between the same parties. Beard v. Sanford (C.C.A. Ga. 1938, 99 F. 2d 750, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 644, 306 U.S. 655, 83 L. Ed. 1053).

When appellant was convicted on two counts, first, by setting up gaming table, and, second, keeping a place for gaming, but as he did not raise the question of double jeopardy on the trial or on the appeal from conviction, effect of his failure to do so was to waive the question for all time. Id.

Searches and seizure

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game in violation of the District Code, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. McDonald v. United States (1948, 69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U.S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 153).

Where there is no claim in the case involved that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, presence of arresting officers was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed. A new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (1950, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 395).

Separate trial

Where four defendants were indicted for keeping a gaming table, and one was also charged with assault, a motion of the three to be tried separately from the fourth, who had been charged with assault, will not be granted since their guilt of the only crime of which they were accused was so clear that no defense was attempted and none would have been attempted if they had been tried separately and the court's refusal to try them separately was not prejudicial. Scheve v. United States (1950, 184 F. 2d 695, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 289).

Verdict

Convictions of defendants who were jointly indicted on four counts charging violations of District of Columbia Code sections proscribing gambling and on a fifth count charging that they had engaged in business of accepting wagers without having paid special tax required by Internal Revenue Code and who were acquitted on charges in fourth and fifth counts, were not subject to reversal because of claimed inconsistencies of verdict. Silverman v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U.S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

Rational consistency in a jury's verdict on each of several counts is not necessary. Id.

§ 22-1505. Gambling premises—Definition—Prohibition against maintaining—Forfeiture—Liens—Deposit of moneys in Treasury—Penalty—Subsequent offenses.

(a) Any house, building, vessel, shed, booth, shelter, vehicle, enclosure, room, lot, or other premises in the District of Columbia, used or to be used in violating the provisions of section 22-1501 or 22-1504, shall be deemed "gambling premises" for the purpose of this section.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any person in the District of Columbia knowingly, as owner, lessee, agent, employee, operator, occupant, or otherwise, to maintain or aid or permit the maintaining of any gambling premises.

(c) All moneys, vehicles, furnishings, fixtures, equipment, stock (including, without limitation, furnishings and fixtures adaptable to nongambling uses, and equipment and stock for printing, recording, computing, transporting, safekeeping, or communication), or other things of value used or to be used—

(1) in carrying on or conducting any lottery, or the game or device commonly known as a policy lottery or policy, contrary to the provisions of section 22-1501;

(2) in setting up or keeping any gaming table, bank, or device contrary to the provisions of 22-1504; or

(3) in maintaining any gambling premises, shall be subject to seizure by any member of the Metropolitan Police force, or the United States Park Police, or the United States marshal, or any deputy marshal, for the District of Columbia, and any property seized regardless of its value shall be proceeded against in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by libel action brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants, and shall, unless good cause be shown to the contrary, be forfeited to the District of Columbia and shall be made available for the use of any agency of the government of the District of Columbia, or otherwise disposed of as the Commissioner of the District of Columbia may, by order or by regulation, provide: Provided, That if there be bona fide liens against the property so forfeited, then such property shall be disposed of by public auction. The proceeds of the sale of such property shall be available, first, for the payment of all expenses incident to such sale; and, second, for the payment of such liens; and the remainder shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. To the extent necessary, liens against said property so forfeited shall, on good cause shown by the lienor, be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property.

(d) Whoever violates this section shall be imprisoned not more than one year or fined not more than $1,000, or both, unless the violation occurs after he has been convicted of a violation of this section, in which case he may be imprisoned for not more than five years, or fined not more than $2,000, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 866; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 95, ch. 159, § 206(b); Sept. 21, 1961, 75 Stat. 540, Pub. L. 87-259, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended subsec. (c) by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

1961—Section 1 of act Sept. 21, 1961, amended subsection (c) so as to give the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia jurisdiction over libel actions involving such seized property regardless of its value and also providing that the action be brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants.

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section generally. Prior to the amendment the section provided: "Whoever in the District knowingly permits any gaming table, bank, or device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming in any house, building, vessel, shed, booth, shelter, lot, or other premises to him belonging or by him occupied, or of which at the time he has possession or control, shall be punished by imprisonment in the jail for not more than one year or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or both."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions. See section 11-101.

CONSTRUCTION OF ACT SEPT. 21, 1961, AND DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY

Section 2 of act Sept 21, 1961, provided that: "This Act [amending subsection (c)] shall not be considered as affecting the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824), and the performance of any function vested by said plan in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners shall continue to be subject to delegation by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan. Any function vested by this Act in any agency established pursuant to such plan shall be deemed to be vested in said Board of Commissioners and shall be subject to delegation in accordance with said plan."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-1507, 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section formerly provided that whoever knowingly permitted any gaming table, bank, or device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming in any house, building, vessel, shed, booth, shelter, lot, or other premises belonging to or occupied by him, or under his possession or control, should be punished by imprisonment in the jail for not more than one year or by a fine not exceeding $500, or both. Kelleher v. United States (1930, 35 F. 2d 877, 59 App. D.C. 107).

Arrest, search and seizure

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, evidence sustained trial judge's finding that police gave sufficient notice of their purpose and authority before breaking in door of one defendant's premises in executing search warrant. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

In prosecution for violation of District of Columbia gambling statutes by engaging in the numbers business and for violation of federal statute requiring payment of tax as prerequisite to engaging in business of accepting wagers, evidence relating to police investigation extending over a 10-week period disclosed probable cause for issuance of search warrant. United States v. Long (D.C.D.C. 1959, 169 F. Supp. 730).

Where police investigation extended over a ten week period established probable cause for issuance of search warrant for gambling activities in violation of District of Columbia statutes, the fact that 11-day period elapsed between last police observation of premises and issuance of such warrant did not require suppression of evidence seized from the premises searched on any theory of lack of probable cause. Id.

Condemnation and forfeiture

It is required of the Government in libel action, under statute, seeking forfeiture of seized automobile to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the automobile was "used or to be used" in unlawful gambling operation. M. R. Vasile v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 443).

Condemnation and forfeiture of moneys seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest was warranted by evidence, including evidence that defendant attempted to conceal the money from the arresting officers and that, although he claimed that money seized represented savings which he intended to use to purchase a business, he was admittedly unfamiliar with business which he claimed to be planning to purchase, the person from whom he expected to make the purchase and the terms of the purchase. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Conspiracy

In prosecution of defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate laws, crime of conspiracy was not so merged in or indistinguishable from the lottery statute as to prevent conviction of defendants on both charges. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U.S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

The crime of conspiracy to violate lottery laws and lottery statute violations are not so closely connected as to render applicable a proposition that where a concert of action between two or more persons is logically necessary to a crime's completion, a charge of conspiracy will not lie against such persons. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

In joint prosecutions for violations of lottery laws, admission of one defendant's accusatory statement against the other three defendants was not error in view of later instructions that jury should disregard such statement. Davis v. United States (1960, 274 F. 2d 585, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

In prosecution of numerous defendants for violation of lottery laws and conspiracy to violate those laws, where evidence obtained at one of several places raided was inadmissible because it had been obtained as a result of illegal entry into premises, but mass of other evidence legally seized sustained convictions, error in admitting such illegally obtained evidence was not, except as to one defendant who was found guilty of possessing lottery slips seized at such address, prejudicial. Woods et al. v. United States (1956, 240 F. 2d 37, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 815, 353 U.S. 941, 1 L. Ed. 2d 760).

— Sufficiency

Evidence consisting of defendant either exiting or entering buildings with rolled newspapers which were subsequently found, pursuant to search of automobile's front seat based on search warrant, to contain envelopes with numbers betting slips inside is insufficient to establish use of the automobile in a lottery or gambling operation for purpose of libel action, under statute, seeking forfeiture of the automobile. M. R. Vasile v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 443).

Evidence supported judgment of forfeiture of automobile on ground that it was used, or to be used, in carrying on or conducting a lottery. B. Thomas et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 882).

Evidence was sufficient to support forfeiture judgment in relation to money allegedly used in carrying on or conducting a lottery. $6,200.00 in United States Currency v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 551).

A showing by preponderance of the evidence that moneys found on defendant were in fact used or to be used in an unlawful gambling operation is sufficient to meet statutory test required for forfeiture of property.

$1,407.00 in United States Currency et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Evidence, as to all defendants but one, was sufficient to support convictions on all counts, in prosecution for operating and conspiracy to operate lottery, and for possession of lottery tickets, and maintenance of gambling premises. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Evidence that search of previously occupied apartment of defendant uncovered numbers slips and notebook, in absence of evidence of possession of lottery tickets by defendant, was insufficient to support conviction for possession of lottery tickets, operation of lottery, or for maintaining gambling premises. Id.

Forfeiture

A claw machine was a gambling device subject to forfeiture. Boosalis v. Crawford (1938, 99 F. 2d 374, 69 App. D.C. 141).

— Alternative remedies

Owners of property, held by District of Columbia as preliminary to libel proceedings for its forfeiture pursuant to this section authorizing forfeiture of property used in lottery or gaming activities, could apply for administrative relief, could sue officers who seize the property in trespass, or could assert their right as claimants in the libel when filed. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1954, 120 F. Supp. 670).

— Time for proceedings

Property held as preliminary to forfeiture proceeding, under this section authorizing forfeiture of property used in lottery or gaming activities, would be ordered returned unless libel for forfeiture were filed within five days, in view of fact that District of Columbia Municipality had notice of two motions for more than sixty days and of three motions for more than fifty days wherein property owner sought return of property. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1954, 120 F. Supp. 670).

Habeas corpus

Contentions determined adversely to petitioner on appeals to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from conviction of an offense under this section in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and to the United States Supreme Court, could not be successfully advanced on petition for habeas corpus. Beard v. Sanford (C.C.A. Ga. 1938, 99 F. 2d 750, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 644, 306 U.S. 655, 83 L. Ed. 1053).

Jurisdiction

Court, in criminal proceeding against owners of property, held by District of Columbia as preliminary to proceeding for its forfeiture, pursuant to this section authorizing forfeiture of property used in lottery or gaming activities, had jurisdiction to order return of the property. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1954, 120 F. Supp. 670).

Motion for return of property

Averment by United States Attorney, made in reply to motion in criminal proceeding for return of property seized, that property will not be used as evidence, is not sufficient to defeat the motion. United States v. Bell (D.C.D.C. 1954, 120 F. Supp. 670).

Nature of libel action

A libel action for forfeiture of property is a civil action. M. R. Vasile v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 443).

Libel actions for forfeiture of monies used or to be used in carrying on lottery are civil in nature and government need only prove its case by preponderance of the evidence. $3,265.28 in United States Currency, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 516).

Proof

An indictment charging an offense under this section cannot be sustained by proof of a violation of section 865 (§ 22-1504). "In order to warrant a conviction under section 866 (this section) it is necessary that a defendant shall knowingly permit a gambling device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming upon premises owned or occupied by him, or of which at the time of the commission of the offense he had possession or control." Nelson v. United States (1906, 28 App. D.C. 32).

Public auction

Even though sale at public auction, of motor vehicle seized because it was used for gambling purposes in violation of law, would result in insufficient funds to fully discharge lien, court was without power to direct transfer in specie as alternative to auction sale directed by statute. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. One 1962 Chevrolet Sedan, etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 191 A. 2d 140).

Review

Convictions of defendants who were jointly indicted on four counts charging violations of District of Columbia Code sections proscribing gambling and on a fifth count charging that they had engaged in business of accepting wagers without having paid special tax required by Internal Revenue Code and who were acquitted on charges in fourth and fifth counts, were not subject to reversal because of claimed inconsistencies of verdict. Silverman et al., v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U.S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

Rational consistency in a jury's verdict on each of several counts is not necessary. Id.

Conviction for operating lottery in violation of District of Columbia statutes was affirmed on appeal, notwithstanding defendant's contentions (1) that number slips and other gambling paraphernalia were seized under warrants which were not supported by showing of adequate probable cause and (2) that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction. Ellis v. United States (1959, 270 F. 2d 448, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Where defendants, each of whom was convicted of substantive offense of operating lottery, and jointly of conspiracy to operate lottery, did not request trial court to compel election of counts on ground that substantive and conspiracy counts were duplicious, in view of identity of proof under each count, and constituted double jeopardy, defendants did not save question for review on appeal, and Court of Appeals would not consider merits of contention. Aikens et al. v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 66, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 66).

Search warrant

Failure of search warrant affidavit to set forth factual circumstances from which magistrate could appraise informant's credibility and to state circumstances upon which informant based his conclusion was not fatal where, according to affidavits, information triggered investigation by officers who set out details and results of their investigation of gambling and lottery law violations. United States v. S. A. Berry (1972, 463 F. 2d 1278, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 187).

Search warrant affidavit reciting uncorroborated tip that first person was picking up numbers and taking them to address of second person, a well-known gambler, together with investigative officers' observations of comings and goings and delivery of "small package," all in accordance with officers' knowledge as to operation of numbers game, was sufficient to support warrant for search, leading to lottery and gambling charges, where affidavit recited that participants had gambling law convictions and that premises had been established by police records to have recently housed gambling operation, although it would have been helpful had officers elaborated on modus operandi of numbers operation. Id.

Information in affidavit for warrant to search defendant's room on lottery charge on information received from informant, stating that the informant had overheard sounds from defendant's room, that informant had previously given information leading to lottery convictions, and that police officer had himself overheard sounds from room and had watched defendant elsewhere and checked his record, sufficiently set forth factual basis for informant's belief, basis for judging informant's credibility, record of defendant's prior involvement in lottery, and personal observations by officer corroborative of informant. C. Ray, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 288 A. 2d 239).

§ 22-1506. Three-card monte and confidence games.

Whoever shall in the District deal, play, or practice, or be in any manner accessory to the dealing or practicing, of the confidence game or swindle known as three-card monte, or of any such game, play, or practice, or any other confidence game, play, or practice, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and by imprisonment for not more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854. § 867.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Search warrant, see § 23-521 et seq.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-1507, 23-304.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Arrest, search and seizure

In prosecution for practicing confidence game and swindle known as three-card monte, evidence as to what arresting officers saw transpiring indicated that they were justified in making arrest without warrant, and articles seized as incident to such arrest were admissible in evidence regardless whether crime charged was misdemeanor, as indicated by statute, or felony, because punishable by imprisonment for more than one year. Coleman v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 681, 94 U.S. App. D. C. 311).

§ 22-1507. "Gaming table" defined.

All games, devices, or contrivances at which money or any other thing shall be bet or wagered shall be deemed a gaming table within the meaning of sections 22-1504 to 22-1506; and the courts shall construe said sections liberally, so as to prevent the mischief intended to be guarded against. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 868.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Search warrant, see § 23-521 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

The statute penalizing anyone setting up in the District of Columbia any "gaming table" etc., or who permits any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or device, etc., indicates a physical device of some sort and does not mean the mere taking of a bet on a race. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U.S. App. D. C. 244).

Evidence

Evidence was insufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant set up or kept a gaming table for the purpose of gaming. Plummer v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 19, 88 U.S. App. D. C. 244).

Indictment

Indictment is sufficient which alleges a setting up of gaming table and keeping a gaming table for the purpose of betting on the results of horse races. Swan v. United States (1924, 295 F. 921, 54 App. D.C. 100).

§ 22-1508. Gambling pools and bookmaking—Athletic contest defined.

It shall be unlawful for any person, or association of persons, within the District of Columbia to purchase, possess, own, or acquire any chance, right, or interest, tangible or intangible, in any policy lottery or any lottery, or to make or place a bet or wager, accept a bet or wager, gamble or make books or pools on the result of any athletic contest. For the purpose of this section, the term "athletic contest" means any of the following, wherever held or to be held: a football, baseball, softball, basketball, hockey, or polo game, or a tennis, golf, or wrestling match, or a tennis or golf tournament, or a prize fight or boxing match, or a trotting or running race of horses, or a running race of dogs, or any other athletic or sporting event or contest. Any person or association of persons violating this section shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 869; May 16, 1908, 35 Stat. 164, ch. 172, § 3; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 96, ch. 159, § 206c.)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section generally. Prior to the amendment the section read: "It shall be unlawful for any person or association of persons to bet, gamble, or make books or pools on the result of any trotting or running race of horses, or boat race, or race of any kind, or on any election, or any contest of any kind, or game of baseball. Any person or association of persons violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than ninety days, or both."

1908—Act May 16, 1908, struck out after the word "persons" in the first sentence the following words "in city of Washington and Georgetown in District of Columbia within one mlie of boundaries of said District."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section made it unlawful for any person to bet, gamble, or make books or pools on the result of any trotting or running race of horses, or boat race, or race of any kind, and prescribed a punishment for violation of the provisions of the section of a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding 90 days, or both. Kelleher v. United States (1930, 35 F. 2d 877, 59 App. D.C. 107).

Accomplices

Persons engaging in wagering contests are not accomplices. Paylor v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 428, L.R.A. 1915D, 682, certiorari denied 35 S. Ct. 209, 235 U.S. 704, 59 L. Ed. 434).

Defamatory words

When words are not libelous per se, as laying bets on horse races, it is for the jury to determine the defamatory meaning. Baker v. Warner (1914, 34 S. Ct. 175, 231 U.S. 588, 58 L. Ed. 384).

Evidence

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where evidence justified conviction on counts under 1901 Code § 865 (§ 22-1504), counts under this section need not be considered. Zerega v. United States (1929, 32 F. 2d 963, 59 App. D.C. 67).

Geographical prohibition

This section only prohibited betting on horse races and bookmaking within one mile of the boundaries of the cities of Washington and Georgetown. Baker v. Warner (1914, 34 S. Ct. 175, 231 U.S. 588, 58 L. Ed. 384).

Search and seizure

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Where District of Columbia Metropolitan Police received information linking telephone number to numbers game and the source stated that bets were placed by named person using designated code number and Metropolitan Police received additional information from Arlington County police that very heavy number bets were called into the telephone number and policeman made series of telephone calls to that number and identified himself as such person and gave such code number and received numbers information, there was probable cause for issuance of search warrant which led to seizure of numbers slips and other numbers paraphernalia. United States v. Haje (D.C.D.C. 1958, 159 F. Supp. 870).

Verdict

Convictions of defendants who were jointly indicted on four counts charging violations of District of Columbia Code sections proscribing gambling and on a fifth count charging that they had engaged in business of accepting wagers without having paid special tax required by Internal Revenue Code and who were acquitted on charges in fourth and fifth counts, were not subject to reversal because of claimed inconsistencies of verdict. Silverman et al. v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 173, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari granted 80 S. Ct. 1237, 363 U.S. 801, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1145).

Rational consistency in a jury's verdict on each of several counts is not necessary. Id.

§ 22-1509. Bucketing, and bucket-shopping and bucket-shops—Definitions.

The following words and phrases used in sections 22-1509 to 22-1512 shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meanings:

"Person" shall mean an individual, partnership, corporation, or association, whether acting in his or their own right or as the officer, agent, servant, correspondent, or representative of another.

"Contract" shall mean any agreement, trade, or transaction.

"Securities" shall mean all evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase and sale thereof, shares in any corporation or association bonds, coupons, scrip, rights, choses in action, and other evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase or sale thereof.

"Commodities" shall mean anything movable that is bought and sold.

"Bucket-shop" shall mean any room, office, store, building, or other place where any contract prohibited by sections 22-1509 to 22-1512 is made or offered to be made.

"Keeper" shall mean any person owning, keeping, managing, operating, or promoting a bucket-shop, or assisting to keep, manage, operate, or promote a bucket-shop.

"Bucketing" or "bucket-shopping" shall mean:

(a) The making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties thereto intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, terminated, closed, or settled according to or upon the basis of the public market quotations of prices made on any board of trade or exchange upon which said securities or commodities are dealt in and without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (b) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities, wherein both parties intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, deemed terminated, closed, or settled when such public market quotations of prices for the securities or commodities named in such contract shall reach a certain figure without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (c) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties do not intend, or such keeper does not intend, the actual or bona fide receipt or delivery of such securities or commodities, but do intend, or such keeper does intend, a settlement of such contract based upon the differences in such public market quotations of prices at which said securities or commodities are or are asserted to be bought and sold. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869a, as added Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 670, ch. 233.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22-1510 to 22-1512.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Any contract

The words "any contract defined in the preceding section," as used in section 869b (§ 22-1510) "were intended to refer, and did in fact refer, to bucketing and bucket-shopping contracts, or to 'agreements, trades, or transactions' relating thereto." United States v. Cella (1911, 37 App. D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S. Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633).

Conspiracy

Conspiracy to violate the "bucket-shop" law of the District of Columbia (act of March 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 670, ch. 233 (§§ 22-1509 to 22-1512)) is an offense against the United States within the meaning of R.S. §§ 1014, 5440 (18 U.S.C. §§ 371, 3041). United States v. Cella (1911, 37 App. D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S. Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633). See, also, United States v. Campbell (D.C. Pa., 1910, 179 F. 762).

Where indictment was for conspiracy to violate this section, the proceeding was removable under R.S. § 1014 (18 U.S.C. § 371). United States ex rel. Vause v. McCarthy (D.C. N.Y. 1918, 250 F. 800, affirmed 256 F. 651, 168 C.C.A. 45).

Constitutionality

The provision in this section that unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, the word "contract" when used in sections 22-1509 to 22-1512, shall mean "any agreement, trade, or transaction," does not invalidate such sections as prohibiting all agreements, trades, and transactions, but refers only to the particular kinds of contracts elsewhere described in such sections, namely bucketing and bucket-shop contracts, or all agreements, trades, and transactions relating thereto. United States v. Cella (1911, 37 App. D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S. Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633).

In the prosecution of keepers of a bucket shop for violating sections 22-1509 to 22-1512, relating to bucket shopping, such sections will not be declared invalid because of the possibility that under these sections innocent customers might be penalized, as the provisions defining a bucket shop, and prohibiting the keeper of it from making bucketing contracts, are entirely separable from, and not dependent upon, the provisions relating to the other party to such contract. Id.

Prosecutions

Prosecutions under this section should be in the name of the United States. United States v. Cella (1911, 37 App. D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S. Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633).

§ 22-1510. Penalty for bucketing or keeping bucket-shop.

Any person who makes or offers to make any contract defined in section 22-1509, or who is the keeper of any bucket-shop, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than one year. Any person who shall be convicted of a second offense shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years. The continuing of the keeping of a bucket-shop by any person after the first conviction therefor shall be deemed a second offense under sections 22-1509 to 22-1512. If a domestic corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity in the name of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, on the relation of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, to dissolve the corporation; and if a foreign corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, in the same manner, to restrain the corporation from doing business in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869b, as added Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233, and amended June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, 991, ch. 646, §§ 1, 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(c) (1) (E), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

Any person who shall communicate, receive, exhibit, or display in any manner any statement of quotations of prices of any securities or commodities with an intent to make, or offer to make, or to aid in making, or offering to make any contract prohibited by sections 22-1509 to 22-1512, upon conviction thereof shall be subject to the penalties provided in section 22-1510. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869c, as added Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233.)

This section is referred to in sections 22-1509, 22-1510, 22-1512.

§ 22-1512. Bucketing—Written statement to be furnished—Contents.

Every person shall furnish, upon demand, to any customer or principal for whom such person has executed any order for the actual purchase or sale of any securities or commodities, either for immediate or future delivery, a written statement, containing the names of the persons from whom such property was bought or to whom it has been sold, as the fact may be, the time when, place where, and the price at which the same was either bought or sold; and if such person shall refuse or neglect to furnish such statement within twenty-four hours after such demand such refusal or neglect shall be prima facie evidence that such purchase or sale was bucketing or bucket-shopping within the terms of sections 22-1509 to 22-1512. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869d, as added Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233.)

§ 22-1513. Corrupt influence in connection with athletic contests.

(a) It shall be unlawful to pay or give, or to agree to pay or give, or to promise or offer, any valuable thing to any individual—

(1) with intent to influence such individual to lose or cause to be lost, or to attempt to lose or cause to be lost, or to limit or attempt to limit his or his team's margin of victory or score in, any professional or amateur athletic contest in which such individual is or may be a contestant or participant; or

(2) with intent to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual (as a manager, coach, owner, second, jockey, trainer, handler, groom, or otherwise) has or will have any duty or responsibility with respect to a contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein, to cause or attempt to cause (A) the loss of such athletic contest by such contestant, participant, or team; or (B) the margin of victory or score of such contestant, participant, or team to be limited; or

(3) with intent to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual is to be or may be a referee, judge, umpire, linesman, starter, timekeeper, or other similar official, to cause or attempt to cause (A) the loss of such athletic contest by any contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein; or (B) the margin of victory or score of any such contest, participant, or team to be limited.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any individual to solicit or accept, or to agree to accept, any valuable thing or a promise or offer of any valuable thing—

(2) to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual (as a manager, coach, owner, second, jockey, trainer, handler, groom, or otherwise) has or will have any duty or responsibility with respect to a contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein, to cause or attempt to cause

(A) the loss of such athletic contest by such contestant, participant, or team; or (B) the margin of victory or score of such contestant, participant, or team to be limited; or

(f) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the giving or offering of any bonus or extra compensation to any manager, coach, or professional player, or to any league, association, or conference for the purpose of encouraging such manager, coach, or player to a higher degree of skill, ability, or diligence in the performance of his duties. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869e, as added July 11, 1947, 61 Stat. 313, ch. 230; and amended Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 604, title VI, 81 Stat. 737.)

AMENDMENT

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

§ 22-1514. Immunity of witnesses—Record.

(a) Whenever, in the judgment of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, the testimony of any witness, or the production of books, papers, or other records or documents, by any witness, in any case or proceeding involving a violation of this chapter before any grand jury or a court in the District of Columbia, is necessary in the public interest, such witness shall not be excused from testifying or from producing books, papers, and other records and documents on the grounds that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him, or subject him to penalty or forfeiture; but such witness shall not be prosecuted or subject to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled, after having claimed his privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise; except that such witness so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury or contempt committed in so testifying.

(b) The judgment of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia that any testimony, or the production of any books, papers, or other records or documents, is necessary in the public interest shall be confirmed in a written communication over the signature of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, addressed to the grand jury or the court in the District of Columbia concerned, and shall be made a part of the record of the case or proceeding in which such testimony or evidence is given. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869f, as added June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 96, ch. 159, § 206(d).)

CROSS REFERENCE

For general immunity statute, see 18 U.S.C. 6001 to 6005. Section 259 of title II of Act Oct. 15, 1970, Pub. L. 91-452, 84 Stat. 931, provided: "In addition to the provisions of law specifically amended or specifically repealed by this title, any other provision of law inconsistent with the provisions of part V [§§ 6001 to 6005] of title 18, United States Code (added by title II of this Act), is to that extent amended or repealed."

Civil contempt

Immunity granted by terms of Code encompassed immunity for offense for which witness had been convicted although judgment of conviction was nonfinal because timely appeal from judgment was pending, but that did not alter witness' obligation to testify before grand jury when directed to do so and failure to do so constituted civil contempt. In re Flanagan (1965, 350 F. 2d 746, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

Constitutionality

District of Columbia immunity statute is not unconstitutional on basis of alleged uncertainty as immunity provided with reference to state as well as federal prosecutions. In re Flanagan (1965, 350 F. 2d 746, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

Operation of statute

Immunity statute does not operate unless witness testifies or gives evidence over his claim of privilege against self-incrimination. In re Flanagan (1965, 350 F. 2d 746, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

§ 22-1515. Presence in illegal establishments.

(a) Whoever is found in the District in a gambling establishment or an establishment where intoxicating liquor is sold without a license or any narcotic drug is sold, administered, or dispensed without a license shall, if he knew that it was such an establishment and if he is unable to give a good account of his presence in the establishment, be imprisoned for not more than one year or fined not more than $500, or both.

(b) Whoever is employed in a gambling establishment in the District or an establishment in the District where intoxicating liquor is sold without a license or where any narcotic drug is sold, administered, or dispensed without a license, knowing that it is such an establishment, shall be imprisoned for not more than one year or fined not more than $500, or both. (June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 97, ch. 159, § 208.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section providing that whoever is found in establishment where any narcotic drug is sold, administered, or dispensed without a license shall, if he knew it was such an establishment and if he is unable to give a good account of his presence in the establishment, be imprisoned is unconstitutionally vague in that it makes criminal liability turn upon defendant's ability to give a good account of himself. J. Holly v. United States (1972, 464 F. 2d 796, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

This section making it an offense to be present in illegal establishment is constitutional. A. Geddie v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 668).

If defendant charged under this section with knowing presence in narcotics or other illegal establishment chooses not to testify to attempt to establish defense of "good account," this in no way lessens government's burden of proving knowing presence in illegal establishment and does not expose defendant to added criminal responsibility; and thus, section defining such offense does not violate privilege against self-incrimination. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Presence in illegal establishment, unlike standing or "loitering" on street corner, is not presumptively innocent behavior, and thus a defendant may constitutionally be called upon to explain such presence. Id.

Court of appeals decision

Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit would not defer to decisions of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals upholding criminal statute, where Court of Appeals for District of Columbia Circuit had jurisdiction to resolve appeals involving statute on their merits, position of the lower court on the constitutional question was clear, two appellants had been convicted under the statute and a third faced trial under it, and Court of Appeals of District of Columbia Circuit had previously made known its view that the constitutional claim had merit. J. Holly v. United States (1972, 464 F. 2d 796, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

Elements of offense

In a prosecution for being present in an illegal establishment, it is not element of the offense that defendant was present in apartment with an intent to participate in illegal activity; intent necessary to convict is merely the intention to be present in the establishment while knowing of the illegal activity taking place. F. Wells v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 226; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1271, 405 U.S. 995).

In such a prosecution, the government is not required to prove beyond reasonable doubt the absence of a "good account" defense; "good account" is a statutory affirmative defense and, as such, not an element of the offense to be proved by the prosecution. Id.

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence in prosecution for being present in illegal establishment is sufficient to prove beyond reasonable doubt the nonexistence of license to dispense narcotics even though Government offered no testimony as to nonexistence of license. A. Geddie v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 668).

Evidence that usable quantity of heroin was found along with narcotics paraphernalia, some of which were still in plain view after police officers entered and others of which were found under couch, suggesting they may have been placed there hurriedly upon arrival of the police, was sufficient to allow jury to find that narcotics were being administered and that sufficient amount of paraphernalia was easily visible, thereby imparting knowledge of illegal activity to defendant charged with being present in an illegal establishment. F. Wells v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 226; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1271, 405 U.S. 995).

Where as a matter of reasonable probability there was no possibility for misidentification and adulteration of certain narcotic evidence, missing link in government's chain of possession of the narcotics evidence does not warrant reversal of convictions of unlawful possession of narcotic drug, narcotic vagrancy and presence in illegal establishment. B. Spade v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 654).

Evidence that, at time police officers entered apartment, the defendant was standing next to dresser on the top of which a sizeable quantity of narcotic paraphernalia was in plain view sustained conviction of being knowingly present in an establishment where narcotic drugs were sold, administered or dispensed without a license even in absence of testimony by police witnesses that they had seen drugs being sold, administered or dispensed or that the defendant had knowledge that the apartment was being used for such purposes. W. C. Cook v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 444).

Good account

In context of this section defining as crime one's knowing presence in illegal narcotics, gambling or liquor establishment, if defendant is unable to give good account of his presence, culpable intent being necessary element of the offense, "good account" takes on narrow meaning of demonstrating that one's knowing presence in the illegal establishment was for lawful purpose and not as participant in the illegal activity taking place there. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

If defendant cannot give good account of his presence in a prosecution under this section, failure to give "good account" is not element of the crime and does not create presumption of knowledge of illegality of premises, which must be proved by the government as separate element of the crime, or presumption of any other element of the crime; rather provision for giving good account merely establishes affirmative defense to otherwise completed and adequately described crime of knowingly being present in illegal establishment. Id.

Defendant is entitled to present to jury explanations of such presence in addition to those given to police. Id.

Inferences

Fact that the probable holder of any license to dispense drugs testified that no drugs were dispensed or used on premises with his permission together with other facts of case permitted the jury to infer that no license existed despite fact that Government offered no testimony as to nonexistence of license. A. Geddie v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 668).

Paraphernalia in plain view supports inference of knowledge of illegal activity. Id.

Instructions

Where the record revealed that there were several of defendant's friends who were present in apartment containing narcotic apparatus at time of execution of search warrant, who had material information that could have elucidated events of day in question, and who were peculiarly available to defendant, giving of "missing witness" instruction in prosecution for being present in an illegal establishment was not error. F. Wells v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 226; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 1271, 405 U.S. 995).

Since this section proscribing being present in illegal establishment defines illegal establishment as one where any narcotic drug is sold, administered or dispensed without a license, trial court's instruction that defendants were charged with presence in an illegal establishment where narcotic drugs were kept or sold or administered or dispensed unlawfully introduced new and erroneous element and constituted reversible error. B. Spade v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 54).

Where there was no overt correction which brought to jury's attention that the word "kept" was not included in this section as an element of presence in an illegal establishment, trial court's subsequent instruction on another portion of section in which there was correct recital of the elements of the offense did not cure the erroneous charge. Id.

Narcotics establishment

Illegal "narcotic establishment" is not merely place where addicts may be present, but is place where pushers, addicts and unaddicted neophytes can easily transact business, and thus effect of this section making it crime to knowingly be present in such establishment on status of being addicted to narcotics is merely incidental to section's major thrust against narcotics traffic, and elimination of such establishments was proper subject for Congressional action. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Presumptions

The amount of narcotics paraphernalia easily visible in apartment plus fresh needle marks on codefendant's arm supported the presumption that narcotic drugs were being administered and that defendant was knowingly present in establishment where narcotic drugs were administered. C. Jones v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 559).

Purpose

Purpose of Congress in enacting this section, making unlawful knowing presence in illegal narcotics, gambling, or liquor establishment, was to lead to eradication of such illegal establishments by making presence or employment therein crime. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Search and seizure

Defendant in prosecution for being present in illegal establishment, who had been arrested in basement in which narcotics paraphernalia was found and whose presence there was as a trespasser, did not have standing to challenge search and seizure of paraphernalia since possession of paraphernalia was not an element of offense charged, so as to estop government from denying its possessory interest. F. L. Brooks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 45).

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-1703a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application

The prohibition of this section is "general and unqualified, and applies to all alike," and prevents the discharge of any such waste products. Holden v. United States (1904, 24 App. D.C. 318, certiorari denied 25 S. Ct. 796, 196 U.S. 639, 49 L. Ed. 631).

Liability

Although failure of employee of university, that contracted with independent contractor for erection of oil power plant, to turn off oil pumps that he had turned on or to turn on transfer valve resulted in oil spillage into river, such failure did not render university criminally liable under this section since the employee turned pumps on at direction of independent mechanical contractor and was not requested to turn pumps off or instructed as to consequences of leaving pumps on without turning on transfer valve. United States v. Georgetown University (1971, 331 F. Supp. 69).

Negligence

When construction company places tanks on banks of navigable stream within limits of the city and if substance from the tanks escapes into the river and interferes with public use, it is liable irrespective of the question of negligence. Brennan Constr. Co. v. Cumberland (1907, 29 App. D.C. 554, 15 L.R.A., N.S., 535, 10 Ann. Cas. 865).

Chapter 18.—BURGLARY

Sec.

22-1801. Burglary—Penalties.

§ 22-1801. Burglary—Penalties.

(a) Whoever shall, either in the nighttime or in the daytime, break and enter, or enter without breaking, any dwelling, or room used as a sleeping apartment in any building, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof, or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected thereto or to commit any criminal offense, shall, if any person is in any part of such dwelling or sleeping apartment at the time of such breaking and entering, or entering without breaking, be guilty of burglary in the first degree. Burglary in the first degree shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five years nor more than thirty years.

(b) Except as provided in subsection (a) of this section, whoever shall, either in the night or in the daytime, break and enter, or enter without breaking, any dwelling, bank, store, warehouse, shop, stable, or other building or any apartment or room, whether at the time occupied or not, or any steamboat, canal-boat, vessel, or other watercraft, or railroad car or any yard where any lumber, coal, or other goods or chattels are deposited and kept for the purpose of trade, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected with the same, or to commit any criminal offense, shall be guilty of burglary in the second degree. Burglary in the second degree shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than two years nor more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 823; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 602, title VI, 81 Stat. 736.)

This section is referred to in sections 11-502, 23-546, 23-581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Historical

Ancient distinction that robbery offends person and burglary habitation has not been obliterated by Congress with respect to District of Columbia even where robbery inside dwelling follows closely on heels of housebreaking of that dwelling. Irby v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1965, 250 F. Supp. 983).

Adequate assistance of counsel

Since defense counsel, whom the defendant had previously requested be replaced for failure to act in defendant's best interest, was technically still defense lawyer during hearing on defendant's request for withdrawal of guilty pleas, and since such counsel made points against defendant and said nothing to support withdrawal of pleas, defendant had been denied adequate assistance of counsel. United States v. W. I. Joslin (1970, 434 F. 2d 526, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Appeal and error

Error, in not giving instruction on lesser offense of simple assault, in prosecution for rape, assault with intent to commit rape, unlawful entry, and second-degree burglary, does not require that conviction of second-degree burglary be set aside, in view of fact that the jury returned verdict on burglary charge rather than on lesser-included offense of unlawful entry. United States v. E. L. Huff (1971, 442 F. 2d 885, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

There was no error in failure to provide the defendants with portion of Government witness' grand jury testimony, to extent that such testimony consisted of materials unrelated to the instant charges, matters unrelated to the present trial and then under investigation, and matters pertaining to individuals identified therein who were entitled to protection from adverse publicity. R. Hamilton et al. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 526, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1612, 402 U.S. 944).

It was error not to provide the defendants, charged with conspiracy, with portion of Government's witness' grand jury testimony which involved burglary charged as an overt act of conspiracy, but such error was harmless where such testimony was entirely consistent with testimony given by such witness at trial. Id.

Argument of counsel

Where only identification witness in housebreaking and larceny case testified that he saw one of defendants in entrance or in vicinity of door of house and that two men were working or doing something in truck, but prosecuting attorney in opening statement told jury that witness had observed one of defendants come out of doorway and had observed them working in or loading something into truck and on redirect prosecuting attorney in question to witness assumed such as a fact, new trial was required, notwithstanding instructions. K. Jones and W. Campbell, Jr. v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 553, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

In prosecution for housebreaking, fact that prosecutor remarked to jury, in his summation, about defendant's failure to call certain witnesses, did not mean that trial court was required to instruct jury that it was not the duty of defendant to make any defense, and trial court did not err in refusing such a requested instruction. Lawson v. United States (1957, 248 F. 2d 654, 101 U.S. App. D. C. 332, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 552, 355 U.S. 963, 2 L. Ed. 2d 537).

Arrest and search

Examination of the trunk of defendant's automobile did not constitute an illegal search by the police where it occurred contemporaneously with and at place of defendant's arrest under circumstances indicating convincingly defendant's participation in burglary. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Police officers, who suspected defendant of having broken into and robbed drugstore, were entitled to ring defendant's doorbell and inquire concerning his whereabouts, and their observation, while awaiting admittance to defendant's house, of bottles and cigarettes, which apparently had been stolen from drugstore and which were lying in vicinity of porch, did not constitute a "search". Ellison v. United States (1953, 206 F. 2d 476, 93 U.S. App. D. C. 1).

— Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances, conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. S. Jackson, Jr. v. United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 194, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

Police are entitled to rely upon hearsay and upon various other factors which would not be admissible in evidence against accused at trial in determining whether there is probable cause for arrest. Id.

Total information available to officers, with respect to defendant charged with housebreaking and grand larceny, including separate accusations by two persons that he had been source of stolen gun, together with one of their recollections of rhinestone bracelet in defendant's closet, matching description of similar object on list of stolen property, reasonably warranted a belief that he had probably committed felonious acts in which gun and bracelet were originally stolen, and such, together with practical necessities of pursuit, justified his arrest without warrant. Id.

Officers, who were investigating drugstore robbery, who knew that defendant had committed similar robbery two years before, and who discovered, on defendant's premises, heap of bottles and cigarettes, which were of type stolen from drugstore, had probable cause to believe defendant was guilty of felony, and, therefore, were justified in arresting defendant without warrant. Ellison v. United States (1953, 206 F. 2d 476, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

The entering of a building with intent to commit any offense is a felony, and where officer's information gave him probable cause to believe that defendant had entered building with intent to steal, and defendant's appearance fitted "lookout" description given officer, no warrant was needed and arrest of defendant was lawful; and fact that district attorney saw fit to reduce charge from housebreaking to petit larceny did not change circumstances of arrest or invalidate confession obtained while defendant being held under such arrest. Scott v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 767).

— Corpus delicti

Corpus delicti under count charging homicide in perpetration of a housebreaking did not require independent proof that death occurred in perpetration of housebreaking. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

— Corroboration of evidence

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, testimony of complainant's mother relating to telephone call made by complainant immediately after alleged attack was properly received in evidence. B. Smith v. United States, (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

— Search without warrant

Where police officer, who saw defendant walking along street about 2:00 in the morning, and who thought defendant had narcotics, without a warrant stopped defendant, who admitted that he had not worked for over a year, and had maintained himself by gambling, and officer then informed defendant that he was arresting him for vagrancy and required him to disrobe, search, which led to discovery of stolen money orders, was an unreasonable and unlawful violation of defendant's rights as a citizen, rendering stolen money orders inadmissible in prosecution for forgery, housebreaking, grand larceny, and interstate transportation of falsely made securities. White, etc. v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 829, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Where defendant was arrested late at night without a warrant and booked on an open charge for investigation, statements of defendant while in jail that he had nothing to hide and that the officers could go and see for themselves did not establish an agreement that the officers could search the defendant's household without first procuring a warrant. Judd v. United States (1951, 190 F. 2d 649, 89 U.S. App. D. C. 64).

Concurrent sentences

In case involving concurrent sentences for burglary II and grand larceny, since there is a question as to adequacy of proof of grand larceny that property taken had a value of $100 or more, principle that appellate court may reverse a judgment as to one of sentences, if its validity is beset by substantial doubt, where there is neither injustice done defendant nor a need of government overriden, will be applied to reverse concurrent sentence for grand larceny, while remanding case to trial court for entry of concurrent sentence on petit larceny. United States v. W. D. Henderson (1970, 439 F. 2d 531, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

There was no resulting prejudice to a defendant in a case where concurrent sentences were imposed for crimes of carnal knowledge and housebreaking, as a result of error, if any, in failing to make out a prima facie case of housebreaking. P. E. A. Duckett v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1004, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Construction

Federal statute [Pub. L. 90-226] for District of Columbia, defining crime of burglary in first degree and increasing minimum and maximum punishments therefor and increasing minimum punishment for robbery by amending prior laws on both crimes became effective at 3:05 p.m. when it was signed by the President, and not before. United States v. R. L. Casson (1970, 434 F. 2d 415, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

Notation on federal bill as to time of its approval by the President, though such notation is not required by Constitution or statute, constitutes contemporaneous memorandum and is best evidence of fact that nature of case permits. Id.

Under statutory provision that United States statutes at large shall be "legal evidence of laws," it is held that bill was approved at time endorsed on official document and stated in Statutes at Large rather than at time alleged in hearsay affidavits based upon hearsay newspaper statements; such hearsay newspaper statements are not sufficient basis for overcoming best evidence of which case was susceptible and presumption of regularity. Id.

Cross-examination

Where defendant had testified that he lived at certain address during month in which burglary occurred, that he had returned to that address on date of burglary after finishing work, that he had worked every day, presumably including day of arrest, and that he had never lived around corner from home of eyewitness to burglary, trial judge did not abuse discretion by permitting Government to cross-examine defendant concerning employer's identification card which referred to the address around the corner from eyewitness' home and records indicating days he had worked during week of crime. United States v. M. W. Rosebar (1972, 463 F. 2d 1255, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for housebreaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Elements of offense

Offenses of murder, housebreaking, and larceny each requires elements of proof which are not common to other two and each offense is historically an independent crime. United States v. G. D. Butler (1972, 462 F. 2d 1195, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

The crime of burglary is established by an unlawful entry accompanied by an intent to steal, though such intent may be conditioned on locating property that the offender desires to remove. United States v. R. Sinclair (1971, 444 F. 2d 888, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

Entry into closed store constitutes burglary if entry coincides, in point of time, with intent to steal once therein, even though intended theft was not consummated. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

Evidence—Admissibility

Although complaint was unable to positively identify razor and case as being his property, since he did identify razor and case introduced in evidence as being the same make and type as the one which had been stolen from him and there was testimony to effect that defendant was seen shortly after theft carrying a balled-up red sweater and a few minutes later police officer recovered razor and case and discarded red sweater near scene of the defendant's arrest and that the razor and case offered as evidence were the ones recovered at that time, razor and case as well as accompanying testimony were properly admitted as circumstantial evidence that defendant had committed burglary with which he was charged. United States v. S. H. Thornton (1972, 462 F. 2d 307, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

Exhibits consisting of gloves, screwdriver and flashlight found on defendant when he was apprehended in basement entrance of burglary victim's house at about 4:00 in the morning were relevant to charge of second degree burglary. W. A. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 269).

Testimony by police officer concerning a conversation in which co-defendant stated that defendant was with him in a housebreaking was pure hearsay as to defendant and was not admissible against him and should not have been admitted at all when it was no essential part of co-defendant's own confession of guilt, and objection by defendant that testimony was not admissible was adequate, and its admission over objection was prejudicial. D. Kramer v. United States (1963, 317 F. 2d 114, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Where same evidence was used to connect defendant with crimes charged in counts two, three, and four as was employed in count one, and such evidence was ruled inadmissible on appeal from judgment of conviction on count one, new trial ordered by Court of Appeals for count one, should embrace all four counts. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1962, 205 F. Supp. 944).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, United States District Court, under the circumstances, did not abuse its discretion in admitting evidence of defendant's participation in another alleged crime of similar character committed the same evening. Adams v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 451, 99 U.S. App. D. C. 288).

Housebreaking, robbery and burglary are merely aggravated forms of larceny and evidence competent in one case is competent, also, in others. Edwards v. United States (1944, 139 F. 2d 365, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 528, 821 U.S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

Where written confession of housebreaking and larceny was inadmissible because result of illegal detention and lengthy questioning of accused, subsequent oral admissions of accused, while still in custody immediately following first confession, and while demonstrating how premises were entered, were likewise inadmissible. Akowskey v. United States (1947, 158 F. 2d 649, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

— Sufficiency

Proper standard for determining whether evidence is sufficient to allow jury to decide case is whether a reasonable mind might fairly have reasonable doubt or might fairly not have one. United States v. P. E. Coombs (1972, 464 F. 2d 842, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Evidence, including eyewitness testimony, was sufficient to sustain conviction of second-degree burglary and grand larceny. United States v. M. W. Rosebar (1972, 463 F. 2d 1255, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

Evidence was sufficient to support conviction for attempted burglary in the second degree of defendant who was found by police officers in building next to building which had been scene of prior attempted break-in and which had bricks contiguous to upstairs room on side of party wall having been removed and whose trousers had dust on them matching dust in broken wall which had additional bricks removed after the prior break-in. M. Valentino v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 173).

Under circumstances that defendant and codefendants were observed in department store dressed in "stockroom jackets" of kind worn by store personnel, carrying shopping bags of kind commonly used by professional shoplifters and walking in areas of store where employees rather than customers would normally be, evidence concerning defendant's intent to commit crime at time of entry was sufficient to support conviction for second-degree burglary. W. R. Franklin v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 278).

Evidence, including testimony that burglar did not leave victim's porch until victim's house was cordoned off by police and that defendant was concealing himself at about 4:00 in the morning in basement entrance of the house and was equipped with gloves, screwdriver and flashlight, was sufficient to establish that defendant was in fact the intruder and was sufficient to support second-degree burglary conviction. W. A. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 269).

Evidence was sufficient to warrant submission to jury in burglary prosecution of question of whether the defendant's entry onto the premises was with intent to commit crime. United States v. W. Whitaker (1971, 447 F. 2d 314, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Evidence was sufficient to warrant submission to jury in burglary prosecution of issue of the defendant's guilt of unlawful entry. Id.

Evidence which showed that the defendant was on second floor landing in stairwell of complainant's apartment building, that a window screen in complainant's apartment had been cut, that the apartment had been unlocked from the inside and that there were rayon fibers on tennis shoes of defendant that were similar to the rayon on complainant's bedroom rug was insufficient to permit burglary charge to go to the jury. United States v. R. D. Preston (1971, 331 F. Supp. 457).

Evidence that the defendant was standing in front of a broken window of store that was being burglarized by two other men, one of whom had a casual acquaintance with the defendant, while perhaps raising a possibility or even strong suspicion of participation in criminal activity, is not sufficient to find defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of attempted burglary in the second degree and of attempted petit larceny. W. T. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 719).

Evidence that the defendant and his companion were the only people in hall near apartment when witness alighted from elevator after hearing suspicious noises, that door to witness' apartment had large hole in it, and that defendant's companion dropped screwdriver while being followed is sufficient to support conclusion of guilt beyond reasonable doubt of attempted burglary II and destruction of property. W. W. Hopkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 274 A. 2d 418).

Evidence, including evidence that, at time stores in neighborhood were being looted, the defendant was found by officer in store with broken window and that defendant dropped cartons of cigarettes, sustained burglary conviction. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

In absence of specific evidence as to the value of items taken, defendant's conviction for grand larceny would be reversed, but since trial judge gave lesser included offense charge as to petit larceny and there was sufficient evidence on which jury could find defendant guilty thereof, case would be remanded for resentencing. United States v. E. E. Thweatt (1970, 433 F. 2d 1226, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

In this case the court held that the Government failed to sustain its burden of proving that the defendant was present in the house at time of entry, and that the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for first-degree burglary. United States v. C. Hammonds (1970, 425 F. 2d 597, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Evidence, including testimony identifying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

In this case the court found that testimony concerning defendant's offer to sell the goods, leading the prospective buyers to where they were stored, and remaining with the goods during an interval when others had departed was sufficient evidence to allow a jury to find that defendant was in possession of recently stolen property and to infer larceny and housebreaking. D. E. Garriss, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

In this case the evidence presented by the government in a prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny was so compelling that, even if the police station confrontation between defendant and two prosecution witnesses was improper and in-court identification of defendant was not shown by clear and convincing evidence to have an independent source, error, if any, in the in-court identifications was harmless. G. R. Taylor v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1142, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

In this case the evidence in prosecution of defendant for attempted burglary permitted inference of an intent to commit a crime to be made by the jury who was found in warehouse amongst scattered papers, opened desk drawers and office machinery which had been moved into hall. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Evidence was sufficient in juvenile court proceeding to support finding that the minor was guilty of housebreaking and petty larceny. In the Matter of N. M. Ellis (D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 789; remanded 429 F. 2d 214, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 30).

Defendant's responsibility for housebreaking was established by being with those who broke store window coupled with his flight with stolen goods. Id.

Evidence that tenant of apartment heard what sounded like someone attempting to enter vacant apartment and that defendant and companion were seen leaving building and fled when pursued by officer was sufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking. T. H. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 640).

Evidence of eyewitness, corroborated by physical details otherwise in evidence, supported verdicts finding defendants guilty of first-degree murder and housebreaking. R. T. Brown, J. D. Irby and R. L. Jones v. United States (1967, 375 F. 2d 310, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

In prosecution for housebreaking with intent to commit an assault evidence was sufficient for jury. W. A. Baber v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 390, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 358).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking. J. Hart v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 329).

Evidence sustained defendant's conviction of housebreaking and petit larceny. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence regarding identification of defendant made a case for the jury. Williams v. United States (C.A. D.C. 1960, 282 F. 2d 867).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions for housebreaking, larceny and destroying movable property. Braddy v. United States of America (1955, 225 F. 2d 551, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to establish corporate character of occupant of property entered and owner of property stolen. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to sustain determination that defendant was one of men who entered building and committed larceny. Id.

Where jury could find beyond a reasonable doubt that both defendant and his companion entered a room with intent to steal and that either defendant or his companion stole watch, defendant's conviction of larceny of a watch and of entering a room with intent to commit larceny was authorized, notwithstanding that defendant's part in the crimes may have been only to stand guard. Fretz v. United States (1944, 140 F. 2d 468, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Where evidence showed that crimes of housebreaking and larceny were committed in store building by two men, defendant was found in unexplained association with another who later confessed participation in crimes and each was in possession of some of the stolen property, evidence was sufficient to justify conviction. Edwards v. United States (1944, 139 F. 2d 365, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U.S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

Evidence sustained a conviction for housebreaking. Henderson v. United States (1949, 172 F. 2d 289, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

— Suppression

Ordinarily, one seeking to challenge legality of search or seizure must establish that he was victim of alleged invasion of privacy. F. Hair & J. I. Burroughs v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 894, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Evidence obtained under warrant issued on basis of observations derived by police officers from illegal entry is inadmissible. Id.

— Witnesses

Where prosecution's case rested largely upon testimony of a sole key eyewitness and there was ample ground for suspicion of inconsistencies in eyewitness' identification, trial judge abused his discretion in failing to order production of those parts of the witness' grand jury testimony relating to same subject testified to at trial. W. E. De Binder v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 737, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, record supported Government's theory that, while witness had made conflicting statements regarding whether he would testify, prosecutor reasonably believed that he would testify, and therefore action of prosecutor in calling witness who identified certain tools, but then relied on his privilege and refused to connect himself or defendant with the crime, was not objectionable on ground that defendant was deprived of a fair trial, where court instructed the jury to disregard witness' testimony and the tools which he identified. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Examination of witnesses

Trial court's refusal to order psychiatric examination of Government's principal witness was not prejudicial error since the defendants had not provided any substantial factual predicate for their request and since the results of previous psychiatric evaluation of the witness would be available to them. R. Hamilton et al. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 526, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 91 S.Ct. 1612, 402 U.S. 944).

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, the court's questioning of defense witnesses on certain aspects of testimony which they had given in support of alibi claim in order to obtain much needed clarification of their testimony rather than challenges thereto did not amount of advocacy against alibi theory in presence of jury, and in any event was not prejudicial where it was not significantly different in nature from court's questioning of a vital government witness. United States v. H. W. Barbour (1969, 420 F. 2d 1319, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Ex post facto

Statute providing increased punishment for acts committed "prior to the date of enactment of this Act [Pub. L. 90-226]" is not on its face ex post facto. United States v. R. L. Casson (1970, 434 F. 2d 415, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

If legislation must pass notice test to escape ex post facto condemnation, public is charged with knowledge of all published information concerning congressional bill which is available during entire legislative process. Id.

If notice is required to avoid ex post facto condemnation of application of statute increasing penalties for certain offenses, congressional record and documents published by Congress proving that bill and all its provisions were in public domain for over six months, received widest publicity and full disclosure by Congress, and distribution of more than 100,000 copies of bill in exact form in which it passed are more than adequate notice to public of contents of bill. Id.

Actual notice to a particular individual that legislation has passed or is about to be passed or approved is not prerequisite to application of act, as against ex post facto condemnation. Id.

That staff members of congressional committees accommodate public, on requests, by informing them of status of bills in various stages of legislative process is a matter of common knowledge of which reviewing court takes judicial notice in considering on ex post facto claim, how much notice was available to public in respect to legislation being considered by Congress. Id.

Identification

Where issue of whether an in-court identification was of independent origin was not raised at trial when situation arose and prosecutor proffered evidence which would have been revealed by a pretrial evidentiary hearing, claim of error because of failure to hold hearing to determine whether such identification was of independent origin was waived by defendant who did not move for suppression of testimony and, additionally, proffered testimony showed that identification was not improperly suggestive. United States v. S. H. Thornton (1972, 462 F. 2d 307, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

Where 13 days after burglary victim had chance encounter with the defendant on street and spontaneously asserted fact of recognition to companion, companion immediately gave description to police, patrolling officer overheard broadcast description and quickly spotted and took into custody figure who appeared to fit description, officer, who did not know nature of offense, then took suspect to recognition scene, a short distance away, where officer asked victim if detainee were man about whom companion had telephoned police and officer's act in so doing rather than taking detainee to police station was to confirm whether he had detained proper person, admitting testimony of scout car identification by the victim, who was in close proximity to burglar for approximately one hour during course of offense, was not constitutional error. United States v. L. E. Evans (1971, 438 F. 2d 162, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 321; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 2196, 402 U.S. 1010).

Impartial jury

Defendant is not entitled to mistrial in burglary prosecution on ground that, during night following the first day of the trial, one of the jurors became victim of burglary and communicated such fact to the remaining jurors, since the juror in question was replaced by an alternate and since the defendant did not demonstrate the existence of state of mind in some other juror strong enough to raise presumption of partiality, but on the contrary objected to voir dire of the remaining jurors. United States v. E. L. Morgan (1970, 443 F. 2d 718, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

Impeachment

Where the defendant was on trial for second-degree burglary and petit larceny, it was error to grant permission for impeachment by both of defendant's two-year-old convictions for attempted housebreaking and for petit larceny, but since the prosecution used only the attempted house-breaking conviction, no prejudice appeared. United States v. J. L. Issac (1971, 449 F. 2d 1040, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Admission of robbery offense, committed some seven years before burglary prosecution, for impeachment purposes as bearing on honesty and veracity of defendant as witness is not objectionable on theory that previous conviction is too remote and too prejudicial in relation to its probative value on defendant's credibility. United States v. E. E. Simpson et ano. (1970, 445 F. 2d 735, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Cross-examination of defendant during which the prosecution was permitted to develop that for some time prior to date of offense defendant had been absent from his military post without leave was improper, and the prejudice was magnified by the erroneous admission of government's rebuttal evidence as to defendant's absence from military post. United States v. W. A. Shumate et ano. (1970, 429 F. 2d 777, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

In this case, the Court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. W. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 663, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 186).

In this case the court held that under the circumstances the defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking and grand larceny, was entitled to nonjury hearing to determine whether defendant would be allowed to take stand in front of jury without prosecution introducing evidence of defendant's prior convictions. United States v. J. Coleman (1969, 420 F. 2d 1313, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, wherein defendant admitted sex relations and testified that prosecutrix had consented, prosecutor was properly allowed to impeach defendant's credibility by reading affidavit, which defendant had made as indigent defendant to secure subpoena and in which defendant had stated that witness whom he sought to subpoena could establish alibi for him. B. Smith v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Inconsistent verdict

Where missing jewelry was never recovered, fact that the defendants charged with second-degree burglary and grand larceny arising out of apparent theft from jewelry store were convicted of burglary but found not guilty of grand larceny does not demonstrate inconsistency in jury verdict. United States v. E. E. Simpson et ano. (1970, 445 F. 2d 735, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Verdicts acquitting defendant of larceny while convicting him of burglary are not fatally inconsistent in prosecution in which officer testified that he found defendant in looted store holding cigarettes. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglary and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglary, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Independent crimes

Counts of housebreaking and robbery, to which petitioner pleaded guilty, charged independent crimes, since housebreaking count charged and made necessary proof of entry of dwelling with intent to steal property but proof of entry was not essential to robbery count, whereas robbery charge required proof of taking in particular manner of something of value from victim's person or immediate actual possession, facts that were not essential elements of housebreaking. Irby v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1965, 250 F. Supp. 983).

Indictment

Specific intent required for second-degree burglary must be charged with such particularity as to designate specific crime the grand jury had in mind when it charged that accused intended to commit some offense. United States v. J. B. Seegers, Jr. (1971, 445 F. 2d 232, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 162).

Indictment charging that the defendant entered building with intent to commit a criminal offense therein is insufficient to charge the offense of second-degree burglary for failure to allege the specific crime, and conviction of second-degree burglary thereunder must be vacated. Id.

Although conviction for second-degree burglary is vacated because of insufficiency of indictment, government can seek another grand jury indictment for such offense, but since indictment is sufficient to charge an unlawful entry and evidence is sufficient to support such a conviction, case is remanded for entry of judgment of conviction for unlawful entry if government does not object and trial court considers such action in the interests of justice; otherwise government can decide whether it wishes to submit defendant's case again to grand jury. Id.

Indictment charging that the defendant entered dwelling "with intent to commit a criminal offense therein" in violation of burglary statute is insufficient to charge first-degree burglary in that it does not identify offense defendant intended to commit upon entry; however, the indictment is sufficient to charge unlawful entry. United States v. R. L. Thomas, Jr. (1971, 444 F. 2d 919, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

In indictment for burglary, ulterior crime need not be alleged as fully as would be necessary if ulterior crime were itself offense charged; it is ordinarily sufficient to allege the offense in general terms. Id.

A failure to allege an unlawful entry in count charging second-degree burglary amounted to no more than harmless error United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Since no indictment for a violation of riot statute had been returned charging engaging in riot alone but rather always that count was coupled with counts charging burglary and grand or petty larceny, the grand jury considered engaging in a riot in violation of statute in conjunction with separate but immediately related criminal conduct and there was no loose, unguided approach to indictments returned by grand jury under riot statute that would deprive defendants of their constitutional rights. Id.

Count of indictment charging housebreaking by entry of room with intent to violate Federal Communications Act would, in view of the nature of the offenses and in view of unusual character of punishments specified by Congress for Communications Act violations, be dismissed. United States v. J. J. Frank et al. (D.C.D.C. 1964, 225 F. Supp. 573).

There is no variance where the indictment alleges that building entered was occupied by A and the proof shows occupancy by B, with the consent of A. Cady v. United States (1924, 293 F. 829, 54 App. D.C. 10).

The attempt to identify particular room in indictment charging larceny of watch and entering a room with intent to commit larceny was harmless surplusage. Fretz v. United States (1944, 140 F. 2d 468, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

The purpose of the law in requiring the name of the person who occupied and used building entered to be stated in indictment is to negative the defendant's right to break and enter and to protect him from a second prosecution for the same offense. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 213, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed 539).

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Insanity defense

Ruling against defendant, charged with second-degree burglary and grand larceny, on issue of insanity was fully supported by record which included diagnosis of psychiatrist who found social maladjustment and drug dependence without manifest psychiatric disorder. United States v. S. H. Thornton (1972, 462 F. 2d 307, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

Instructions

Where jury is properly instructed on standards for reasonable doubt, an additional instruction on circumstantial evidence, requiring that such evidence must be such as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than that of guilt, is confusing and incorrect. United States v. P. E. Coombs (1972, 464 F. 2d 842, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

In burglary prosecution, evidence that, during period of widespread disturbances and looting, the defendant was found hiding in a clothing store that had broken window and locked door did not warrant instruction on lesser offense of unlawful entry, United States v. Sinclair (1971, 444 F. 2d 888, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

In this case, since the jury had convicted defendant of more serious crime of attempted burglary, any error in instruction on lesser included offense of unlawful entry was not demonstrated to be prejudicial. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 843).

Charge to jury fairly covered alibi defense of defendant, who was charged on counts of housebreaking and grand larceny, and also adequately indicated substance of defendant's position that he had no obligation to show that another was actually the transgressor. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Where defense counsel, in response to inquiry by federal District Court in prosecution for housebreaking, expressed satisfaction with instructions given, and defendant was convicted on strong evidence, defendant could not require Court of Appeals to exercise discretion available under provision of Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure that plain errors or defects affecting substantial rights may be noticed though they were not brought to attention of court. H. Manning v. United States (1966, 371 F. 2d 353, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 256).

Failure to charge on unlawful entry in prosecution for housebreaking, an offense which required finding of larcenous intent in addition to elements of unlawful entry, was harmless where jury found defendant guilty of larceny as well as of housebreaking. C. W. Stewart v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 443, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

District court in housebreaking prosecution did not err in refusing instruction on lesser offenses, where request was not made until conclusion of charge and did not specify any particular offenses or show their inclusion within offense charged. L. Britton v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 531, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 207).

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, trial court committed no reversible error in charging that if defendant's possession of recently stolen property was not accounted for in that satisfactory, straightforward and truthful way that would stamp it as an honest accounting, then such possession would be a foundation for a presumption of guilt against the possessor, even though trial court could have chosen more exact language in its attempt to express limited character of presumption to which it was referring. Wright v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 699, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 70).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, where after jury had been out several hours the court recalled jury and stated that a juror should ask himself whether his view is reasonable or unreasonable, that he should not be bullheaded, that he should not be stubborn, and that if he found himself in a small minority he should ask himself "would I be shocking my conscience or reason if I yielded", use of the words "bullheaded" and "stubborn" did not coerce the jury, in view of additional parts of the instruction. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Intent

Crucial element of offense of second-degree burglary is the specific intent which impelled entry and not the lawful or unlawful manner of entry. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Unlawful entry bears heavily on question of defendant's intent to commit second-degree burglary but it is not a prerequisite to the establishment of such an intent. Id.

While in some circumstances elements of unlawful entry are comprehended within those of housebreaking, latter requires also finding of larcenous intent. C. W. Stewart v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 443, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

Unlawful entry with intent to commit an offense constitutes the crime, hence, the actual commission of the other offense is not necessary. Lee v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 442).

Evidence, that lock on garage had been pulled, that defendants were in the garage that morning and when questioned by a witness at that time refused to make a response and drove away, was sufficient to sustain conviction of feloniously entering with intent to commit larceny. Cady v. United States (1924, 293 F. 829, 54 App. D.C. 10).

Joinder

Joinder of two burglary counts is proper, where burglaries were of same house in which defendant was employed, they were similar in their "inside job" characteristics, in each instance there was no evidence of forcible entry or ransacking, the house was not in disarray, though items were taken from various parts of the house, and the facts impelled the conclusion that the burglaries were perpetrated by someone who knew precisely where various items in the house were kept. United States v. B. J. Leonard (1971, 445 F. 2d 234, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

Joinder of burglary charges to charges of forgery and uttering by use of credit card stolen in a burglary is not prejudicial, since uttering of credit card stolen in the burglary would have been admissible in evidence in trial for burglary. Id.

Counts of housebreaking and of larceny committed after the entry may be joined, and the court does not err in refusing to require the government to elect between them. Lee v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 442).

Judicial comment

Comment by court, while co-defendant was on witness stand, that honest people are in bed at 3:00 in the morning was prejudicial and defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking, was entitled to a new trial. R. Cunningham v. United States (1962, 311 F. 2d 772, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 86).

Lesser included offense

Under evidence that the defendant battered down door of dwelling house in order to gain entry and, to prove burglary, prosecution had only to establish additional element of entry with intent to commit a crime therein, unlawful entry was lesser included offense of greater offense of burglary. United States v. Whitaker (1971, 447 F. 2d 314, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Considerations of justice warranted dispensing with mutuality as essential prerequisite to the defense's right to lesser included offense charge on unlawful entry in burglary prosecution. Id.

Since the defendant was entitled to an instruction on unlawful entry as a lesser included offense in burglary prosecution and trier of fact necessarily found every fact required for conviction of lesser included offense, the trial court would be entitled to set aside the verdict of first-degree burglary and enter judgment of conviction for unlawful entry. Id.

"Criminal offense", within burglary statute prohibiting entry with intent to commit any criminal offense, includes petit larceny. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

Except for the requirement of intent to commit crime, unlawful entry is substantially identical to and hence lesser included offense of burglary in second degree. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

One man showup

Where an intruder broke into the apartment of two women, and shortly thereafter was arrested as a suspect, and about 30 minutes after the attack the women were asked to come down to the street in front of their apartment and view defendant who was the sole occupant of patrol wagon, use of "one-man showup" did not deny defendant due process of law. G. W. Bates v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1104, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Partial acquittal

Although the defendant was acquitted on a charge of burglarizing a liquor store in a riot district, did not of itself establish that jury accepted defendant's testimony that he did not enter store, thereby making it erroneous for trial court to interpret antiriot statute as permitting jury to find defendant guilty of engaging in a riot, since, absent an instruction to the effect that jury should acquit defendant of riot count if it accepted his testimony as true, it was impossible to make any assumption as to precisely how jury viewed facts. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

Plea of guilty

If an effort is made to withdraw guilty plea before sentence, the defendant is entitled to an appropriate hearing before the application can be denied. United States v. W. I. Joslin (1970, 434 F. 2d 526, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Where subjects of defendant's mental state and his understanding of his action at the time of entry of guilty pleas were dealt with, in hearing on request for withdrawal of such pleas, in form of colloquy or argument rather than by following procedural channels for determination of disputed questions of fact, adequate inquiry has not been undertaken and remand for such purpose is required. Id.

Generally, the standard to be applied in determining request, prior to sentence, for leave to withdraw guilty plea is whether for any reason granting of privilege seems fair and just. Id.

If request, prior to sentencing, for leave to withdraw guilty plea is made because the defendant thinks he has defense, permission to withdraw should be rather freely granted. Id.

Where the accused entered a plea of guilty at the time of arraignment without assistance of counsel, and before sentence was imposed court-appointed counsel indicated that there might be a question of the accused's mental capacity because of a prior skull fracture, District judge should have permitted a change of plea at time of sentencing. W. L. Poole v. United States (1957, 250 F. 2d 396, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

In prosecution for housebreaking, larceny and destruction of property, wherein one defendant was permitted to change his plea in open court and in presence of jury and was asked by trial judge whether he admitted committing offense and replied that he did admit being with "them," there was error which, in view of circumstantial and inconclusive nature of evidence, would require reversal of another defendant's conviction. Gaynor v. United States (1957, 247 F. 2d 583, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Where evidence in prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny disclosed close association between defendant and codefendant in events leading to their arrests, receiving codefendant's plea of guilty in presence of jury, and calling attention to such plea during taking of evidence and while instructing jury, was prejudicial to defendant's right to be tried solely on evidence against him. Payton v. United States (1955, 222 F. 2d 794, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Upon defendant's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty and to vacate and set aside sentence imposed upon him, court would treat defendant's papers as motion pursuant to statute pertaining to remedies on motion attacking sentence with reference to sentence being served and as application for relief in nature of common-law writ of error coram nobis with reference to sentences not then being served. United States v. Sheffield (D.C.D.C. 1959, 179 F. Supp. 634, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1633, 363 U.S. 853, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1735).

In proceeding treated as motion attacking sentence being served and as application for relief in nature of common-law writ of error coram nobis with regard to sentences not being served, evidence established that defendant was mentally competent at time of his plea of guilty and sentencing and that he had voluntarily and understandingly entered his plea. Id.

Postconviction relief

Defendant who had been convicted of housebreaking and robbery was not entitled to post-conviction relief from consecutive sentences on theory that offenses were committed by single series of chronologically related events, where offenses were independent. Irby v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1965, 250 F. Supp. 983).

Presentence report

When questions are raised in a criminal appeal concerning reasons for which a sentence was imposed, the presentence report may be made part of the record on appeal for inspection in camera by reviewing court. United States v. M. Delaney (1971, 442 F. 2d 120, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 372).

Whether defendant's counsel might inspect probation officer's report relied upon by trial court in sentencing the defendant is a matter for the sentencing court. Id.

Probable cause

In this case, since the police officers were investigating reported burglary, and defendants were seen carrying coffee table, and their distinctive clothing matched clothing of men seen in vicinity of burglary, and there was a furtive disposal of instrumentalities of burglary by one defendant, and other defendant attempted to get his gun out of pocket as officers approached, there was probable cause for arrest of defendants and for their search and search of their automobile. United States v. R. Cunningham et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 942, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 29).

The record in this case which discloses that one of two boys apprehended at the scene of housebreaking accompanied officers to apartment and identified the defendant as person who had entered store across street from apartment disclosed so small a probability that probable cause for arrest was lacking that unraised issue of probable cause would not be considered as plain error. J. Washington v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1119, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 223).

Prosecutor's remarks to jury

Record disclosed uncontested facts so confirming the defendant's guilt of second-degree burglary and petit larceny consisting in theft of money from coin-operated laundry machines located in locked basement room of an apartment building that any impropriety in the prosecuting attorney's argument must be classed as harmless error. United States v. R. K. Jones (1970, 433 F. 2d 1107, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

In this case, the court held that the statement of prosecuting attorney that if jury believed testimony of defendants, who were charged with burglary II and petit larceny, they must conclude that police officers were "out-and-out liars," was not so prejudicial as to require reversal. United States v. I. L. Stevenson et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 923, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

The use by prosecuting attorney of phrase "lucky enough to catch somebody right in the act," and to "catch them red-handed" was not so prejudicial as to constitute plain error. Id.

Question for jury

Where key government witness, who was owner of apartment allegedly burglarized by defendant, did not see defendant's face, but did notice that his assailant wore a pair of very distinctive plaid pants, and defendant was subsequently seen and identified as having been in vicinity by two witnesses, both of whom indicated that he was wearing a distinctive pair of plaid pants similar to those described by first government witness, and defendant attempted to establish an alibi, although validity of alibi was seriously impeached by government, trial court did not abuse its discretion in leaving determination of guilt or innocence to jury. United States v. P. E. Coombs (1972, 464 F. 2d 842, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Record, availability of, on retrial

Entire record in prosecution of defendant for attempted forcible rape of, simple assault upon, and threats against 12-year-old girl would be available to show offenses of which defendant has been convicted, should he be charged again with the same crimes. H. S. Bush v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 215 A. 2d 853).

Review

Record in prosecution for housebreaking and larceny established that defendant received effective assistance of counsel, though defendant's counsel failed to seek to impeach complaining witness by use of police investigation report containing statements attributed to complaining witness. Williams v. United States (C.A. D.C. 1960, 282 F. 2d 867).

Where, in prosecution for housebreaking, no trial objection was made to certain evidence, Court of Appeals was not required to decide question of its admissibility, and in view of character of the evidence, would not do so in its discretion. Lawson v. United States (1957, 248 F. 2d 654, 101 U. S. App. D. C. 332, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 552, 355 U. S. 963, 2 L. Ed. 2d 537).

In prosecution for robbery and housebreaking where the Court of Appeals found no error affecting the substantial rights of the defendant, the judgment would be affirmed. Baker Jr. v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 685, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 250, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 136, 352 U. S. 901, 1 L. Ed. 2d 89, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 98, 355 U. S. 864, 2 L. Ed. 2d 70, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 152, 355 U. S. 886, 2 L. Ed. 2d 116, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 1145, 359 U. S. 1005, 3 L. Ed. 2d 1033, rehearing denied 80 S. Ct. 48, 361 U. S. 857, 4 L. Ed. 2d 97, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1071, 362 U. S. 983, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1017, rehearing denied 80 S. Ct. 1603, 363 U. S. 832, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1526).

Where general sentence imposed upon accused, who was charged under two count indictment with housebreaking and larceny, was within the maximum sentence permitted for housebreaking, reviewing court could affirm the judgment without considering alleged errors concerning conviction for larceny. Nelms v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 678, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 267).

— Remand

Where defendant, on ground he had not been adequately warned of his right to counsel and to remain silent, questioned the admissibility of inculpatory statements and insisted he was entitled to a hearing, but trial judge who tried case without a jury, without first affording defendant an opportunity to state his version of facts and circumstances surrounding arrest, received such statements into evidence without ruling on their admissibility, the Court of Appeals is unable to make judgment as to admissibility of such statements or as to their effect on final disposition of second-degree burglary prosecution, and thus case would be remanded for new trial. J. A. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 282 A. 2d 571).

In a case in which guilty verdict was ambiguous for failure to state whether it referred to offense of housebreaking or to offense of unlawful entry, the court held that remand for new trial was appropriate remedy. K. F. Glenn v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Where defendant was convicted under first count of unlawful entry and his conviction under second count of possession of implements of crime consisting of crowbars was under statute which is unconstitutional in its application to crowbars, case was remanded with directions either to modify judgment by setting aside verdict on second count and dismissing that count or in the alternative to vacate judgment entirely, set aside verdict on second count, dismiss that count and resentence defendant for unlawful entry, notwithstanding that general sentence was for period less than maximum for unlawful entry. Willis C. Washington v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 357, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 100).

Right to counsel

Decision of Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia relating to defendant's right to counsel at photographic presentation to witnesses without a corporeal lineup was to be applied prospectively so that conviction after trial involving testimony relating to a photographic identification of defendant, without presence of counsel, prior to Court of Appeals' decision, was affirmed. United States v. M. Gillum (1972, 463 F. 2d 957, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 121).

Admission of testimony of robbery victims who, at time when defendant was not represented by counsel, identified defendant on his being brought into house by officers following his being restrained by men observing him fleeing from house, did not violate defendant's right to counsel, as defendant neither said nor did anything at that time that his counsel could have stopped had he been present. W. W. Kennedy v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 462, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 291).

Where commissioner at preliminary hearing advised defendants, charged with housebreaking, of their rights as specified by rule, including right to retain counsel, and no evidence was received at hearing and used at trial and no prejudice was shown, on appeal from conviction, from their being unrepresented by counsel at time of preliminary hearing and allegedly being without adequate advice as to counsel at such time, conviction was affirmed. N. E. Shelton and R. B. Pannell v. United States (1965, 343 F. 2d 347, 120, U.S. App. D.C. 65).

Search and seizure

Where two police officers observed defendant and companion running on downtown street at 4:30 a.m. in area where one officer had knowledge that there had been prior recent crimes, where officers questioned defendant and companion as to prior whereabouts and defendant replied with patent lie, where officers observed bulge in companion's pocket and companion told them it was change from gambling, and where officer alighted from his vehicle and saw "Phillips" screwdriver protruding from defendant's coat, and he considered screwdriver capable of being used as weapon, officer was justified in removing pointed screwdriver from defendant's pocket. J. S. Stephenson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 606; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1535, 411 U.S. —).

As an incident of arrest based on probable cause, police may seize items of evidence of the crime which are found on the arrestee. M. Valentino v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 173).

Seizure of defendant's trousers was not objectionable as being analogous to court-condemned forcible stomach pumping, blood sampling and the like. Id.

Sentences

Defendant found guilty of second-degree murder, housebreaking, and larceny could be sentenced on each conviction with sentences running consecutively. United States v. G. D. Butler (1972, 462 F. 2d 1195, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Legislative intent with regard to crimes of murder, housebreaking, and larceny was not so ambiguous as to require invocation of rule of lenity precluding imposition of consecutive sentences on defendant convicted of all three charges. Id.

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course of conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Under the Indeterminate Sentence Act the trial court could impose a term of imprisonment of 15 years, or less, as a maximum, i.e., not more than one-fifth of the 15 years. Anderson v. Rives (1936, 85 F. 2d 673, 66 App. D.C. 174).

—Consecutive

In determining whether consecutive sentences could be validly imposed upon conviction of housebreaking and robbery, statutes are first examined to ascertain if they will bear interpretation as creating separate offenses, and if so court will inquire whether Congress also intended to pyramid penalties or only to establish different degrees or types of offense. Irby v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1965, 250 F. Supp. 983).

Severance of counts

It was within trial court's discretion to grant government's motion for severance of counts in prosecution for grand larceny and housebreaking where government made at least a threshold showing of prejudice, in that, unexpectedly, the necessary witnesses as to two transactions could not be available at the same time, and where there was a lack of any specific prejudice claimed by defendant. D. E. Garriss, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135, U.S. App. D.C. 251).

Stop and frisk

In justifying particular intrusion, police officer must be able to point to specific and articulable facts which, taken together with rational inferences from those facts, reasonably warrant that intrusion. J. S. Stephenson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 606; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1535, 411 U.S. 907).

Fourth Amendment does not require policeman who lacks precise level of information necessary for probable cause to arrest to simply shrug his shoulders and allow crime to occur or criminal to escape. Id.

Where two police officers observed defendant and companion running down street in downtown area at 4:30 a.m., where defendant and companion slowed to a walk when they spotted officers, where one officer had knowledge of prior recent crimes in that area, officers were justified in stopping defendant and companion to question them as to their prior whereabouts. Id.

Verdict

Where defendant was charged with housebreaking and jury was instructed on elements of both housebreaking and on lesser included offense of unlawful entry and returned one word verdict of "guilty" without specifying to which offense this finding related, the verdict is ambiguous and conviction for housebreaking cannot be founded upon it. K. F. Glenn v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Voluntary confession

Evidence established that defendant's confession made at jail to police officer was voluntary. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1961, 192 F. Supp. 23).

Waiver of lunacy hearing

In prosecution for housebreaking, trial court's acceptance of waiver of pretrial lunacy hearing from defendant who stated he needed hospitalization and whose testimony showed confusion was error notwithstanding certification from acting superintendent of mental hospital that defendant was mentally competent to stand trial. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 228, 45 A. L. R. 2d 1430).

Chapter 19.—INCEST

Sec.

22-1901. Definition and penalty.

§ 22-1901. Definition and penalty.

If any person in the District related to another person within and not including the fourth degree of consanguinity, computed according to the rules of the Roman or civil law, shall marry or cohabit with or have sexual intercourse with such other so-related person, knowing him or her to be within said degree of relationship, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of incest, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twelve years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 875.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

Where accused was found not guilty by reason of insanity and was committed to hospital and some two months thereafter accused petitioned for writ of habeas corpus without prepayment of costs and District Court denied such petition without a hearing and without stating reasons for denial, case would be remanded and District Court, if it rejected allegation of poverty, would be required to state basis for such rejection, and if leave to file without costs was permitted or if accused should pay necessary filing fees, hospital superintendent would be directed to report as to accused's condition, and upon the return the District Court should conduct hearing to determine whether accused had recovered sanity and would not be dangerous to himself or others in reasonable future. Tate, Sr. v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 894, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 230).

Instructions

In prosecution for incest, refusal to give a prayer requested by defendant concerning reputation was not error where the subject had been adequately covered in an instruction given. Hodge v. United States (1942, 126 F. 2d 849, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

View of premises

In prosecution for incest, refusal to grant defendant's motion for view of premises was not an abuse of discretion. Hodge v. United States (1942, 126 F. 2d 849, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Chapter 20.—OBSCENITY

Sec.

22-2001. Certain obscene activities and conduct declared unlawful—Definitions—Penalties—Affirmative defenses—Exception.

§ 22-2001. Certain obscene activities and conduct declared unlawful—Definitions—Penalties—Affirmative defenses—Exception.

(a)(1) It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for a person knowingly—

(A) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide any obscene, indecent, or filthy writing, picture, sound recording, or other article or representation;

(B) to present, direct, act in, or otherwise participate in the preparation or presentation of, any obscene, indecent, or filthy play, dance, motion picture, or other performance;

(C) to pose for, model for, print, record, compose, edit, write, publish, or otherwise participate in preparing for publication, exhibition, or sale, any obscene, indecent, or filthy writing, picture, sound recording, or other article or representation;

(D) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute or provide any article, thing, or device which is intended for or represented as being for indecent or immoral use;

(E) to create, buy, procure, or possess any matter described in the preceding subparagraphs of this paragraph with intent to disseminate such matter in violation of this subsection;

(F) to advertise or otherwise promote the sale of any matter described in the preceding subparagraphs of this paragraph; or

(G) to advertise or otherwise promote the sale of material represented or held out by such person to be obscene.

(2)(A) For purposes of subparagraph (E) of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the creation, purchase, procurement, or possession of a mold, engraved plate, or other embodiment of obscenity specially adapted for reproducing multiple copies or the possession of more than three copies, of obscene, indecent, or filthy material shall be prima facie evidence of an intent to disseminate such material in violation of this subsection.

(B) For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the term "knowingly" means having general knowledge of, or reason to know, or a belief or ground for belief which warrants further inspection or inquiry of, the character and content of any article, thing, device, performance, or representation described in paragraph (1) of this subsection which is reasonably susceptible of examination.

(3) When any person is convicted of a violation of this subsection, the court in its judgment of conviction may, in addition to the penalty prescribed, order the confiscation and disposal of any materials described in paragraph (1), which were named in the charge against such person and which were found in the possession or under the control of such person at the time of his arrest.

(b) (1) It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person knowingly—

(A) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide to a minor—

(i) any picture, photograph, drawing, sculpture, motion picture film, or similar visual representation or image of a person or portion of the human body, which depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors; or

(ii) any book, magazine, or other printed matter however reproduced or sound recording, which depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse or which contains explicit and detailed verbal descriptions or narrative accounts of sexual excitement, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors; or

(B) to exhibit to a minor, or to sell or provide to a minor an admission ticket to, or pass to, or to admit a minor to, premises whereon there is exhibited, a motion picture, show, or other presentation which, in whole or in part, depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection:

(A) The term "minor" means any person under the age of seventeen years.

(B) The term "nudity" includes the showing of the human male or female genitals, pubic area or buttocks with less than a full opaque covering, or the showing of the female breast with less than a full opaque covering of any portion thereof below the top of the nipple, or the depiction of covered male genitals in a discernibly turgid state;

(C) The term "sexual conduct" includes acts of sodomy, masturbation, homosexuality, sexual intercourse, or physical contact with a person's clothed or unclothed genitals, pubic area, buttocks, or, if such person be a female, breast.

(D) The term "sexual excitement" includes the condition of human male or female genitals when in a state of sexual stimulation or arousal.

(E) The term "sado-masochistic abuse" includes flagellation or torture by or upon a person clad in undergarments or a mask or bizarre costume, or the condition of being fettered, bound, or otherwise physically restrained on the part of one so clothed.

(F) The term "knowingly" means having a general knowledge of, or reason to know, or a belief or ground for belief which warrants further inspection or inquiry or both of—

(i) the character and content of any material described in paragraph (1) of this subsection which is reasonably susceptible of examination by the defendant; and

(ii) the age of the minor.

(c) It shall be an affirmative defense to a charge of violating subsection (a) or (b) of this section that the dissemination was to institutions or individuals having scientific, educational, or other special justification for possession of such material.

(d) Nothing in this section shall apply to a licensee under the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) while engaged in activities regulated pursuant to such Act.

(e) A person convicted of violating subsection (a) or (b) of this section shall for the first offense be fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. A person convicted of a second or subsequent offense under subsection (a) or (b) of this section shall be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 or imprisoned not less than six months or more than three years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 872; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, § 606, title VI, 81 Stat. 738.)

See §§ 1101 and 1102 of Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90-226, set out as notes to § 22-501.

CROSS REFERENCES

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest, search and seizure

Affidavit, which revealed that informer, who had learned that pornographic material was being sold, saw third party pass through entrance which might have led to two stores and possibly to apartments above, and that third party returned with pornographic material purchased for informer, affidavit was not sufficient to show probable cause for issuance of search warrant, and resulting search of one of the stores was illegal, and the evidence procured should have been suppressed in subsequent prosecution of store operator for possessing, with intent to sell, lewd and obscene photographs, films, and literature. Lerner and Lerner v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 184).

Arrest warrant

Ex parte hearing on application for arrest warrant, that is supported by affidavit describing in detail contents of purchased material, with or without review of that material by the court suffices, on finding of probable cause, to authorize issuance of arrest warrant. United States v. J. A. Green et al. (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 879).

Bill of particulars

Refusal to grant bill of particulars was not abuse of discretion where informations referred with specificity to times and places of performances claimed to violate obscene exhibitions statute, and defendant revealed complete familiarity with acts charged. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Consolidation of charges

Defendant could be charged with three offenses of violating obscene exhibitions statute and was not entitled to proceed to trial on but one information, and the three separate informations were properly combined for trial, where there were three separate shows each involving elements essential to support violation of the statute. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Constitutionality

This section is not so unconstitutionally vague as to deprive a defendant of equal protection or due process. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

No merit exists in defendant's contention that the statute, as construed and interpreted by the trial court, countervenes the first and fifth amendments. Benjamin v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 64).

Construction

This section making it unlawful for a person knowingly to present, direct, act in, or otherwise participate in preparation or presentation of obscene, indecent, or filthy play, dance, motion picture or other performance requires no more than that appellants had sufficient knowledge of performance such that they should have suspected its impropriety and inspected or inquired as to its character and content. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll, etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Congress did not intend that the question of obscenity of the performance should depend upon the opinion or belief or the person who, with knowledge or notice of his acts, assumed the responsibility for putting on the performance. Id.

This section allows appellants to remain ignorant of illegality of performance only at their peril, once they know or have reason to know they might be violating statute. Id.

Duty of court

Where defendant introduces testimony that allegedly obscene films do not violate national community standards and Government introduces evidence that films do violate such standards, it is for trier of fact to weigh the conflicting evidence. T. W. Parks v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 858).

Elements of offense

For a salesman to be convicted of knowingly selling an obscene film, the government need not prove that the salesman had actual knowledge of the contents of the particular film sold. J. Kramer v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 272).

Evidence—Admissibility

Since this section required proof that defendants had knowledge of character and contents of material, which constituted sufficient proof of scienter trial judge properly excluded testimony that defendant had received advice of competent counsel that material could be legally sold. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

— Of community standards

Where there is ruling of obscenity per se, as in this case, defense is entitled to offer evidence of national community standards to prove that material or performance is not obscene; such proof, if established, would be good defense. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll, etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

In this case the exhibits which consisted of magazines containing photographs of nudes and, where certain of them had been declared nonobscene in per curiam opinions by United States Supreme Court were not admissible as proof of contemporary community standards, even if they were sold all over United States, where tendered exhibits were not comparable to material possessed and sold by defendants. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

— Sufficiency

Salesman's conviction of knowingly selling an obscene film was supported by sufficient evidence, regardless of whether the date the film was purchased was the first day of his employment, since it will not be presumed that even a new salesman is completely unfamiliar with goods he is hired to sell in an adult book and magazine store, and since the salesman, in effect, indicated he had actual knowledge of the nature of the particular merchandise when he recommended it to the police officer and told him it was the "better film." J. Kramer v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 272).

In prosecution for selling obscene material, finding that codefendant was the owner or operator of the store where police officer purchased obscene film was supported by sufficient evidence, including fact that the application for a certificate of occupancy and the certificate itself were issued to the codefendant. Id.

In this case the evidence in prosecution for knowingly selling certain obscene, indecent and filthy articles was sufficient for jury to properly conclude that defendants were aware of content and character of materials. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

Government's burden of proof

Where rebutting evidence has been introduced by defendant as to obscenity of films, a ruling by court of obscenity per se does not relieve Government of its burden of going forward nor of its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt on all elements of the obscenity test. T. W. Parks v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 858).

When obscenity per se is involved, prosecution is not required to offer any evidence, beyond material itself, that the material is pornographic or obscene or that it is below national community standards, but defense is privileged to offer evidence of national community standard to prove that material is not obscene. F. C. Wilhoit v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 279 A. 2d 505; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 538, 404 U.S. 994).

In obscenity case involving question of whether a local burlesque show was obscene, Government was required to offer competent evidence to prove relevant community standards prevailing in nation generally, and by failing to do so, Government failed to establish an essential element of the crime charged. L. M. Hudson et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 903).

Guilty knowledge

Guilty knowledge must be alleged and proved. Moens v. United States (1920, 267 F. 317, 50 App. D.C. 15).

Hard-core pornography

Book containing 47 photographs, some in color, depicting male and female genitalia as they are involved in deviant sexual practices, and 7 chapters of text consisting of series of narratives of debauchery running perhaps entire gamut of perversion was pornographic without modicum of redeeming social value. F. C. Wilhoit v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 279 A. 2d 505; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 538, 404 U.S. 994).

Photographs and films depicting nude males and females engaged in sexual intercourse, fellatio, cunnilingus, and masturbation constitute hard-core pornography and as such the government is not required to produce expert testimony about appeal to prurient interest and contemporary community standards, in prosecution for violation of this section making it crime to knowingly sell or possess with intent to sell obscene material. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

Instructions

Error, if any, in instructing that president of corporation operating restaurant with stage show consisting of three female impersonators could be convicted of violation of obscene exhibitions statute if he knew or should have known nature and character of the "premises" was harmless where jury was explicitly charged that intent was essential element of the crime. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Statement in charge to jury that material charged in indictment was, in court's opinion, actually obscene in eyes of law did not require reversal of obscenity conviction, considering whole charge which left issue of obscenity for jury and stated that judge's comments on evidence were not binding on jury. A. J. Heinecke v. United States (1961, 294 F. 2d 727, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

Intent

"If the indictment had charged knowledge of the character of the pictures in the possession of the accused, the criminal intent in exhibiting them would be implied from the guilty knowledge of their nature." Moens v. United States (1920, 267 F. 317, 50 App. D.C. 15).

Management's burden

In this case the court held that the trial judge could infer that defendant, who was manager of theater, knew or had reasonable opportunity to know character and content of performer's act, and had burden under this section, of ascertaining whether performer's performance might have been obscene, and neglect to do so was not adequate defense. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

"Obscene" defined

As used in statutory language, the word "obscene" is intended to have a meaning that varies from time to time as general notions of decency in attire and conduct of exhibitions for public entertainment tend to change. L. M. Hudson et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 903).

In the District of Columbia, community standards in obscenity cases shall be determined by a reference to contemporary community standards in the nation as a whole. Id.

Obscene per se

Film that was sexually morbid, grossly perverse and bizarre, and wholly without any artistic or scientific justification was properly found to be obscene per se. J. J. Kaplan v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 477).

In this case the record established and the court held that reasonable men could only conclude that performer's acts simulated fellatio and intentional exposure of the vaginal area, and which was performed on stage and runway while lying on stage and repeating act to other side of stage while at same time yelling "Let's see it all" was obscene per se. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Proof

Where court, sitting without jury, viewed films and declared them obscene per se and defendants introduced countervailing expert testimony that films did not appeal to prurient interest in sex, did not violate national community standards relating to representation of sexual matters and were not utterly without redeeming social value and Government did not introduce any countervailing evidence on these points, Government did not prove beyond reasonable doubt that films were obscene. T. W. Parks v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 858).

Public trial

In prosecution for possessing obscene pictures with intent to exhibit them, defendant's right to a public trial was not denied because when the alleged obscene film was shown in court the public, except newspaper reporters, were excluded. B. W. Lancaster v. United States (1961, 293 F. 2d 519, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Review

In obscenity cases, reviewing court is required to make an independent judgment as to whether material brought into question is, as matter of law, obscene and beyond the perimeter of constitutional protection. F. C. Wilhoit v.

United States (D.C. App. 1971, 279 A. 2d 505; cert. denied 92 S. Ct. 538, 404 U.S. 994).

Review of evidence de novo

In this case the District of Columbia Court of Appeals reviewed the evidence de novo in a prosecution for knowingly presenting, directing and participating in presentation of obscene, indecent and filthy performance. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Scienter

Defendant, who was working at downtown arcade on more than one occasion when obscene film was being displayed and who had ownership interest in the arcade, had requisite knowledge that the film being exhibited in particular machine was obscene. J. J. Kaplan v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 477).

This section required proof that defendants had knowledge of character and content of the alleged obscene material, and that constituted sufficient proof of scienter; if defendants knew what they were doing, their personal belief that they were not violating the law was no defense. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

In this case the performer knew or should have known that her performance might violate this section since she was the performer, and had enough knowledge about the performance to properly hold her responsible for further inquiry or inspection into act's character and content, and that was all that was needed to satisfy requirement of scienter under this section. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Search and seizure

Based on an ex parte hearing, the court may issue an order authorizing seizure of limited number of publications for use as evidence in criminal prosecution. United States v. J. A. Green et al. (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 879).

In the absence of a prior adversary determination of obscenity, massive confiscatory seizures of alleged obscene publications or motion picture films run afoul of First Amendment by threatening abridgement of public's right to free circulation of nonobscene publications. Id.

Since the search warrant for film contained in peep-show machine located in downtown arcade was issued upon detailed affidavit, only one machine out of a number was seized and it contained a single 12-minute peep-show reel, and arcade owner was offered hearing on propriety of the seizure the day after the seizure, the defendant-arcade owner was not entitled to hearing prior to issuance of the warrant. J. J. Kaplan v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 477).

Since undercover police officer asked defendant bookstore owner about purchasing films similar to ones he had already purchased and policeman accompanied bookstore owner to his automobile where defendant opened trunk and selected films from bag in trunk, there was no need for prior adversary hearing to determine obscenity before seizing films pursuant to a search warrant. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

The fact that defendant bookstore owner kept photographs and films under the counter or in trunk of his automobile could properly be considered in determining whether there must be an adversary hearing prior to issuance of search warrant authorizing seizure of the alleged obscene materials. Id.

Sentence

Where defendant, who had been sentenced by Municipal Court for District of Columbia to one year and a fine of $300, and in default of payment to be imprisoned for an additional year, for possessing and selling obscene literature and pictures, contended only that sentence imposed in default of payment of the fine was too severe, Municipal Court of Appeals could not reduce sentence in absence of showing of abuse of discretion on part of lower court. Hankins v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 120 A. 2d 590).

Statutes providing that defendant upon whom fine has been imposed may, in default of payment, be committed for such term as court thinks proper not to exceed one year, gives broad discretion in imposing imprisonment in default of payment of fine. Id.

Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence sustained conviction of charge of giving or participating, on three separate occasions, in public exhibitions containing obscene, indecent, or lascivious language, postures, or suggestions, or otherwise offending public decency. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Evidence sustained conviction of female dancers for participating in obscene, indecent and lascivious performances. Clarke et al. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 160 A. 2d 97).

Without attempting to describe the pictures, court was of opinion that they were of such a nature as to sustain a finding of guilty by any recognized standard. Benjamin v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 64).

Witnesses, evidence

Where prosecution's case rested largely upon testimony of a sole key eyewitness and there was ample ground for suspicion of inconsistencies in eyewitness' identification, trial judge abused his discretion in failing to order production of those parts of the witness' grand jury testimony relating to same subject testified to at trial. W. E. De Binder v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 737, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

22-2101. Definition and penalty—Conspiracy.

§ 22-2101. Definition and penalty—Conspiracy.

Whoever shall be guilty of, or of aiding or abetting in, seizing, confining, inveigling, enticing, decoying, kidnaping, abducting, concealing, or carrying away any individual by any means whatsoever, and holding or detaining, or with the intent to hold or detain, such individual for ransom or reward or otherwise, except, in the case of a minor, by a parent thereof, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for life or for such term as the court in its discretion may determine. This section shall be held to have been violated if either the seizing, confining, inveigling, enticing, decoying, kidnaping, abducting, concealing, carrying away, holding, or detaining occurs in the District of Columbia. If two or more individuals enter into any agreement or conspiracy to do any act or acts which would constitute a violation of the provisions of this section, and one or more of such individuals do any act to effect the object of such agreement or conspiracy, each such individual shall be deemed to have violated the provisions of this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 812; Feb. 18, 1933, 47 Stat. 858, ch. 103; Nov. 8, 1965, 79 Stat. 1307, Pub. L. 89-347, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1965—Section 3 of act Nov. 8, 1965, amended section by striking "for ransom or reward" and inserting in lieu "for ransom or reward or otherwise, except in the case of a minor, by a parent thereof."

1933—Act Feb. 18, 1933, amended the provisions to read as set forth in the text. Prior to the amendment the section read: "Whoever unlawfully and forcibly or fraudulently carries off or decoys out of the District any person, or arrests or imprisons any person with the intention of having such person carried out of the District, shall be imprisoned for not less than one nor more than seven years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both: Provided, That whoever leads, carries, or entices away a child under the age of sixteen years, with the intent unlawfully to detain or conceal such child so lead, taken, or enticed away, shall be imprisoned for not more than twenty years or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both."

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Conduct of counsel

In this case, the court held that the conduct of prosecution in preliminary hearing, wherein, after testimony of complaining witness had been taken, government moved to dismiss when defendant sought to test credibility of complainant by calling her mother, and magistrate granted motion, did not warrant dismissal of kidnaping indictment or, in the alternative, suppression of complainant's testimony. United States v. D. Regisser (1970, 309 F. Supp. 879).

Elements of offense

That defendant could have been convicted of kidnaping under this section is not relevant to consideration of whether he was guilty of violation of federal kidnapping statute as charged. R. E. Matthews v. United States (1971, 449 F. 2d 985, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence, including permissible inference jury was permitted to draw from fact that the defendant was found within an hour of larceny in exclusive possession of recently stolen truck, supported convictions of kidnapping of truck helper, armed robbery, and assault with a dangerous weapon. United States v. L. B. Wolford (1971, 444 F. 2d 876, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Merger of offenses

Where helper on truck was detained and transported against his will to a different location, several miles away from the scene where truck was hijacked, and purpose of detention, to facilitate success of hijacking, was to secure benefit to hijackers, two separate and distinct crimes were committed, i.e., kidnapping and armed robbery of contents of truck, and the offenses did not merge. United States v. L. B. Wolford (1971, 444 F. 2d 876, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Parent

"In no case, in the absence of an express provision of statute, can a parent be guilty of kidnaping his or her own minor child, unless the forcible taking is from the custody established by the decree of a competent court." Hard v. Splain (1916, 45 App. D.C. 1).

This section is referred to in sections 23-546, 23-581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accomplice

In prosecution for the unauthorized use of a vehicle and larceny of other property in District of Columbia, evidence on issue of whether defendant had aided and abetted those who took the property and whether the planning and the taking were within the District sustained conviction, even though it was not shown that defendant was present at the taking or had used the automobile in the District. Williams v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 35, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 219).

Appeal and error

Since neither at trial nor on appeal did the defendant indicate kind of evidence he would offer to establish illegality of arrest, alleged constitutional error in admission of evidence seized pursuant to purportedly invalid arrest would not be considered on appeal; defendant is relegated to relief by way of collateral attack on motion to vacate judgment of conviction on sentence. United States v. W. F. Moore (1970, 435 F. 2d 113, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 309; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1376, 402 U.S. 906).

Constitutional error in the admission of evidence may be raised at any time, including collaterally. Id.

There was no error in failure to provide the defendants with portion of Government witness' grand jury testimony, to extent that such testimony consisted of materials unrelated to the instant charges, matters unrelated to the present trial and then under investigation, and matters pertaining to individuals identified therein who were entitled to protection from adverse publicity. R. Hamilton et al. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 526, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1612, 402 U.S. 944).

Arrest

Where police officer, on foot patrol, saw a bag of trash thrown into a public street from left front window of automobile standing at curb with motor running, and where the automobile's occupant, after being approached by the officer and questioned about the bag, alighted from the automobile, picked up the bag and put it back inside the car, it could not be said that the incident was over and that it was unlawful for the officer to ask the occupant to produce his operator's permit and the registration card for the automobile, which inquiries resulted in discovery that the occupant's permit had been revoked and, later, that the automobile had been stolen. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Arrest and search

Examination of the trunk of defendant's automobile did not constitute an illegal search by the police where it occurred contemporaneously with and at place of defendant's arrest under circumstances indicating convincingly defendant's participation in burglary. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. S. Jackson, Jr. v. United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 194, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

Police are entitled to rely upon hearsay and upon various other factors which would not be admissible in evidence against accused at trial in determining whether there is probable cause for arrest. Id.

Total information available to officers, with respect to defendant charged with housebreaking and grand larceny, including separate accusations by two persons that he had been source of stolen gun, together with one of their recollections of rhinestone bracelet in defendant's closet, matching description of similar object on list of stolen property, reasonably warranted a belief that he had probably committed felonious acts in which gun and bracelet were originally stolen, and such, together with practical necessities of pursuit, justified his arrest without warrant. Id.

Continuing trespass

When getaway automobile bearing defendants and goods they had stolen from District of Columbia bank crossed line between the District of Columbia and the State of Maryland, defendants committed new larceny for which they could be convicted in Maryland. G. A. Hamilton et ano. v. State of Maryland (Md. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 460).

Cross-examination

Where defendant had testified that he lived at certain address during month in which burglary occurred, that he had returned to that address on date of burglary after finishing work, that he had worked every day, presumably including day of arrest, and that he had never lived around corner from home of eyewitness to burglary, trial judge did not abuse discretion by permitting Government to cross-examine defendant concerning employer's identification card which referred to the address around the corner from eyewitness' home and records indicating days he had worked during week of crime. United States v. M. W. Rosebar (1972, 463 F. 2d 1255, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

Defense

In prosecution for grand larceny and for unauthorized use of a vehicle, wherein defense was interposed that defendant was repossessing automobile on request of man engaged in automobile business, testimony and argument of Government to effect that repossession of automobiles must be accomplished by a United States marshal and that repossession by an individual was illegal, which testimony and argument led jury to believe that defendant was engaged in an illegal enterprise in repossessing automobile, was prejudicial error, where jury was not instructed to disregard testimony or argument on this point, notwithstanding that jury was instructed that Government had to prove every element of crime, including intent, beyond reasonable doubt. Evans v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 379, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 122).

— Intoxication

One who steals while intoxicated may nevertheless be convicted if he converts the property after complete return to consciousness. Ryan v. United States (1905, 26 App. D.C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Elements of offense

Offenses of murder, housebreaking, and larceny each requires elements of proof which are not common to other two and each offense is historically an independent crime. United States v. G. D. Butler (1972, 462 F. 2d 1195, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

One element of crime of "larceny" is that accused took the property and carried it away, not that he was at some time in the vicinity of the property. W. H. Hiet, Jr. v. United States (1966, 365 F. 2d 504, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 313).

Embezzlement

To constitute larceny the property must be unlawfully taken from the possession of another, with the fraudulent intent to convert the same to his own use; he who takes without the consent of the owner commits a trespass; the offense of embezzlement consists in the wrongful conversion of the property which has been entrusted to the possession of another; he commits no trespass or wrong in acquiring the possession, but a breach of trust in converting the property to his own use Rohde v. United States (1910, 34 App. D.C. 249).

Treasurer of unincorporated association who converts funds coming into his possession as such treasurer is guilty of embezzlement and not larceny. Id.

Embezzlement is where any agent, attorney, clerk, or servant wrongfully converts to his own use anything of value which shall come into his possession or under his care by virtue of his employment, but his possession for a special limited purpose may not destroy legal possession of the owner, and therefore his subsequent conversion of the article would be larceny. Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581).

Driver of transfer truck who converts property while hauling it from a freight depot is guilty of larceny and not embezzlement. Weisberg v. United States (1919, 258 F. 284, 49 App. D.C. 28). See, also, Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581).

A bookkeeper and clerk in a hotel, to whom a guest delivers property for safe-keeping, and who subsequently abstracts them from the hotel safe, is guilty of larceny and not embezzlement. Chanock v. United States (1920, 267 F. 612, 50 App. D.C. 54, 11 A.L.R. 799).

Evidence—Admissibility

Exclusion of rabbi's testimony as to defendant's habit of being home on Orthodox Jewish Sabbath and as to when Sabbath commenced and what Orthodox ritual requires was not reversible error in prosecution wherein defendant relied on alibi that he was home on Sabbath and wherein there was other testimony as to his habits and as to period and requirements of Sabbath. M. M. Levin v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 265, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

Evidence of general habits of person is not admissible to show his conduct on specific occasion. Id.

Stolen guns, which were obtained by officers from defendant's apartment and automobile as result of unlawful search and seizure in violation of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, were inadmissible in grand larceny prosecution. Lee v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 354, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

The corporate character of the owner or occupant of property stolen or entered may be proved by "reputation"; that is, by evidence tending to show that the corporation was de facto organized and acting as such. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

—Sufficiency

In prosecution for the grand larceny of an automobile and unauthorized use of the vehicle, there was legally sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction on both counts, including the fact that, three weeks after the automobile's theft, it was found in the exclusive possession of defendant. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Exclusive and unsatisfactorily explained possession of property proven to have been recently stolen permits an inference that the possessor is the thief; and where the stolen property is a motor vehicle, that inference may serve to support convictions of grand larceny and unauthorized use. Id.

Evidence, including eyewitness testimony, was sufficient to sustain conviction of second-degree burglary and grand larceny. United States v. M. W. Rosebar (1972, 463 F. 2d 1255, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 164).

In prosecution for grand larceny, government had to introduce probative evidence of each and every element of crime charged, including value of property which was taken and failure to offer such proof would be fatal to government's case. United States v. E. E. Thweatt (1970, 433 F. 2d 1226, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

When there is a possibility of convicting the defendant of either grand or petit larceny, offenses which carry significantly different penalties and which are distinguished solely by value of property taken, it is essential that government introduce evidence of that value in order to give jury a firm basis upon which it can render a verdict. Id.

In absence of specific evidence as to the value of items taken, defendant's conviction for grand larceny would be reversed, but since the judge gave lesser included offense charge as to petit larceny and there was sufficient evidence on which jury could find defendant guilty thereof, case would be remanded for resentencing. Id.

Conviction of either grand larceny of automobile or unauthorized use of automobile entails evidence having enough probative power to convince the jury beyond reasonable doubt of every essential element, and also on identity of the accused as participant. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Evidence, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of such automobile, and for grand larceny of engine from another automobile, warranted the finding that the character of possession of stolen property, united with other evidence in case, would authorize inference attributing guilt to defendant. Id.

In this case the court found that testimony concerning defendant's offer to sell the goods, leading the prospective buyers to where they were stored, and remaining with the goods during an interval when others had departed was sufficient evidence to allow a jury to find that defendant was in possession of recently stolen property and to infer larceny and housebreaking. D. E. Garriss, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

In this case the evidence presented by the government in a prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny was so compelling that, even if the police station confrontation between defendant and two prosecution witnesses, was improper and in-court identification of defendant was not shown by clear and convincing evidence to have an independent source, error, if any, in the in-court identifications was harmless. G. R. Taylor v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1142, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Evidence in larceny prosecution was insufficient to sustain conviction where only evidence against defendant was fingerprint taken from automobile window, which was identified as his, he was not placed in vicinity of automobile on evening in question or in immediate neighborhood at any other time, he was not shown to have been in possession of any of the stolen property at any time, none of the stolen property was ever recovered, and there was no testimony as to probable age of the fingerprint. W. H. Hiet, Jr. v. United States (1966, 365 F. 2d 504, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 313).

Evidence sustained larceny conviction of defendant who allegedly, by misrepresentation, obtained from union officer money which officer had embezzled from union. M. M. Levin v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 265, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

Evidence sustained conviction for grand larceny. E. L. Jackson v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 816, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 70).

Television showroom manager was properly qualified as an expert as to value of television set which was stolen and manager's testimony was sufficient to prove value in excess of $100 as required for conviction for grand larceny. J. Owens v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 204, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence regarding identification of defendant made a case for the jury. Williams v. United States (C.A. D.C. 1960, 282 F. 2d 867).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for housebreaking, larceny and destroying movable property. Braddy v. United States of America (1955, 225 F. 2d 551, 96 U. S. App. D. C. 251).

Evidence justified larceny conviction of an accused whose alleged confederate removed carton of spark plugs from store and placed carton in their automobile while accused was in store notwithstanding no property was marked for or offered in evidence at trial. Foster v. United States (1954, 212 F. 2d 249, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 83, certiorari denied 75 S. Ct. 69, 348 U. S. 845, 99 L. Ed. 666).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to establish corporate character of occupant of property entered and owner of property stolen. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to sustain determination that defendant was one of men who entered building and committed larceny. Id.

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, record supported Government's theory that, while witness had made conflicting statements regarding whether he would testify, prosecutor reasonably believed that he would testify, and therefore action of prosecutor in calling witness who identified certain tools, but then relied on his privilege and refused to connect himself or defendant with the crime, was not objectionable on ground that defendant was deprived of a fair trial, where court instructed the jury to disregard witness' testimony and the tools which he identified. Id.

Evidence that another person had stolen bag containing surgical instruments and placed bag on wheelbarrow used by such person and defendant in collecting junk and stated to defendant that bag had been found among garbage cans and that when contents of bag were discovered defendant made unsuccessful effort to return bag and instruments to owner, and later delivered bag and contents to policeman, was insufficient to convict defendant of grand larceny. Williams v. United States (1944, 140 F. 2d 351, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 322).

Examination of witnesses

Trial court's refusal to order psychiatric examination of Government's principal witness was not prejudicial error since the defendants have not provided any substantial factual predicate for their request and since the results of previous psychiatric evaluation of the witness would be available to them. R. Hamilton et al. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 526, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 368; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1612, 402 U.S. 944).

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, the court's questioning of defense witnesses on certain aspects of testimony which they had given in support of alibi claim in order to obtain much needed clarification of their testimony rather than challenges thereto did not amount to advocacy against alibi theory in presence of jury, and in any event was not prejudicial where it was not significantly different in nature from court's questioning of a vital government witness. United States v. H. W. Barbour (1969, 420 F. 2d 1319, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Force and violence

Larceny consists in "a wrongful and fraudulent taking" and it does not exclude the idea of force and violence, or of fraud accompanied by force, nor does it imply that the taking must be secret. Williams v. United States (1894, 3 App. D.C. 335).

Fraud, larceny by

Where the victim was induced by artifice to part with possession of property but clearly did not intend to pass title, subsequent conversion by the swindlers completed the crime of larceny by trick. Ballard v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 582, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 574, 352 U. S. 1017, 1 L. Ed. 2d 554).

Under the statute making it a crime to feloniously take and carry away anything of the value of $50 or upwards, one who obtains money from another upon representation that he will perform certain services therewith for the latter intending at the time to convert the money and actually converting it to his own use is guilty of larceny. Graham v. United States (1951, 187 F. 2d 87, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 129, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 741, 341 U. S. 920, 95 L. Ed. 1353).

Habeas corpus

Petitioner seeking habeas corpus or in the alternative an order vacating his conviction for larceny by trick failed to prove his allegations as to perjured testimony by a government witness and as to evidence deliberately suppressed by trial prosecutor. Levin v. Katzenbach (D.C.D.C. 1966, 249 F. Supp. 225).

Where petitioners were arrested in Pennsylvania, charged with committing certain crimes in the District of Columbia, habeas corpus proceedings would be proper to raise jurisdictional questions respecting their removal to the District. U.S. ex rel. Miller et al. v. Reing (D.C. Pa. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 367).

Impeachment

In this case, the Court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. A. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 663, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 186).

In this case the court held that under the circumstances the defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking and grand larceny, was entitled to nonjury hearing to determine whether defendant would be allowed to take stand in front of jury without prosecution introducing evidence of defendant's prior convictions. United States v. J. Coleman (1969, 420 F. 2d 1313, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Included offense

Larceny is a necessarily included offense of robbery. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Inconsistent offenses

Under District of Columbia law, grand larceny and false pretenses are not inconsistent offenses. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Inconsistent verdict

Where missing jewelry was never recovered, fact that the defendants charged with second-degree burglary and grand larceny arising out of apparent theft from jewelry store were convicted of burglary but found not guilty of grand larceny does not demonstrate inconsistency in jury verdict. United States v. E. E. Simpson et ano. (1970, 445 F. 2d 735, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Verdict whereby defendant was convicted of and codefendant was acquitted of grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of the automobile, and grand larceny of engine from another automobile, was not inconsistent since the jury rather than determining that codefendant lacked possession of stolen property, could have derived doubt as to whether codefendant collaborated in commission of charged offenses. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Indictment

It is sufficient in the indictment to describe the property by the generic name of the class to which it belongs. Nordlinger v. United States (1904, 24 App. D.C. 406, 70 L.R.A. 227).

Inferences

In prosecution under this section, wherein there was evidence that defendant possessed items recently taken from locked car, so that it was critical to defense for jury to realize that they were free to reject inference from fact of possession that defendant had stolen the property, trial court erred in preventing defendant's counsel in his closing argument from attempting to explain to jury meaning of word "inference" and to distinguish it from "presumption," but since defense subsequently made argument in form trial court found acceptable and court instructed jury fully and fairly on the point, defendant was not prejudiced. United States v. C. Sawyer, Jr. (1971, 443 F. 2d 712, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 297).

Since the evidence demonstrated that travel bag containing personal property of value in excess of $100 was stolen when the owner's attention was only momentarily diverted therefrom and that defendant, three days thereafter was found in possession of certain items, of value of less than $100, which had been in the stolen bag, and since the defendant did not explain possession but denied possession, the jury is entitled to infer that defendant had stolen the bag, with all its contents, so as to be guilty of grand larceny. United States v. P. M. Coggins (1970, 433 F. 2d 1357, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Where evidence showed that crimes of housebreaking and larceny were committed in store building by two men, defendant was found in unexplained association with another who later confessed participation in crimes and each was in possession of some of the stolen property, evidence was sufficient to justify conviction. Edwards v. United States (1944, 139 F. 2d 365, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U.S. 769, 88 L. Ed 1064).

Where theater was entered and money and property stolen therefrom and on same night adjoining flower shop was entered and money stolen therefrom, it could reasonably be inferred that the man who stole from the theater also stole from the flower shop. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Insanity defense

Ruling against defendant, charged with second-degree burglary and grand larceny, on issue of insanity was fully supported by record which included diagnosis of psychiatrist who found social maladjustment and drug dependence without manifest psychiatric disorder. United States v. S. H. Thornton (1972, 462 F. 2d 307, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

Instructions

Since reasonable doubt instruction did not call jury's attention to their particular prior experiences, although there was a general reference to certainty such as "you would not hesitate to act upon in the more weighty and important matters relating to yourself", focus on jurors' personal lives was not sufficiently misleading to constitute plain error; however, far better would have been instruction in terms of what would cause an ordinary and prudent person to hesitate and pause. United States v. W. F. Moore (1970, 435 F. 2d 113, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 309; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 1376, 402 U.S. 906).

There was no plain error requiring reversal of convictions of false pretenses and grand larceny on theory that court failed in its instructions to define specific intent when both crimes required such a finding since the defendant failed to except to charge given and such charge was adequate, although instruction set forth in criminal jury instructions would have eliminated specific intent from case if given. Id.

Instruction that it may be inferred that one intends natural and probable consequences of his act but that jury was not required to so infer does not constitute plain error requiring reversal of conviction of false pretenses and grand larceny since no exception was taken to charge, notwithstanding that charge should have contained crucial words "knowingly done or knowingly omitted." Id.

Charge that intoxication could negate specific intent essential to a finding of guilt, when such intent is required, is necessary in a proper case even without a request where sufficient evidence of intoxication is adduced. Id.

Instruction that intoxication could negate specific intent essential to finding of guilt of false pretenses and grand larceny was properly refused since the only evidence of intoxication related to evening before the offense. Id.

In a prosecution under this section in which it appeared that defendant was found in possession of certain contents of a recently stolen travel bag, instruction on rule that guilt of theft may be inferred from possession of recently stolen property, otherwise accurate, was not rendered insufficient by failure to explicitly inform the jury that theft of entire bag and its contents by defendant could be inferred only if it were proved beyond reasonable doubt that all were stolen at the same time, since it was absolutely clear that all the items were taken by a single act, while owner's attention was only momentarily diverted. United States v. P. M. Coggins (1970, 433 F. 2d 1357, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Fact that the jury was instructed, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile and of automobile engine and for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that if prerequisite to inference of guilt for possession of recently stolen property exists beyond reasonable doubt it could be inferred that defendant was guilty of one or both of such offenses, but was not instructed that inference permissible was that defendant was person who committed such offense if government proved all of their essential elements beyond reasonable doubt, did not warrant reversal of conviction since, in other portions of charge, instruction was given on presumption of innocence and government's burden of proof beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Charge to jury fairly covered alibi defense of defendant, who was charged on counts of housebreaking and grand larceny, and also adequately indicated substance of defendant's position that he had no obligation to show that another was actually the transgressor. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

In grand larceny prosecution, instruction on petit larceny was unnecessary where there was nothing in evidence to indicate value of less than $100. W. Chew v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 334, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 6).

In prosecution for grand larceny, where judge instructed jury that the testimony of an accomplice should be received with care and scrutinized with caution, there was no error in refusing to charge that conviction could not rest on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. Ballard v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 582, 99 U.S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 574, 352 U. S. 1017, 1 L. Ed. 2d 554).

In prosecution on count charging impersonation of officer and count charging grand larceny, error, if any, in charge instructing that jury could convict on second count even if they acquitted on first was harmless in view of fact that jury found defendant guilty of both offenses. Wheeler v. United States (1951, 190 F. 2d 663, 89 U.S. App. D. C. 143).

In prosecution for grand larceny, court's charge as a whole relating to larceny was an adequate statement of law applicable to the evidence and was fair to defendant. Graham v. United States (1951, 187 F. 2d 87, 88 U.S. App. D. C. 129, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 741, 341 U. S. 920, 95 L. Ed. 1353).

In prosecution for grand larceny, defendant's general request, made prior to rendition of charge, that court charge that if prosecuting witness gave defendant money intending that he may be able to pass title to it, there was no larceny, was an incorrect statement of law. Id.

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, where after jury had been out several hours the court recalled jury and stated that a juror should ask himself whether his view is reasonable or unreasonable, that he should not be bullheaded, that he should not be stubborn, and that if he found himself in a small minority he should ask himself "would I be shocking my conscience or reason if I yielded", use of the words "bullheaded" and "stubborn," did not coerce the jury, in view of additional parts of the instruction. Bord v. United States (1943, 133 F. 2d. 313, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78, 317 U.S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Where defendant was charged with entering and stealing from theater and with entering and stealing from adjoining flower shop on same night, instruction that, if jury found defendant guilty of entering and stealing from theater, they might but need not draw the inference that it was he who entered and stole from the flower shop, was proper. Id.

Intent

Unlawful taking is not sufficient, it must be coupled with the intent to steal. Ryan v. United States (1905, 26 App. D.C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Drunkenness no defense unless "so drunk as to be incapable of forming the intent to steal; that is to say, incapable of consciousness that he is committing a crime, incapable of discriminating between right and wrong." Id.

Where possession is secured by fraud, trick, or artifice the criminal intent must exist at the time the article is received. Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581). See, also, Woodward v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 323); Miller v. United States (1913, 41 App. D.C. 52, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 323, 231 U.S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468).

Where possession of jewelry is secured by a salesman for the purpose of exhibiting the same to a prospective purchaser, and he subsequently converts it to his own use, the offense is larceny, and it is immaterial when the intent to convert was formed. Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581).

Joinder

Counts of housebreaking and of larceny committed after the entry may be joined, and the court does not err in refusing to require the government to elect between them. Lee v. United States (1911, 37 App. D.C. 442).

Larceny by conversion

One who obtains money from another upon representation that he will perform certain service therewith for the latter, intending at the time to convert the money, and actually converting it, to his own use, is guilty of larceny. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Liability of arresting officer

Arrest of one without warrant on strong suspicion of stealing a pocketbook containing $30, precluded maintenance of action for false arrest, since the officers could not know the amount of money it contained. Maghan v. Jerome (1937, 88 F. 2d 1001, 67 App. D.C. 9).

Lineup

United States cannot be constitutionally required to furnish to the defendant prior to lineup descriptions of suspects as given by attending witnesses and names and addresses of all witnesses attending lineup; such disclosure is not an inherent element or right to assistance of counsel. United States v. L. J. Eley (D.C. App. 1972, 286 A. 2d 239).

Locus of conversion

The fact that one who, while intoxicated stole an automobile and converted the same beyond the District of Columbia does not prevent a prosecution here, when the original taking was in the District. Ryan v. United States (1905, 26 App. D.C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Indictment for larceny will not lie against one who steals property in another state and brings it into the District. Brown v. United States (1910, 35 App. D.C. 548, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 388). See, also, Davis v. United States (1901, 18 App. D.C. 468).

Ownership of stolen property

Under District of Columbia statute, gist of larceny is felonious taking and carrying away of anything of value, and ownership of property does not matter. M. M. Levin v. United States (1964, 338 F. 2d 265, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

Defendant could be convicted of larceny by trick, even though money involved had been embezzled by victim. Id.

Under larceny indictment under District of Columbia statute, charging that defendant had taken union property which had been entrusted to victim, it was not necessary to show that money was received from union, but rather that money was that of union and that it had been entrusted to victim. Id.

Plea of guilty

Where the accused entered a plea of guilty at the time of arraignment without assistance of counsel, and before sentence was imposed court-appointed counsel indicated that there might be a question of the accused's mental capacity because of a prior skull fracture, District judge should have permitted a change of plea at time of sentencing. W. L. Poole v. United States (1957, 250 F. 2d 396, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

In prosecution for housebreaking, larceny and destruction of property, wherein one defendant was permitted to change his plea in open court and in presence of jury and was asked by trial judge whether he admitted committing offense and replied that he did admit being with "them," there was error which, in view of circumstantial and inconclusive nature of evidence, would require reversal of another defendant's conviction. Gaynor v. United States (1957, 247 F. 2d 583, 101 U.S. App. D. C. 177).

Where evidence in prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny disclosed close association between defendant and codefendant in events leading to their arrests, receiving codefendant's plea of guilty in presence of jury, and calling attention to such plea during taking of evidence and while instructing jury, was prejudicial to defendant's right to be tried solely on evidence against him. Leroy Payton v. United States (1955, 222 F. 2d 794, 96 U.S. App. D. C. 1).

Prejudicial error

In this case, assuming that failure of the trial judge to inform defendant's counsel of larceny charge before he summed up constituted error, where defendant was indicted for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, however, that failure lacked the prejudice necessary to constitute reversible error where, inter alia, defendant's admission in open court established his intention and his attempt to trick complainants, so that damage was done when defendant took the stand it was not likely that a variation in summation would have changed the verdict. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Prior acquittal

On plea of prior acquittal, the test of the identity of offenses that has commonly been applied in such cases is whether the facts necessary to conviction under the second indictment would have been sufficient, if proved, to warrant a conviction under the first. Nordlinger v. United States (1904, 24 App. D.C. 406, 70 L.R.A. 227).

Probable cause

Police officers who saw parked automobile resting on its axles and three tires scattered nearby when they came upon scene at which two security officers from nearby apartment building had stopped the defendant, observed by security officers walking away from vicinity of vehicle carrying jumper cables and a jack plate, for questioning during which neighbor called out from window to say that defendant was one of the men who had been "messing" with stripped vehicle had probable cause to arrest for petty larceny notwithstanding arresting officers did not actually see the defendant remove or carry away tires from vehicle. United States v. C. E. Bynum (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 649).

In this case, since the police officers were investigating reported burglary, and defendants were seen carrying coffee table, and their distinctive clothing matched clothing of men seen in vicinity of burglary, and there was a furtive disposal of instrumentalities of burglary by one defendant, and other defendant attempted to get his gun out of pocket as officers approached, there was probable cause for arrest of defendants and for their search and search of their automobile. United States v. R. Cunningham et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 942, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 29).

Proceeds of check

Embassy employee who, with intent to steal, represented to superiors that money was needed for embassy's cash account and thus procured their signatures to checks, the proceeds of which he kept for himself, falsifying entries in cash journal to cloak transaction, was guilty of false pretenses and grand larceny, under District of Columbia law. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Proof

In larceny cases, the Government must prove each and every element of crime charged, including value of property taken. J. T. Boone v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 449).

Questions for jury

Evidence, in prosecution for theft and unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that appellant and another defendant took truck with paint spray pump, both of which appellant knew were not owned by fellow defendant, and that they had traveled 175 miles on way to another state, and had arranged to sell or pledge the pump in exchange for gasoline, oil and whiskey, was sufficient, in absence of any explanation, to raise issue for jury on question of defendant's guilty knowledge and intent. Gilbert v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 334, 94 U.S. App. D. C. 321).

Review

Record on appeal from conviction for attempted grand larceny did not disclose material and prejudicial variance between indictment and conviction and proof, prejudicial error in precluding cross-examination concerning ownership of property, or application of erroneous concept of crime of attempted larceny by trick. Pearce v. United States (C.A. D.C. 1960, 286 F. 2d 532).

Record in prosecution for housebreaking and larceny established that defendant received effective assistance of counsel, though defendant's counsel failed to seek to impeach complaining witness by use of police investigation report containing statements attributed to complaining witness. Williams v. United States (C.A. D.C. 1960, 282 F. 2d 867).

In prosecution for robbery and housebreaking where the Court of Appeals found no error affecting the substantial rights of the defendant, the judgment would be affirmed. Baker Jr. v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 685, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 250, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 136, 352 U. S. 901, 1 L. Ed. 2d 89, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 98, 355 U. S. 864, 2 L. Ed. 2d 70, rehearing denied 78 S. Ct. 152, 355 U. S. 886, 2 L. Ed. 2d 116, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 1145, 359 U. S. 1005, 3 L. Ed. 2d 1033, rehearing denied 80 S. Ct. 48, 361 U. S. 857, 4 L. Ed. 2d 97, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1071 362 U. S. 983, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1017, rehearing denied 80 S. Ct. 1603, 363 U. S. 832, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1526).

Where general sentence imposed upon accused, who was charged under two count indictment with housebreaking and larceny, was within the maximum sentence permitted for housebreaking, reviewing court could affirm the judgment without considering alleged errors concerning conviction for larceny. Nelms v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 678, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 267).

Search and seizure

Where police officer, after locating car stripped of its transmission and other parts, and while attempting to determine locale of stripping, observed tell-tale sweepings of nuts and bolts in front of a three-car garage and officer peered through an eight or nine-inch gap between garage doors with aid of flashlight and noticed a transmission shaft and noticed that speedometer cable had been clipped, and officer returned to stripped car and checked its speedometer cable that showed it, too, had been clipped, and officer, after returning to his precinct, decided it was better to return to garage and proceeded to do so, it was not an unreasonable seizure under Fourth Amendment for officer to step inside, identify transmission again, and have it moved out along with other stolen auto parts that were already in process of being spirited away. United States v. H. Wright (1971, 449 F. 2d 1355, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 126; cert denied 92 S. Ct. 986, 405 U.S. 947).

Probable cause for arrest existed when driver of automobile, who started to drive away without his lights on, was stopped by police and dome light showed articles in automobile which had just been reported stolen from another automobile in the area as driver got out to show officers his registration card, and such probable cause was sufficient to support search and seizure of reportedly stolen articles. R. A. Campbell, Jr. v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 775, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Search without warrant

Where police officer, who saw defendant walking along street about 2:00 in the morning, and who thought defendant had narcotics, without a warrant stopped defendant, who admitted that he had not worked for over a year, and had maintained himself by gambling, and officer then informed defendant that he was arresting him for vagrancy and required him to disrobe, search, which led to discovery of stolen money orders, was an unreasonable and unlawful violation of defendant's rights as a citizen, rendering stolen money orders inadmissible in prosecution for forgery, housebreaking, grand larceny, and interstate transportation of falsely made securities. White, etc. v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 829, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Where jewelry had been taken from scene of murder and officers were informed that a man was selling some jewelry on a street, they had right and duty to approach, confront and interrogate him though they had no warrant. Lee v. United States (1955, 221 F. 2d 29, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 156).

Where defendant was arrested late at night without a warrant and booked on an open charge for investigation, statements of defendant while in jail that he had nothing to hide and that the officers could go and see for themselves did not establish an agreement that the officers could search the defendant's household without first procuring a warrant. Judd v. United States (1951, 190 F. 2d 649, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 64).

Seizure defined

Where officers had right and duty to confront and interrogate suspect in investigation of murder, and suspect on alighting from automobile dropped handkerchief containing jewelry into street, action of officers in taking jewelry was not "seizure" in legal sense and same was competent evidence in larceny prosecution and trial court properly refused to suppress it as evidence. Lee v. United States (1955, 221 F. 2d 29, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 156).

Sentence

Defendant found guilty of second-degree murder, housebreaking, and larceny could be sentenced on each conviction with sentences running consecutively. United States v. G. D. Butler (1972, 462 F. 2d 1195, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Legislative intent with regard to crimes of murder, housebreaking, and larceny was not so ambiguous as to require invocation of rule of lenity precluding imposition of consecutive sentences on defendant convicted of all three charges. Id.

In case involving concurrent sentences for burglary II and grand larceny, since there is a question as to adequacy of proof of grand larceny that property taken had a value of $100 or more, principle that appellate court may reverse a judgment as to one of sentences, if its validity is beset by substantial doubt, where there is neither injustice done defendant nor a need of government overridden, will be applied to reverse concurrent sentence for grand larceny, while remanding case to trial court for entry of concurrent sentence on petit larceny. United States v. W. D. Henderson (1970, 439 F. 2d 531, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

The single taking of an automobile can constitute both offense of grand larceny of automobile and offense of unauthorized use of automobile, and can authorize separate though concurrent sentences under each. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

In prosecution for grand larceny and unauthorized use of a vehicle, imposition of sentences on defendant of from two to five years on the unauthorized use count and from two to seven years on the grand larceny count, was proper even though the two offenses grew out of the same set of facts and circumstances and offense of unauthorized use was included in that of grand larceny, where sentences were imposed to run concurrently. Evans v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 379, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 122).

Where person having been sentenced for two to four years for grand larceny, served 25 months and was then resentenced to serve 15 months on grounds that the prior sentences were void because the Indeterminate Sentence Act did not apply to such actions, sentence did not run as of date of the original sentences. De Benque v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 202, 66 App. D.C. 36, 106 A.L.R. 839, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 681, 80 L. Ed. 1402, rehearing denied 57 S. Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L. Ed. 457).

Severance of counts

It was within trial court's discretion to grant government's motion for severance of counts in prosecution for grand larceny and housebreaking where government made at least a threshold showing of prejudice, in that, unexpectedly, the necessary witnesses as to two transactions could not be available at the same time, and where there was a lack of any specific prejudice claimed by defendant. D. E. Garriss, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

Joining in a single indictment nine counts charging the defendant with willfully attempting to evade payment of federal income taxes, larceny and interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained funds, assisting another to falsify his federal income tax return and conspiring to defraud government and defeat collection of taxes, if error, was harmless, under circumstances. R. G. Baker v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 958, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 7; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 367, 400 U.S. 965).

Unexplained possession of stolen property

The unexplained exclusive possession of stolen property, shortly after the commission of larceny, does not raise presumption of law that defendant committed larceny, but it may satisfy jury and warrant verdict of guilty. Wright v. United States (1951, 189 F. 2d 699, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 70).

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, trial court committed no reversible error in charging that if defendant's possession of recently stolen property was not accounted for in that satisfactory, straightforward and truthful way that would stamp it as an honest accounting, then such possession would be a foundation for a presumption of guilt against the possessor, even though trial court could have chosen more exact language in its attempt to express limited character of presumption to which it was referring. Id.

"The unexplained exclusive possession of stolen property, shortly after the commission of a larceny, may satisfy the jury and warrant a verdict of guilty" of larceny. Tractenberg v. United States (1924, 293 F. 476, 53 App. D.C. 396).

Possession of recently stolen property, unexplained, is sufficient to support conviction for larceny. Edwards v. United States (1944, 139 F. 2d 365, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U.S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

Value—Evidence of

Testimony of owner of two sets of stolen golf clubs that one set had cost $211, that other set had cost $101 and that clubs could have been sold for at least $50 and physical presence of equipment in trial court constituted insufficient evidence of value to support conviction of grand larceny. J. T. Boone v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 449).

Where evidence of value of stolen items was insufficient to sustain conviction of grand larceny but was sufficient to prove petit larceny, conviction of grand larceny would be reversed and case would be remanded with instructions to enter verdict of guilty of petit larceny and to resentence accordingly. Id.

Evidence of value of articles involved in charge of grand larceny was inadequate to sustain finding of jury that they were of value of $100 or upward. A. K. Ransom v. United States (1964, 337 F. 2d 550, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 154).

Conviction for grand larceny could not stand where value of articles involved was less than $100. Id.

— Jury question

In a grand larceny case, jury cannot be allowed to speculate as to value of stolen property merely from appearance of property. J. T. Boone v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 296 A. 2d 449).

Variance

Where indictment alleges ownership in A B R, and the proof shows A P R, the variance is not prejudicial. Jones v. United States (1923, 289 F. 536, 53 App. D.C. 138). See, also, Williams v. United States (1894, 3 App. D.C. 335).

— Directed verdict

Where court instructed jury that if it should find defendant guilty of embezzlement as to either transaction, it would have to return a verdict of not guilty as to the companion larceny count, but jury found defendant guilty of both embezzlement and larceny as to the same transaction, District Court had right to direct verdict of acquittal on larceny count, and defendant was not prejudiced by any alleged "choice of verdicts" since penalty for embezzlement was less than that for larceny. United States v. Daigle (D.C.D.C. 1957, 149 F. Supp. 409, affirmed 101 U.S. App. D.C. 286, 248 F. 2d 608, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 344, 355 U.S. 913, 2 L. Ed. 2d 274).

In grand larceny prosecution, court properly refused to direct verdict for the defendant. Graham v. United States (1951, 187 F. 2d 87, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 129, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 741, 341 U. S. 920, 95 L. Ed. 1253).

Withholding of evidence by government

Record in proceeding for habeas corpus or new trial alleging that evidence in government's possession was not disclosed at petitioner's trial on charge of grand larceny by trick established that government was not negligent in not disclosing evidence consisting of check drawn by bank to replenish its supply of $1,000 bills and statement of bank officer relating to alleged exchange of $1,000 bills for $20 bills, but rather established that such information was not sufficiently probative or material to require disclosure to defense. M. M. Levin v. N. deB. Katzenbach (1966, 262 F. Supp. 951).

Record in proceeding for habeas corpus or new trial alleging that evidence in government's possession was not disclosed at petitioner's trial on charge of grand larceny by trick failed to establish that jury might have been led to entertain reasonable doubt as to petitioner's guilt had defense been able to show that bank officers did not remember changing $1,000 bills, which were subject of alleged larceny, into smaller ones. Id.

§ 22-2202. Petit larceny—Order of restitution.

Whoever shall feloniously take and carry away any property of value of less than $100, including things savoring of the realty, shall be fined not more than $200 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. And in all convictions for larceny, either grand or petit, the trial justice may, in his sound discretion, order restitution to be made of the value of the money or property shown to have been stolen by the defendant and made way with or otherwise disposed of and not recovered. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 827; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(c).)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the value from $50 to $100.

1937—Act Aug. 12, 1937, increased the value from $35 to $50.

1902—Act June 30, 1902, added the second sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abandonment

Abandonment is an ultimate fact or conclusion based generally upon combination of act and intent. M. Peyton, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 229).

Abandonment must be made to appear affirmatively by the party relying thereon, and intention to abandon will not ordinarily be presumed, particularly if conduct of the owner can be explained consistently with continued claim. Id.

Abuse of discretion

Where defendant could not assure court that positions of aperture through which security officer watched defendant take slacks from rack to dressing room, of the pillar near dressing rooms and of fitting rooms had not changed in interval between arrest and trial of defendant for petit larceny, court did not abuse discretion in denying defendant's request for a jury viewing of scene. N. E. Minor v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 171).

Applicability of Miranda rule

Principles of Miranda did not apply to statements made by defendant, when he was stopped and asked if automobile was his, and if the property taken from the automobile belonged to him, and asked the license number of the automobile, where appellant was detained only because officer felt his conduct required investigation and defendant was questioned briefly and his answers were uncoerced and voluntary. This does not constitute custodial interrogation. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances, conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. S. Jackson, Jr. v. United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 194, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

Police are entitled to rely upon hearsay and upon various other factors which would not be admissible in evidence against accused at trial in determining whether there is probable cause for arrest. Id.

Total information available to officers, with respect to defendant charged with housebreaking and grand larceny, including separate accusations by two persons that he had been source of stolen gun, together with one of their recollections of rhinestone bracelet in defendant's closet, matching description of similar object on list of stolen property, reasonably warranted a belief that he had probably committed felonious acts in which gun and bracelet were originally stolen, and such, together with practical necessities of pursuit, justified his arrest without warrant. Id.

Officers, who were investigating drugstore robbery, who knew that defendant had committed similar robbery two years before, and who discovered, on defendant's premises, heap of bottles and cigarettes, which were of type stolen from drugstore, had probable cause to believe defendant was guilty of felony, and, therefore, were justified in arresting defendant without warrant. Ellison v. United States (1953, 206 F. 2d 476, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 1).

Stealing of less than $35 was a misdemeanor and an officer could not arrest for a misdemeanor without a warrant unless it was committed in his presence or within his view. Maghan v. Jerome (1937, 88 F. 2d 1001, 67 App. D.C. 9).

The entering of a building with intent to commit any offense is a felony, and where officer's information gave him probable cause to believe that defendant had entered building with intent to steal, and defendant's appearance fitted "lookout" description given officer, no warrant was needed and arrest of defendant was lawful; and fact that district attorney saw fit to reduce charge from housebreaking to petit larceny did not change circumstances of arrest or invalidate confession obtained while defendant was being held under such arrest. Scott, Jr. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 767).

Attempted petit larceny

Attempted petit larceny is not a lesser included offense under petit larceny statute. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

Burden of proof

Prosecution's burden of proving that clothing found in possession of defendant in petit larceny prosecution belonged to someone else was an affirmative one, and it was not sufficient merely to prove that property did not belong to defendant. Washington v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 819).

In prosecution for petit larceny, burden of proof to establish a taking and asportation by defendant is more onerous on the prosecution where the larceny alleged occurs in a self-service store. Groomes v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 73).

Cause for arrest

Police officers, who observed defendant carrying a screwdriver and companion carrying a television set, who had not been expressly advised of commission of a particular crime and who then approached companion and defendant who dropped screwdriver and then denied ownership thereof, did not have probable cause to believe a crime had been committed and thus did not have probable cause to make arrest, and seizure of television set during that arrest was illegal and set could not have been properly admitted into evidence in prosecution for petit larceny, destruction of property, and attempted burglary II. C. E. Campbell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 252).

Where a police officer had a conversation with the victim of an assault and petit larceny and proceeded in patrol car in search of the assailants, and the stolen articles were in plain view of officer in defendant's hand and at his feet in the gutter, an arrest was authorized when the officer saw the stolen articles. R. L. Thompkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 636).

Where in making an initial stop of the defendant the officer was engaged in routine on-the-street investigation in nearby area of a crime minutes after it occurred in an early hour of the morning in his effort to find perpetrator while the trail was still warm, and under these circumstances the initial stop of defendant was neither an arrest nor an arbitrary detention, but arrest occurred after officer saw the articles which fit description of stolen property, which gave sufficient cause to arrest, and seizure was not invalid. Id.

Consecutive sentences for two separate offenses

The distinctions that assault and petit larceny are separate and distinct offenses requiring different elements of proof, and that one is a crime of general intent against the person, and the other a crime of specific intent against property, are no longer conclusive in determining the legality of consecutive sentences for two crimes committed in a single course of conduct. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

The compelling reasons which call for the application of the rule of lenity are absent in this case, and there is no substantial doubt Congress would have intended, in the discretion of the court, that consecutive punishment be imposed for historically separate offenses, against different societal interests, for which it has provided separate deterrents. Id.

Continuance

Where the trial court had said a doctor's certificate would be required before the case could be continued on account of appellant's illness, and appellant was produced in court, and the trial continued without further objection, the question of granting the continuance was in the judicial discretion of the trial court. Campbell v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

Conversion

One who is handed a bill or coin for the purpose of making change receives only custody of the money, and if he returns less than the correct change, with the felonious intent of converting the remainder to his own use, he is guilty of larceny. Rice v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 567).

Court's question of defense counsel

Where the trial court asked defense counsel if he had ever asked defendant if he had taken television set in question, if the court was inquiring of defense counsel whether he ever asked his client if he was guilty, the question was highly improper as attempted invasion into privileged communications between counsel and client; and if the question was limited to whether counsel asked his client while on witness stand whether he took the set, question was also improper. J. A. Samuel v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 105).

Criminal intent

The fact that defendant placed meat in shopping bag in self-service store did not provide valid reason for trial court in prosecution for petit larceny to infer a criminal intent or a possession clearly adverse to interests of store, where an attempt by defendant to conceal the meat was not proven. S. A. Durphy v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 326).

Due process

Arresting officer's return of the defendant, charged with petit larceny, to scene of the crime not more than 15 minutes after the larceny to determine if someone could identify the defendant was not denial of due process since the officer had not been present when the offense was committed and he knew none of the circumstances surrounding the larceny. J. A. Hill v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 280 A. 2d 925).

Effective assistance of counsel

Record in this case fails to sustain contention that defendant was denied effective representation of counsel. M. Peyton, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 229).

The court held that, record on appeal from conviction for petit larceny and assault did not establish denial of effective assistance of counsel J. Bell, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 690).

Fact that new counsel was appointed not more than 60 minutes before trial did not amount to ineffective assistance of counsel of defendant charged with simple assault, unlawful entry and petit larceny where no continuance was requested and defendant announced he was ready for trial, factual situation was not so complex as to necessitate any extensive investigation and there were no witnesses for the defense who could have been called, new counsel was experienced and diligent and made no claim that he was hampered by appointment shortly before trial. S. A. Tuttle v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 590).

Establishment of corpus delicti

To establish the corpus delicti of the crime of larceny, the Government must prove that the property was lost by the owner as a result of a felonious taking; the "corpus delicti" consists of proof that the crime charged was committed by someone. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where arresting police officer while in pawn shop observed typewriter bearing sticker indicating that it belonged to Department of Public Health, officer had probable cause to arrest the defendant who brought in the typewriter and typewriter is admissible, and arresting officer's ignorance of actual practice of Department in disposing of surplus typewriters is irrelevant. United States v. E. S. Wallace (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 32).

Screwdriver which was dropped by a defendant as police officer approached was abandoned property since the defendant subsequently denied ownership, and screwdriver was admissible in prosecution for petit larceny, destruction of property and attempted burglary. C. E. Campbell v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 252).

Where items allegedly stolen from complaining witness were plainly visible from hallway through open door of defendant's apartment, and complaining witness gathered up articles claimed and handed them to arresting officer, who had remained in hallway, complaining witness acted as arm of police in reducing articles to possession, and inasmuch as officer did not have a search warrant, search and seizure were unlawful, evidence obtained by complaining witness was inadmissible in prosecution of defendant and, even though case was tried by court without jury, defendant was entitled to a new trial. Moody v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 337).

Where detective arranged to meet defendant in poolroom and upon meeting him suggested that they go to precinct for their discussion and while at station house he asked defendant to see any money he had on his person and defendant voluntarily produced a dollar bill which was found to have serial number corresponding with serial number on a bill stolen the night before from a pharmacy, whereupon he was placed under arrest, one dollar bill was properly admitted in subsequent prosecution for petit larceny. Jackson v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 577).

In prosecution for petit larceny involving theft of currency from a pharmacy formerly employing defendant, on whose person was found a one dollar bill containing a serial number corresponding with one of serial numbers of currency that had been stolen, two one dollar bills taken from poolroom cash register where defendant had just recently made change, having serial numbers corresponding with two bills of stolen currency, were admissible although bills were not directly connected with defendant and standing alone would be insufficient to support a conviction. Id.

In prosecution of maid for stealing currency from room in rooming house, admission of officer's testimony that from his investigation he learned that only maid and complaining witness had keys to room did not result in prejudice to maid, where true facts relating to keys were brought to light by other evidence. Brock v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 763).

Where defendant was convicted of petit larceny upon evidence obtained during an unlawful search and seizure, it must be reversed as the search of her desk was an invasion upon her privacy so as to constitute a violation of the Fourth Amendment. Blok v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 70 A. 2d 55).

In prosecution for petit larceny, which if committed was complete before fight ensued, admission of testimony concerning fight and nature of prosecuting witness' wounds was prejudicial error. Furr v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 111).

In prosecution for petit larceny, admission of evidence regarding subsequent fight and nature of wounds received by prosecuting witness was so plainly prejudicial that appellate court had right to notice and correct the error even if it had not been properly saved for review. Id.

— Inconsistent testimony

Even though corroborating witness' testimony to effect he was in security office when defendant was searched for missing slacks was at odds with testimony of principal prosecuting witness, in view of fact that security office had both inner and outer room, discrepancy was not serious. N. E. Minor v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 171).

— Prior conviction

Allowing government to question defendant accused of petit larceny as to his former larceny convictions did not constitute an abuse of discretion in view of fact that trial judge fully instructed jury that they were to consider such evidence only in connection with their evaluation of credence to be given defendant's testimony and that prior convictions were in no way evidence of defendant's guilt of present charge. F. Ginyard v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 590).

— Sufficiency

Evidence, including eyewitness testimony by two police officers that the defendant bumped into complaining witness and stealthily removed wallet from her handbag, that he quickly passed wallet to an accomplice, who hurried from scene, and that victim of crime reacted in an emotional manner on discovering her loss, is sufficient to support convictions of petit larceny and of assault. M. A. Riley v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 291 A. 2d 190).

Evidence that the defendant was standing in front of a broken window of store that was being burglarized by two other men, one of whom had a casual acquaintance with the defendant, while perhaps raising a possibility or even strong suspicion of participation in criminal activity, is not sufficient to find defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of attempted burglary in the second degree and of attempted petit larceny. W. T. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 719).

Evidence that on two occasions in one day the defendant was in room where television set was located and that the following day the set was missing is insufficient to sustain conviction for petit larceny. J. A. Samuel v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 105).

The lack of evidence that automobile was parked within the District of Columbia when the theft of license tags requires reversal of conviction for petit larceny for theft of license tags. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

Evidence was not sufficient to sustain a conviction for aiding and abetting petit larceny on a showing that at time officer observed suspected criminal activity defendant was standing near the right side of automobile at a point somewhere between automobile, which contained wine and beer allegedly stolen from store, and the store. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of petit larceny of wine and beer in violation of District Code. Id.

Evidence was sufficient in juvenile court proceeding to support finding that the minor was guilty of house-breaking and petty larceny. In the Matter of N. M. Ellis

(D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 789; remanded 429 F. 2d 214, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 30).

Defendant's responsibility for housebreaking was established by being with those who broke store window coupled with his flight with stolen goods. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for petit larceny. L. L. Cooper v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 248 A. 2d 826).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of petit larceny allegedly committed by obtaining money from complaining witness by trick through procedure variously known as "flimflam," "faith and trust," or "confidence game," whereby defendant and another, ostensibly strangers to each other, persuaded victim to turn over to one of them a sum of money to demonstrated victim's trustworthiness as a prerequisite to obtaining easy money, even though defendant's partner was never apprehended. J. J. Few v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 125).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 63).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction of defendant who placed meat in shopping bag in self-service store. S. A. Durphy v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 326).

On the record the evidence was sufficient to sustain defendant's conviction of petit larceny in taking property from parked automobile. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Conviction of petit larceny for taking money by means of "film-flam" operation in which alleged accomplice persuaded victim to give him his money to be hidden in a handkerchief was not supported by evidence in absence of showing that any words were spoken by defendant implicating him in the crime, that any inducements were made to victim by defendant, that defendant put any money in the handkerchief, that defendant had anything to do with the hiding or that there was any criminal association or conspiracy between purported accomplice and defendant. C. E. McMillan v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Cigarettes found in defendants' possession, with same "wholesale numbers" as cigarettes left in store, but not otherwise identified as having come from store, had little, if any, probative value. S. C. Davis and C. L. Colbert v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

Evidence of defendants' physical and chronological proximity to scene of housebreaking, and their leaving at a trot, was insufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking and petit larceny. Id.

Evidence was ample to establish the offenses of petit larceny beyond a reasonable doubt. V. J. Bond, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

Evidence, including evidence as to exclusive control or possession of television in defendant, sustained conviction for unlawful entry and petit larceny. J. L. Benbow v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 772).

Testimony of detective that in department store he saw defendant take pair of slacks from rack and conceal it under his jacket, that defendant went by escalator to floor below and there, noticing that he was being followed, attempted to pull garment from under his jacket and place it among articles of boys' clothing established a prima facie case and did not fail for want of proof of asportation or of criminal intent and fact that concealment was brief and that defendant had been apprehended before he left the store did not absolve him. J. W. McRae v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 222 A. 2d 848).

Testimony that automobile owner found that battery was missing from his vehicle, that defendant accused of petit larceny had asked officers whether they would let him go if he told them where he got battery, and that officers had notified owner of the incident at 3:30 of morning in question was sufficient to establish that automobile owner owned battery and had not given defendant permission to take it. G. W. White v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 222 A. 2d 843).

Offer of defendant charged with petit larceny to take police officers to automobile of friend for whom defendant had claimed to be taking battery to service station after officers observed defendant carrying battery at 2:30 A.M. and had asked him whether battery was his and where he had gotten it was not reasonably construable as having been forced by power exerted by officer or by defendant's submission thereto, for purpose of determining whether testimony concerning offer was admissible. Id.

Evidence that clothing found in possession of defendant belonged to another was insufficient to sustain conviction on petit larceny charge. Washington v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 819).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for housebreaking, larceny and destroying movable property. Braddy v. United States (1955, 225 F. 2d 551, 96 U. S. App. D.C. 251).

Where jury could find beyond a reasonable doubt that both defendant and his companion entered a room with intent to steal and that either defendant or his companion stole watch, defendant's conviction of larceny of a watch and of entering a room with intent to commit larceny was authorized, notwithstanding that defendant's part in the crimes may have been only to stand guard. Fretz v. United States (1944, 140 F. 2d 468, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

In prosecution for petit larceny, elements of a taking and asportation by defendant are satisfied, where evidence shows that property was taken from owner and was concealed or put in a convenient place for removal, and fact that possession of defendant was brief or that defendant was detected before goods could be removed from the owner's premises is immaterial. Groomes v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 73).

Where evidence in prosecution for petit larceny disclosed that defendant, while shopping in self-service market, was seen by clerk to remove two articles from shelf and put them in her purse, which was inside a cart containing some groceries, and that defendant then closed the purse, and clerk and manager of store followed defendant to checkout line, and when she saw them she walked toward back of store and gave them the articles from her purse, there was a sufficient showing by the prosecution of a taking and carrying away of the articles by the defendant. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction for petit larceny. Jackson v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 577).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of stealing currency from locked brief case of occupant of rooming house where defendant was working as maid. Brock v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 763).

Where after defendant left the store, he was arrested for petit larceny by the store detective who was the prosecuting witness and whose testimony was accepted as true by the jury, as it obviously was, the guilt of appellant was established beyond a reasonable doubt. Campbell v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

Defendant's assignment of error that there was insufficient evidence to justify conviction, where the testimony of complaining witness was uncorroborated, is unsound since it has been repeatedly held that generally testimony of a single witness may legally suffice as evidence upon which a jury may found the verdict. Rice v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 567).

— Suppression

Heroin found in the defendant's pocket during search incident to an arrest for grand larceny should not have been suppressed on theory that the search which brought heroin to light infringed Fourth Amendment rights. United States v. C. E. Bynum (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 649).

Denial of a motion to suppress evidence relating to stolen property and to narcotics paraphernalia found on the defendants after the arrest for a pedestrian traffic violation was proper. J. R. West et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 740).

Fair and impartial trial

Record failed to establish that the tension which developed between court and counsel during course of trial was of such magnitude as to deny the defendant a fair and impartial trial. B. Davis et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 106).

Fraud or trick

"Larceny" exists where there is a taking, against owner's will or without his consent, of thing which is subject of the crime. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 156).

Taking of property by person who obtains its possession by means of fraud or trickery with preconceived design to appropriate it to his own use constitutes "larceny". Id.

Defendant who, with a companion, invited prosecuting witness to join them on visit to a prostitute and, en route, induced prosecuting witness to demonstrate his trust in defendant and companion by turning over his money to them and permitting them to walk around the block, and who then failed to return, was guilty of petit larceny. Id.

Where defendant, after approaching complaining witness and another person on street suggested that defendant could take witness and other person to place where they could have good time, and witness was called upon to prove trust by giving his money to defendant who was to walk around block with money, and defendant after turning corner and being confronted by police detective ran away, offense of petit larceny by trick was completed when defendant deviated from agreed course around block. H. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 240 A. 2d 131).

Impeachment

Where the defendant was on trial for second-degree burglary and petit larceny, it was error to grant permission for impeachment by both of defendant's two-year-old convictions for attempted housebreaking and for petit larceny, but since the prosecution used only the attempted housebreaking conviction, no prejudice appeared. United States v. J. L. Issac (1971, 449 F. 2d 1040, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Regardless of a claim of prejudice by reason of similarity between offenses of robbery and housebreaking, permitting impeachment of the defendant, charged with housebreaking but found guilty of petit larceny, by evidence as to one prior robbery conviction was not error. A. Moss v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 567).

Permitting impeachment by prior petit larceny conviction relating to defendant's credibility was a proper exercise of judicial discretion in subsequent petit larceny prosecution. A. E. Bullock v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 677).

Inconsistent verdict

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglary and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglary, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction. Id.

Indictment

The attempt to identify particular room in indictment charging larceny of watch and entering a room with intent to commit larceny was harmless surplusage. Fretz v. United States (1944, 140 F. 2d 468, U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Instructions

Contention that trial court committed plain error in failing to adequately instruct the jury on the elements of petit larceny was vitiated by fact that defense counsel neither submitted written instructions nor objected to the court's instructions to the jury; moreover, defendant's trial counsel twice expressed satisfaction with the instructions and, though such instructions were not a model of clarity, they were sufficient to inform the jury of the elements of the offense. M. J. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 295 A. 2d 64; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1932, — U.S. —).

In petit larceny prosecution which resulted when police officers saw the defendant and another take carton of matches from sidewalk in front of drugstore, defendant's testimony that he believed the property had been abandoned did not call for abandoned property instruction in absence of evidence that the store intended to abandon the property. M. Peyton, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 229).

Trial court's failure to preface the "satisfactorily explained" clauses with the word "that" in instructions concerning inference of guilt arising from possession of recently stolen property, unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not constitute a directed verdict for the government on the issue of satisfactory explanation and did not constitute plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile and interstate transportation of automobile. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Trial court's lack of explicitness, in defining "satisfactorily explained" within instructions on inference of guilt arising from recent possession of stolen property unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not give rise to negative inference that issue of whether the explanation was satisfactory was out of the case in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of automobile and did not constitute plain error. Id.

In the absence of a request for instruction on defense theory that defendant innocently borrowed stolen automobile from another and since the defendant had testified to that effect, trial court's failure to deliver sua sponte instruction on the defense theory was not plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of stolen automobile. Id.

Instructions given by trial judge in prosecution for petit larceny was comprehensive and clearly presented to jury the elements of asportation and intent. F. Ginyard v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 590).

Trial judge did not violate the rule of singling out and declaring the effect of certain facts, without consideration of other modifying facts, where by instructing the jury, he outlined the issues, and said among other things that "it was a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the cash register receipts had been obtained by defendant before, at the time of, or after his appearance at the store from which defendant was convicted of petty larceny of an item from the store." Campbell v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

Jury—Viewing scene

Where defendant's testimony corroborated basic features of security officer's description of his observations and defendant admitted he had taken pair of pants to dressing room and told security officer that he left pants in dressing room and returned to room with security officer to verify story, there was no conflict in evidence to warrant jury viewing of scene. N. E. Minor v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 171).

Plea of guilty

In this case the court held that the defendant, who had pleaded guilty to charge of petit larceny, was entitled to withdraw guilty plea since the trial court, prior to accepting plea, informed defendant only that he could receive up to 360 days in jail, but did not inform him of possibility of being sentenced under Federal Youth Corrections Act for a longer confinement, even though the Rule in effect at time guilty plea was made did not expressly require the court to determine if defendant was aware of consequences of his plea. L. R. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 603).

Failure to move to withdraw guilty plea to misdemeanor charge made while defendant was 20 years old would not foreclose him from making motion to withdraw plea on contention that it had not been knowingly and intelligently made as he had not understood that he could be sentenced under Youth Corrections Act for longer period than year sentence provided for misdemeanor charge but court reviewing conviction would remand case to give him opportunity to move district court for leave to withdraw plea. R. B. Carter v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 283, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

In prosecution for housebreaking, larceny and destruction of property, wherein one defendant was permitted to change his plea in open court and in presence of jury and was asked by trial judge whether he admitted committing offense and replied that he did admit being with "them," there was error which, in view of circumstantial and inconclusive nature of evidence, would require reversal of another defendant's conviction. Gaynor v. United States (1957, 247 F. 2d 583, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Upon defendant's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty and to vacate and set aside sentence imposed upon him, court would treat defendant's papers as motion pursuant to statute pertaining to remedies on motion attacking sentence with reference to sentence being served and as application for relief in nature of common-law writ of error coram nobis with reference to sentences not then being served. United States v. Sheffield (D.C.D.C. 1959, 179 F. Supp. 634, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1633, 363 U.S. 853, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1735).

In proceeding treated as motion attacking sentence being served and as application for relief in nature of common-law writ of error coram nobis with regard to sentences not being served, evidence established that defendant was mentally competent at time of his plea of guilty and sentencing and that he had voluntarily and understandingly entered his plea. Id.

Prejudgment of guilt

Record would not substantiate contention that trial judge had prejudged question of defendant's guilt of petit larceny by trick. H. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 240 A. 2d 131).

Prejudicial error

Where defendant could not assure court that witness who investigated scene of larceny and determined that security officer's asserted view of dressing rooms was obstructed by pillar had positively ascertained precise spot where security officer had watched defendant take slacks from rack to dressing room or that location of dressing rooms and position of aperture through which security officer watched defendant had not changed, overruling of request to place witness on stand was not prejudicial error. N. E. Minor v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 171).

Presentence report

When questions are raised in a criminal appeal concerning reasons for which a sentence was imposed, the presentence report may be made part of the record on appeal for inspection in camera by reviewing court. United States v. M. Delaney (1971, 442 F. 2d 120, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 372).

Whether defendant's counsel might inspect probation officer's report relied upon by trial court in sentencing the defendant is a matter for the sentencing court. Id.

Probable cause

Where police officer, who was on routine patrol looking for burglary suspects or people breaking into automobiles, observed defendant and an unidentified companion walking on street and looking into parked automobiles, where his observation of the two continued for more than an hour until he and a fellow officer lost them in grounds of zoo, where the officers later observed them coming out of zoo with defendant carrying a brown paper bag that he had not had when he went into the zoo, and where defendant's companion ran when he saw the officers, the police had reasonable grounds to believe that the bag contained the proceeds of a crime, to stop defendant and to ask him to put down the bag, which then opened a bit and revealed what appeared to be a tape deck. M. J. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 295 A. 2d 64; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1932, — U.S. —).

Police officers who were apprised of theft of a tape deck from automobile parked near area where they first observed the defendant and his companion, who noticed, through tear in bag which defendant was carrying, a bent mounting bracket attached to a tape deck and who possessed information that defendant's companion matched description of culprit in the reported theft and saw that defendant was carrying in his back pocket a bent screwdriver used for breaking into automobiles had probable cause to arrest defendant, and thus tape deck and tapes were properly seized and were admissible, even though the reported theft turned out to be unrelated to seized tape deck and tapes that were stolen by defendant in different crime. G. E. Jones v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 286 A. 2d 861).

Where police officers who had observed the defendant peering into automobiles later observed defendant holding some object under his coat and when defendant refused to remove his hands from his pockets search for weapons was made disclosing that defendant was concealing beneath his coat a tape player, the connecting wires of which had been broken, action of police in confronting defendant on street was reasonable and disclosure of the tape player gave officers probable cause for arrest even though no victim had reported a loss, and pistol seized two days later during execution of arrest warrant was not the fruit of an unlawful arrest. L. A. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 460).

Police officers who saw parked automobile resting on its axles and three tires scattered nearby when they came upon scene at which two security officers from nearby apartment building had stopped the defendant, observed by security officers walking away from vicinity of vehicle carrying jumper cables and a jack plate, for questioning during which neighbor called out from window to say that defendant was one of the men who had been "messing" with stripped vehicle had probable cause to arrest for petit larceny notwithstanding arresting officers did not actually see the defendant remove or carry away tires from vehicle. United States v. C. E. Bynum (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 649).

Probation

The Municipal Court of the District of Columbia may in its discretion order restitution or reparation as a condition of probation. Basile v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

Prosecution's statements

Record disclosed uncontested facts so confirming the defendant's guilt of second-degree burglary and petit larceny consisting in theft of money from coin-operated laundry machines located in locked basement room of an apartment building that any impropriety in the prosecuting attorney's argument must be classed as harmless error. United States v. R. K. Jones (1970, 433 F. 2d 1107, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

In this case, the court held that the statement of prosecuting attorney that if jury believed testimony of defendants, who were charged with burglary II and petit larceny, they must conclude that police officers were "out-and-out liars," was not so prejudicial as to require reversal. United States v. Stevenson et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 923, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

The use by prosecuting attorney of phrase "lucky enough to catch somebody right in the act," and to "catch them red-handed" was not so prejudicial as to constitute plain error. Id.

Prosecution's statement to jury that guilty verdict as to larceny would require guilty verdict as to assault was erroneous but was not plain error which affected substantial rights and, therefore, would not require reversal. C. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 532).

Return of articles

Where evidence in prosecution for petit larceny disclosed that defendant, while shopping in self-service market, was seen by clerk to remove two articles from shelf and put them in her purse, which was inside a cart containing some groceries, and that defendant then closed the purse, and clerk and manager of store followed defendant to checkout line, and that when she saw them she walked toward back of store and gave them the articles from her purse, fact that defendant changed her mind about taking the articles or returned the articles to escape prosecution did not purge the original taking. Groomes v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 73).

Review

The question of appellant's guilt or innocence turned solely on credibility of witnesses, and issue was to be determined by trier of fact and was not subject to review. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Right to stenographic record

Where reviewing court was supplied with statement which presented in considerable detail events of the trial, the testimony, and ruling of the trial judge, and furnished counsel with complete picture of proceedings, defendants were not prejudiced by failure to have the case stenographically reported and were not entitled to have their convictions for petit larceny and larceny from interstate shipment set aside. F. House and S. Brandon v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 805).

Search and seizure

Probable cause for arrest existed when driver of automobile, who started to drive away without his lights on, was stopped by police and dome light showed articles in automobile which had just been reported stolen from another automobile in the area as driver got out to show officers his registration card, and such probable cause was sufficient to support search and seizure of reportedly stolen articles. R. A. Campbell, Jr. v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 775, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Sentence

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Action of trial court, taken while appeal was pending, in purportedly granting motion to correct sentence by making one-year sentence for petit larceny and six-month sentence for destroying property run concurrently rather than consecutively was beyond the court's power at that time and order purporting to reduce sentence would be vacated without prejudice to reentry if subsequently deemed appropriate. Id.

In this case the court held that a sentence of 360 days' imprisonment and fine of $200, or in default of payment an additional 360 days, for crime of petit larceny is, when applied to an indigent defendant, illegal as denial of equal protection under the law. D. L. Lucas v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 524).

It is an abuse of discretion to sentence an indigent defendant to 360 days' imprisonment and fine of $200, or in default of payment an additional 360 days, for crime of petit larceny, since maximum punishment for crime of petit larceny was set by Congress at fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. Id.

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Where trial court imposed concurrent sentences for petit larceny and for possession of dangerous drug, and conviction of latter offense was sustained, review of petit larceny conviction was unnecessary. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 210 A. 2d 845).

Where defendant was convicted on all counts of a four count indictment charging him in one count with bribery, and in three counts with petit larceny, and sentences on the petit larceny counts ran concurrently with the sentence on the bribery count, and did not exceed it, validity of the bribery conviction supported the judgment. Green v. United States (1959, 267 F. 2d 619, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 342).

Suppression of evidence

Where police officer observed defendant and another, both of whom he recognized as having prior convictions for larceny, carrying a console-type record player and followed them into a liquor store, saw that the record player was new and questioned them about the machine and defendant gave improbable and unbelievable answers, officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for petit larceny, and refusal of trial court to suppress the evidence seized at time of arrest was not erroneous. Brooks v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 159 A. 2d 876).

Validity of arrest

Whether a defendants' arrest on a charge of petit larceny was lawful depended upon arresting officer having probable cause to believe that they had in their possession "fruits of the crime". S. Smith and W. Jeffries v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 293).

Validity of verdict

When one juror, on poll of a jury, answered that her vote of guilty on petit larceny charge was conditional, the court should not have required juror to answer "guilty" or "not guilty" but should have returned the jury to jury room for further deliberation, and juror's subsequent response of "guilty" to court's directive did not remove uncertainty of her verdict. P. E. Matthews v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 505).

Value of property

In prosecution under petit larceny statute covering thefts of property of value of less than $100, defendant was not prejudiced by proof that she stole more than $100. Brock v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 763).

§ 22-2203. Larceny after trust.

If any person entrusted with the possession of anything of value, including things savoring of the realty, for the purpose of applying the same for the use and benefit of the owner or person so delivering it, shall fraudulently convert the same to his own use he shall, where the value of the thing so converted is $100 or more, be punished by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than ten years, or by a fine of not more than $1,000, or both; and where the value of the thing so converted is less than $100 he shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than $500 or both: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to alter or repeal any section contained in this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 851b, as added Mar. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 727, ch. 108, and amended Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(g).)

AMENDMENTS

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the value from $50 to $100.

1937—Act Aug. 12, 1937, increased the value from $35 to $50.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delivery of property

For purposes of statute providing punishment for one guilty of larceny after trust, delivery of property to defendant by owner's vendor, acting for owner, was tantamount to delivery by owner; but even if it were not, defendant would not be entitled to acquittal, since statute does not require delivery by owner. United States v. A. Manolias (D.C.D.C. 1961, 190 F. Supp. 234).

Election of offenses

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 257, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 218, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U.S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Elements of offense

The fact that preconceived specific intent to deprive owner of possession is not an element of crime of larceny after trust does not preclude evidence which bears upon intent underlying the conversion. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

"Larceny after trust" occurs when possession of property is entrusted to a person for purpose of applying property to owner's use and benefit. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 156).

"Larceny after trust" is committed when person to whom property has been entrusted wrongfully converts it to his own use. Id.

Preconceived specific intent to deprive property owner of possession of property is not an element of offense of larceny after trust. Id.

For larceny after trust to exist, person to whom possession of property is entrusted must be given actual dominion and control over the property for purpose set forth by owner; a mere temporary custodian cannot commit larceny after trust. Id.

Embezzlement

Taking was an embezzlement and not larceny after trust, Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581). See, also, Henry v. United States (1921, 273 F. 330, 50 App. D.C. 366, certiorari denied 42 S. Ct. 51, 257 U.S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence supported jury finding that money received by defendant from religious order in connection with plan to acquire block of property for construction of house of studies for the order was not the proceeds of a loan, but was entrusted to the defendant for a specific purpose, and that defendant's conversion of the funds was larceny after trust. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 403; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 62, 400 U.S. 831).

Evidence, including evidence that complainant entrusted money to defendant as real estate broker for express purpose of having it applied as rental on apartment, that apartment was in fact not available, and that defendant kept money and refused to return it, was sufficient for jury in prosecution for larceny after trust. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

Evidence of other offenses

Testimony that defendant took deposit for apartment rental and thereafter neither made apartment available nor returned deposit on occasions other than that which was subject of prosecution for larceny after trust was not admissible within any exception to rule barring evidence of other offenses, and admission was reversible error. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

Evidence of similar criminal acts

The testimony of the witnesses fitted well within the established rule, in this jurisdiction as elsewhere, that a trial judge may allow evidence of similar criminal acts to prove intent if the prejudicial effect of admission is "outweighed by the probative value" of the evidence. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Fraud or trick

This section has no bearing on larceny by fraud or trick. Talbert v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 1, certiorari denied 34 S. Ct. 997, 234 U.S. 762, 58 L. Ed. 1581).

Fraudulent purpose

The requisite fraudulent purpose may be conceived at various stages in a transaction, and one who takes property in good faith may be convicted if his illegal designs mature after the property is in his possession. However, the essential legislative proscription is of his having "fraudulently converted" the property. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Independent contractor

Independent contractor, who had been entrusted with property and who had complete dominion and control over it for purpose of installing it in connection with electrical work which he had contracted to do, was not a mere custodian of property and could be convicted of larceny after trust. United States v. A. Manolias (D.C.D.C. 1961, 190 F. Supp. 234).

Severance of counts

Joining in a single indictment nine counts charging the defendant with willfully attempting to evade payment of federal income taxes, larceny and interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained funds, assisting another to falsify his federal income tax return and conspiring to defraud government and defeat collection of taxes, if error, was harmless, under circumstances. R. G. Baker v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 958, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 7; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 367, 400 U.S. 965).

Speedy trial

Fact that some five years elapsed between dates of offenses and date of indictment charging fraud by wire, mail fraud, interstate transportation of check taken by fraud and larceny after trust did not deprive the defendant of fair and speedy trial since the prosecution resulted from extended investigation into complicated affairs of defendant and his corporations and there was no suggestion of any purposeful or otherwise improper delay in conduct of investigation and there was no showing of prejudice caused by the delay. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 403; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 62, 400 U.S. 831).

Statutory definition

The statutory provision for larceny after trust defines a violator as one who is shown to have "fraudulently converted" property entrusted to him. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Trust or debtor—Creditor relationship

Whether a transaction creates trust relationship or that of debtor and creditor depends upon all facts and circumstances, including the intention of the parties. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 403; cert. denied 91 S. Ct. 62, 400 U.S. 831).

The fact that interest is to be paid by person receiving money is evidence that debt is created as distinguished from trust obligation, but is not conclusive in prosecution for larceny after trust. Id.

Use and benefit

To establish offense of larceny after trust it must be proved that accused was entrusted with something of value, for the use and benefit of complainant, and that it was converted to accused's own use, with intent to deprive complainant of money or property. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

"Under the provisions of this section, the possession of property must be intrusted 'for the purpose of applying the same for the use and benefit' of the person so intrusting it; that is, the person to whom intrusted must be clothed with some actual dominion and control over the property for the purpose named. Otherwise, he is a mere temporary custodian, and, if he wrongfully appropriates the property he is guilty of larceny, and not of the crime denounced by this section." Atkinson v. United States (1923, 289 F. 935, 53 App. D.C. 277).

§ 22-2204. Unauthorized use of vehicles.

Any person who, without the consent of the owner, shall take, use, operate, or remove, or cause to be taken, used, operated, or removed from a garage, stable, or other building, or from any place or locality on a public or private highway, park, parkway, street, lot, field, inclosure, or space, an automobile or motor vehicle, and operate or drive or cause the same to be operated or driven for his own profit, use, or purpose shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 826b, as added Feb. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 656, ch. 23, § 1.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accomplice

In prosecution for the unauthorized use of a vehicle and larceny of other property in District of Columbia, evidence on issue of whether defendant had aided and abetted those who took the property and whether the planning and the taking were within the District sustained conviction, even though it was not shown that defendant was present at the taking or had used the automobile in the District. Williams v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 35, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 219).

Aiding and abetting

In order to convict passenger as aider and abettor in unauthorized use of motor vehicle, government must establish that he had actual knowledge of criminal act being committed. In the Matter of D. M. L. (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 277).

Evidence, including evidence that automobile was "hot wired" in a manner visible to anyone in rear seat, sustained delinquency adjudication of juvenile who was found in rear seat and charged as aider and abettor in unauthorized use of vehicle. Id.

One aiding and abetting unauthorized use of automobile stands in same shoes as principal offender. Allen v. United States (1958, 257 F. 2d 188, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Arrest

Where police officer, on foot patrol, saw a bag of trash thrown into a public street from left front window of automobile standing at curb with motor running, and where the automobile's occupant, after being approached by the officer and questioned about the bag, alighted from the automobile, picked up the bag and put it back inside the car, it could not be said that the incident was over and that it was unlawful for the officer to ask the occupant to produce his operator's permit and the registration card for the automobile, which inquiries resulted in discovery that the occupant's permit had been revoked and, later, that the automobile had been stolen. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle

Attempted unauthorized use of a motor vehicle is a crime under statutes prohibiting the taking, use, operation, or removal of a vehicle without owner's consent and calling for punishment of whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise punishable. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Circumstantial evidence

The court held that in a prosecution for driving a motor vehicle without the consent of owner, owner's nonconsent, like other elements of the offense, can be shown by circumstantial evidence so long as it meets the standards of proof accepted in the criminal law. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

In particular situations in a prosecution under this section making it an offense to drive motor vehicle without consent of owner, circumstances offered may be too impotent to attest nonconsent. Id.

Legal sufficiency of circumstantial evidence to support finding of nonconsent is necessarily a matter of degree to be gauged in terms of its potential impact on reasonable minds. Id.

Collateral estoppel

Since the defendant who had been acquitted on charges of reckless driving, speeding, and driving motor vehicle after his permit had been suspended failed to present defense of collateral estoppel to the trial court hearing prosecution for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, the reviewing court would not consider claim. R. Mahoney v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 253, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Defense

In prosecution for grand larceny and for unauthorized use of a vehicle, wherein defense was interposed that defendant was repossessing automobile on request of man engaged in automobile business, testimony and argument of Government to effect that repossession of automobile must be accomplished by a United States marshal and that repossession by an individual was illegal, which testimony and argument led jury to believe that defendant was engaged in an illegal enterprise in repossessing automobile, was prejudicial error, where jury was not instructed to disregard testimony or argument on this point, notwithstanding that jury was instructed that Government had to prove every element of crime, including intent, beyond reasonable doubt. Evans v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 379, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 122).

Voluntary drunkenness does not constitute a defense to a charge of unauthorized use of a vehicle and specific intent or knowledge is not an element of the offense since the statute involves only a "general criminal intent" which may be presumed from doing the prohibited act. Proctor v. United States (1950, 177 F. 2d 656, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 341).

Dismissal with prejudice

Dismissal, with prejudice, of indictment charging defendant with unauthorized use of a vehicle constituted adjudication barring another prosecution for same offense. J. H. White, Jr. v. United States (1967, 377 F. 2d 948, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 309).

Evidence

Since the trial judge in prior trial at time of granting mistrial as to various offenses relating to robbery directed verdict of acquittal on count charging unauthorized use of vehicle, admission of evidence in subsequent trial as to theft of car which was subject of count as to which defendants had been acquitted and as to defendants' use of that car in robbery was reversible error under doctrine of collateral estoppel. A. Green et al. v. United States (1970, 426 F. 2d 661, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

When viewed in light of nature of experiment and other testimony in prosecution for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, exclusion of evidence as to experiment which allegedly undermined police eyewitness identification fell well within discretion of trial court. J. R. Goodman v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 965, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

Testimony of police officer that he saw defendant driving third party's automobile, and testimony of third party who affirmed his ownership and stated that he had not given anyone permission to use it was sufficient to support conviction of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. G. E. Johnson v. United States (1965, 347 F. 2d 803, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

Evidence that fingerprint of defendant, who denied knowledge of the incident, was one of several found on outside of automobile that had been reported missing from dealer's service garage would not permit jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was guilty of the unauthorized use of the motor vehicle. E. R. Cephus v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 893, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

Evidence was sufficient to show ownership of automobile and corporate existence of owner and to sustain conviction of unauthorized use of automobile without consent of owner. J. C. Dixon v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 768, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Admission of evidence beyond scope of bill of particulars as to date when automobile was first known to be missing was not error, in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile without consent of owner. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for unauthorized use of an automobile. Allen v. United States (1958, 257 F. 2d 188, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

In action for injuries sustained in an automobile accident, where owner testified that the driver did not have permission to use automobile, statements of driver about 10 or 15 minutes after the accident to an investigating officer that owner told driver that he could take the car, and statement of the driver to plaintiff that defendant would be angry with the driver because the defendant loaned the driver his car, were not admissible as excited utterances, since the driver had a motive for falsely representing his authority to have possession of the vehicle to avoid a criminal prosecution. Sawyer et ano. v. Miseli (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A. 2d 141).

— Sufficiency

In prosecution for the grand larceny of an automobile and unauthorized use of the vehicle, there was legally sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction on both counts, including the fact that, three weeks after the automobile's theft, it was found in the exclusive possession of defendant. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Exclusive and unsatisfactorily explained possession of property proven to have been recently stolen permits an inference that the possessor is the thief; and where the stolen property is a motor vehicle, that inference may serve to support convictions of grand larceny and unauthorized use. Id.

Conviction of either grand larceny of automobile or unauthorized use of automobile entails evidence having enough probative power to convince the jury beyond reasonable doubt of every essential element, and also on identity of the accused as participant. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Evidence, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of such automobile, and for grand larceny of engine from another automobile, warranted the finding that the character of possession of stolen property, united with other evidence in case, would authorize inference attributing guilt to defendant. Id.

Finding by Juvenile Court that juvenile was a passenger in stolen automobile was insufficient to establish violation of this section forbidding unauthorized use of motor vehicle. In the matter of A. R. Davis (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 297).

In this case the evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for driving a cab without the owner's consent. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

The evidence in this case supported conviction of unauthorized use of automobile in violation of this section. C. S. Kee and W. J. Johnson v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 465, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

More proof was necessary to support a conviction for transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines in violation of Dyer Act than for unauthorized use in violation of this section since Dyer Act charge is dependent on intent that requires a stealing. Id.

Evidence was sufficient in a prosecution for attempted and unauthorized use of vehicle to permit trier of fact to find that recovered automobile belonged to government witness and that defendant did not have permission to drive it. H. E. Waterstaat v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 507).

Evidence established that defendant was guilty of unauthorized use of vehicle. United States v. J. W. Carter (1967, 275 F. Supp. 769).

The record contains sufficient evidence from which the jury could have found or inferred that the car left by owner in the parking garage and the one driven onto the parking lot by appellant were one and the same. F. E. Wesley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 514).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of automobile. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Impeachment

In the case, the court held that a prior conviction of attempted housebreaking was properly used for impeachment of defendant charged with unauthorized use of vehicle and assault on police officer. United States v. C. E. White (1970, 427 F. 2d 634, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 364).

Defendant who was accused of unauthorized use of automobile could be impeached by a showing of prior larceny convictions. United States v. W. T. Carr (1969, 418 F. 2d 1184, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 348, cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 590).

Inconsistent verdict

Verdict whereby defendant was convicted of and co-defendant was acquitted of grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of the automobile, and grand larceny of engine from another automobile, was not inconsistent since the jury, rather than determining that codefendant lacked possession of stolen property, could have derived doubt as to whether codefendant collaborated in commission of charged offenses. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Inference of guilt

Inference of interstate transportation which may be drawn from unexplained possession of stolen automobile in second state springs from and depends upon prior inference from such possession that possessor had stolen automobile in first state, and this is true even in federal districts where theft itself is not federal offense and is not charged in indictment. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

Where permitted inference of guilt of transporting stolen automobile from District of Columbia to Maryland depended on inference that defendant used automobile without authorization in District, defense request for instruction that if jury acquitted of unauthorized use in District it must acquit also of transporting interstate was erroneously denied, and error was prejudicial. Id.

Instructions

In trial on charge of unauthorized use of motor vehicle under this section, unobjected to instructions omitting standard instruction that each essential element of the offense must be proved beyond reasonable doubt, and omitting, with respect to element of use for some period of time for defendant's own benefit, phrase "beyond a reasonable doubt," recited with respect to other elements, did not constitute plain error affecting substantial rights of the defendant since the concept of reasonable doubt was explained and burden carried by government in such respect emphasized, and since, as indicated by the failure to object, it was unlikely that jury understood instructions as dispensing with proof beyond reasonable doubt as to the element in question. United States v. L. L. Powell (1971, 449 F. 2d 994, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 332).

Fact that the jury was instructed, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile and of automobile engine and for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that if prerequisite to inference of guilt for possession of recently stolen property exists beyond reasonable doubt it could be inferred that defendant was guilty of one or both of such offenses, but was not instructed that inference permissible was that defendant was person who committed such offense if government proved all of their essential elements beyond reasonable doubt, did not warrant reversal of conviction since, in other portions of charge, instruction was given on presumption of innocence and government's burden of proof beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Trial court's failure to preface the "satisfactory explained" clauses with the word "that" in instructions concerning inference of guilt arising from possession of recently stolen property, unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not constitute a directed verdict for the government on the issue of satisfactory explanation and did not constitute plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile and interstate transportation of automobile. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, 139 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Trial court's lack of explicitness, in defining "satisfactorily explained" within instructions on inference of guilt arising from recent possession of stolen property unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not give rise to negative inference that issue of whether the explanation was satisfactory was out of the case in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of automobile and did not constitute plain error. Id.

In the absence of a request for instruction on defense theory that defendant innocently borrowed stolen automobile from another and since the defendant had testified to that effect, trial court's failure to deliver sua sponte instruction on the defense theory was not plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of stolen automobile. Id.

Defendant's statement that he was passenger in automobile but had not driven it was exculpatory, and instruction that being a passenger constituted unauthorized use of vehicle had effect of converting such statement into an admission and adversely affecting fairness of trial in which defendant was charged with driving automobile and prosecutor represented such statement to be exculpatory; and giving of such instruction would require a reversal for supplementary hearing into propriety of introducing such statement as an admission. J. R. Goodman v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 965, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

In prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile in District of Columbia and for transporting stolen automobile from District to Maryland, trial judge correctly permitted jury to infer guilt under both counts if it found defendant in possession of stolen automobile in Maryland and was not satisfied with explanation offered, and court correctly added that the longer the interval between the stealing and defendant's being found in possession, the weaker the inference. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

Joinder

Since the offenses of robbery, assault with dangerous weapon, assault on member of police force, unauthorized use of vehicle, and carrying dangerous weapon were based on two or more connected acts constituting part of common scheme and plan, the defendants were alleged to have participated in same series of acts constituting offenses, and each of defendants aided and abetted offenses charged against other defendants, it was proper for grand jury to join defendants and offenses in the indictment. United States v. C. Wilson, Jr. et al. (1970, 434 F. 2d 494, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 220).

Jury question

In this case the evidence raised jury question as to defendant's guilt of unauthorized use of an automobile which owner testified was taken from parking garage without her permission. United States v. W. T. Carr (1969, 418 F. 2d 1184, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 348; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 590).

Knowledge

Conviction under this section for unauthorized use of motor vehicle requires proof that accused had guilty knowledge of unauthorized use. In the matter of A. R. Davis (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 297).

Lapse of time between theft and arrest

Lapse of five days between theft of automobile and arrest of defendant operating it did not insulate him from criminal liability for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Limited affirmance

In this case where the evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile but the court had doubts as to its sufficiency to support convictions for robbery and for transporting stolen vehicle across state line in violation of Dyer Act, sentence of youthful offenders under Federal Youth Corrections Act would be affirmed in interest of justice limited to a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile. C. S. Kee and W. J. Johnson v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 465, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

New trial

Where defendant was acquitted of unauthorized use of automobile in District of Columbia, reviewing court in setting aside conviction for transporting such automobile from District to Maryland could not remand for new trial on count for interstate transportation by means of inference, already rejected, that defendant used automobile without authorization in the District, but if government represented it had competent evidence of defendant's contact or connection with possession or use of automobile within District new trial could be conducted for interstate transportation. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

Prima facie rule

In prosecution for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle, charge that exclusive and unexplained possession of recently stolen property is "sufficient to support" a verdict of guilty of larceny was inadequate in that it failed to make clear that, if jury found exclusive possession by defendant of recently stolen goods, jury could, but was not required to, find that defendant had stolen the goods. D. C. McKnight v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 660, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

In prosecution for unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing a certain automobile truck from a certain street without owner's consent, the jury were entitled to apply the prima facie rule applicable to unexplained possession of recently stolen property. Epps v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 11, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

Proof of ownership

Any failure of prosecution to show who owned automobile involved in prosecution for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle did not preclude conviction where it was established that ownership was in some third party. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Province of jury

In deciding whether secretaries of the owner had given their consent, in a prosecution for driving a motor vehicle without consent of owner, jury could legitimately have acknowledged that employees ordinarily observe restrictions on their authority and are obedient to employer mandates as to how their tasks are to be performed. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Questions for jury

Evidence, in prosecution for theft, and unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that appellant and another defendant took truck with paint spray pump, both of which appellant knew were not owned by fellow defendant, and that they had traveled 175 miles on way to another state, and had arranged to sell or pledge the pump in exchange for gasoline, oil and whiskey, was sufficient, in absence of any explanation, to raise issue for jury on question of defendant's guilty knowledge and intent. Gilbert v. United States (1954, 215 F. 2d 334, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 321).

Evidence whether defendant who was found staggering with bleeding forehead from alley in vicinity of damaged automobile in which were found pieces of glass which appeared to fit perfectly the pieces in broken lens of spectacles found in defendant's pocket, was guilty of unauthorized use of motor vehicle, was for jury. Patalas v. United States (1951, 185 F. 2d 507, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 379).

In prosecution for unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing a certain automobile truck without the consent of the owner, whether defendant was guilty was for jury. Epps v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 11, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

Rented automobile

Evidence that defendant was afraid to return automobile to rental agency because he was unable to pay rent he owed and absence of evidence that defendant tried to disguise automobile, change license plates or in any other way appropriate it to his exclusive benefit and absence of evidence that rental agency notified defendant that it considered rental contract breached and that defendant would be charged with violation of criminal laws if he failed to return automobile did not establish violation of statute prohibiting unauthorized use of automobile. United States v. H. B. McLaughlin, Sr. (1967, 278 F. Supp. 320).

Review

Defendant could not be heard to complain on appeal of conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle in view of proof of completion of offense of unauthorized use of the vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Court of Appeals was not required to decide whether conviction for unauthorized use of motor vehicle in violation of District of Columbia Code or for interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicle in violation of federal statute might be allowed to stand in face of six month lapse between theft of automobile in Richmond and defendant's arrest while driving it in District of Columbia, absent request at trial for limiting instructions or objections to charge as given. C. C. Scott v. United States (1966, 369 F. 2d 183, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 138).

No errors affecting substantial rights occurred in a prosecution for unauthorized use of a vehicle without the owner's consent. R. L. Jenkins v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 399, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 367).

Sentence

The single taking of an automobile can constitute both offense of grand larceny of automobile and offense of unauthorized use of automobile, and can authorize separate though concurrent sentences under each. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, 140 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

In prosecution for grand larceny and unauthorized use of a vehicle, imposition of sentences on defendant of from two to five years on the unauthorized use count and from two to seven years on the grand larceny count, was proper even though the two offenses grew out of the same set of facts and circumstances and offense of unauthorized use was included in that of grand larceny, where sentences were imposed to run concurrently. Evans v. United States (1956, 232 F. 2d 379, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 122).

Summation

In prosecution for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, wherein defense counsel moved under Jencks Act for production of statements made by police officer prior to trial and defense counsel made no use of such statements, closing argument of prosecuting attorney that there was no effort to impeach the officer and that statements corroborated testimony of police officer was improper. G. E. Johnson v. United States (1965, 347 F. 2d 803, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

Unauthorized use

Unauthorized use statute does not require that automobile be stolen in order to render its use unlawful. United States v. H. B. McLaughlin, Sr. (1967, 278 F. Supp. 320).

Under statute prohibiting unauthorized use of automobile, use of rented automobile in excess of express consent given in rental contract is not to be equated with use "without the consent of the owner." Id.

Operation of automobile about six months after it had been stolen, without explanation for possession and without explanation for possession and without permission of owner or owner's daughter, was "unauthorized" as contemplated by statute providing for punishment of any person who without consent of owner operates automobile on public highway for his own profit, use, or purpose. C. C. Scott v. United States (1966, 369 F. 2d 183, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 138).

Variance

Where indictment charged defendant with unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing certain automobile truck from a certain street without owner's consent and proof showed that such truck was parked right on such street, there was no variance. Epps v. United States (1946, 157 F. 2d 11, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

§ 22-2204a. Theft from vehicles.

Whoever, after March 7, 1942, and in any period during which any restrictions on the sale or use of any of the articles hereinafter referred to are in effect pursuant to any law of the United States, shall feloniously take and carry away any oil or gasoline, or any other lubricant or fuel; or any antifreeze mixture, compound, or solution; or any tire, tire casing, inner tube, or rim; or any wheel, tire chain, battery, or other part, equipment, or accessory, of the value of less than $100, being then and there in, on, part of, or attached to any vehicle in the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not more than three years: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to affect the offense of grand larceny as defined by existing law. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 826c, as added Mar. 7, 1942, 56 Stat. 143, ch. 165, and amended June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(b).)

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, increased the value from $50 to $100.

§ 22-2205. Receiving stolen goods.

Any person who shall, with intent to defraud, receive or buy anything of value which shall have been stolen or obtained by robbery, knowing or having cause to believe the same to be so stolen or so obtained by robbery, if the thing or things received or bought shall be of the value of $100 or upward, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than ten years; or if the value of the thing or things so received or bought be less than $100, shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 829; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 98, ch. 159, § 213.)

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, inserted "with intent to defraud," following "Any person who shall", deleted "with intent to defraud the owner thereof" preceding "if the thing or things", substituted "knowing or having cause to believe" for "knowing", increased the value from $35 to $100 and providing for a fine of not more than $500 for offense involving the lesser sum and decreased the limit on imprisonment for such offense from two to one year.

This section is referred to in sections 23-546, 23-581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accomplice in larceny

One who advises, incites, or connives at the offense of larceny but is not present at the taking (although chargeable as a principal under 1901 code, § 908 [§ 22-105]), may be convicted of receiving stolen property when he subsequently purchases it from the thief. Weisberg v. United States (1919, 258 F. 284, 49 App. D.C. 28).

Appeal and error

Admission into evidence of two coats that were in paper bag defendant had handed to woman companion when police officers asked defendant to come over to police car was not "plain error" such as would provide ground for reversal in absence of motion to exclude the evidence in trial court. J. L. Young v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 671).

Arrest

Where officers, who knew that furniture had been stolen and who had information linking accused to the crime, went to accused's second-hand furniture store and observed articles in show windows similar to those which had been stolen, asked accused for records required to be kept by second-hand dealers, asked to be shown more of same type of furniture which accused denied having, and looked around premises without objection by accused and found five new chairs hidden beneath old furniture, arrest without warrant was legal. McQuaid v. United States (1952, 198 F. 2d 987, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 229, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 499, 344 U. S. 929, 97 L. Ed. 715).

— Without warrant

That officer saw defendant, whom officer had "known for a year," carrying portable television set in area where there had been prior burglaries, and that defendant explained, in answer to inquiry, that friend had asked him to take set to friend's girl friend and to sell set to her for $20 did not constitute probable cause for warrantless arrest or for seizure of set since there was no violation of law in presence of officer and he had no knowledge then that the particular burglary, in which the set had been allegedly taken, had been committed. D. Daughtery v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 272 A. 2d 675).

Effective assistance of counsel

Inasmuch as defense counsel might have concluded that evidence to support motion to suppress was lacking, counsel was not negligent in failing to raise wrongful seizure issue with respect to stolen property taken from the defendant prior to his arrest. J. L. Young v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 671).

Evidence

Where evidence was merely impeaching and was not material to issues involved nor was it probable that in new trial appellant would be acquitted because of it, trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion for new trial based upon newly discovered evidence. W. D. Heard v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 125).

— Admissibility

Where arresting police officer while in pawn shop observed typewriter bearing sticker indicating that it belonged to Department of Public Health, officer had probable cause to arrest the defendant who brought in the typewriter and typewriter is admissible, and arresting officer's ignorance of actual practice of Department in disposing of surplus typewriters is irrelevant. United States v. E. S. Wallace (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 32).

Since the illegal search of defendant's automobile and seizure of allegedly stolen property therefrom was the basis for issuance of arrest warrant which in turn resulted in search of defendant's person and seizure of additional evidence, items removed from defendant at time of his arrest are "fruits of the poisonous tree" and inadmissible in prosecution under this section. G. L. Pigford v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 837).

Since defendant dropped shopping bag containing stolen articles on street prior to his arrest, officers' recovery of bag was not a "seizure" in the Fourth Amendment sense but was merely a retrieval of abandoned property and, therefore, even if probable cause did not exist for subsequent arrest of the defendant, the shopping bag was admissible in prosecution for receiving stolen property. M. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 834).

Evidence that defendant, charged with receiving stolen property, had on previous occasion knowingly received stolen property was admissible for limited purpose of showing intent and guilty knowledge. W. J. Blackburn v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 254).

Admissibility of evidence of other offenses is not subject to the qualification that the goods must have been received by the accused from the same person. Witters v. United States (1939, 106 F. 2d 837, 70 App. D.C. 316, 125 A.L.R. 1031).

— Confrontation of informer

Defendant, accused of receiving stolen goods and of possession of lottery tickets, was not entitled to confront and cross-examine informer, upon whose information search warrant was in part based, where warrant was issued upon an ample showing of probable cause. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

— Corroboration

Uncorroborated testimony of shoplifters as to origin and ownership of goods, while normally of questionable reliability, is sufficient, if believed, to warrant conviction for receiving stolen goods. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

In prosecution for receiving stolen goods, testimony that defendant had goods in his possession shortly after theft thereof and retained such possession while attempting with others to sell them was sufficient corroborative evidence to support his admissions that he received goods and knew they had been stolen. Inman v. United States (1957, 243 F. 2d 256, 100 U. S. App. D. C. 150, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 132, 358 U. S. 888, 3 L. Ed. 2d 116).

— Guilty knowledge

Accused's knowledge of goods' true character may be inferred from great disparity between sale price and prevailing price for similar or identical goods. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

— Sufficiency

Evidence that defendant was in possession of recently stolen automobile was enough to take case to jury on issue of defendant's intent to defraud and knowledge that automobile had been stolen. P. L. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 859).

Properly admitted hearsay statements of the defendant's brother that he stole a pistol from victim's home and sold it to defendant, testimony of third person to same effect, and testimony of robbery victim that she discovered her pistol missing after rug cleaning company's employees, one of which was later identified as defendant's brother, returned the rug to her house, constituted sufficient independent evidence to corroborate confession of defendant, who was convicted of receiving stolen property, that he purchased weapon taken from victim's home. H. L. Harrison v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 222).

Evidence that defendant was in possession of recently stolen coat is sufficient to sustain conviction of receiving stolen property. H. Blue v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 508).

Evidence sustained conviction of receiving stolen goods. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

In prosecution for knowingly receiving stolen goods, evidence relating to identity, ownership, and value of goods sustained conviction. McQuaid v. United States (1952, 198 F. 2d 987, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 229, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 499, 344 U. S. 929, 97 L. Ed. 715).

— Suppression

Addition of provision to rule for motion to suppress evidence obtained by unlawful search and seizure requiring that motion be made before trial unless opportunity therefore did not exist or the defendant was not aware of grounds for the motion is intended to place further restriction upon manner in which search and seizure issues can be raised. J. L. Young v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 671).

— Unexplained possession

A person's unexplained possession of goods known by him to have been stolen is a forceful circumstance supporting his admissions of receipt of goods to such extent as to justify jury in concluding that admissions were true. Inman v. United States (1957, 243 F. 2d 256, 100 U. S. App. D. C. 150, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 132, 358 U. S. 888, 3 L. Ed. 2d 116).

Inferences

Where the defendant was shown to be in possession, without authority, of stolen property very soon after, and in immediate vicinity of, theft of such property, it is permissible for trier of facts to infer additional elements, including guilty knowledge and intent to deprive owner of possession, of offense of receiving stolen property. C. Williams, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 293).

Instructions

The court held that in prosecution for receiving stolen property, viewed as a whole, instructions which mentioned the requirement that defendant must have received goods with intent to defraud and which explained meaning of intent were proper. M. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 834).

Where instruction on possession in prosecution for receiving stolen goods was full and complete, and defense counsel indicated that he would accept court's ruling on the question, refusal to instruct that defendant must have had exclusive possession was not ground for reversal. F. H. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 637).

In prosecution for knowingly receiving stolen property, instruction that it was not necessary to find that accused knew that property was stolen specifically from company named in indictment was not error where other instructions were given on theory that identification and ownership were essential elements of the crime and further instructions were not requested and there were no objections to instructions given. McQuaid v. United States (1952, 198 F. 2d 987, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 229, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 499, 344 U. S. 929, 97 L. Ed. 715).

In prosecution for receiving stolen goods of the value of $35 or more, jury should have been instructed to find the value of the goods, and not merely that the goods were of some value, even though defense counsel did not request such instruction, and even though indictment charged that the stolen goods had a value of about $1,115.01. McQuaid v. United States (1951, 193 F. 2d 696, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 59).

Failure of court to charge in prosecution for receiving stolen goods of the value of about $1,115.01, that the jury should find the value of the stolen goods was not prejudicial error, where sentence imposed on defendant was not for the more serious offense of receiving stolen goods of the value of $35 or more, but for receiving goods of a value of less than $35 and where defendant wanted new trial, not resentence. Id.

Jury were properly instructed that defendant's knowledge that goods were stolen must be proved as a separate substantive fact. Baer v. United States (1924, 293 F. 843, 54 App. D.C. 24).

Larceny

In prosecution for receiving stolen goods, whether evidence supporting defendant's admissions of his receipt of goods and knowledge that they were stolen would have supported conviction of larceny is immaterial, as one technically guilty of larceny, but not present when it occurred, may be convicted of receiving stolen goods. Inman v. United States (1957, 243 F. 2d 256, 100 U. S. App. D.C. 150, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 132, 358 U.S. 888, 3 L. Ed. 2d 116).

"Under the prevailing modern rule the crime of receiving stolen goods is a substantive offense, separate and distinct from the larceny itself." Weisberg v. United States (1919, 258 F. 284, 49 App. D.C. 28).

Search and seizure

In determining whether police officers had probable cause for search, court must adopt reasonable approach taking into account the remoteness of judiciary from actual experience of police, and keep in mind constitutional command that judges must, in guarded fashion, determine from courthouse testimony the reasonableness of technical police decisions. J. Bailey v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 279 A. 2d 508).

Since police had information that defendant had been seen in hotel room with stocking around her arm, administering an injection, and police arrested defendant and her companion, and an officer on observing immediately accessible area for his own protection saw purse at defendant's feet, it was not unreasonable to seize purse and search it for weapons, even if, in retrospect, it might appear that the police could have removed defendant and her companion from area of access to purse. Id.

Though police officer's expressed purpose in examining arrestee's purse was to look for weapon, it was reasonable for officer to look for narcotic drugs in her purse. Id.

Where police officer by reasonable search found that purse discovered at defendant's feet contained property of another woman, officer properly looked inside wallet contained in purse to ascertain ownership. Id.

Search of the defendant's automobile in police lot within one hour after his arrest on traffic warrants and while collateral for his release was being obtained is exploratory and illegal; thus, allegedly stolen articles found in trunk of automobile were inadmissible in prosecution under this section. G. L. Pigford v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 837).

Where officers had valid search warrant and while making search officers found pistol which was not listed in warrant, seizure of pistol which subsequently turned out to be stolen and which formed basis of prosecution for receiving stolen property was legal. W. D. Heard v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 125).

§ 22-2206. Stealing property of District of Columbia.

Whoever shall embezzle, steal, or purloin any money, property, or writing, the property of the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not exceeding five years, or be fined not more than five thousand dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 831.)

CROSS REFERENCES

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Use of words "embezzle, steal or purloin", in District of Columbia statute relating to property of the District, indicated that Congress intended to include in the penalized conduct every offense falling between common-law larceny and embezzlement, so that, at the very least, robbery, embezzlement and larceny of property belonging to the District of Columbia are outlawed by the statute. W. D. Mitchell et al. v. United States (1968, 394 F. 2d 767, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 292).

Knowledge of government ownership is a necessary element of offense condemned by statute relating to the embezzlement, stealing or purloining of any money, property or writing of the District of Columbia, since the statute which provides more severe penalties than other statutes relating to petit larceny and petit embezzlement, would be a greater deterrent only if potential wrongdoers were aware that property they were intending to steal belonged to the District. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Where arresting police officer while in pawn shop observed typewriter bearing sticker indicating that it belonged to Department of Public Health, officer had probable cause to arrest the defendant who brought in the typewriter and typewriter is admissible, and arresting officer's ignorance of actual practice of Department in disposing of surplus typewriters is irrelevant. United States v. E. S. Wallace (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 32).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, United States District Court, under the circumstances, did not abuse its discretion in admitting evidence of defendant's participation in another alleged crime of similar character committed the same evening. Adams v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 451, 99 U. S. App. D. C. 288).

Instructions

While facts in case resulting in conviction for stealing property belonging to District of Columbia may have justified a charge limited to elements of larceny, introduction of the words "steal" and "purloin" into the charge placed an obligation on trial judge to explain their meaning and relation to the larceny term. W. D. Mitchell et al. v. United States (1968, 394 F. 2d 767, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 292).

Trial judge would not be obligated to delineate the issues of each of the crimes covered by District of Columbia statute prohibiting the embezzlement, stealing or purloining of any property of the District, but he would be obliged to specify the elements of the crime or crimes most closely related to the factual situation. Id.

In prosecution for embezzlement, stealing and purloining of property of District of Columbia, while judge did speak of elements of property value and wrongful taking in his charge on robbery counts, it was inadequate to cover the shortcomings of the charge since the taking, constituting an element of robbery, was substantially different from a larceny taking, and trial judge did not refer jury to those portions of his earlier charge. Id.

Conviction of defendants under statute relating to the stealing, embezzling or purloining of any money, property, or writing of the District of Columbia, for stealing service revolver of officer, would be reversed where court's charge was inadequate to properly instruct jury upon all crucial elements of the offenses embraced within prosecution's evidence. Id.

§ 22-2207. Receiving property stolen from the District of Columbia.

Whoever shall receive, conceal, or aid in concealing, or have in possession, with intent to convert to his own use, any money, property, or writing, the property of the District of Columbia, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen, or purloined from the District of Columbia by any other person, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars or imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both. Whoever shall maliciously destroy anything of value of the amount or value of $100 or upward which shall have been stolen, knowing the same to have been stolen, shall suffer imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 828; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(d).)

Chapter 23.—LIBEL—BLACKMAIL—EXTORTION

Sec.

22-2301. Libel.

22-2302. Libel—Publication—Sufficiency.

22-2303. Libel—Justification.

22-2304. False charges of unchastity.

22-2305. Blackmail.

22-2306. Intent to commit extortion by communication of illegal threats and demands—Penalty.

22-2307. Threatening to kidnap or injure a person or damage his property—Penalty.

§ 22-2301. Libel.

Whoever publishes a libel shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 815.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22-2302.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Common law

Where this section provides the punishment for libel, defining publication and justification but not libel itself, common-law libel is thus meant. Ormsby v. United States (C.C.A. 6, 1921, 273 F. 977).

Privileged communication

A scurrilous letter, addressed to the District Commissioners, charging certain of their subordinate officers with malfeasance in office, copies of which were sent to such officials, is not privileged, especially when no foundation for the charge appears. Raymond v. United States (1905, 25 App. D.C. 555, certiorari denied 26 S. Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 619, 50 L. Ed. 623).

Punitive damages

The offender is subject to both the assessment of punitive damages and criminal punishment for the defamation without being in double jeopardy, and fact defendant has paid or is subject to fine is not to be taken in reduction of punitive damages. Afro-American Publishing Co. v. Eli Jaffe, etc. (1966, 366 F. 2d 649, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 70).

Sentence

One convicted under this section, and sentenced to 5 years' imprisonment at hard labor is not thereby subjected to "cruel or unusual punishment." Raymond v. United States (1905, 25 App. D.C. 555, certiorari denied 26 S. Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 619, 50 L. Ed. 623).

§ 22-2302. Libel—Publication—Sufficiency.

To knowingly send or deliver any libelous communication to the party libeled is a sufficient publication to subject the person sending or delivering the same to punishment as provided in section 22-2301. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 816.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Indictment

Indictment is clearly inconsistent with an inference that the asserted libel was a privileged communication or an act done in the performance of a legal duty, because of the allegation in the indictment that the libelous words charged were not only false, scandalous, malicious, and defamatory, but were uttered with the unlawful and malicious intention to vilify, defame, scandalize, and disgrace the subject of the publication. Ormsby v. United States (C.C.A. 6, 1921, 273 F. 977).

§ 22-2303. Libel—Justification.

Any publication of a libel shall be justified if it appear that the matter charged as libelous was true and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 817.)

§ 22-2304. False charges of unchastity.

Whoever wrongfully accuses any woman of unchastity shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, and shall also be liable to a civil action for damages by the party injured. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 818.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Conspiracy

In action for damages under this section, an alleged conspiracy or combination is not one of the elements of the cause of action, as it is not created by the conspiracy, but by the wrongful acts done by the defendants to the injury of the plaintiff. Ewald v. Lane (1939, 104 F. 2d 222, 70 App. D.C. 89, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 81, 308 U.S. 568, 84 L. Ed. 477).

Crime against United States

One who "wrongfully accuses a woman of unchastity commits a crime against the United States. And * * * an indictment for a conspiracy to commit * * * such an offense" charges an offense under said 18 U.S.C. § 371. Fletcher v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 53, certiorari denied 35 S. Ct. 283, 235 U.S. 706, 59 L. Ed. 434).

Privileged communication

Statement by physician to unmarried woman in the presence of a third party (who is there at the latter's request) that she is pregnant is privileged, in the absence of malice. Brice v. Curtis (1912, 38 App. D.C. 304).

§ 22-2305. Blackmail.

Whoever verbally or in writing accuses or threatens to accuse any person of a crime or of any conduct which, if true, would tend to disgrace such other person, or in any way subject him to the ridicule or contempt of society, or threatens to expose or publish any of his infirmities or failings, with intent to extort from such other person anything of value or any pecuniary advantage whatever, or to compel the person accused or threatened to do or to refrain from doing any act, and whoever with such intent publishes any such accusation against any other person shall be imprisoned for not more than five years or be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 819.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Affidavit, probable cause

When creditor, with intent to extort money, had accused debtor with conduct which, if true, would tend to subject him to the contempt of society, said debtor had probable cause for swearing out the affidavit under § 819 of the code (this section). Slater v. Taylor (1908, 31 App. D.C. 100, 18 L.R.A., N.S., 77).

Collection agency

No recovery can be had against a collection agency when they alleged that person's credit standing would be jeopardized if debt were not paid, as this does not violate the blackmail statute. Clark v. Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington, D.C. (1939, 105 F. 2d 62, 70 App. D.C. 183).

Intent

In blackmail prosecution, evidence sustained finding of intent to extort. Connor v. United States (1953, 200 F. 2d 750, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 417).

Review

Where no objection had been made during trial to admission of evidence, and proceedings with respect to pretrial motion, other than written motion and order denying it, were not part of record on appeal, reviewing court could not sustain defendant's contention that trial court had erred in denying his pretrial motion to suppress certain evidence. Wade, Jr. v. United States (1958, 259 F. 2d 950, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to present question for jury as to whether defendant, who allegedly threatened to tell complaining witness' wife that he had caused pregnancy of another woman, was guilty of blackmail. U. Salley v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 814, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 207).

§ 22-2306. Intent to commit extortion by communication of illegal threats and demands—Penalty.

Whoever with intent to extort from any person, firm, association, or corporation, any money or other thing of value: (1) transmits within the District of Columbia any communication containing any demand or request for ransom or reward for the release of any kidnapped person, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both; (2) transmits within the District of Columbia any communication containing any threat to kidnap any person or any threat to injure the person of another, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both; or (3) transmits within the District of Columbia any communication containing any threat to injure the property or reputation of the recipient of the communication or of another or the reputation of a deceased person or any threat to accuse the recipient of the communication or any other person of a crime, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both. (June 19, 1968, Pub. L. 90-351, § 1501, title X, 82 Stat. 238.)

Chapter 24.—MURDER—MANSLAUGHTER

Sec.

22-2401. Murder in the first degree—Purposeful killing—Killing while perpetrating certain crimes.

22-2402. Murder in first degree—Placing obstructions upon or displacement of railroad.

22-2403. Murder in second degree.

22-2404. Punishment for murder in first and second degrees.

22-2405. Punishment for manslaughter.

§ 22-2401. Murder in the first degree—Purposeful killing—Killing while perpetrating certain crimes.

Whoever, being of sound memory and discretion, kills another purposely, either of deliberate and premeditated malice or by means of poison, or in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or without purpose so to do kills another in perpetrating or in attempting to perpetrate any arson, as defined in section 22-401 or 22-402, rape, mayhem, robbery, or kidnapping, or in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate any housebreaking while armed with or using a dangerous weapon, is guilty of murder in the first degree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 798; June 12, 1940, 54 Stat. 347, ch. 339.)

AMENDMENT

1940—Act June 12, 1940, enlarged the crime of murder in the first degree by adding those provisions commencing "or without purpose so to do."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Where the trial court examined witness, after prosecution claimed surprise, as to his reasons for changing his mind on issue of who had attacked victim and afforded defense counsel opportunity to cross-examine witness, and defense counsel made no objection to admission of witness' testimony on recall repudiating his previous testimony and asserting that the defendant had beaten victim and that police detective had not influenced him to pick defendant's picture out of photographs shown to him, allowing witness to be recalled instead of declaring mistrial upon assertion of surprise by prosecution is not an abuse of discretion. In the Matter of D. S. A. (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 829).

Accomplice

Defendant who participated in robbery of cab driver that resulted in killing was guilty of murder in first degree even though defendant was accomplice of codefendant who did the actual shooting. United States v. J. R. Carter (1971, 445 F. 2d 669, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 193; cert. denied 92 S.Ct. 988, 405 U.S. 932).

Acquittal

Where government was unable to show any motive for killing of victim nor was there any showing of prior threats or quarrels which might supply inference of premeditation and deliberation in defendant's killing of victim by multiple stab wounds inflicted with knife defendant had been carrying with him that night, government's evidence was insufficient to warrant submission of an issue of premeditation and deliberation to jury and defendant's motion for acquittal of first-degree murder should have been granted at conclusion of prosecution's case. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Appeal and error

Since the surrounding facts and evidence in homicide prosecution did not present a case of substantial doubt as to possibility of misidentification, since there was untainted identification testimony, and since there was strong evidence independent of testimony of resemblance witnesses showing that defendant was the offender, the combination of strength in government's case and weakness of the "resemblance" testimony in contributing to convictions warranted a finding that introduction of resemblance testimony, assuming it would have been established as error following a hearing on pretrial confrontation, was only harmless error. United States v. F. A. Brooks (1971, 449 F. 2d 1077, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Appreciable time

Law requires only that some appreciable time elapse during which necessary premeditation can take place in order to convict of premeditated murder. United States v. R. L. Mack (1972, 466 F. 2d 333, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 93 S.Ct. 297, 409 U.S. 952).

Passage of time, standing alone, will not support an inference that deliberation took place, in prosecution for premeditated murder. Id.

No particular length of time is necessary for deliberation, and it is not the lapse of time which constitutes deliberation necessary to convict for first-degree murder but the reflection and turning over in mind of accused concerning his design and purpose to kill. W. L. Parman v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 559, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Evidence that deceased was assaulted, bound with rope, tied to a chair and then killed by strangulation from behind while still tightly bound was sufficient to support finding of premeditation. Id.

"Appreciable time" charge in homicide prosecution is a meaningful way to convey to jury the core meaning of premeditation and deliberation and for that reason should be given at least where specifically requested by defense. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Court's refusal in homicide prosecution to state that the time one must have for deliberation be "some appreciable period of time" rather than "some period of time" as originally proposed by judge was compounded by charge of court that the time to deliberate may be in the nature of hours, minutes or seconds. Id.

Arraignment

Defendant's convictions for robbery and felony-murder would not be deemed secured through information obtained in violation of rule requiring prompt arraignment, or in violation of due process and speedy trial amendments to the federal Constitution, where defendant was presented in court on day he surrendered, no confession by defendant was introduced against him, evidence established all basic elements of the crimes, and defendant took the stand and described his participation in the robbery and fatal shooting. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Arraignment consists of three parts: (1) Calling the defendant by name and commanding him to hold up his hand, that his identification may be certain; (2) reading to him the indictment; (3) taking his plea. Johnson v. United States (1912, 38 App. D.C. 347, affirmed 32 S. Ct. 748, 225 U.S. 405, 56 L. Ed. 1142).

Assault

"A conviction for an assault and battery is no bar to a subsequent indictment for manslaughter, or murder, in case the person assaulted dies within a year and a day." Hopkins v. United States (1894, 4 App. D.C. 430).

Failure of deceased to secure proper medical attention after assault no defense to charge of homicide. Id.

Authority of jury

A jury may consider issue of second-degree murder on an indictment of first-degree felony-murder only if it finds some defect with proof as to felony-murder. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Bifurcated trial

Holding a bifurcated trial was not improper on theory that since jury did not pass upon issue of insanity in first phase of trial they did not consider elements of "sound memory," "sound discretion," "deliberate malice," and "premeditated malice" where jury was instructed that government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that defendant acted with malice and after premeditation and alleged requirement of affirmative proof of "sound memory and discretion" was met in second phase of the trial. United States v. L. W. Green (1972, 463 F. 2d 1313, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 222).

Where defendant moved to dismiss jury after first part of bifurcated trial, he could not complain that finding on "sound memory and discretion" was made by the court in the second phase of the trial rather than in the first phase of the trial. Id.

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in murder prosecution by denying motion for bifurcated trial with two juries on issues of insanity and defense to the merits. W. L. Parman v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 559, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Common law

"The definition of murder in section 798 of the 1901 code (this section) is the common-law definition of the crime." Hamilton v. United States (1905, 26 App. D.C. 382). See, also, Bishop v. United States (1940, 107 F. 2d 297, 71 App. D.C. 132).

Conduct of prosecutor

In prosecution for murder, where prosecution did not abide by the court's ruling that it could not impeach its own witness and over repeated objections sought to convince jury that the witness had given a statement that was inconsistent with his sworn testimony at trial and made references to a prior statement of the witness not in evidence and improper conduct was renewed in summation to the jury, improper conduct of the prosecutor required reversal where conduct of the prosecutor might have affected the verdict on the issue of self defense or the degree of homicide. Belton v. United States (1958, 259 F. 2d 811, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 81).

Confessions

Admission in evidence in robbery and murder trial of defendant's pretrial address to the court which included statement "I feel I am going in blind, you know, just going to start this trial, although personally I know I am guilty" constituted reversible error where he did not intend that the statement be considered as confession or as admission and was therefore not voluntary. United States v. L. P. Robinson (1972, 459 F. 2d 1164, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Defendant accused of homicide failed to sustain burden of proving that his prior statement was improperly admitted at trial on ground that it was made after committing magistrate had failed to comply with rule relating to defendant's right to know charge against him and to retain counsel. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

In prosecution for murder in first degree committed in perpetration of offense of housebreaking while armed with a deadly weapon, evidence sustained admission in evidence of defendant's written confession, subject to final determination by jury, upon all evidence, as to its voluntary nature. Tyler v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 24, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 2, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 639, 343 U. S. 908, 96 L. Ed. 1326).

Where defendant had been duly committed to jail upon other charges and was being legally detained, and defendant was delivered to custody of policemen by jail officials for purpose of going to police headquarters to take a lie detector test, to which defendant had agreed to submit, though jailer exceeded his authority in surrendering defendant, fact that defendant was in temporary care of police at time of making written confession to murder charge did not render confession inadmissible at his trial. Id.

The drunken condition of accused when making a confession, unless such drunkenness goes to the extent of mania, does not affect the admissibility of such confession in evidence. Bell v. United States (1931, 47 F. 2d 438, 60 App. D.C. 76, 74 A.L.R. 1098).

While it is the general rule that a confession to be admissible must relate to the offense charged, it is equally true that it may include other offenses when there can be no separation of the relevant and irrelevant parts. Robinson v. United States (1933, 63 F. 2d 147, 61 App. D.C. 370, certiorari denied 53 S. Ct. 697, 289 U.S. 749, 77 L. Ed. 1494).

Where the evidence showed that one charged with murder in the first degree had made confession of his crime after being in custody but eleven hours, without fear or compulsion, the voluntariness of his confession was for the jury. McAfee v. United States (1940, 111 F. 2d 199, 72 App. D.C. 60, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1094, 310 U.S. 643, 84 L. Ed. 1410).

In prosecution for murder, where neither of defendants made any attack upon the voluntariness of their confessions, either on direct examination or cross-examination, and not until on redirect examination did they intimate that confessions were obtained by threats of police to hold relatives of defendants until confessions were made, admitting confessions was not error. Hawkins v. United States (1947, 158 F. 2d 652, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 376, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 1347, 331 U.S. 830, 97 L. Ed. 1844, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 1728, 331 U.S. 869, 91 L. Ed. 1872).

Error, if any, in permitting defendant's written confession to be received in evidence on ground that it clearly appeared that statement had been obtained through force, coercion and intimidation was rendered harmless by fact that defendant took stand in his own behalf and of his own accord gave testimony which was in all essential respects similar to statements in confession. Wheeler v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 225, 82 U.S. App. D.C.

363, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 333 U.S. 830, 92 L. Ed. 1115). See, also, Wheeler v. Reid (1949, 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Conviction of lesser offense

Under indictment charging first degree murder done during perpetration or attempted perpetration of rape, mayhem, robbery, kidnapping, or housebreaking while armed with or using a dangerous weapon, defendant may, if evidence warrants, be found guilty of the necessarily included offense of second degree murder. Green v. United States (1955, 218 F. 2d 856, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 45).

Where defendant is guilty of murder or nothing, it is not error to refuse to charge as to manslaughter. Horton v. United States (1899, 15 App. D.C. 310).

When, in homicide case, the only defense is insanity, but there is no evidence to reduce the crime from murder to manslaughter, it was not error for the trial court to state to the jury that the evidence will not justify a verdict of manslaughter. Id.

Where several strong men join in a criminal attack upon a defenseless man, knock him down, and, when he attempts to escape, pursue him and then with augmented numbers continue the assault, and one of the conspirators, while his confederates are beating their victim, plunges a knife into him, they should all be charged with manslaughter, even though they did not contemplate the use of the knife, for the conspirators must be presumed to know that great force and violence probably will result. Patten v. United States (1914, 42 App. D.C. 239).

To reduce homicide from murder to manslaughter, defendant must not only show that he acted under the influence of passion but "in addition that there was a sufficient cause of provocation for his passion." Jackson v. United States (1919, 48 App. D.C. 272).

Law presumes that defendant, while attempting to perpetuate a robbery, foresaw and intended whatever consequences might naturally result from such an encounter, and the law, not as a matter of fact, but as a conclusion of legal reasoning and experience, considers this state of mind to be implied malice, the homicide would not be manslaughter which is an unlawful killing without malice, but murder either in first or second degree. Marcus v. United States (1937, 86 F. 2d 854, 66 App. D.C. 298).

Corpus delicti

Corpus delicti under count charging homicide in perpetration of a housebreaking did not require independent proof that death occurred in perpetration of housebreaking. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

In prosecution for murder in first degree committed in perpetration of offense of housebreaking while armed with deadly weapon, without considering defendant's written confession, evidence was sufficient to prove corpus delicti. Tyler v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 24, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 2, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 639, 343 U. S. 908, 96 L. Ed. 1326).

Deliberation

Evidence that defendant first struck his victim because she had complained about his work, that he went to floor above, obtained a stick from a fireplace, returned downstairs and killed her, that in the killing he used the stick and also choked her, and that to insure her death he used a knife, was sufficient to permit jury to find deliberation. Fisher v. United States (1945, 149 F. 2d 28, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 96, affirmed 66 S. Ct. 1318, 328 U.S. 463, 90 L. Ed. 1382, 166 A.L.R. 1176, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

Double jeopardy

Where jury was authorized at first trial to find defendant guilty of either first degree murder or second degree murder, and jury found defendant guilty of second degree murder, but on appeal that conviction was reversed and the case was remanded for a new trial, second trial of defendant for first degree murder placed him in jeopardy twice for same offense in violation of the constitutional prohibition against double jeopardy, and defendant had not waived that defense by making successful appeal of erroneous conviction of second degree murder. Green v. United States (1957, 78 S. Ct. 221, 355 U.S. 184, 2 L. Ed. 2d 199, 61 A. L. R. 2d 1119).

Where jury was authorized to find defendant guilty of either first degree murder or alternatively of second degree murder and jury found him guilty of second degree murder, defendant, by appealing, did not prolong his original jeopardy, and when his conviction for second degree murder was reversed and case remanded he could not be tried again for first degree murder without placing him in new jeopardy. Id.

Elements of crime

The distinguishing characteristic of first degree murder is that it is a deliberate, premeditated, intentional killing, while killing in second degree murder may be intentional or unintentional, but it must, in either event, result from a willful and malicious act. P. O. Hansborough v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 645, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Premeditation and deliberation are necessary elements of first degree murder. Mergner v. United States (1945, 147 F. 2d 572, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1085, 325 U.S. 850, 89 L. Ed. 1971).

Murder first degree is defined by statute as a purposeful killing done either with premeditated malice or in committing or attempting to commit a felony and the statute also characterizes as such a killing one in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of any one of the enumerated felonies although there was no purpose to kill. Goodall v. United States (1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 148, 17 A.L.R. 2d 1070, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U.S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Since the indictment did not charge defendant with purposely killing another, but only with killing him while attempting to rob him, it was necessarily found under the second segment of the statute providing that the intent to kill is not an ingredient of the crime and need not be alleged or proved. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Where two witnesses testified that defendant, in company of identified killer and a third person, entered apartment building where victim lived, the same three men were seen by three witnesses fleeing the scene just after a shot was fired and one witness testified that the three men were the same three he had seen inside building only moments earlier, there was enough evidence to link defendant with events occurring inside building so that testimony as to those events was admissible against him. United States v. R. L. Mack (1972, 466 F. 2d 333, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 297, 409 U.S. 952).

Witness' testimony that one of three men outside murder victim's apartment said they would "upset" victim "good" was relevant on issue of premeditation, was not objectionable as hearsay and was admissible, even though defendant could not be identified as source of the declaration. Id.

Badly injured victim's statement to defendant, as officer was escorting defendant past her, "You had no call to do that to me, Bennie," was admissible as spontaneous, excited utterance. United States v. B. E. Barnes (1972, 464 F. 2d 828, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 319; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1514, 410 U.S. 988).

Incriminating statement by badly burned victim during hospital interview on day before she died, in course of which she said that she felt she was going to die, was admissible as dying declaration. Id.

Suspicion of codefendants charged with first-degree murder that some understanding existed that witness, who had also participated in alleged murder, might not be prosecuted or that he believed he would not be, was not sufficient to exclude his otherwise admissible testimony as to details of crime. R. T. Brown, J. D. Irby and R. L. Jones v. United States (1967, 375 F. 2d 310, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Testimony of circumstances surrounding defendant's arrest by officers pursuant to a warrant for his arrest, not for the robberies and murder for which he was being tried, but for armed assault on police officer, offered as indicating consciousness of guilt or resistance to arrest, was admissible in context in which case was tried. C. Gregory v. United States (1966, 369 F. 2d 185, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Inadmissible statement could not be used by Government even for limited purpose of "refreshing" defendant's recollection, and such use of statement was as damaging as if it had been admitted into evidence. J. Inge v. United States (1966, 356 F. 2d 345, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 6).

Testimony of eyewitness to crime of murder and robbery need not be suppressed because police had learned from defendants during period of illegal detention of the existence and identity of such eyewitness. W. M. Smith, Jr., and R. Bowden v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 879, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Evidence of one defendant's activities prior to alleged homicide was admissible in prosecution of three defendants for such homicide, in view of close proximity, in time, place and persons between such activities and subsequent homicide. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

Where same evidence was used to connect defendant with crimes charged in counts two, three and four as was employed in count one, and such evidence was ruled inadmissible on appeal from judgment of conviction on count one, new trial ordered by Court of Appeals for count one, should embrace all four counts. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1962, 205 F. Supp. 944).

In prosecution of Puerto Rican defendant, whose companion shot and killed guard in front of dwelling of President of the United States, for first-degree murder, wherein defendant interposed defense that he and companion had no intent to kill anyone but merely wished to create an incident in order to bring to the attention of the American people conditions in Puerto Rico, defendant was properly allowed to testify as to his own intent. Collazo v. United States (1952, 196 F. 2d 573, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 241, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1065, 343 U.S. 968, 96 L. Ed. 1364).

In prosecution for murder in first degree committed in perpetration of offense of housebreaking while armed with deadly weapon, ruling that statement of witness that he told defendant that lie detector indicated that defendant was lying, would not be admitted as evidence of any alleged lying of defendant, but merely as evidence bearing upon question whether defendant's confession was, in fact, voluntary, was correct. Tyler v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 24, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 2, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 639, 343 U.S. 908, 96 L. Ed. 1326).

To make one criminal act evidence of another, there must be a connection to show that he who committed the one must have done the other, and the admissibility of such evidence is a judicial question. Burge v. United States (1906, 26 App. D.C. 524).

Evidence received tending to show defendant and wife quarreled and fought, sufficiently established the corpus delicti to justify receiving testimony of defendant's statements. Murray v. United States (1923, 288 F. 1008, 53 App. D.C. 119, certiorari denied 43 S. Ct. 703, 262 U.S. 757, 67 L. Ed. 1218).

In prosecution for murder committed while attempting to perpetrate robbery, admitting evidence that defendant entered plea of not guilty at preliminary hearing before committing magistrate, and that when defendant was asked to plead he answered that he was guilty of robbing and shooting, but that it was not premeditated or that he had not committed premeditated murder, was not prejudicial error where the evidence added nothing prejudicial either to confession or to evidence given by defendant at trial. Mumforde v. United States (1942, 130 F. 2d 411, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 107, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U.S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

In murder prosecution, evidence of uncommunicated complaint which victim of defendant had made about his work prior to the offense was properly excluded, where the complaint was not a threat, and there was no claim of self-defense. Fisher v. United States (1945, 149 F. 2d 28, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 96, affirmed 66 S. Ct. 1318, 328 U.S. 463, 90 L. Ed. 1382, 166 A.L.R. 1176, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

In first degree murder prosecution, evidence that defendant deliberately pursued and shot deceased's sister immediately after defendant shot deceased was admissible as tending to show that defendant's shooting of deceased was not an accident in an attempt at self-defense against deceased's husband, but was done with deliberate intent to kill. Copeland v. United States (1946, 152 F. 2d 769, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 308, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 1010, 328 U.S. 841, 90 L. Ed. 1615).

In prosecution of three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery, where defendants suggested possibility that victim died of heart attack, exhibiting victim's clothing to jury and showing bullet hole in back of victim's coat was not improper. Hall v. United States (1948, 168 F. 2d 161, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 166, 4 A.L.R. 2d 1193, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1509, 334 U.S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U.S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

In murder prosecution, receiving evidence that revolver with which victim was shot had been stolen from house of certain person was not error on ground that it constituted evidence of offense other than that for which defendants were on trial, in absence of any evidence showing that any of the defendants had stolen the revolver or had received it knowing it to have been stolen. Id.

An examination of murder weapon by ballistics expert during trial was not part of the trial, and the fact that such examination was made in the absence of the defendant does not render inadmissible evidence concerning it. Goodal v. United States (1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 148, 17 A.L.R. 2d 1070, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U.S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

— Burden of proof

Where defendant, accused of murder and robbery, introduced evidence that on date thereof he was suffering from mental disease or defect, it became duty of government to prove him sane beyond reasonable doubt at the time of commission of crimes charged. H. S. Carey v. United States (1961, 296 F. 2d 442, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

— Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of first-degree felony-murder, first-degree premeditated murder and armed robbery. United States v. R. L. Mack (1972, 466 F. 2d 333, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 297, 409 U.S. 152).

While there was no evidence of motive in homicide prosecution, evidence that the defendant brought shotgun and knife to scene of the crime is sufficient to permit jury to infer that the killing was premeditated, where sawed-off shotgun that was carried in briefcase to scene of crime was not a weapon that had innocent uses, where there was no evidence that the defendant habitually carried it with him, and where in addition the single knife wound in decedent's throat was made at a place calculated to make death an unmistakable result. United States v. F. A. Brooks (1971, 449 F. 2d 1077, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Evidence, including testimony as to statements of the defendant and codefendant describing the events and circumstances at time of shooting of cab driver, sustained convictions of robbery and felony murder. United States v. J. R. Carter (1971, 445 F. 2d 669, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 193; cert. denied 92 S.Ct. 988, 405 U.S. 932).
